In conclusion, I freely admit that my contacts with Charlevoix, for a number of years, have been fleeting at best, and my knowledge of the situation is gained from afar. But those of us who have spent our adult lives in educational administration do know that boards of education work long, hard, hours while wrestling with problems and decisions most people never hear about, for very little thanks. I do know that the school superintendents in Michigan consider Rex Milligan one of the finest in the state.

It just seems inconceivable that these people would put themselves through the tortures they are absorbing, or take the abuse they are receiving in asking the district for 3.5 mills, if they did not believe with all their hearts the money is sorely needed.

Sincerely,
Joseph Bellinger

Ed. note: Mr. Bellinger, Superintendent of the Addison school district, near Jackson, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bellinger of Charlevoix. He is a graduate of the local public schools.

Warning to boozers

Imagine what life in the future could be like! Every time a bartender serves you a martini, he will have to make this statement as he hands you your drink: I am required by law to advise you that in consuming this product you may observe at the lower dosage ranges, such reversible symptoms as drowsiness, confusion and loss of motor control. Periodic liver function tests are advisable when taken over longer periods of time. This is highly addictive, and withdrawal may cause hallucinations.

Old days

By BOB MYERS

I graduated from Lapeer High in 1938. We didn't have a high school annual because in the depression years there was no money for them. Class rings cost $12.50. I never bought one, using the money instead to buy a Model T Ford which could then be had for $10 to $20. It was a coupe. I cut off the top and painted it vertical stripes of orchid and white. I was 16 and had been driving for 2 years. In those days you could get a license at 14 and start drinking at 18.

I had more cash than most because I had been cleaning at The County Press before school for 50 cents a week, got a 75 cent clothing allowance, and $2 for working Saturdays at the farm.

The plutocrat of the crowd, though, was Larry Smith, who later owned the White Horse Inn. He worked after school at the First National Bank and had a checking account. When it came time to buy gas for the Model T, he would write a check for his share - always an amount under 50 cents.

Highest paid man at the school those days was Supt E. E. Irwin. He made $3500 and counted the pieces of chalk issued each teacher. Nothing bigger than a table lamp was made in the school shop that year because the longest piece of wood in the stockroom was 2 feet. Mrs. Beach was eligible to work at the school again after a depression rule had been rescinded. In order to spread the work, husband-and-wife teachers could not both have jobs. Her husband, Sandy, was Sr High principal and also taught chemistry and had study hall.

Tom Dolan recalls a story from those days. He worked in Flint then for a German house builder who called him Little Tom to differentiate between another employee, Big Tom.

"One day," said Dolan, "the builder said to me, "Liddle Dom, you toke Big Dom up on de roof and start shinkling und you see dat he don't try to do no shinkling mit his mitts on!"

THOSE WERE also the days of the most articulate labor spokesman of them all, John L. Lewis. I heard his comment on the radio after F.D.R. had dismissed a conflict between labor and management with the comment, "A plague on both your houses."

Lewis replied:

"It ill behooves anyone who has supped at labor's table and who has been sheltered in labor's house to curse with equal fervor and fine impartiality both labor and its adversaries when they become locked in deadly embrace."

Sex education bricked up

There is currently a lot of fuss about whether Junior should get his sex education in school or from the big kid next door. I say he should get it in school because it is getting harder and harder to get it anywhere else.

I speak from bitter experience. Modern architecture has just knocked the foundation from under my sex education. The publisher has bricked up the huge window through which I have watched the girls go by for the past 18 years.

This was an unusually splendid window for girl watching. It was on the ground floor, facing the main street. Most important, it was 10 feet high and probably 30 feet wide. It took a slow moving, hip wiggling girl a full half-minute to get out of view. You could see her coming, then full profile, then going. You could see her from shoes to hairdo. When the right girl walked by, it was a marvelous occasion indeed.

(I should add right here that when I say "girl" I am not necessarily talking about teenagers although they can certainly be lovely things when they comb the hair out of their mouths. Some of the finest looking women in my hometown are over 30, even over 40, and it is a definite pleasure to ogle them).

Anyway, these days I am working harder and enjoying it lesser. You should see what I have to watch girls through. There are 2 thin slits of glass in the new brick front, widely separated. It's like seeing a doll speed by in a convertible. Before you can decide if you're in love again, she's gone from your life forever. If something promising flits by one skinny window, I must turn my head quickly to catch a second glimpse in the other crack. There's no more sitting back and enjoying the scenery in leisure. I must keep alert, forever flicking my eyes from window to window in fear I'll miss a micro-skirt.

The whole procedure makes me feel sneaky - less like a connoisseur of beauty and more like a dirty old man.

What really hurts is that this brick-blow comes at a particularly bad time. As steady readers will recall, I am a leg man, brought up on Betty Grable. Oh, big bosoms are fine and I never threw rocks at Jane Russell. But they can be faked whereas a shapely leg has got to be legitimate. Wax flowers are nice from a distance, but I wouldn't want my brother to look for bees in one.

So obviously, for me the mini-skirt was the greatest invention since seamless hose. With summer upon us, I was anticipating a marvelous season of trying to distinguish shorts from culottes from skirts. But there I am, bricked away from the world I love. I think my publisher reads too much Edgar Allen Poe.

It was bad enough, a few years ago, when he installed Venetian blinds. I often went home with striped eyeballs. Now I face a blank wall and can barely see a skinny window from the outer corner of each eye. I'll be going home with an eyeball over each ear.

There may be some of you who will claim that girl watching has nothing to do with sex education. You go to your school and I'll go to mine.

Each year it seems to get tougher or a man to proceed Onward and Upward.

ON THE FLIP SIDE

Flip Side must report another meeting at which schools were mentioned and the full Board was not in attendance. In fact, we're not at all certain they were invited.

The Courier editor, radio personality Bill Supernaw, Jerrold Redeker and Fred Payne had lunch together one day last week.

As all four are interested in the school situation, the topic came up in conversation, along with comments on the tight money market, interest rates, the luncheon menu, and Soupy's diet, among other things.

No proposals were admitted to the conversation, but Supernaw did make one desision. . . .to forego a bowl of chili with his cheeseburger.

Bill Carey, eating at the same dining spot, claimed the gathering was a "secret" meeting. He was invited to join the group, but declined.

John Reddy of the Birmingham Eccentric passes along the following story.

"A friend created what I thought would be a problem for me recently. He gave me two pocket knives for our two sons. They are ages nine and four, and, in my way of thinking, too young to be playing with knives let alone have clear title to one of their own.

"Remembering, though, a distant and somewhat fuzzy conversation about the importance of being gracious about gifts and compliments, I accepted the two double-bladed knives. But not without some feeling of trepidation.

"From that point on I found my reasoning pursuing the following path.

"Other boys no doubt would have a pocket knife at some time and some place. I compared my knife problem to sex education and thought that perhaps it would be better for me to teach our son the proper use of a knife than hazard the chance that this information might come from someone less interested in my son's safety.

"Now I know that what the 9-year-old does the 4-year-old boy is soon to simulate. So, I had to decide on whether he was old enough to attempt use of a knife. While pondering this, we were at the dinner table. And it struck me then that a fork and steak knife could be just as dangerous as a pocket knife if it weren't for the fact my wife had taught the children proper use of eating utensils.

"At this point I decided both boys would be given their pocket knives but would be permitted to use them only in my presence and after they demonstrated ease in properly handling them.

"The 4-year-old, of course, being less patient, pressed me for his knife. So it was he who first grasped the technique for properly opening, closing and handling a knife. The 9-year-old learned, too, in a process that cost him a minor cut on his thumb. That reminded him that he has to be as careful in the use of his knife as his younger brother.

"Now a by-product of all this, and my real purpose for recalling the incident at all, is that imbued with the idea of learning things and having his dad devote the necessary time to him, the youngest boy said, "Why don't you teach me to tie my shoe, too?"

"After discovering what a little patience could do with teaching use of the knife, I set about to work with shoe laces.

"Just think, my spouse appreciates me because she no longer has to tie the boy's shoes and the boys want me around so they can whittle. I wonder if the friend who gave the boys the knives ever thought such small gifts would go a long way."

Bell issues phone advice

More than half of all business firms inadvertently discourage business, the Michigan Bell Telephone Company reports.

Studies show that only about 50 percent of business letterheads and printed matter, such as invoices, brochures and advertising media, include telephone numbers.

The appearance of a telephone number on stationery implies an invitation for customers to call, according to Michigan Bell. Conversely, the absence of a telephone number may discourage calls -- and possible business, said a company spokesman.

Printing phone numbers on correspondence and business forms also speeds up the handling of calls when callers do not need to dial Directory Assistance (Information) to obtain the numbers.

Michigan Bell suggests use of the area code as well, to invite long distance calls.

Top quality teachers an educational 'must'

Good education demands quality teachers and a strong teaching profession, according to Mrs. Maurine Wyatt, Michigan Education Association Field Representative for the northern part of the lower peninsula.

"The only way we can attract professional people into our schools is to assure them the stature, compensation and decision-making freedom that are the hallmarks of a profession," Mrs Wyatt said.

"One of the outstanding benefits of the Public Employment Relation Act is that it gives teacher organizations the opportunity to negotiate for the professional status that was never offered to teachers by boards of education," she added.

"The main issues involved in most unsettled teacher contracts in this area concern things other than salary, although adequate compensation is still a prime factor in attracting top people," Mrs. Wyatt said.

"While teaching concerns such as classroom discipline, curriculum planning, textbook selection and class size are issues of utmost importance to most teachers, they are also concerned for their profession. They seek some voice in setting up procedures for a fair evaluation of teachers as well as a desire that only fully qualified, degree teachers be admitted into the profession." Mrs. Wyatt explained.

"The stature of every profession depends to a great extent on the strength and reputation of the organization that represents it," she continued. "A strong teacher organization is the first step toward a strong teaching profession.

"One of the issues being negotiated in most school districts this year is the inclusion of a 'financial responsibility' clause in the teacher's master contract. Already a part of more than 50 teacher contracts in the state, it is an effort to make each teacher responsible for the strengthening of the profession. Since the benefits of a teacher organization extend to all teachers, the cost of maintaining this organization should bs shared by all teachers. The financial responsibility clause requires that each teacher pay an equal portion of this expense whether he chooses to join the organization or not," Mrs. Wyatt stated.

"This is the only fair way to insure the continuation of higher standards in the teaching profession and a better education for the children in our schools," she concluded.

Hart scores critics of Truth in Packaging

When the first labeling regulations of his Truth in Packaging law became effective, Senator Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.) took to the Senate floor to criticize Congress for "undercutting" its implementation.

Hart said if consumers understood the "saga of Truth in Packaging since its enactment", they would be less critical of the bill and more critical of its "so-called champions".

He recalled that the law was adopted almost unanimously on November 3, 1966, "after five years of strong controversy".

"The vote seemed a mass conversion with die-hard opponents suddenly giving testimony for the Grand Cause of Consumerism", he said.

"It soon became apparent that all was not what it seemed to be. The spotlight shifted to other corners. The heat was off from consumer groups who thought the war--not just the battle-was won. And the spots reappeared on the leopards".

And when the agencies asked for "really minuscule appropriations" to finance drafting of regulations, Hart said, "they were turned down."

"Further, they were ordered--yes, not advised, but ordered--to give low priority to implementing the law.

"And consumers never knew what hit them--or who dashed the great hopes they had for this, the first law designed to protect their economic interests."

Hart defended the law as as good today as it was when it was so "grandly heralded on enactment".

"There is no trickery or sleight of hand in the language of the law," he said. "It can do today exactly what it claimed to be able to do on November 3, 1966".

Hart also said, effective today, he would be evaluating the performance of the law and may "come in in a reasonable period to suggest ways to improve it."

He added, "I am not averse to this, nor am I averse to doing what I can to overcome the undercutting of Congress which has held up implementation of this much of the law and which leaves us today with so much of it unimplemented."

Board hears proposal to salvage programs

Approximately 50 voters attended Monday's School Board meeting and heard a proposal calling for 2.761 mills to operate the school system next year.

Superintendent Rex Milligan presented the proposal, stressing the plan was not necessarily the results of a full Board effort, but of the financial committee and himself.

Should the Board decide to ask for the compromise figure, it would be approximately one mill less than the Board's first two requests of 3.75 mills.

No mention was made of a desire to again ask for a one mill levy for "materials centers."

Both the 3.75 and one mill budget requests were turned down by the electorate twice.

At the latest session, Milligan took the original budget request and cut portions of numerous programs but attempted to keep parts of each program intact.

Among the reductions from the original budget are one less kindergarten class, releasing the half-day librarian in the middle grades, and in the high school dropping the assistant librarian, all student co-op employees and the set-up and wrap-up of the co-op program.

On the administrative level, the administrative assistant and the community school, including adult education, would go.

The town bus run would be dropped, and the mechanic position would be reduced to a parttime basis. Maintenance would also be sharply reduced.

Also proposed were reductions in the cafeteria expense, dropping teachers in both the second and third grades and reducing extra-curricular activities.

With the proposal, there would be 29 pupils in each second grade class and 32 children in each third grade room. The fourth grade shows 29 youngsters per class.

Two coaches would be dropped from the football staff and one would be cut from a basketball role. The athletic directorship would also vanish.

"Club" offerings would be reduced from the present total of nine to four, and there would be no class sponsors in any grades except for juniors and seniors.

Milligan also explained that with the 14.7 mills already allocated, school district income totals $871,272. Expenditures with the new proposal total over 982,000, leaving needed funds of $110,000.

"With each mill we have," Milligan said, "we realize $39,908. Therefore, based on this proposal, we can do it with 2.761 mills."

The proposal was greeted with mixed feelings from the Board and those in attendance.

New Board member Richard Donaldson hailed the proposal as an advance.

Jerrold Redeker said he was not able to accept some of the cuts. "I have no doubts that a reduced millage would pass," he stated, but added that such a move would continue to breed dishonesty. "Next year if we need six mills, we'll have to ask for nine, and when it fails, drop back to the six we needed in the first place."

Dale Boss told fellow Board members he would not advocate dropping the bus from the town run. "We need the town run. Since we have had the run, we haven't 'lost' a child going to or from school. We'll have the town run as long as I'm on the Board."

The Board moved to rescind their previous requirement of 1,000 voter signatures to hold a third election.

Bill Supernaw asked Board president Jack Rader if any petitions had been returned to the Board.

Rader answered, "Nobody ever asked for any."

The president called for another open meeting "within a few days" to discuss the proposal again. "Let's not make any rash decisions tonight," he added.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, Rader appointed committees for the ensuing year.

Redeker and Donaldson were named to the finance committee; Burr Blanchard, building and grounds; Boss, transportation; Mrs. Frances Hooper, library; Redeker and Donaldson, negotiations; Charles England, curriculum; Mrs. Hooper, federal programs; and England, job evaluation.

Rader also announced the formation of a "Public Relations Council," which will serve as a liaison between the community and the Board.

Edwards resigns post

Rollie Dudik, administrator of Charlevoix Hospital, today announced the appointment of Mrs. Evelyn A. Elmonrode of Trenton, Michigan, as hospital anesthetist.

She will replace Larry Edwards, who leaves his post Friday to start his own business in Ames, Iowa, and continue his education.

Larry Edwards

"This move takes me closer to the area where I grew up," Edwards said. "And, I'll be able to take some courses at Iowa State University."

Edwards noted that he is forming an anesthetists' association, which will service four hospitals within a 30 mile radius of Ames.

He joined the hospital as the anesthetist, but served as acting administrator until Dudik was selected several months ago to fill the position.

Mrs. Elmonrode will move to Charlevoix from the Detroit suburb with her husband and two children.

"We are looking forward to having her on our staff," Dudik said. "She is a talented person with a wealth of experience."

Born and reared in Pennsylvania, she has studied at Grace Hospital, Detroit, and has worked in Buffalo, New York, DuBois, Pa., and Dearborn.

Business 'up and down' for bridge operators

No one can drive through Charlevoix without coming in contact with a small, but very busy little concrete building. It would be hard to miss it, especially if a boat was coming through the channel.

The building we are referring to is the control room for the Pine River Bridge. It is here that the bridge is raised and lowered to let boats come into Charlevoix.

Ted Bergman, chief operator, has been associated with this bridge and its operations for 25 years now. Chick Gallagher and Elmer Gibson have both been there for 18 years, and Leon Prior for six years.

We spoke with Chick Gallagher recently, and he explained the operation of the bridge. They work on a three-shift schedule to maintain hours for the bridge office to be open 'round the clock. The first shift is from 7 a.m. until 3 p.m. The second one begins at 3 p.m. and lasts until 11 p.m. The final shift is from 11 p.m. until 7 a.m.

"They spend quite a few hours in the little room and have lots of time on their hands. Many people stop in to ask about the bridge and sit down and chat with the men. When they don't have visitors, the men get in a lot of good reading.

As of last year, the bridge was put on regulated hours to prevent tieing up the bridge for lengthy periods of time. The new hours are 6 a.m. until 6 p.m., the bridge opens for three minutes before and after, on the hour and half hour.

This allows the bridge to open on every half hour, rather than whenever a boat sails in. At the peak of the season, Gallagher said that 95 to 100 boats will pass through the bridge each day.

This was before the new hours were put into effect. The average used to be around 60 to 80 boats per day. With the new hours, the number has decreased considerably. Now the bridge is only allowed, legally, to open 24 times a day.

Without regulated openings, the bridge could easily be opened every 15 minutes or so. This would definitely put a hinderance on the traffic flow in town. So, a compromise has been managed between the flow of traffic on the water and on the streets.

Passage through the channel is quite difficult, says Gallagher. There is a very strong current which makes sailing difficult. When the current is particularly strong, it will take the boats longer to get through. The average time for small craft is three minutes, while it takes the larger boats between five and nine minutes to pass.

These men have done a good job of controlling the situation in Charlevoix. It seems to be a "give and take" on the part of the automobile drivers and the boaters. In either case, the men of the Pine River Bridge serve a excellent mediators.

County jail problem will move to voters

Within the next few months, the taxpayers of Charlevoix County will be asked to vote on a millage issue to underwrite the cost of a new jail. This follows action taken by the County Board of Supervisors last week.

It was after a full day's discussion that it was finally decided to put the issue up to a vote of the people.

There was a 11-4 show-of-hands vote which gave approval for the proposed financing for construction of the new ajil. An earlier proposal to establish a building authority was vetoed by a vote of 9-6.

John Kujawski, chairman of the board, asked the ways and means committee to meet for the purpose of establishing the millage need for the cost of the project. It is estimated at approximately $500,000. They are to present their findings at the next meeting, scheduled for August 12. The committee is composed of Lee Moerland of Charlevoix, Robert Davis of Boyne City and William Taylor of East Jordan.

Robert Russell, jail inspector for the Michigan Department of Corrections, spoke to the board earlier in the afternoon. He said, "Before this calendar runs out, I am sure the (Corrections) Commission will close your jail if you have not made some progress." He said this was his third time in as many years he had appeared before the board to speak on the subject and to answer any questions about the need of a new ajil. Due to the shortcomings of the present jail which has been in service for 42 years, it is imperative that something be done...and now, said Russell. "I am not threatening you. I am just giving you the picture as it is."

It was also stated that between the second and third visit of Russell, the cost of the proposed jail has doubled.

William Taylor of East Jordan came back with this statement about the issue. He said if Russell had lowered the boom when he first appeared before the board three years ago, the jail could have been built for a lot less than it will now cost.

Steve Gerganoff, representing the architecural firm that has been working on the plans for the proposed jail, was on hand to answer questions regarding the issue. He stated a $32 per square foot cost, while in southern Michigan counties the cost had risen to $47 per square foot.

Worker dies at Medusa

Frank W. Gengle, 44, of U.S. 31, Charlevoix, was killed Tuesday morning while working at Medusa Portland Cement Company.

The accident occurred at approximately 2:30 a.m. in the plant when 40 to 50 tons of shale fell on Gengle.

According to company spokesmen, several workers could not find Gengle and called the County Sheriff. His body was recovered about 6 a.m. yesterday morning.

The company is conducting a full investigation into the accident, but it is indicated that the shale became lodged and Gengle was attempting to free the blockage when the accident occurred.

He was a lifelong resident of Charlevoix and attended St. Mary's School and was graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1942. He served for two years in the U.S. Navy and had been employed at the local Medusa plant since it opened in August 1967.

His death marked the first fatal accident at the plant since its opening.

Survivors include his wife, Rosina (Marge); three sons, Dean of Birmingham; William F., stationed in the Navy in Key West, Florida; and James, stationed with the Navy at Treasure Island, San Francisco, Calif; and two daughters, Kathleen and Ruthann, both at home.

Chamber Chat

BY WALLY LODER
CHAMBER MANAGER

At this writing, Saturday afternoon, it is very evident that the new Lakeside Hobbycraft Show has a good start. This show is designed as a annual event and it has tremendous potential. I have observed there has been a constant flow of pedestrians milling about the various displays seeming to have considerable interest. I trust some of the committee from time to time are taking black and white candid shots, so that I may borrow several negatives to have prints made and distributed in due time to further promote next spring. Color shots are beautiful, of course, but the black and white are the ones for reproductions. The founders of this new event and the committee should have three cheers.

I feel badly to have to indicate to the variety of contacts interested especially in cottages on the water or near the water, also resort spots, as such, and motels having water frontage, because practically all of the resorts around Lake Charlevoix are booked solid on into September. In other words, these types of facilities are begged for right now, and have been for a number of weeks, and if any of you property owners in these categories receive any concellations, would you let us know?

I have not had any Waterfront Art Fair Committee Report. However, judging by the number of entry fees they turned over to us after handling, it is appearing to about the same number of exhibitors as last year, and that, of course, is a bit over 200. Let us hope this 11th annual event holds its position, and pray for the weather to be for August 9, as it is today, July 12.

An interesting article in "Tracking the Facts" a publication by the Michigan Railroad Association, "Kids, Drivers Irk Engineers." This publication is here for your reading if you wish.

For about 20 years I have been in one way or another interested and or associated with the Venetian Festival and without hesitation I can say that this is the first time I have noticed so much concern by an extreme minority, to learn whether or not we had yet accomplished the program for the festival, and if not, why not. Since I have had this enjoyable appointment, the concern of people who have contacted this office for Venetian Festival information was always along the line of "are you going to have a boat parade? Will there be fireworks again this year at the Venetian Festival? What are the dates for the Venetian Festival? We plan to have our vacation so we can take in the Venetian Festival. We have heard you have an entertaining program, and it is worth seeing, when is this generally here?" I do not honestly recall of once having anybody question the detail of the program, however, I do not mean to imply they are out of line, but this year there seems to be a lot of concern by a few. We appreciate the concern, that is for sure, and one of the reasons in particular for not having a certain details available for possible necessary publication, we had to make some changes, particularly due to finances. It appears to me we had to start again from scratch to accumulate a program, which I assure you is jelling rather rapidly. Most people have assumed or taken for granted there would be a program, otherwise no Venetian Festival." Again, I point out that the people are more concerned about the boat parade, the dates, and fireworks more than anything else. Oh yes, there were rumors scattered about not having fireworks, and I can say "That" was discussed. Though again this year from the dollar point, I had the cost reduced without jeopardizing too much, the display, and even so, for a while, we did not have the dollars in sight, so to speak. I always feel most everything happens for the best, and maybe this minority concern for a program and the rumor about not having fireworks might stimulate a little more cooperation and interest.

I should like to again point out there are certain normal functions of this or any other chamber of commerce, it is a community function, and not a one man show, nor can the directors alone accomplish everything that the community thinks ought to be accomplished. Definitely there is needed more cooperation, in more ways than one, and there are many times when this is lacking. I also have said before we have a wide variety of talent in our community, and there is no doubt about that. We just have to get the people who are trying to run the ball game, so to speak, away from the bleachers, and get into more pitching and less of the other stuff.

It is hoped all you readers and the hundreds of others, as well as a large number of visitors will once again enjoy the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce annual Venetian Festival, Saturday and Sunday, July 26 and 27, and I might add we are trying for your benefit and that of our visitors to have some type of additional entertainment both Thursday evening and Friday evening downtown in East Park, however, this is no guarantee, but we are trying.

Shopping carts: consumer service

By Claudia Bost

QUESTION: What is silver in color, has four wheels, and doesn't go "Vrooom Vrooom"? The answer should be an easy one to guess. If you answered a non-motorized, four-wheeled mini-bike, you're wrong. It's a shopping cart

How many times have you gone into a store and praised a shopping cart and talked to it as a sincere friend? Not very many I'm sure. But you should, because they are one of the best friends we have.

We recently spoke with Oleson's store manager Jim Wilson about our four-wheeled friends. When asked to describe the shopping carts, he called them, "a necessity to all shoppers". The carts are provided by the Oleson Food Store, located at 112 Antrim Street in Charlevoix, as a personal convenience to all customers. They are found in all the larger supermarkets around town Without these carts, modern day shopping would greatly be affected.

When the Oleson Food Store opened five years ago, there were 80 carts available. It's like raising baby chickens and watching them grow up, only the basket carts don't grow, just mature

And with their age, it would seem logical that repairs would be in order. Wilson commented that there is a very little maintenance necessary for the carts. Each basket is given a steam cleaning once a year. This provides for a clean, and sanitary condition. There have been no major overhauls necessary. Wilson said he will be replacing the wheels in the near future, but other than that, they have had to do nothing for their upkeep.

With so many carts to look after, it may be hard to succeed in keeping track of all of them. But Wilson said he has no problems. Oleson's Food Store provides "customer service" to the public. This is a very impressive title for an even more impressive convenience. After the customers have their groceries checked out by one of the clerks, one of the employees is there to help carry out the packages.

If there are many bags to be moved, he will call upon the help of our friends once again. During the store's busy hours, it is kind of difficult to be available to each customer, but Wilson has done a fine job to see that this convenience possible is extended to the public.

Occassionally a cart or two will be wheeled off to new horizons. They are often found in the neighboring laundramat, or lurking around a corner or two, but one cart took a larger excursion than any of the others.

Jim found one of his carts on the edge of Lake Charlevoix. It had been pushed beside the water, and was on the boundaries, almost ready to take a swim.

The people who use the carts are encouraged to leave them within the store's area, but a few stray away taking a lively journey. Jim said, "We don't mind the customers using the carts, just as long as we get them back again." "It has always been the policy of our store, to provide as much customer service as possible."

A couple of carts have been found left stranded at the boat harbors in town. This happens more often during the summer months. Wilson said, "Sometimes, people do not like to bother our employees and make them carry their packages, so they take it upon themselves to get their bags home. This is fine with us ....whatever is most convenient to the customer is what we want".

We askef Jim how long he thinks these carts have been used and he answered, "As long as there have been supermarkets, there have been grocery carts."

Before these carts were available to the public, shopping was a different scene. It was many years ago, when the customer would give their order to the clerk, and he would then climb ladders to fill the order, while the customer waited at the register table. Then came our friends, and solved a universal problem. They solved the problem of waiting for clerks to do your shopping; they solved the problem of one customer shopping at a time, and above all, they created an environment, where the most amount of pleasure and convenience can be obtained by each individual shopper, all at the same time.

Jim Wilson's Oleson's Store is out to please the public. "Anything they ask for, we will be as helpful in any way we can".

Gordon Neff of Neff Brothers, 330 Bridge Street in Charlevoix, claims his store does not have a bit of trouble of missing shopping carts. He stated that he has only lost two in the last 20 years. "Occasionally I have found a Kroger cart in our area, but we have had no record of any of ours having been stolen. It's in the city where they have that problem. People are always stealing or taking the carts out of the shopping area. We don't have that problem here in Charlevoix."

Dick Edwards, of Edwards IGA, 402 Petoskey Avenue, said the shopping carts are a definite necessity to the shoppers, and without them "they would be sunk."

He has had no serious problems, but when the store becomes quite busy, sometimes they clutter up the aisles and are in the way until put back in the proper place.

At the IGA they do their own cleaning and maintenance to the carts. Sometimes people take them home for laundry and forget to bring them back. "That is the only way I have had them lost or stolen. Aeasionally carts are left in the middle of the parking lot and makes it hard for cars to get in and out. For the most part, Edwards considers the carts "a marvelous Convenience."

What more could any shopper ask for? Not only is the store manager out to please you, but our friendly, silver colored, four-wheeled, "Vrooom Vrooom" motorless helper is always on hand. He is the friend that few people recognize, but do appreciate having around.

So, the next time you go to a supermarket, look around for him, he's there for your convenience, and enjoys every rolling minute of it.

59ers dwindle

Ten years after 37 of the original "59ers" arrived in Alaska from Michigan to start life anew, only seven of them are still in the 49th State.

The group arrived in March 1959 and settled in the Talkeetna area. Most had left before the year was out. Of those staying, one couple operates a lodge and bar in the Talkeetna area, another works for the state, and two other persons work at seasonal labor.

Around the town

Visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gibson and with other relatives were her brothers-in-law and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Glidden of Roscommon and Mr and Mrs. Bruce J. Doyle and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr and Mrs. Joseph Doyle of Detroit. The Doyles went on to Cheboygan to spend some time with relatives before returning home

Gordon L. Freedman jr., a recent high school graduate, is enrolled in summer school at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo. He is interested in Aviation Engineering Technology.

Keep It Beautiful

If America hired people for the job, it would take the largest sort of army to keep our country free of litter.

But there's no need to hire anyone. It's a job we can do for ourselves. All of us. Every family that spreads a picnic lunch. Every boatman who cruises the lakes and waterways. Every motorist who uses our roads and highways.

It is the pleasure of the U. S. Brewers Association each year to give its fullest support to the Keep America Beautiful Campaign. Remember. Every Litter Bit Hurts.

This is our land. Let's treat it right.

Camp Charlevoix

Corral Chatter

The second week of camp started off on Monday with a beautiful, sunny day, the hottest one yet and it sure helps to have hot weather for camping. The entire Senior Section took off by fool for a hike to their camping sites. Three cabins went over to Susan Lake and two cabins to our campcraft area. They had a perfect evening for camping out. The Intermediates had a Scavanger Hunt and after the event was over, the Greys had picked up a point, bringing the score to Greens 6, Greys 2.

Tuesday was a cloudy day, a little sun in the morning. The entire Prep Section left the camp hiking to our two campsites, one on Susan Lake and the other on Lake Charlevoix. This overnight camping out-of-doors is a fine experience for the boys, and is in preparation for the longer trips. In the evening, the Intermediate Section used our obstacle course for the first time this year, and several of the boys made very commendable times.

On Wednesday, our hottest day yet, our canoe instructor, Tom Dorsek, and one of our trips men, Jim Larimer, took a group of our better canoists down the Jordan River. The boys on the trip were David McAninch, George Musekamp, Robb Howell, Bill Morgan, Fitz Simmons, Eric Burnheimer, Bill Harbeck, and "Trey" Henkel. In the evening we had the event called Capture the Camper in which the campers hide anywhere on the camp property (360 acres) and the counsellors try to find them. The team having the least number caught gets the points. At the end of the evening, 104 boys were caught and the Greens won 2 points, the Greys won one point, with one section getting a tie. It was an exciting evening and the boys loved it.

Thursday was another hot, sunny day, delightful for camping. The Camp and School Editor of Harper's Bazaar Magazine visited camp and had nothing but raves for the camp. The canoe trip arrived back in camp, tired, hungry and reporting a very enjoyable trip down the Jordan River. The boys all loved it. We would like to remind parents NOT to send money to the boys. It all must be turned into the office for deposit to their accounts and it adds much to the book-keeping. So PLEASE STOP SENDING MONEY TO BOYS. Cabin 15, Ed Kalat's boys took a day sailing trip down to Boyne City, and were becalmed coming back in the evening so that they had to be towed home. These boys were Scott MacNair, Mark Achor, Jim Waller, John Swan, Mark Parke, John Mahan, Kevin McKinney, Bill Otto, and Phil Blakely.

Friday was another hot day and just great for the boys to really enjoy their activities. In the morning Cabin 18 left on an all day sailing trip down the lake. Bill Otto is the Counsellor here. Andy Case from the Sailing Dept. was one of the skippers along with Dave Rhame. The boys were Casimerio Bolonotto, Randy Bradshaw, David Tripp, Chris Cojeen, Hutch Rogge, Doug Yoder, Tom DeWitt, and Dana Young. We were hosts to two ball teams from Bay View, and our Junior Team lost 4-1 in a very well played game. Our Senior Team won 24-0. It is always enjoyable for the boys to meet these boys from other camps, or summer recreation programs. Our first horse trip left camp after resthour, and the Riding Department led the boys over to Mt. McSauba on Lake Michigan. The boys on this trip were Tommy Smith, Bill Morgan, Greg Gilmore, Jim ZeBranck, Leigh Merrill, Paul Francesco, Larry Lepard, Tom Harbeck, Robb Cogeen, Bill Harbeck, Dave Rossi, Dave Morton, Chris Hansen, Dave Sanders, Brian Caukin, Tod Soderstrom and David Townsend. The Intermediate Section had a Green-Grey Pioneer-Indian Game in the evening with the Greys getting a point for their team, making the score at the end of Friday, Greens 9, Greys -4.

Saturday was a beautiful warm sunny day and everyone raring to go. Three birthdays were observed by singing "Happy Birthday" at breakfast. This was the day of our dance for older boys with Camp Chick-A-Mi, a girls' camp up the pike. Much excitement among the boys who were going. We had several parents today and it was great having them here. They were all most complimentary about the camp, and boys were pleased to show them around and to have them meet their camp friends. Regular activities were held all day so that parents could see their boys in action. After supper, the boys took off for the dance, and the rest of the boys saw a movie "The Gladiator". A good picture for boys.

Sunday morning, the chapel service was held in our outdoor chapel, and as it was a bright, hot day, the setting was perfect and our visiting parents all remarked on the beauty all around us. Lee Fernstrum gave a very inspiring talk and the Scripture was read by Bob Wittmer and the prayer was given by Bill Harbeck. The camp photographer, Jack Marion, of Brown City, arrived to take the camp pictures and it is quite a sight to see everyone in their dress whites. In the afternoon, we had a Waterfront Afternoon with all competition being Green-Grey. It was a perfect day, very hot and boys loved it. After all events were held, the score came out Greens -132, Greys- 131. Talk about being close. In the evening we had an All-Camp Vesper Service on the shore of the lake. Walt Barker, one of the sailing instructors played his guitar and sang two songs with a religious background. Our counsellor from India was the speaker. Prabu (a name shortened from his real name) gave a truly very fine talk and he held the boys spellbound, as there was complete silence during his talk, and while he was answering questions from the boys. It was a very fine Vesper Service.

More next week.

Lakes Assn. meets July 22

The annual meeting of the Lakes Association will be held in the Ellsworth Community Hall July 22. All interested persons are urged to attend. The doors will be open at 6:30 and officers will be present to answer any questions and to accept memberships.

The business meeting will be called to order by the president Archie Murphy at 7 p.m, Business to be accomplished is the elections of officers and representatives from each lake represented. After the business meeting the guest speakers will be introduced. Ted Miller from Elk Rapids will speak on the benefits to be derived from the newly formed Elk River Watershed Drainage Basin Council. Miller is chairman of the Council and our Association is a member.

Steve Swan, fish biologist from Department of Natural Resources, Gaylord office, will review the findings on the fish survey taken during 1968 and the recommendations to have a better fishing area. This is the first time in many years we have had any interest from the D.N.R. in the lakes in this area, and we feel it is due to the interest evidenced by this Association and consultations with the D.N.R., that this has come about.

If you are interested in good fishing, in a cleaner condition in the lakes and area around us, come out and express your opinions. If you are not now a member, now is the time to join and help in the campaign to have a better lakes area.

JUL

By C.B.

The summer months are fast upon us, and with them come an increase of boats, sometimes sunny weather, parking meters, and above all, cars, cars, cars!

It's fantastic how the traffic increased within just a month's time. Why, I almost feel like I'm back home with our traffic jams.

It's also good to see the people walking around, enjoying all that Charlevoix has to offer. From where I sit at my desk, I can view the gleaming water of Round Lake. The current of the water, as it flows, seems to refreshen the atmosphere and set a relaxed mood for working.

I can also watch the people as they walk past the office. They seem to parade up and down Bridge Street just taking in the sights. And then, of course, there are all the shops to enter and shop around in. It's kind of funny, because not only are the tourists involved, but home dwellers of Charlevoix are often seen right along with the others. It kind of illustrates that we have a city that is of interest to everyone, even to those who live here.

A rather humorous event is to watch people feeding the parking meters. And then there are those who try to escape feeding the hungry-headed monsters. In either event, everyone seems to feel quite uneasy about walking up to a post and shoving pennies into a slot. It's like having the whole world watching you on a stage. Pennies drop and nickles roll, but persistance and the desire not to be ticketed enables the drivers to perform the task successfully.

There is a kind of music in the atmosphere, too. Each time a boat wants to pass under the bridge, there comes a melody of bells from the bridge. Now, there are times when you are in a hurry and the opening of the bridge appears as an inconvenience but there is little anyone can do about it, but to sit back and enjoy the few minutes of relaxation.

It would be well worth your while. It sure beats trying to rush across an open channel with no bridge to hold up your dampened spirits or car!

The weather has not been what you would call constant "summer sunshine", but it has had its days. Even when it has been overcast and rainy, you still know it is summer because the calendar reads as such. But if we wait long enough, and believe strong enough, the sun comes back out, and glorifies us with its rays.

The summer months are short and few, but leave a very memorable impression on Charlevoix. The shinniness of the lakes waters, and the sounds of the children playing freely without a care in the world, bring a smile to everyone. It's a time to break loose and feel the fullness that life can offer. And it is offered here in Charlevoix. All you need do is RELAX!

4 from city in art fair

Four Charlevoix exhibitors were accepted into the Tenth Annual Ann Arbor Street Art Fair. They are Judith and Norman Brumm of Charlevoix, and William and Bonnie Staffel, summer residents of the city.

This years fair drew applicants from as far away as California, and cities from 36 states. Size is constant at 350 participants, and no booth is the same. Artists are free to decorate or present themselves as they choose, and the results are invariably ingenious, imaginative, and colorful.

The fair begins today and continues through Saturday.

Smokey visits

Each year, thousands of acres of trees and game lands are needlessly destroyed by careless campers and picnickers. (Courier photo)

Pat's Reaction

Fresh paint

By Pat Begrow

Even in July things have a way of snowballing at our house. I guess that with the Charlevoix Hospital Kitchen Tour coming up we were just in a receptive mood when our fourteen year old daughter Cathy volunteered to paint our old fashioned kitchen and do something spectacular with it. I must admit that when Cathy decided on a color scheme of yellow and orange I had to swallow hard, but I'm so chicken that I'd go along with any color scheme for a new paint job. Then, too, anything seemed better than the antiseptic flat white that we had inherited from the previous owners.

One morning the whole family was eating breakfast together and Cathy and I were enthusiastically planning the project with the help of lots of free suggestions from the troops. We just couldn't help but consider how nice and convenient our kitchen would be if only we could knock down the wall between the pantry and the kitchen and build a breakfast bar.

I tried to get my husband's opinion on the subject, but he was buried in his favorite magazine The National Geographic and only contributed to the discussion by commenting about how he'd like to sail the Mediterranean from Malta. Did you know that English is the official language of Malta?

In any case this knocking down the wall seemed pretty extreme so we decided to just cover the kitchen with a fresh coat of paint.

Cathy and I had not yet taken action on the kitchen project when, about a week later as I was falling asleep at night my husband said, "The carpenters will be here in the morning at eight o'clock."

My eyes snapped open and I sat bolt upright.

"What carpenters?"

"The ones that you wanted to tear down the wall."

With that the subject was closed and he fell asleep while I lay awake for hours in wild anticipation.

The next morning I got up bright and early; shuffled everyone through a quick breakfast and cleared up the kitchen.

But no carpenters came.

After three days of this I gave up hope and chalked the whole thing up to a bad dream. Then one morning after I had risen early, made pancakes and left the house at 7:30 with assorted children flipping and eating pancakes the carpenters came. By the time that I returned at 8:30 those men were courageously going ahead with preparations to tear down the wall in the face of maple syrup and orange juice. I really have to hand those guys credit for determination.

I was absolutely appalled at the extent of the mess but my ten year old son was in high glee.

"Can I invite my friends over for the day?"

"I hate to be cruel, Lee, but this is not the day to entertain. You play at their house."

"Oh Mom, then can I just have one friend over to watch them tear down the wall?"

One thing for sure, we all don't think alike.

By about ten o'clock both the carpenters and I were coming along pretty well in the kitchen. Somehow I had cleared up the pancakes and somehow they had unwired everything electrical and were preparing to knock down the wall when down the stairs came little Ann still in her nightie.

"Mommy, where's my pancake?"

"You mean that you didn't eat breakfast when everyone else did?"

"No, I was watching cartoons. I want my pancake now."

Well that's the way it's been going at our house for two weeks and we're still not finished. The old cupboards looked so bad that now they've been ripped out and just as soon as they're replaced we'll take the stacks of dishes off the dining room table.

Bare bulbs are hanging by wires from the kitchen ceiling waiting for the new light fixtures to arrive, and the counters are still bare wood waiting for new formica covers.

Naturally my house is not one of those on the Hospital Kitchen Tour today, but just wait until next year.

Meanwhile do have a piece of the cake that I contributed to the dessert table today. You'll find it at Eleanor Freedman's house. The cake is square with lots of coconut in the center where it sagged a little. If you like coconut I think that you'd enjoy a center piece.

Ribbons will be awarded to the first three finishers in the 25 and 75 yard dash, 60 yard hurdles, broad jump, high jump, softball throw, and the 440 yard relay.

DETROIT TIGERS

Tiger Tales

Jim Price spent seven seasons in the minors as a Pittsburgh Pirate farmhand, trying to reach the big leagues. He made it -- in 1967 -- with the Tigers.

Price and the Tigers are equally happy with the purchase that brought the hard-nosed backstop to Detroit on the final day of spring training in 1967.

Making the most of a long-delayed opportunity, Price quickly established himself as a respectable pinch hitter and became the best reserve catcher of recent Tiger history. He batted .261 in 44 games in 1967.

In 1968 Price often found himself starting behind the plate when the Tigers were facing a lefthander, with Bill Freehan moving to first base to give the Tigers another righthanded hitter.

Jim's average fell off in 1968, but his clutch hitting did not and he enhanced his reputation as a solid backup catcher.

Hard work got Price to the big leagues and a strong desire to improve kept him there. Signed out of high school in Hershey, Pa., as a third baseman, Price turned down football scholarships from 25 major college in order to accept the Pirates' 1960 offer.

Married to Patricia O'Neal that same year, he set out for Kingsport, Tenn., of the Appalachian League where he hit .285 and learned to play first base.

At Grand Forks of the Northern League the next season, Price became a catcher but still doubled at first base as he hit .287. At Grand Forks again in 1962 he hit .283 and earned a promotion to Kinston of the Carolina League in 1963. There he finally became a full-time catcher and pushed his average to .311 and was chosen Player of the Year in the league.

His banner season moved him up to Columbus of the International League, the Pirates' top farm club. There Jim spent three seasons and helped lead the Jets to the 1965 pennant.

Unable to gain promotion to the Pirates, Price was glad to be sold to the Tigers, who needed a backup catcher for Bill Freehan. Jim filled the bill and his present stature with his teammates was shown in June, 1968 when he was elected their player representative to succeed Freehan.

Price is an avid weightlifter and he exercised regularly during the off-season at his home in Hershey, where he lives with his wife and two sons, Jimmie II and Jeffrey. During the winter of 1967-68 he shed 15 pounds with a rigorous reducing program.

Scouts off to Idaho

Thirty-six Scouts and three leaders departed for the National Jamboree on Thursday, July 10.

Enroute, the contingent stopped at the Black Hills, Mount Rushmore and spent two nights and one day touring Yellowstone National Park.

They arrived at Farragut State Park, Idaho, last night.

After setting up camp the boys will start a week of fun and adventure never to be equaled throughout their lives. They will have fellowship with Scouts from all 50 of the United States and some eight foreign countries. They will be associating with the great men of Scouting and our Country. They will be working, learning and meeting new challenges every day.

The Scenic Trails Council will also be contributing to this big Scouting event by sending 36 of its Scouts to show their skills and help broaden the lives of the other Scouts they meet.

FASTBALL LEAGUE

Morwell Steel wrapped up the first round title with a narrow extra inning win over second place Medusa. Ken Richardson blasted a solo homer in the eighth inning to give the champs the narrow 5-4 victory.

Morwell scored one in the first on the catcher's error and Medusa went ahead in the third on Ike Boss's double. Mike Lord countered with a three run homer in the Morwell fourth. Medusa tied it on Tom Webb and Bill Marme's singles. Sonny Wright took the loss, allowing only four hits. Bob Klooster won in relief.

American Mold looked like the Mold of old despite losing 1-0 to Morwell. The lone run was as a result of two Mold misques.

Medusa cinched second place by edging County State Bank 5-4. Steve Faculak had three of the winner's hits while teammate Ralph Doan had two. Tom Drenth's single scored two in the losers' sixth inning rally.

American Mold took a 9-6 win over County State Bank, but had to score six times in the fifth inning to do it. Ken Balch homered while Ken Boss banged out three hits for the winners. Dave Novotny and Mike Crain each had two hits for the losers.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Novaks got themselves back into the little picture with a 14-2 win over Deyoungs. For three innings it looked like Deyoungs might be able to hold the defeating champs but four runs in the fifth and seven in the seventh proved Novaks are the team to beat in the junior circuit. Spook Coleman had three hits for the winners. Gary Moore's triple was the only extra base hit for the losers. Norm Ostrum, Carl Swanson, and Spook Coleman again led Novaks to their second win of the week as they defeated Fraedmans 16-1. All three picked up three hits apiece in a 12 hit attack.

Be Prepared: Stow Extras

With the approach of summer, boatmen are busy getting their equipment into top performance shape.

The Evinrude News Service advises that it's a good idea to pack some "stowaways" aboard that tuned up, shined up rig.

They include a first aid kit, and a tool kit containing such basic items as extra spark plugs and plug wrench; spare propeller; screwdriver; pliers; extra cotter and drive pins; electrician's tape; and your owner's manual.

These "stowaways" can be rolled up in a package and stowed under a seat or taped to the gunwale.

Ruppe asks legislation

In response to the growing concern over the high water situation in the Great Lakes, Congressman Philip Ruppe this week introduced legislation to provide matching federal assistance for the construction of shoreline protective devices.

In a speech before the House of Representatives, Ruppe said that the legislation "is designed to help solve a costly and grievous problem along America's shorelines." Ruppe declared that the need for the legislation was perhaps most apparent along Lake Superior, where recent periods of high water have caused millions of dollars worth of property damage.

"For the individual shoreline homeowner, the cost of constructive protective breakwaters and abutments is often prohibitive," Ruppe told the Members of Congress. "The only recourse is collective efforts with matching federal assistance."

Ruppe emphasized that there was ample justification for government assistance in protecting private as well as public shoreline property. Ruppe cited pollution problems connected with shoreline erosion, and said that "pollution dramatically affects all our citizens." He added that in many areas of the nation, including Lake Superior, man is at least partially responsible for maintaining water levels. Lake Superior is regulated by the International Joint Commission, made up of Canadian and American representatives.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers operates water level control gates near Sault Ste. Marie to affect the water level in Lake Superior. "For the last two years, heavy precipitation has brought about extremely high water in the Lake, which the Corps has not been able to effectively control. The resulting damage along the lakeshore has been severe, and the prospects for relief are not good."

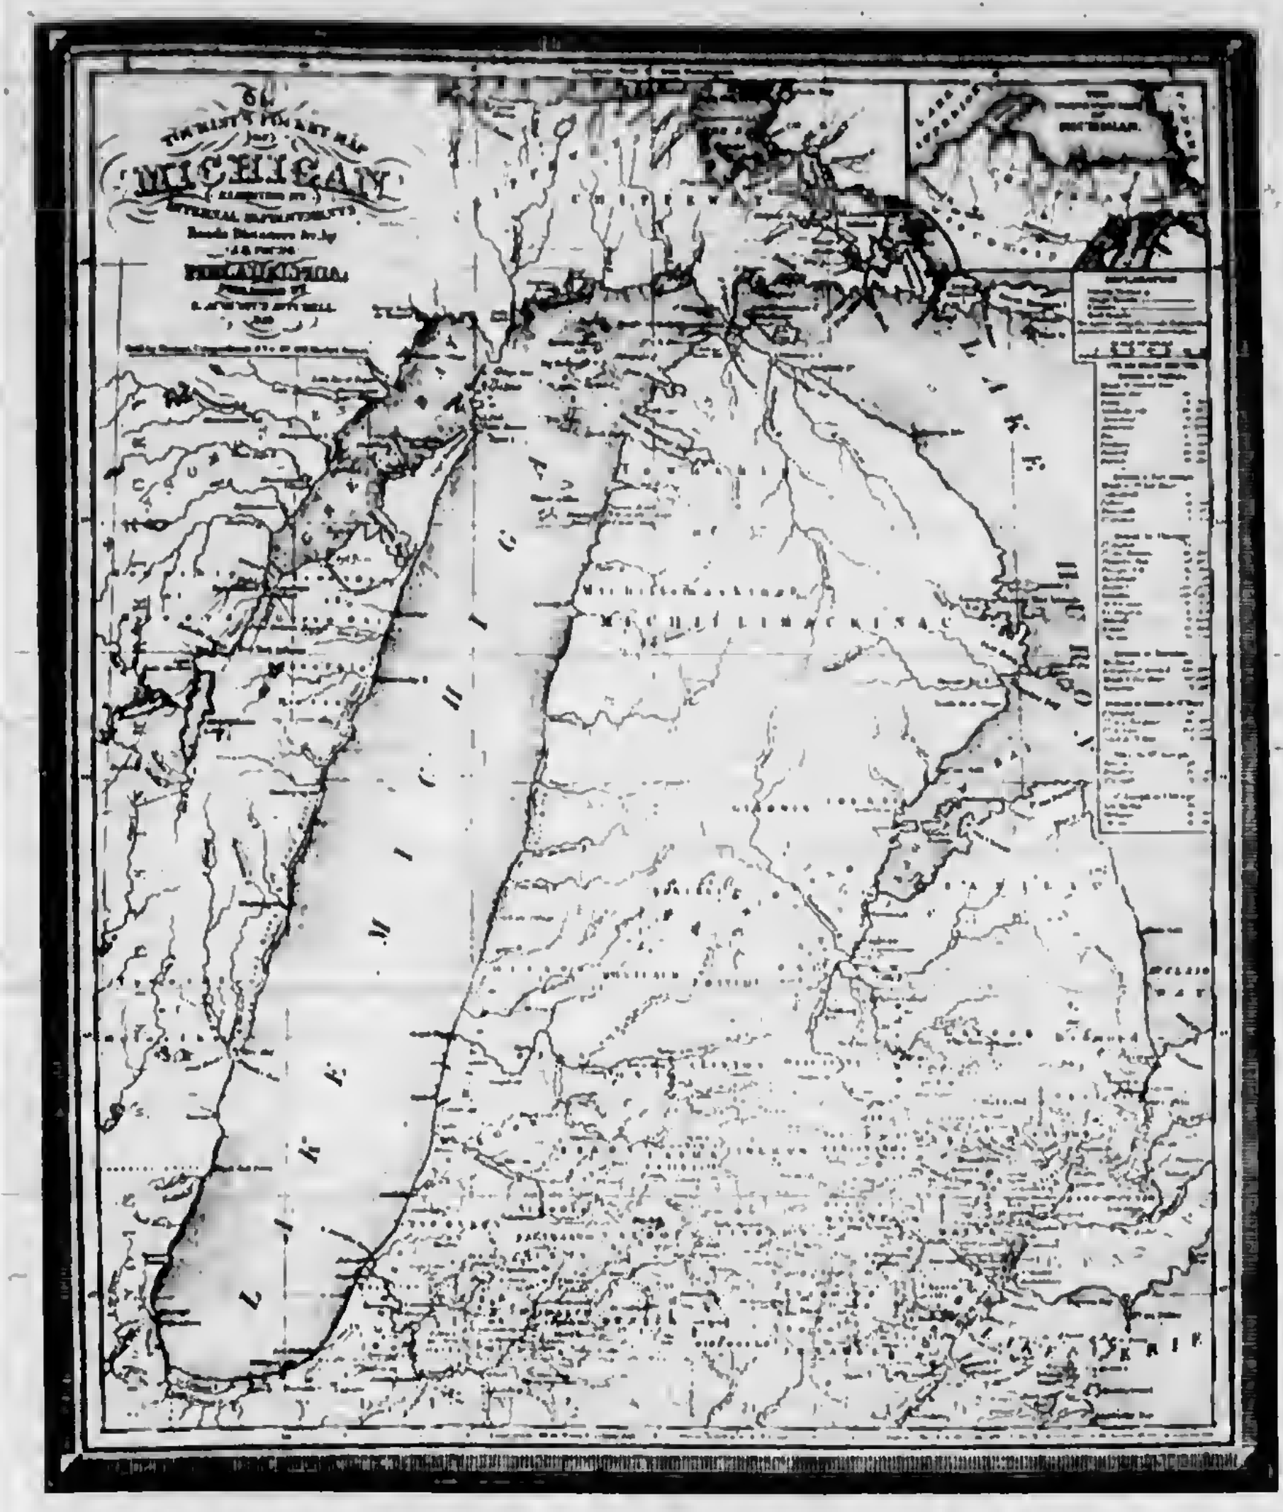
— 202 STATE CHARLEVOIX THE BEAUTIFUL! —



Century old map of Northern Michigan shows wide open spaces.

Changing times seen through 1839 map

By Bernice Wexstaff

George Washington, first president of our embryonic United States of America was an astute leader with prophetic vision as witnessed by his recorded words: "As our Country grows and its population increases-- as it will-- care must be taken to have each succeeding generation know the trials and tribulations of those who preceeded them."

A Michigan map of 1839 from the Michigan collection of Chester W. Ellison of Lansing gives cause for thought--- thought that little more than four generations ago Northern Michigan was still a vast wilderness between Lake Michigan and Lake Huron from a distance of a few degrees south of the 44th parallel to within a stone's throw of the 46th parallel with no designation other than Township of Michilimackinac.

Roads were non-existant. communication was carried on by Indian runners along the trails blazed by tomahawk slashings on the ancient trees through the deep forests or by Indian canoe on the various lakes and streams.

White men were few and far between in the Township of Michilimackinac in 1839 and those concentrated for the most part on the shores of the big lakes. Less than a century before the British has been massacred at Fort Michilimackinac (June 1763) and Charlevoix-the-Beautiful was a dense jungle of hardwoods and pines which the Indians called "Sah-Ghe-Dah" (flowing outward), a picturesque expression which described the often reversed currents of the little river, later affirmed in Ripley's "BELIEVE IT OR NOT" to be the shortest river in the world-- today's channel between Lake Michigan and Round Lake harbor.

As 1969 tourists cross the sturdy steel bridge which spans "Sah-Ghe-Dah" an appreciative accolade for the long departed pioneers who made Today's conveniences possible will lend an added depth of meaning to a trip or a vacation sojourn in the ancient Township of Michilimackinac and the modern city on three lakes--Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Ole Lynklip and daughter Mary Alice of Detroit are vacationing in their local summer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Olsheve and family, formerly of Detroit and now living in Traverse City, were guests this Sunday afternoon at the Ole Olesheve summer cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Selig and mother Mrs. F. H. Selig of North Miami, Florida, are guests at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Brock. Mrs. L. Selig will be remembered as Harriet Shoares of Charlevoix, and this is her first trip back in 20 years.

Albert Carlson of Battle Creek is spending several days at his local farm home.

I was a Parkside coffee guest last Monday afternoon of Mrs. Alice Switzer Longstreet of Selma, California, and Mrs. Mary Newton Zipp of Petoskey. This was the first visit for Alice to her home town in 47 years, and she saw a great many changes from her school days and missed many old friends.

The Ladies Fellowship reports another successful Bake Sale this Saturday under the management of the new president Mrs. Beverly Bennett and the help of Sally Saunders and Evelyn Alexander. We are again grateful to each and everyone.

Dr. Robert Albi and daughter Sarah from Spokane, Washington, arrived this week and joined Mrs. Emma Albi at the Robert Barnum home. They are now visiting friends for several days in Boyne City where they lived a few years ago.

Fishing still is better than in many a year in the big lake. Ross and Sam Alexander and Enos Bacon were fishing off from South Point about a quarter of a mile this Sunday morning and caught on something they couldn't get loose and marked it with a fish bobber and reported it to the Sundew.

They went back out with their boat and the Coast Guard and relocated it and the Coast Guard towed it in and the Sundew picked it up. It was a marker used last winter and the ice carried it out this spring and they have been looking for it ever since as it could be a hazard for cruisers passing through. The Coast Guard was most grateful and this experience made them all feel they had a most successful morning and also caught two beautiful trout during their fishing trip.

Letters to the editor

More about our schools

To the Editor:

"Liberty is a boisterous sea. Timid men prefer the calm of depotism."

T. Jefferson

Quite heartening to notice some sensible comments sometimes strident but always sincere coming from the hinterlands regarding the management of the growing school empire. (Mr. Doans' remarks quite timely)

Even slight meditation should merit strong support for Mr. F. Martins' recent editorial regarding the prime responsibility of our local schools to teach basic fundamentals. Have always felt it an immeasurable waste that students can ill afford to allow themselves to become emotionally involved seriously with the "espirit de corps" emphasis on sports.

Eleven plus determined competitors pounding the gridiron at the risk of life and limb to the blare of symphony while the hundreds making up the student body are to content themselves spectating. Well life rewards action more abundantly than spectating and feel profoundly that individual talents of the student spectators should be encouraged to blossom in line with the inherent capabilities.

Action begets experience and understanding if one is observant which produces confidence and self-reliance. Self-reliance in this generation I realize is not popular as one is supposed to look to "Big Brother" for solace and security.

The myth of security appears as misinterpreted as education itself.

A strong body and a healthy mind is about as near as one can get to real SECURITY in this life in spite of corporate or political promises to the contrary.

A philosophy which gives a man faith in himself is his greatest personal asset.

"Enlighten the people generally and tyranny will vanish like evil spirits at the dawn of day." – T. Jefferson Sad commentary to say the least that our recent school board saw it expedient if not effective in breaking faith with the public over current and future administrative policies of vital concern (or should be) to all the residents of the area.

The communications gap has widened to an unfathomable chasm. It is inconceivable that one board member of the lot would not have the intestinal attributes to "Tell us the way it is."

It is indeed a tragic development if the allegation as recently expressed by Mr. Doan is true regarding cancellation of the Adult Education Program. Here is a program beneficial to any community, entirely free as underwritten by the Mott Foundation. Whoever is responsible for this asinine act should be looking for a new job period.

Would rather not appear pedantic or pragmatic but if the people are going to understand the sinister forces working diligently to capture their offsprings' minds then the employment of TRUTH must become paramount in the quest for cooperation in erecting and maintaining an effective as well as respectable school institution. The public is equal to the test if confidences are shared even if the academic community thinks otherwise.

Human nature has always possessed its variables which might begin to explain how an individual board member of the bureaucracy can perform acts collectively that become unthinkable in conducting private affairs and I speak now of the lack of fiscal responsibility shown in the last two years by the local board.

It appears without admission that the local board has lost control of affairs to the central powers in Lansing namely the Department of Instruction in conjunction with the M.E.A. (Mich. Educational Ass'n — Teachers Union)—

If this combination is so formidable that our local board feels smothered let us pursue the reality of the situation before the local vassals bankrupt us.

Detected motion on the tax escalator upon receipt of the Summer Tax bill to the extent of approximately an 18 percent increase in taxable valuation on our abode. This is a considerable windfall for all the tax supported bureaucracies without a referendum so just possibly some of the urgency related to the millage increase could be alleviated.

As for myself, if the State Aid to our schools comes accompanied with dictation of administration policies then would emphatically notify the state powers to keep both and would embrace the notion of paying slightly more taxes to eliminate this pittance but retain sovereignty.

"Government is like a fire, which if it is properly controlled will light your homes, cook your food and run your factories; but if it is not controlled it will destroy you." – Geo. Washington

One should not be unduly alarmed if one day in the near future the caption on our local buses "Charlevoix Public Schools" is replaced with "Michigan Dep't of Instruction." Fantastic? Hardly, with control over collection as well as disbursement of funds well assured other actions becomes automatic. The school board would become obsolete and with their passing each local voice would be crowded farther into the wilderness as far as any effectiveness concerning school policies.

Reflection on recent history reminds one that a mere generation back was the period of the SUPER-salesmen of consolidation of the country schools into the coming empire to assure the children a better education. Well possibly the parents received a better education from this move than the youngsters. Records would prove that the country schools did a magnificient job in providing basic education with local control. The course of PROGRESS manifested here is debatable.

"It is seldom that liberty of any kind is lost all at once."
David Hume

The hour is late; whether too late only time will tell. Perhaps our neighbors will respond to the approaching calamity.

One noted encouragement of significance is the different caliber of new residents which has helped to round out our community in recent years.

It just strikes me that these welcome people are more vocal in expressing their sentiments.
Oscar W. Ward

P.S. Hope to discuss education itself next week. It may be time to ascertain whether we are all talking about the same article.

Troop II at Greilick

Three-fourths of Scouting is outing, and campouts are a major part of the program at Camp Greilick. All scout ranks have requirements that must be completed on a camping trip, and Camp Greilick makes outpost camping available to each troop that attends the camp.

Troop II of Charlevoix attended Camp Greilick under the leadership of Scoutmaster Val Avery recently.

The camp is located on Rennls Lake, southeast of Traverse City. Nearby is a popular area, Scheck's Bridge Campground, for Scouts working on the rank of First Class. This summer new areas of the camp are being opened for overnight camping. All equipment and supplies except water must be carried to the sites.

A week in the out-of-doors at Camp Greilick is often the highlight of the year's activities for Scouts in the Scenic Trails Council.

Chronic offenders can beat the law

A $500 charge for car insurance for families with young drivers is not unusual these days. Neither is a monthly auto payment that itemizes more for the insurance than for the car itself.

A recent study of insurance companies in Michigan shows 76 cents of each premium dollar going for claims and cost of defending policyholders against suit. The remaining 24 cents is the cost of doing business by companies and agents, and their taxes and profits.

The same study showed that 3% of licensed drivers were responsible for 30% of the accidents. Unhappily, the driving record of this 3% showed them to be habitual offenders. Some other recent studies indicate that 5% of our licensed drivers may be responsible for half of the accident payments by insurance companies.

The conclusion to be drawn from these figures is plain: Large savings in insurance costs can be made only by getting the dangerous drivers off the road. Revoking the driving privilege of 5%, or about 250,000 of our hardcore incorrigible drivers, is the only way we can make highways really safer, or substantially cut insurance costs.

We are making some progress in focusing attention on the habitual offender, but it has been a slow process. Just 2 years ago Michigan adopted "implied consent" under which a driver lost his license if he wouldn't take a drunk driving test. We were the 29th state to do so. This delay was incredible in the face of overwhelming evidence that half of all fatal accidents involved the misuse of alcohol.

We not only need tougher laws, but we need beefed-up courts and law enforcement agencies.

Jail sit-in

Congratulations to that New Hampshire judge who jailed forty-five young people who persisted in their sit-in of a Dartmouth College building in defiance of a court order. The Supreme Court of the state is to be commended for upholding the Superior Court decision on contempt of court charges.

We defend the right of students to make themselves heard in a normal and orderly manner. No one should for a moment be denied that right. But they must conform to normal procedures and conduct themselves properly. The laws and the courts which operate under the laws should not be flouted, for this is a nation of laws and not of man. No one may hold himself apart from the law and feel that he can violate without action on the part of those charged with administering the law.

Doubtless the forty-five have had second thoughts the past few days as their attorneys failed to free them via a State Supreme Court appeal. They are currently waiting a possible hearing before the U.S. District Court for New Hampshire.

We realize the embarrassment which parents of the boys and girls are experiencing. However, had they taken them to the woodshed occasionally, or even talked things out with them, in earlier years, what has happened might never have come to pass.

Perhaps if more college and university administrators were to act with the determination of those at Dartmouth, we would have less of these student demonstrations and sit-ins.

The Darmouth group continues their sit-in. A firm judge just changed the locale to several county jails.

Chicken soup

The chicken-soup makers of the world quarreled with the ruling of the Department of Agriculture. The Department had insisted that chicken soup be at least 2% chicken. The soup makers of the world took it right up to the Supreme Court. But the Court said. "Yeah, if you're going to make chicken soup, 2% of the soup has got to be chicken."

My mother always included the chicken feet. She said the feet produced the gelatin. We have to figure the feet are more than 2% of the chicken so things have really gone down hill since I was a boy.

She put a hen into 3½ quarts of water, added carrots, celery, parsley, salt, onions and dill and after bringing the soup to boil, cooked it over a medium heat for one and one half hours. It sounds simple enough. Certainly it is not an arcane or exotic recipe. But I have yet to see anyone duplicate that soup. I guess she knew it was a great gift to her family.

Today, I understand, it is hard to find soup chickens. Apparently it is harder than we imagine judging from that 2%.

No one expects a whole chicken in one of those 2-for-29¢ cans. But 2%? No one will ever get the boys out of the pool hall with 2% chicken soup.

The only way to fly

By Jim Grisso
Otsego Herald Times

Next time you think about flying somewhere, better check to find out whether the air traffic controllers are having an "epidemic."

They were having one when the wife and I flew to Atlantic City recently, and let me tell you, their "ailments" make for passenger frustration. In case you aren't aware, the air traffic controllers are a little unhappy about some things down at the plant, and they haven't been feeling too well lately. Many have been calling in sick, resulting in a shortage of man power.

When this happens, airliners have problems getting off the ground – and landing.

Such was the situation we experienced at Cleveland Hopkins International Airport on our way East. We were scheduled to arrive in Cleveland at 11:45 a.m. and depart at 1:45 p.m. However, by the time we arrived there, arrival time of our flight to Philadelphia had already been moved back to 2 p.m.

From then on, it was sheer frustration. Instead of putting the arrival and departure time of our flight on temporary hold or something, they kept moving the flight timetable back 15 minutes at a time. That big flight board at the Cleveland terminal changed more than day than the Dow Jones averages.

Lois and I sat and prayed that no more time changes would be made. We would draw straws to see who would get the assignment of taking a peek at the flight schedule. I lost most of the time.

After what seemed an eternity, we were finally aboard. It was about 3:30 p.m. We settled back in our seats for the flight to Philly and waited and waited and waited. Finally, the ticket agent came over the plane intercom and calmly stated the plane was having mechanical trouble. He said he'd report back in 10 minutes to tell us whether our flight was going to be cancelled.

Twenty minutes later, he came back on and told the passengers they had two alternatives: The could stary on this flight and wait 'til 5 p.m., risking the possibility of cancellation at that time, or they could hurry across the terminal to another flight scheduled to depart in 10 minutes. We might be able to get on that other if we could beat most of the others who had their hearts set on reaching Philadelphia sometime in the 20th century.

So, like about 75 percent of the other passengers on the plane, we ran for the flight gate. And everyone else ran. And we all ran for about a mile. I was carrying Lois' cosmetic case. You ever try to tote one of them while running? I would have preferred carrying Lois. I forgot to mention it was about 95 degrees that day in Cleveland.

Amazingly, we made it in time to get aboard. Some unfortunate souls weren't so lucky. They may still be in Cleveland for all I know.

As a result of our ordeal, we got to Philly about 6:15. Had to wait 30 minutes for transportation to Atlantic City (only one airline services the seaside city). Arrived in Atlantic City about 7:30 and had to miss the opening dinner of the newspaper convention and a speech by former Gov. Romney.

At that point, I still had my sanity. But when a guy on the Boardwalk got me to buy two 10-cent newspapers at his get 'em while they last bargain offer of two for a quarter, I was ready to go home.

But things took a turn for the better after that, and we stayed for three enlightening and fun-filled days – and would you believe we flew home without a single delay.

And I think I may fly again someday.

Anniversary

The 100th anniversary of the birth of William Allen White, the legendary editor of Emporia, Kansas, has been celebrated, most notably at the Kansas University school of journalism that bears his name. His policies for running the paper he made famous, the Emporia Gazette, were set forth in a letter-to-a biographical-directory company in 1903. The text follows:

"The paper has grown naturally and if it has any virtue it is that virtue which its esteemed but loathed contemporaries call its "brazen impudence," and which its editor likes to think is its fearlessness.

"I have been in the newspaper business nearly 20 years now as printer and as reporter and as proprietor, and it seems to me that the essence of success in a newspaper is wisely directed courage. All the struggles I have had have been due to mistakes I made in temporizing with evil. Whenever the Gazette has been brave and fair it has been easy enough to get the money to pay off Saturday night, but when the Gazette has done the "smooth" thing, has played to the gallery, has truckled to its subscribers if they were wrong, when the Gazette has acted the demagogue, it has been hard work to make the paper go. Character is the one essential to running a successful newspaper, whether the success is financial or political. The best epigram ever made about a newspaper was made by the late Secretary of Agriculture Sterling Morton who said: 'A newspaper's foes are its assets and friends are its liabilities.' It is the man who wants you to keep something out that eats the vitality out of the bank account. This is true in a big paper as well as one a little paper. The same principle makes a good newspaper in a big town that makes it in a little town."

Life is a goldfish

It's summer rerun time again. Jim Fitzgerald is vacationing. This column is repeated by popular request (from Mother and Aunt Madeline) from Aug. 25, 1966.

It is probably fitting that the Wall Street Journal should confirm what I've suspected for many years - I am never going to be rich.

In fact, right now I am well into my second 2-week vacation of the summer and such foolishness will certainly keep me sneezing lint from the bottom of a poverty pocket.

A Journal story said most high-powered executives get that way by saving minutes. You know. They dictate into recorders while flying. They shave and read stock reports while being chauffeured along freeways. They eat lunch at their desks - or with clients while scribbling $1 million figures on the table cloth.

Time is money; don't waste it.

The Journal told about a Detroit physician who used to have a tank of tropical fish in his office. He got rid of the fish because he was wasting too much time talking about them with his patients. Joe Sick would come in and say, "What kind of fish is that red one?" Instead of immediately plopping his broken leg on the table. The doctor had to answer and there went 2 minutes, or $200.

The Journal also described, so help me, a new standup desk which is popular with Big Business. It has a perch seat "so the executive will remain more alert and will be able to walk his visitors to the door without being trapped in a desk situation."

Oh me. I would not lie and tell you I wouldn't like to have a million bucks. I realize that money doesn't buy happiness but it certainly buys a lot of things that make me happy. I can be as ambitious and greedy as the next guy. Unless the next guy is one of these go-go minute counters described in the Journal. Poor as I am, I feel sorry for a millionaire who hasn't got time to share his goldfish with a customer.

There are times when I must leave work early and go home and rub my son's head and ask him what he did that day and then listen to a fantastic story about Batman being in the basement.

I have a daughter who stood in one spot 6 hours straight to make certain she could buy 2 tiny china dolls at a household auction. I wasn't there but people who were have interrupted my work several times to tell me how cute she looked and how everyone was rooting for her to make the buy, which she did. I have heard this story 8 times now and I got misty-eyed each time. I am ready to hear it again.

I have long been convinced that Saturday afternoons are good for watching baseball or football games. Nothing else. Don't tell anyone, but I often let the phone ring on weekends. I realize it might be someone offering me gold. But they should call back Monday.

I have a teenage daughter who drives me wild and I spend hours trying and failing to convince her I am smarter than she is. I might better shut up and buy her a book by Ann Landers. But once in a while she admits I was right 2 weeks ago and thanks me for the good advice. This does more for me than it ever could for Ann who, by the way, probably never wastes a minute.

I like to just sit and peek over my newspaper at my wife as she sews clothes for a Barbie doll, for gosh sakes, or plays some stupid game with 2 little kids, both lousy losers. I must fritter away several hours a week just observing and enjoying how much my kids love their mother; and vice versa.

As you read this I am vacationing and probably haven't made a constructive move in 6 days. I could be writing something for a couple of magazines that have solicited material but . . . there's a lake to look at and kids to listen to and a book to read and new golf clubs to swing. Or I might just sit and remember things about my dead father.

No, I'll never be rich by Wall Street standards. I don't have time. Life is a goldfish and I must watch closely how it glitters and splashes before it slips away.

ON THE 'FLIP' SIDE

Wayne Belding called our attention to an article in the Jackson Citizen Patriot. A column, "Action, Please", follows the format of the Free Press' "Action Line."

A recent question asked by a reader was, "I have a golfing buddy who insists there is a big golf tournament in the state that has its headquarters in a night club. Is he pulling my leg? He has never played in the tournament but says he has heard of its unusual headquarters."

Answered "Action, Please":

Your buddy is right down the fairway with his claim. The Michigan Amateur Championship, the state's biggest and best competition of its kind which appears to have found a permanent home at Charlevoix, has long listed the Argonne Supper Club there as its headquarters. Actually most of the tournament work is done at the Belvedere Club where competition is held but the Argonne is a nice, although not fancy, spot to commiserate or exult over the day's play. It doesn't draw many of the younger players, who find other interests in the area, but the older ones, many of whom bring their wives and families and make tournament week something of a vacation, like to gather there. They do a lot of singing. The food is good, the prices moderate and the management always has been friendly to the golfers.

Readers are invited to send old photos of Charlevoix to the Courier for use in the Charlevoix Scrapbook feature.

We'll return the photos after they are printed.

Everyone wonders where summer is. We are told this is the coldest June has been in many years. With the middle of July upon us, maybe the weatherman will give us a break. Very little swimming has been comfortable thus far.

+ + +

Chuck hemm is on the job for First State Bank. Themm has assumed the role of vice president.

The Jordan Valley Festival, held over the long July 4 weekend, was quite an event. The parade itself would make many large cities envious. Chairman Joe Wilkins did another fine job.

+ + +

Speaking of Wilkins, he has asked us to thank everybody who helped make the Festival the "best ever." He adds that this year's crowd was also the largest in the Festival's history.

We received the following note from Mary Geikeu:

"Dear Mr. Martin,

"Following is a small dity, with great importance —we think! Maybe you could squeeze it in your paper someplace - sometime?

BEATITUDES FOR FRIENDS OF THE AGED

"BLESSED ARE THEY who understand my faltering steps and shaking hand, who know that my ears today must strain to catch the words they say, who seem to know that my eyes are dim and my wits are slow; who looked away when coffee spilled today, with a cheery smile who stop to chat for a while, who never say, "You've told that story twice today," who know the ways to bring back lovely yesterdays, who make it known that I am loved, not left alone! who know the loss of strength, I need to bear the cross, who ease the days on my journey home - in so many loving ways."

Charlevoix County fun

Council hears Venetian plans

Charlevoix City Council reviewed plans for this weekend's Venetian Festival, heard a complaint of "unsanitary" conditions on the west side of the city, and discussed renewal of a lease for mooring facilities for the Coast Guard in a quiet meeting Monday evening.

Mayor William Fochtman noted that his office had received the program of events for Venetian Weekend from the Chamber of Commerce, and the Council noted the events with interest.

It was noted that the Street Parade route would flow northward on State Street to Park Street to Grant Street.

Council also expressed interest over plans for fireworks to climax the festival.

Council was told that the Chamber had ordered the same dollar amount of fireworks as last year, but due to increased prices, would receive ten percent less of a show.

The city fathers moved to contribute half of the $750 price, noting that they hoped the full show would be restored to the event.

In other action, Council passed a motion to renew the annual lease between the city and the U.S. Coast Guard for use of city-owned facilities on Round Lake.

The lease calls for the city to provide mooring facilities for the Cutter Sundew, water facilities, electric service, lighting and telephone service. The city is also responsible for the upkeep and maintenance of the dock.

The Coast Guard pays for the water consumed, electric used and any damage to the docking area.

In addition, the city is obligated under the lease to provide parking in the dock area.

In the past, ten parking spaces have been earmarked for Coast Guard use. This year, 25 spaces were requested.

Council debated the number of spaces to be reserved for use by the crew of the Sundew, and concluded that the city was unable to give them 15 more than this year.

It was noted that crew members may park at the lot on Park Street, just over one block from the dock.

One resident came before Council petitioning the body to investigate "unsanitary, unhealthy conditions which exist in the west end of the city."

The petition, signed by eight residents of the area, claimed that rats live under or near one or more houses.

Addition to Courier

Beginning with this issue of the Courier, a combination of Playtime and Northern Michigan's largest publication, the Graphic Resorter, will be offered to readers.

The combination of the two publications will give our readers expanded summer news coverage and photos of the North.

And, readers will be kept informed on the latest places to go and shops to visit through the advertisements in the Graphic.

In addition, this issue of the Courier also contains a Special Section on the "Move In" of the First State Bank of Charlevoix's move to its new building on State Street.

New millage request set

Once again, the voters of the Charlevoix School District will be called upon to vote at the polls, in a special election scheduled for August 11. They will be voting on two reduced milleage issues.

The proposed operational millage will be 2.99 for one year, and one mill for three years to purchase instructional materials and learning equipment for the students. September is the deadline for tax rolls to be in the office of the county treasurer.

Monies derived from the 2.99 mill tax levy would permit the board to return several programs to the budget. Such programs are: return of one third grade teacher, a full time instead of a half-time librarian and the addition of two students to assist with noon hour supervision in the elementary (K-4) school.

In the Middle School, these items would be permitted: increase of library services from one-half to full time and in the high school it would allow Robert Cook, who organizes the co-op program, two instead of four weeks to set up and close out the program at the begginning and close of the school year; no club and class sponsors, only in the junior and senior classes. The post of athletic director will be returned. Outside the classroom it would permit the town bus for the K-4 students and return of a full-time mechanic.

The following items will not be returned to the program: reduction of the kindergarten sections by one due to the low enrollment; noon hour supervision reduction from five to three adults in the elementary grades; elimination of special education in the middle grades and in the high school the discontinuance of student co-op workers at school; coaching staff cut by two coaches for football, and one for basketball; extra-curricular club activities discontinued, and all but junior and senior class sponsors, dramatics will be cut and elimination of school attendance officer and the administrative assistant, community school program and a reduction in SUPPLIES AND EXPENSES.

The board approved an 8 percent increase in wages for all non-teaching personnel instead of the 4 percent recommended earlier.

This 2.99 request would allow the school district to "get by". The original 3.75 mill request, earlier vetoed, would have expanded and enriched the entire school program.

Board member Dale Boss voted against the proposed new budget, in order to hold out for the full 3.75 mills. Prior to voting, Mrs. Robert Hooper voiced the sentiments of the majority of the board when she said she was voting for the lesser millage which would make program more acceptable but that certainly it was not the program she felt was needed.

The monies derived from the one mill for materials and equipment would be placed in a separate fund and would be used only for that stated purpose.

James Jensen, science instructor, told the Board of the need for this equipment and said his science program could suffer from lack of equipment this money could buy.

In this vote for the proposed one-mill tax levy for three years, Richard Donaldson voted "no" and Charles England abstained.

Jack Rader, president of the Board, said if the millage does not pass this time, it would mean a cut of approximately $120,000 from the budget, and that the austerity budget would have to be utilized. This would mean eliminating all the programs that were returned, plus the entire sports, band and sections of other programs. Another Board member expressed, "We would hardly have a school to teach."

Thirty-four interested persons attended the meeting.

Little League to sell subs

Beginning tomorrow, that knock at the door may be a Charlevoix Little Leaguer asking you to start or renew a subscription to the Courier.

Funds derived will be used to purchase equipment. At present the team lacks bats, balls, uniforms and other equipment due to the lack of funds.

In addition, any youngster who secures eight new subscriptions will be presented with a pair of official Little League baseball shoes.

The top five Little League "businessmen" will earn grand prizes of official Little League baseball gloves.

All prizes are being donated by the Courier.

In an effort to build the treasury for the new program, the Courier will donate $1.50 for each new subscription sold by the youths, and $.50 for each renewal.

There will be approximately 20 young men selling subscriptions, and each will be provided with a "kit", complete with printed subscription forms.

Buying the Courier from a Little Leaguer will help these youngsters learn the fundamentals of baseball.

Monroe impoundment draws lines of battle

The proposed impoundment of Monroe Creek, on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, north of East Jordan, has caused a stir among residents, conservationists and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Properties in the area, totaling 1,100 acres, have been purchased by Francis Sheldon and John S. Wreford of Detroit.

Their plan calls for flooding approximately 500 acres of the land and developing the resulting shoreline.

When the Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors passed a resolution permitting "the proponents hereof to proceed with the required engineering work", the controversy began.

Prime complaints against the venture center around the aging factor of Lake Charlevoix. Some feel that the creation of an artificial lake will speed up the aging of the lake, which is already aging much faster than the normal rate. They argue that additional nutrients will be discharged into the body of water.

The DNR apparently does not think so. Contrary to some reports, C.D. Harris, deputy director, resources management, DNR, told Sheldon that the department "would not object to your proposal for the development of a water impoundment on Monroe Creek in Charlevoix County."

According to Sheldon, the department is not unhappy about the artificial lake; in fact, the prospect of a body of water with a depth of up to 35 feet is considered an improvement over present conditions in the area.

John Michael, attorney for Sheldon and Wreford, said last week that Monroe Creek and the surrounding swamp is already enriching Lake Charlevoix. "The proposed dam and impoundment could actually reduce the enrichment level as it will restrict the flow of water into the lake, particularly during the spring.

"The developers' ultimate objective is to produce an outstanding residential development, as well as a public access area to the lake. They are going out of their way to see that it is done properly," Michael added.

Other conservationists claim the area is a refuge for wildlife, and that the creek itself is considered a "moderate" trout stream.

The developers contend that the vast majority of the swamp is impassable, and therefore not a good hunting area. They note that there is much nearby land available for deer grazing.

As for fishing, Sheldon reported that the impoundment will result in much better fishing than now exists. The deep water, he says, will actually provide a better habitat for trout.

"If we feel that impoundment would be harmful," Sheldon said, "we would drop the entire venture. However, our investigation and that of the Conservation Department, to this point, fortells no problems."

Michael listed several problems at present with the swamp at Monroe Creek: It enriches Lake Charlevoix; it is a breeding ground for mosquitoes; hunting is not as good as claimed as a large portion of the area is impassable due to the density of the swamp; it is not a prime trout stream.

The battle over the benefits of the impoundment of some 500 acres of land will continue.

Basically, the problem revolves around the advisability of continuing to develop artificial lakes in Northern Michigan.

Developers and conservationists are inherently at odds. The outcome will please only one group.

Venetian Festival events begin tonight with a band concert in East Park at 8:30, and continue through Sunday.

Venetian Festival ready

By Claudia Bost

Set aside your work and head for town, it's Venetian Festival time again. As in the past, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce will be sponsoring the major event of "Summetime Charlevoix", and it's coming our way this weekend.

The principal dates set for this year's festival are Saturday, and Sunday, July 26 and 27. This year, the board of directors has chosen to have some preliminary entertainment ahead of the two principal days. This addition to the Festival days, will lengthen the fun and excitement, according to the Chamber. More time to get out and enjoy the fresh air and to join in the fun-making.

The holiday mood will be set today when the celebration starts off with the regularly scheduled City Band Concert, in East Park, downtown Charlevoix, at 8:30 p.m. Prior to the concert, at 7 p.m., is the scheduled arrival of the USS Holiidaysburg with a compliment of 50 men.

From there, the action will move on to Thursday, when two groups will share the spotlight for an evening of musical entertainment. Starting at 7 p.m., a barbershop quartet and Gary Stutzman's Steinsmen, will perform a half hour at a time, alternating turns, for an hour each. Again the activity will be at the band shell in East Park.

On Friday, the mood will be nervousness and lots of excitement for all queen contestants. The competition will reach its climax, when the judgment is made at 7:30 p.m.

The crowning of the queen will end the contest, and officially begin the Venetian Festival activities with the new queen to rein over the weekend festivities.

Saturday morning will open up a very eventful weekend for everyone participating in the Festival. The usual variety of booths will be displayed along the sidewalks of Bridge Street, downtown around the park area. Each booth will display a wide variety of articles, and items to be purchased, discussed, or just plain looked-over.

Starting at 2 p.m., the annual Street Parade will begin. The parade will form at the end of State Street by Freedman Artcraft, and move up State Street to Park Avenue. It will then turn left at Grant and proceed to Antrim, where it will then break-up in that area. Approximately 30 entries are expected to participate. Disc jockey Bill Supernaw will M.C. the parade at Mason Street. There will be three judges to officiate and to award the ribbons following the parade. All ribbons will be awarded at East Park.

At 4 p.m. a trampoline troop from National Summer Palaestrum Camp, Williamaburg, Michigan, will perform for the spectators. Thirty to 50 trampoline artists are expected to be on hand.

After the day-time activities have ended and the evening hours begin to roll around, at 8 p.m. a square dance program will be held at Oleson's Shopping Center. The Charlevoix Pairs and Squares, and three visiting callers will participate.

On Sunday morning, the booths on Bridge Street will re-open. At 2 p.m. the Doll and Pet Parade for youngsters will begin in East Park. This is one of the most enjoyable parades and provides entertainment for everyone.

Following the Doll and Pet Parade will be the annual Fireman's Waterball Fight between the East Jordan and Charlevoix volunteer firemen. This "watered" event will take place at 4:30 p.m.

At 5 p.m. the Boy Scouts will display their skill and talent for climbing greased poles. This should prove to be quite fascinating from the spectators point of view.

Then in the evening will come the Boat Parade in Round Lake. The boats parading thru the lake provides a spectacular view for all photographers.

There will be aerial fireworks displayed for the finale, which will bring the Festival to an end, and put it back into hibernation until it will once again blossom out for next year's festivities.

A funfilled weekend has ben planned for everyone. Be sure to come into town and get in on all the activities to make this one of the greatest Venetian Festivals ever.

Instructor Al Lusk and beginning swimming class at Depot Beach. City Recreation Department's swimming program has over 300 youngsters enrolled in numerous programs, from non-swimmers to advanced. Classes are held morning at Depot Beach. Director Deano Davenport said the swimmers were doing well "in one of the largest swimming programs in the city's history."

Camp Charlevoix

Corral Chatter

The third week of camp started off with another hot day, and with a very full week in the offing, the boys were all raring to go. Curt Huber, head of our trips department, and Doug Otto, athletic dept. took a group of boys on a 50 mile hike up to Cross Village and the surrounding area. This is the first time we have ever had a real "hiking trip", the boys were eager and looked great with their new "packs" on their backs. The camp truck took them to Harbor Springs and started them off. They won't be back until Thursday, so they were in for a very fine time. These lucky boys were Jim ZeBranek, Bill Ramey, Jim Johnson, Randy Bradshaw, Scott Gilmore, Ignatzio Bolonotto, Brad Mast, Jim Eberts, John Mahan, and Billy Slater. The camp photographer was here taking cabin group pictures, and activity shots. In the evening, the Prep Section had an Indian-Pioneer game and the Greens picked up another point.

Also at the evening meal on Monday, the traditional MUGWUMP was hidden in the woods to start off this annual competition. After much searching, the Greens found it, re-hid it, and the fun was on. Boys always enjoy this and visiting alumni always ask if we still "Run the Mugwump".

Tuesday was another hot day, great for boys in camp. We kept wondering how our hikers were doing.

Wednesday morning at breakfast we had a big television set up so that everyone could see the launching of the moonshot, and when the capsule took off you should have heard the applause. It was a tremendous thrill and the boys were very interested. For about two minutes before take-off, you could have heard a pin drop. It was a very exciting experience. The Sailing trip got away about 9:30 a.m. and as this is the three day sailing trip, those boys were very eager.

This was also the day for our Seniors to be hosts to the girls of Camp Chick-A-Mi, and all morning and all afternoon, the committee was busy with decorations and preparations. In the afternoon, we had a tennis match with the Belvedere Club. Our boys won the match 9 to 4, and it was indeed a happy group of tennis players that came back to camp. Using professional tennis scoring, our boys scored this way: Trey Henkel, 8-10; Dave Swain, 10-2; Bill Harbeck, 3-10; Eric Burnheimer, 10-4; Tim Galbraith, 1-10; Mickey MacNair, 10-8; Bob Pfouts and Dave Washburn, 10-8; Dave Hentschler, 10-9; Dave Cowan, 10-0.

The hiking trip returned and the boys all reported it to be a wonderful trip and one that they really enjoyed. In the evening, the girls arrived from Camp Chick-A-Mi and the dining room was decorated very well by the committee. The boys enjoyed the party and the girls were reluctant to board the bus for home. The rest of the camp saw a movie "Slaves of Babylon".

Thursday was another hot day and the first two cabins in camp were taken over to Lake Michigan for the day in the sand. They were all excited. They had lunch at the beach, and returned happy and tired. Cabin 7, with Chuck Leider as counsellor, took an overnight to our campcraft area on the lake. These boys were Rob Healey, Jay Bandera, David Townsend, Bruce Yoder, David Cronin, Frank Perron, and Kevin McCarty.

Friday was another beautiful day, hot and great. Cabin 3 and 4 took off for a day on Lake Michigan and these little fellows were all excited. Boys were busy making plans for the annual Camp Carnival and getting things organized to set up their booths. The sailing trip returned and reported a fine three days.

We have been having really great weather. No rain in over two weeks, and the hot days are mighty fine for boys and camping. Saturday morning was a morning of great activity, each cabin getting its carnival booth ready. Ruby and Alice were busy on the Smith Porch which was the source of supply for crepe paper, thumb tacks, prizes, tickets, masking tape, pens, pencils, costumes, rope, string, etc. At three o'clock the bell rang and both parents and boys were busy going to booths and having a fine time visiting. The committee chose Cabins 5 and 10 as being tied for originality, and cabin 14 took in the most number of tickets. It was a very fine Carnival and Tom Dorsek and his committee ably assisted by Ruby, Alice, Ruth, Dan, are to be congratulated. In the evening, as the boys were tired we had a short movie on "The Gemini" and they enjoyed it as it related to the moon shot.

Sunday morning we had our chapel service in the outdoor chapel with several parents being our guests. The Scripture was read by Jim Johnson and the prayer was given by David Wickizer. The speaker was Curt Huber, head of our Trips Dept. who spoke on "Opportunity" and stressed the many opportunities the boys have here at camp. At Sunday Dinner it was announced that a TV set would be installed in the Dining Room during the afternoon for those boys and men who wanted to watch the landing on the Moon. At three o'clock every person in camp was seated and as the countdown proceeded you could feel the tension mount. When the men landed safely, there was wild applause and it was really a thrill that I'm sure the boys will remember all their lives and talk about as long as they live. A long swim was held afterward, as it was a hot day and the water is just great. Evening Vespers were probably the greatest ever held as the entire camp witnessed the Astronauts. The boys and men were really excited when man put his first step on the moon. It was thrilling. Several of the boys stayed up until midnight watching the proceedings.

Chamber Chat

BY WALLY LODER

Some of you old timers might recall a familiar wall plaque entitled "The Thinker" and sometimes called "Think Time." There showed a sketch of a certain type individual sitting on an old fashioned stoul in quite a quander. I was reminded of this by a news letter received today from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at Washington D.C., and I quote the article as follows:

"A familiar plaque has disappeared from my walls. It had one word with a thoughtful message--THINK

It became the victim of puns and cartoons. Some replaced it with a sign--WORK

Too often it was ignored. Thinking takes time and who has idle time?

Look at some of the obstacles--the telephone rings, visitors walk in, correspondence gets piled up or social duties call.

Besides, it hurts to think at times. Too much thinking could produce an idea that calls for action. Today many are so busy they don't really have time to work, so why tempt fate by thinking.

It is an interesting exercise, but...

To have think time there must be planning. Plan for think time. Close the door--look at the ceiling, let the mind wander. Paint a wall, let the mind wander. Get away from it all, sit under a tree and let the mind wander.

Get think time on a schedule. Fifteen minutes a day may produce delightful surprises.

Force yourself to take time for think time--it's easier than you think."

A week has passed since the first annual Lakeside Hobbycraft show held last Saturday, July 12, in East Park along Bridge Street. There is no question but what this event is already established as an annual. The committee worked hard in very limited time to make it a success. Many of you might have observed a constant stream of visitors at the show. We have had in this office quite a number of compliments about character of this exhibition, and I know the committee received a considerable number during the showing, and that in addition to the exhibitors this year, they have already quite a number of expressions of desire to exhibit next year and all of these were not locally, quite a number were from down state. So here's hoping all goes well with the second try in 1970, which by the way, I understand, will be scheduled on a regular day such as the Waterfront Art Fair, and the Hobbycraft Show will be the second Saturday in July.

No doubt persons have first handed information right from the horse's mouth, so to speak, however, this office has had a bit of heresay having to do with "The Wharf," Charlevoix Harbor Condominium downtown at Harborside, H. Jack Begrow architect, and Scheid Realty, Inc. Agents. Now, this office today was pleased to receive copies of certain sketches, etc., having to do with this development. These copies have filled me in considerably and any of you readers are welcome to look these pieces over here at the office. Don't think the idea of this property has not gotten around. One of several contacts I had quite some weeks ago was from a gentleman down at Pompano Beach, Florida.

Having to do with our annual Venetian Festival, as usual the fourth weekend in July, this year being July 26 and 27, at a special Board of Director's meeting this week all of the loose ends were woven together, so to speak, and we composed a news release for radio stations and newspapers in the area, and a copy for certain other outlets here in town. The Board of Directors this year figured it might be a good idea to have a few preliminaries ahead of the 26th and 27th. Accordingly, the preliminaries will start July 23, Wednesday, with the regularly scheduled City Band Concert. Also Wednesday evening there has been scheduled the arrival of the USS Hollidaysburg PSC 1385 to make Charlevoix the Beautiful a port of call, and will arrive here in our harbor approximately 7 p.m. with officers and a compliment of 50 men. This boat is on a lake cruise and or training mission from the Fourth Naval Division, U.S. Naval and Marine Corp Training Corp, from Lorain, Ohio, a few miles out along the shore of Lake Erie, west of Cleveland. This also should be an interesting spectacle.

Thursday, July 24 in East Park there is scheduled the well known and fine entertaining Barbership Quartet and Gary Stutzman's STEINSMEN band, and the STEINSMEN are scheduled about 7 p.m. for possible one half hour, and then a similar performance at approximately 7:30 by the Barbershop Quartet, and the same time limit again for each.

Friday, July 25, approximately 7:30 p.m. will be the Queen's contest and this is followed by the crowning of the queen.

Saturday, July 26 will be the variety of booths along the side walk with a variety of goodies, etc. They usually make things available early forenoon on Saturday. At 2 p.m. over on State Street will be an expanded Venetian Festival Street Parade which will proceed north on State Street, etc. At 4 p.m. there is scheduled in East Park the National Summer Palaestrum Camp Troop of Trampoline performers, numbering from 30 to 50. This performance varies in length anywhere from an hour to an hour and one half, and maybe two hours. This is something one should not miss. Similar performances of this sort of entertainment have been here at Charlevoix some years ago. At approximately 7:30 p.m. the City Band will give a concert under the direction of C.A. Odmark. At 8 p.m. in Oleson's Shopping Center the Charlevoix Pairs and Squares will sponsor a square dance program which should be very interesting and they will have three visiting Callers.

Sunday, July 27 will be the usual Doll and Pet Parade for the youngsters in East Park (always quite fascinating.) At 4:30 p.m. is scheduled the firemen's water ball contest, (there might be a competitive contest, that is Charlevoix firemen vs. the firefighters of some of our neighboring cities.) At 5 p.m. there is scheduled the greased pole climb by the Boy Scouts, under the direction of Doug Wilkes. In the evening, what many will be waiting for is the boat parade under the direction of Lyle Miles, President of this Chamber of Commerce, here in Round Lake downtown, and will be followed by a beautiful aerial fireworks display as a grand finale.

We all here hope you folks, friends and visitors, will enjoy all or some of this annual event.

Bicycle riding: fun, healthful

Almost everybody enjoys bicycle riding . . . . . youngsters use their "bikes" as a means of transportation, and many adults find riding an enjoyable means of exercise and recreation.

To enjoy your bike more, and to insure your safety while using the vehicle, all riders should observe the "Bicycle Rules of the Road."

Cycling can be a family affair. Take a trip! See Northern Michigan as you've never seen it by car. Family picnics are more fun when you bike to your favorite beach, camping ground or park. Weekend or longer trips, riding 30 or 40 pleasant miles a day, stopping at convenient motels or hotels, takes your vacation out of the ordinary.

Youngsters may want to join or start a bike club. . . short rides or long, they're more fun when you ride with others who share your interest. A great opportunity to make friends and share adventures.

And, don't forget that regular cycling is a great way to stay physically fit. Many schools and colleges have even brought cycling into school fitness programs.

Of course, safety is the key to the enjoyment of cycling.

Some basic rules include:

Observe all traffic regulations, red and green lights, one-way streets and stop signs.

Keep far to the right. Always ride single file.

Ride in a straight line. Don't weave in and out of traffic, swerve from side to side, or race and stunt in traffic.

Always be alert. Watch for cars pulling out into traffic, into parking spaces, or turning in front of you. Keep a lookout for the sudden opening of car doors.

Always listen for traffic approaching out of your field of vision.

Give pedestrians the right of way. Unless permitted, avoid sidewalks, and then use extra care, particularly when approaching pedestrians from behind.

Slow down at all intersections. Look to the left and right for cars and pedestrians before crossing.

Bicycle Safety is the topic of City Recreation Department's course, held at St. Mary's School playground.

Pat's Reaction

Push off

By Pat Begrow

My family is afflicted with a serious sickness called sailing fever and instead of the fever abating it gets worse each year.

Six years ago we bought a tired old sailboat, threw a coat of paint on it and christened it The Brown Scow. My husband had never before skippered a boat and I had never before set foot on such a boat, but ignorance is bliss so we started out to learn.

There is a sailing school at our yacht club just for youngsters, but seeing no other course of action I signed up for it. On the application form where they demand to know your age I simply wrote "over twelve", and the instructor was too courteous to ask further.

By the time that the first lesson was over I realized with a shock that I was in deep water. I came to class to learn the fundamentals of sailing, but these kids who were all over twelve and under eighteen knew the fundamentals and were there to learn the fine points. After the first day of class my head was in a whirl. I didn't know a beat from a reach and the rest of the class was discussing racing strategy. I realized that it was going to be a long hot summer.

Just how bad I had to wait to find out.

One of the first times that we went out in the sailboat my husband shouted at me to push hard from the dock, real hard.

I did and in I went with a splash. Jack sailed off with two friends and left me to paddle my way to shore. He's not mean you understand. He just didn't know how to get the boat back to the dock.

All that summer we gave our all to learn to sail. In the races we often trailed the rest of the fleet by as much as two buoys.

Discouraged?

Not in the least.

At the end of the summer we were only trailing the fleet by one buoy, and we've been improving ever since. Each year we can't wait to get under sail.

On Easter Sunday 1969, my gang went ice boating at Harbor Springs. By the following Sunday Round Lake had thawed and my husband and 11 year old son, Chris sailed out in a 12 foot Butterfly until they began to break ice in Lake Charlevoix.

A few weeks later they got our big sailboat and the two of them raced each other around the buoys in Round Lake. Since no one else likes to race when the temperature is 40 degrees you just have to depend on your own family for such competition.

Are we improving? Is our family crew doing better together?

Well yes, now when we race we come in somewhere in the middle of the fleet. But we're all working at it. Just watch us win in the next six years.

Around the town

Georgia Lusk and Beth Baldwin returned home recently from Olivet College where they attended the three weeks Operation: Bentley, a workshop-type course designed to interest young people in government.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Shapton have returned to Lansing after visiting her mother, Mrs. Bonnie Nickerson. They also visited his father, Earl Shapton, and Mrs. Shapton.

The Cass Russell family and the Eugene Towsley family have returned from a long weekend of camping in the Porcupine Mountains in the Upper Peninsula.

Cruisers of all sizes duck into Fairport to have their depth finders checked or their radios tuned.

Fairport Marine has experts in electronics

By Pat Begrow

The owners of the Fairport Marine provide a unique service to Great Lakes sailors that induces hundreds of boaters each year to make a special stopover at the Charlevoix Harbor just to visit Fairport Marine.

The reason for this is that Fairport Marine sells, installs and services electronic equipment such as radio telephones, generators and radar. Raython, Bendix, Decca and Onean are among the significant names that Fairport carries. The men at Fairport, Geoffrey Patrie, Phil Lawrence and Dave Patrie are experts and know what they are talking about when they discuss electronics.

Their expertise in this field is so highly respected that often they are called away from Charlevoix just to service equipment. From Fairport they go wherever they are needed to Mackinac to Manistee, to Muskegon, Milwaukee or Detroit.

Often they are asked to fly to small islands like North Fox or Drummond to assist someone who is in serious difficulty because of an electronic failure. The famous Walstrom Marine at Harbor Springs depends entirely upon Fairport to equip its many boats.

Fairport Marine counts 1,200 friends as its customers. Part of the reason for this is Fairport's excellent service, but another is Fairport's warmth and hospitality as a host to yachtsmen. Long before the City of Charlevoix built new showers and restroom facilities, yachtsmen passed the word that Fairport offered clean showerrooms for both man and ladies. At the close of cold and windy days people were often lined up four deep for each of the two showers.

Mrs. Patrie and a young guest enjoy feeding the ducks in the sheltered waters of Fairport.

For many years, too, Fairport has had their own small laundry room equipped with automatic washers and dryers for the use of their friends and customers.

Mrs. Pat Patrie is the genial hostess at Fairport. She works there and lives there too, so there is real sincerity in Pat Patrie's welcoming smile.

It's been 13 years now since the Patrie family and Phil Lawrence sought a sheltered Great Lakes harbor where they could establish a speciality marina. It's been 13 years now since they chose Charlevoix as this perfect place. In this time they have made a wide circle of friends who anticipate their annual stop with Fairport Marine in Charlevoix-the-Beautiful

Women's Guild

The work of over 90 women made the kitchen tour of the Women's Guild, held July 16 a great success. Over 200 guests toured the kitchens of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Broder, Mr. and Mrs. Earl A. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Kit Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Pew, Mrs. Hazel Matson and Mr. and Mrs. George Baldwin.

As far back as March and the snow, many of the members were busy planning the group meetings which produced thru the months ahead delightful cobbler aprons, paper flowers, baby sweaters, booties and caps. In the last hours, the women made tasty salad dressings, breads and cookies, arranged note pads and bouquets of fresh flowers. All of these were on sale in each of the six lovely and unusual homes; which were open to the public. The Guild hostesses were on duty throughout the tour to help show the homes. The refreshment stop, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. Freedman, was quite popular as guests enjoyed a choice of delicious homemade cake and coffee.

We are grateful to the families who so graciously opened their homes for this hospital benefit, and to the many, many women who devoted a number of untold hours in the preparation of the tour.

Our thanks also to the following who so generously donated the party favors....Neff Brothers, Schroeder Drugs, Reese Finer Foods, Lowrys Patio Kitchens, Petoskey Cigar Co. and Paul-Reed, Inc. We are also grateful to the Charlevoix Courier for their generous coverage of the tour, radio stations W.M.B.M. and W.J.M.L. and Miss Frances Martin of the Petoskey News Review.

The great success of the tour would not have been possible without the diligent work of the ticket sellers, the support of the subscribers and their generous donations.

NOW PETGAS HAS CONTINUOUS CLEANING GAS RANGES

with

CROWN'S Carefree OVEN

Now—Say goodbye to tedious, grimy oven cleaning—with the continous cleaning Crown "Carefree" gas range oven—that cleans itself as you cook!

The oven interior of Crown's "Carefree" gas range is coated with a special catalytic material combined with porcelain enamel, which cleans itself as the oven is used at normal temperatures. Oven linings are coated with this material which gives the appearance of a non-glossy porcelain enamel. As you use your oven, the continuous cleaning action will keep your oven presentably clean at all times, with no conscious effort on your part.

Your "Carefree" oven is cooler; the initial cost is lower and is more economical to operate.

You can bake or roast without a thought to the dreaded job of oven cleaning.

Library notes

The Library is pleased to announce that an unusual display case containing iii Indian flint stones from all over the United States has been loaned during the summer weeks by Earl A. Young. The artifacts are handsomely arranged on a black felt background and should be of special interest at this time because of the recent excavations which have been made in our area.

To compliment this unique display, special books will be exhibited on Indian folklore, art, history and legends.

"Indian Warriors and their Weapons", written and illustrated by Robert Hofsinde is one of the attractive books being featured for the exhibit. The author has written eleven books on the American Indian. This is an easy-to-read book for youngsters which deals with the Ojibwa War Trails, the Iroquois Warrier, the Fighting Sioux, the Blackfeet Brave and the Crow Indian Fighter.

"Indian Music Makers" by Robert Hofsinde is a new addition to the Library written by the same author. The illustrations are charming, and the print is large enough for very young readers.

"The American Indian" is a large, profusely illustrated book with an introduction by John F. Kennedy. It is the Young reader's edition of "The American Heritage Book of Indians" and, with its beautiful colored plates and readable material, it is an experience for both children and adults.

"The Apache Indians" is a small, bright red volume written by Sonia Bleeker, who as an anthropologist, has devoted years to the study of North American Indians. She not only knows her subject, but she also knows how to make it fascinating to young readers.

"Life of an Indian Captive" by Lillie M. Ross is an absolutely true story of a fourteen-year-old boy's terrifying experiences as an Indian captive during the 1860's in Texas. The story of this courageous boy's life with the Indians and his eventual daring escape makes thoroughly exciting reading.

The annual Venetian Festival will offer games, parades, prizes and fireworks. Visit Charlevoix the Beautiful this weekend.

L.P. bear hunt set

Bear hunting in the Lower Peninsula has now passed its final hurdle with the passage of a bill sponsored by 106th District State Representative Robert W. Davis.

The bill was passed and is on its way to the Governor.

According to Davis, the bill allows the Department of Natural Resources to set up a special bear season in the Northern Michigan Counties of the Lower Peninsula.

"Conservation officials will consider a five day season this fall," Representative Davis said. "The season would be set up at a time other than the deer season, possibly in September."

Hunting bear in the Lower Peninsula was discontinued in 1965 when the season was closed to protect the bear population.

According to Natural Resources spokesmen the Upper Peninsula yields about 800 bear every year during deer season and a special bear season. The Department said even though this legislation has been approved they will continue to treat the bear population conservatively and would probably approve only a short season.

BLUE LUSTRE
SUPER SUCTION
FILTERS ALL THE AIR
TRAPS ALL THE DUST

Q do these super-suction bags really improve your sweeper?
A DEFINITELY!

Ordinary "filter paper" bags made for one sweeper are too often sold for other sweepers having very different requirements. Thus poor cleaning, hot motors and "blow-back" of dust into areas being "cleaned."

Blue Lustre's variety of new filter materials assures the right bag for the right sweeper... custom designed to meet the unique needs of each sweeper.

The Blue Lustre bags designed for your sweeper will trap ALL the dust (no leak or "blow-back") and filter ALL the air the motor draws in, for super suction not possible with ordinary bags. They are also chemically treated to resist germs mold and mildew.

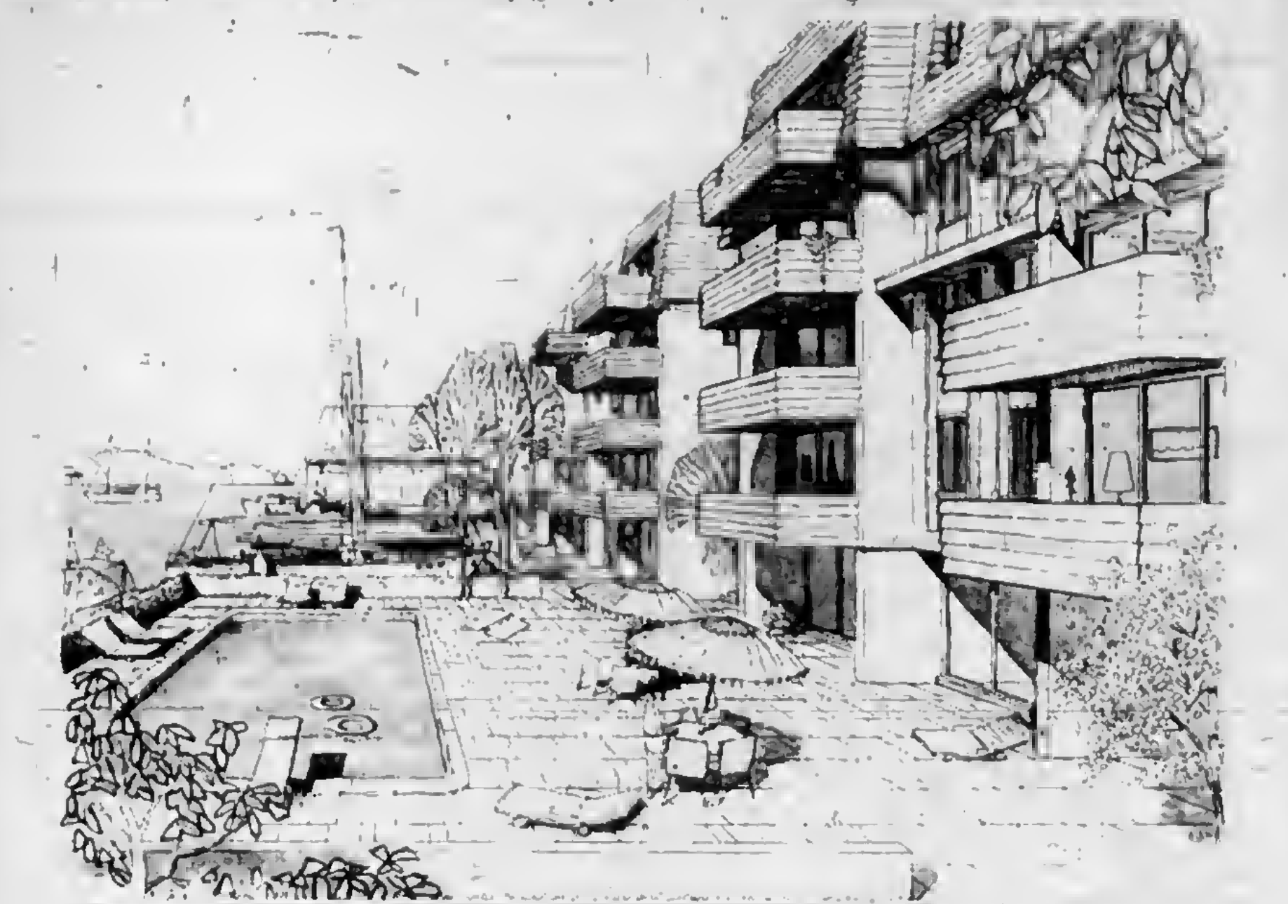
The Shorts Story for Summer

LIEBERMANS of CHARLEVOIX
OPEN FRI. EVENINGS 'TIL 8:30



This perspective of The Wharf condominium apartments shows the exposure that the apartment living and balcony areas have to Round Lake. The exterior of the building will be of cedar and stucco.

"Wharf" construction planned for Sept.

By next summer the face of Round Lake will be changed with the additinn of 11 condominium apartments which will rise on the southeast end of the lake between Bellinger Marine and Ward's Boat Rental. The apartments are being built by J. Jack Bergrow, Charlevoix architect, and they will be the latest in modern design and comfort.

Boat slips on the Round Lake property will be increased and improved and each condominium owner will have the option to rent a boat slip in front of his apartment for the summer.

The apartments will have an outdoor swimming pool and an attractive landscaped patio area.

All of the apartments will be air-conditioned and fully carpeted.

The kitchen will be equipped with the latest Hotpoint cooking and laundry equipment and finished with formica counters and cabinets.

Jack Begrow has been the architect for the new Marina Village condominium apartments at Harbor Springs which are owned by Ward Walstrom.

The Warf will be similar to Marina Village in the concept of easy care and informality that it offers.

The Charlevoix condominiums will have three one-bedroom units, six two-bedroom units, and two three-bedroom units. Their sale is being handled by Scheid Realty of Charlevoix.

Construction of these apartments was to have started this summer but it was delayed because of the tightening of construction money. The new starting date is September 1969.

Special course for handicapped

A program, unique in the United States, to help severely handicapped young people prepare for college is being conducted at Easter Michigan University this summer.

Its aim is to select high school graduates with physical disabilitites but a potential for higher education, bring them to the campus for six or eight weeks, and thus prepare them for adjustment to college life.

The project is sponsored jointly by the University, the Michigan Division of Vocational Rehabilitation and the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Michigan. Its estimated budget of $4,500 is being met by these three plus contributinns from parents.

The first group to come here, selected by the DVR in cooperation with Eastern personnel, is made up of six boys and two girls. Three are suffering from spinal cord injuries, two from cerebral palsy, one from sight impairment, one from severe arthritis, and one from neurological impairment.

Each student is taking six credit hours, or two courses. These courses include General Psychology, English Composition, American Government, Reading of Literature, World Regions, Great Religions, Structure of American Society, Evolution of American Democracy and Basic Drawing.

Those who complete this course work with a C average or better will be admitted to Eastern in the fall.

A staff of 11 men and women gives the special assistance which each student needs This might be bathing, feeding, assistance in and out of bed Special equipment includes electrically-operated hospital beds, rails in bathrooms, and ramps for wheelchairs where necessary. Interior doors in dormitory rooms have been removed to make wheelchair maneuvering easier. Tapes on other doors prevent them from latching completely; they may be pushed open.

Just as important is special help with studies. Students unable to write or type may dictate notes or themes to a "writer" who stays as long as necessary to complete the classroom assignment. There are "readers" for those with impaired vision or others who may be unable to hold a book. Any help a student needs to keep up with his courses is available to him.

Emphasis is placed on self-help and some of those in the program have already shown great progress in this direction, according to program staff members. There have been cases, indeed, where a student has resented an attempt to help him with something he felt he could do himself.

The program is being coordinated by Robert Dodge, DVR counselor, assisted by Dale Ossenheimer, rehabilitation counselor at Ypsilanti State Hospital, and Joseph Coyner, Department of Special Education at Eastern.

Letters to the editor

More on education

Mr. Editor:

This message is not intended as an exhaustive treatise as space would hardly permit comprehensive coverage.

"Education has for its object the formation of character." – Herbert Spencer.

If one were to interview a cross section of our contemporaries including those in business of education in search of a practical definition of EDUCATION, one could readily expect varied opinions in direct proportion to the number of parties interviewed. While this tender subject means different things to different people, to most of us it is related to the ability to come up with the necessary legal tender to acquire what we regard as the necessities of life and simultaneously pacifying the tax collector.

It is vividly recalled to memory the explanation of education as offered by an ex-school teacher who I was privileged to work with in Industry a generation ago. To quote-- "Education is merely the ability to thrive in one environment." While this may appear to concise for some; it does contain considerable more than a grain of truth.

"You can teach a student a lesson for a day; but if you can teach him to learn by creating curiosity, he will continue the learning process as long as he lives."

Clay Bedford

Enlightenment comes in many forms and from as many directions, quite often unannounced. It could be a respectful appreciation for a visiting Grandpa's tactful manner of handling nosey neighbors, possibly a closer scrutiny of the sales agreement made when the last family auto or installment refrigerator was purchased, or a visit to the local courtroom not to mention a brief interlude at one of the bustling idseotheques. One could appreciate the candid remarks of a matronly school teacher being interviewed recently on one of our favorite television programs. Her son might be regarded as controversial and somewhat of a celebrity in his own right. This mother however was not too proud to say -- "I just couldn't begin to cover all of the things that my husband and myself have learned from our children."

Isn't a refresher furnished in ecology each time a person serinusly reflects on the institution of marriage, partakes in a visit to the farm, lake or woodland?

Biology is one area modern man has allowed to slip from perspective in relation to finding and maintaining a balance in life. Three generations ago when 85 percent of our people lived on the land; this vital foundation came automatic. A constant reminder would be the appropriate words of Henry Drummond -- "The world is not a playground, it is a schoolroom. Life is not a holiday, but an education."

Meaning in the ordinary is well summed up in the following composition by Rickey Malkowski, an eleventh grade student.

Observing
Comes not from looking
But seeing
Not from noting
But discerning.
Any man can
Look at a painting
But it takes an artist
To see it.
If we could only
See all we behold
Or could understand fully
One simple act of faith or love
We should know what God
And man are.

"The doors of wisdom are never closed."-- B. Franklin

The UAW-CIO political power within our huge auto industry has promoted and maintained from its inception an EDUCATIONAL Department of no small magnitude, ostensibly for the welfare of the hourly paid laborers but in reality to perpetuate the hierarchy in power and the dissemination of an ideology in our land that has threatened its very foundations. So here is indoctrination with a purpose camouflaged as education.

The Grand-Daddy of all apparatus for education is the Federal Government, with its control of the news media, manipulation in the monetary field, law by decree accompanied with the crusade in socal engineering makes an immediate effect as well as reaction on every individual in this country regardless of age. This form of education could well be described as conditioning. Needless to say that fear and apprehension which cause people to do weird things, are not idle in this atmosphere long enough to become tarnished. And so it goes as the application and meaning of most of our long cherished words, concepts, doctrine and traditional values become garbled in transmission as well as reception.

"I have never met a father and mother who did not want their children to grow up to be uncommon men and women. May it always be so." -- H. Hoover

What is this illusive quantity that arouses such emotion in parents to the extent that they are willing to sacrifice the family jewels and if necessary levy a mortgage on home itself to insure the offspring a head start toward success? This matter poses another question. How can parents discount genetic factors, disposition and deportment of the individual and hope to develope an unusual product by attendance at one of the educational factories whose main thesis is conformity and the emphasis is more on the indoctrination of what to think than how to think? Frankly I haven't an answer to the second question. Perhaps the reader has. Let us try to illuminate the first with answers to the second later.

The root of the word education is e-d-u-c-e-r-e, literally, to lead forth or to bring out something potentially present.

It has to be a personal acquisition, it isn't a commodity that one can purchase with a certain allotment of time plus a certain monetary expenditure; neither can it be given especially if a receptive response is lacking. Patient, calm and determined pursuit with an open mind will pay off however with many side benefits. Self-discipline, faith and understanding becomes co-partners somewhere along the trail. It is like the man said--"He who spends a lifetime in search of the TRUTH will be free, even if he never finds it."

If one were to expect an obvious prerequisite for success in the great search the honors would likely go to on awareness of the wonders of the world plus the retention of an open mind. "If you are the prisoner of a dogma, you are a diminished man, a diminished intellect."-- Koca Papovic

Education may be said to be the efforts made by the community to impose its culture upon the growing generation. Yet in the highest sense isn't it the conscious training of mind or body to act unconsciously? It is conscious formation of mental habits, not mere acquistion of information.

Far from being a snob on the subject, I profoundly believe that every normal human is copable of becoming truly educated. But the first step is knowing what it means, and distinguishing it from its pretentious counterfeits. And, often the hardest place to find out what it is is in a school--from primary grades right through college. It is well to remember that nobody has a moooply on education itself. Just the sheepskin.

Portrait artists work locally

By Claudia Bost

SJofn Hoflida and Geo Provard, well known personalities in the world of art, are here in Charlevoix with Harry Weinsaft, curator of the Kingsley Inn Art Gallery, Bloomfield Hills.

These three artists will be creating portraits and have exhibitions displayed at the Weather Vane Inn.

A little about the artists themselves reveals a wide range of variety in their work and backgrounds. SJofn is from Iceland and came to America not too long ago. Weinsaft said she "has a technique all her own, and works marvelously with her subjects."

Geo is an American from Pennsylvania, and is most known here in the States for his work. He, too, has traveled to Europe to create and exhibit his portraits and pieces of artwork.

Weinsaft is from Vienna, Austria. He came to the United States just before World War II. He was in the Army with the U.S. Skitroops. Weinsaft has been involved all his life with art.

As a painter himself, and a person well known in the art field, he considers Geo and SJofn some of the top world artists and is proud to have them on tour with him.

After visiting with Weinsaft and his two artists, we were able to watch them at work. They make a piece of canvas come alive. Weinsaft said, "A camera is merely a robot, it cannot think or create; but human beings are capable of doing this, which produces great pieces of art." It takes a sixth sense to create the image, depth, and feeling of a person. "We create all things, not just a good likliness."

Before these artists begin, they are faced with an empty canvas, and from there they create their view of their subject. "We have to live with our results, we are the ones that really care about our work," said Weinsaft.

Before coming to America, SJofn had exhibits in Italy, Greece, Turkey, and all the Scandinavian countries. She is considered the top Scandanavian artist.

While here in Charlevoix, the two will be on hand to give our city a taste of the fine art and the opportunity to have an everlasting rememberance of this occasion. Starting Wednesday, July 30, they will hold their first show. It will be a collection of original lithographs by such well known artists as Miro, Chagall, Picasso, Renoir, Degas, Leger, Dali, Calder, Moore, and others.

This showing will be held through Sunday in the downstairs room of the Weather Vane.

Weinsaft said he and the others hope to be in Charlevoix until the end of July. While here, they hope to create some important paintings in the studio area designated to them.

They want people to come watch them at work, especially all art majors and art lovers. They will be providing an excellent first-hand opportunity to view art at its finest.

They will do paintings of families, group portraits, children....there is no limit to what they can do, right there while you pose for the painting.

The portraits will be done in a special type of pastell pygment. They only work during the evening hours, to avoid using the sunlight. The sun light changes and, with it, the shadows and colors will also lose their original effect.

Therefore, they will only be painting during the evening hours. "Many people come here for years who have been exposed to art all their lives. After this, they will be thrilled with our showing," said Weinsaft.

The hours you can see these artists at work are: Monday thru Thursday, 8 p.m. until early hours in the morning. A portrait takes anywhere from 30 to 45 minutes, and will be on sale upon completion.

Weinsaft and the two artists represent the Kingsley Inn Galery in Bloomfield Hills. Such celebrities as Danny Thomas, The Supremes, and Frank Sinatra have posed for their portraits there.

SJofn, artist from Iceland, puts the finishing touches on portrait.

Geo Provard, American-born artist.

Harry Weinsaft stands among several of many signed lithographs to be featured at Weather-vane Show.

Pianist at church

William Fairlamb, a pianist with the Bay View Assembly and professor of music in Pennsylvania, will be performing at services in the Church Sanctuary of the First Presbyterian Church in East Jordan.

Included on the program are: Mrs. Buckman Gardner, harpist at Bay View; Mrs. Chandler Benton, soloist; and Paul Ferris, organist. The program is open to the public.

An offering plate will be placed at the door for any who would care to contribute. It will be used to provide a modest honorarium for the artists, together with funds going to all the churches.

Everyone is invited to attend the performance on Sunday, July 27, from 4 p.m. until 5 p.m.

Venetian Festival

Charlevoix's Venetian Festival is upon us. This weekend, thousands of residents and visitors will be drawn to the downtown area for parades on land and water and fireworks.

We are told this traditional event has enjoyed the support of the community for over 40 years...yet the past several summers the Festival has slipped greatly in stature. A few dedicated individuals have been burdened with the entire job of planning the weekend and carrying through with its execution.

City officials have told us that "changes must be made or the Venetian Festival will surely die". We agree.

We urge City council to take the necessary steps to return the Festival to the "biggest event of the year" in Charlevoix, supported by all members of the community.

Speed limit

Pine River channell is posted with a six mile per hour speed limit, but few visiting boaters know it.

It seems the sign noting the speed limit is hidden behind some flourishing greenery. Inspection of the area shows that a boater would need X-ray vision to read the sign.

Just as it is important for those using the waterway to observe the law, it is imperative that the limit be known. Hiding it behind thick foilage is one method of making the law unenforceable.

Price to deter vandals

The residents of our area are seldom involved in major crimes. While we have had a rash of breaking and enterings this year, usually the culprits in this type of activity are from out of the area.

There are, however, illegal acts committed by residents of the area that, while apparently trivial, can lead to crimes of a more serious nature.

We have seen across the nation lately that people who observe crimes neither report them nor actively participate in the stopping of the perpetration of the crime.

The next time the vandals strike it could be your property involved, so it is common sense to perform your community duty and report immediately any case of vandalism that you may observe.

One man's whim may cost millions

The No. 2 man in the State Highway Dept. recently said a second Blue Water Bridge at Port Huron should be built ahead of the M-21 freeway.

He based the statement on a personal trip to Canada on Memorial Day when he said he ran into a "monumental tie-up" at the bridge.

The bridge manager said the tie-up was not the fault of the bridge. It occurred because only 2 of 5 customers lanes were open on the Canadian side. There was a 15-minute wait for a time in the morning. Later, more customs lanes were opened and the tie-up was cut to 4 or 5 minutes.

A member of this newspaper staff has travelled about twice weekly to Sarnia for the past 7 years. He has never had to wait more than 10 minutes. That happens very seldom (once or twice a year). The wait is always because of customs, not because of the bridge being unable to handle the traffic.

We wonder how many roads and bridges are built because of the personal and casual whim of some Lansing bureaucrat. We wonder why road needs aren't met entirely on the basis of actual surveys and traffic counts.

Are we to get a $25 million bridge simply because the No. 2 brasshat in the State Highway Dept was inconvenienced on Memorial Day excursion.

(Lapeer County Press)

Are we really a violent nation?

FROM THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

It is unfortunate that Americans are charged, in the new report issued by the Commission on Violence, with having become "a rather bloody-minded people," the study's actual conclusions are far more temperate and balanced than that language suggests.

The fact is that violence, of whatever kind and however deplorable, is the province of a very few. The rest of us are subject to innumerable frustrations and harassments, but we do not give vent to them against other persons and property.

So, far from being bloody-minded, the average citizen is appalled and deeply saddened at the violence he is constantly reminded of both at home and on the distant battlefields of Vietnam.

The value of the report's conclusions is to put contemporary violence in both historical and geographical perspective. The present period, the authors believe, ranks among the worst in American history, but is by no means the worst. As against other areas of the world, at least by certain criteria, the U.S. compares favorably.

Even excluding the American Revolution and the Civil War, the study says, "there have been periods in the American past when relative civil commotion — as measured by deaths, injuries, and property damage—has exceeded that of the 1960s...America experienced several periods of greater relative turbulence during the 19th century.".

Yet nations much more internally homogeneous share the tradition of violence. In numbers of political assassinations, riots, armed group attacks and demonstrations, the U.S. is among the half-dozen most tumultuous nations in the world. In terms of deaths and violent civil strife, however, the American rate is infinitesimal compared with the average of all nations and less infinitesimal compared with the average of all nations, and less than the European average.

A further pertinent point: Strife in American historically has tended to occur more or less within the normal political process until now anyway. It has rarely manifested itself in clandestine revolutionary movements or cells of plotters—so often the case elsewhere.

As a general obervation, it might be added that violence in the form of deliberate cruelty has notably declined in the U.S. and many other parts of the world (the Nazi and Communist states being throwbacks.).

There is a good deal of substance to some of the current charges of police brutality, for example, but we also ought to think of the unspeakable tortures, the hanging of men, women and children for trivial offenses, that were regularly practiced by legally constituted authorities in the Western world only a century or so ago.

Naturally neither the report's conclusion nor our comments are intended to put a complacent face on the violence the nation does suffer. On the contrary, we find it profoundly disturbing, not only the vicious acts themselves but the underlying attitude that seems to be growing apace.

But it is not sensible to carry this concern to the conclusion that Americans are uncommonly violent and that they are so because they have somehow grown uncommonly evil. A message of collective guilt and pessimism is being preached from pulpit, from academe and from other forums, a curious contrast to the inherent optimism that has characterized the American tradition. Feelings of national guilt and doom are emotional reactions; they contribute nothing to the solution of our problems.

Viewpoint!

Daylight time

By Hank Hogan

I was never really sold on Daylight Saving Time.

To me it was like the old Indian adage—It was merely cutting off one end of the blanket and sewing it on the other end—with very little gained.

I thought I could care less whether or not it passed in the state referendum last November, but now I am ready to campaign for a new election.

For anyone who ventures outside the state of Michigan, the fact that Michigan is one of the few states not on Daylight Saving Times causes immense problems.

If you are flying east you now have to leave an hour earlier to arrive at your destination, which is no simple task if you are trying to make a 9 a.m. meeting in New York City.

The television stations have to go the expense of taping network programs and then replay them at their proper no daylight time, so that if there is such a thing as a live telecast any more Michigan is losing that advantage.

If you are at all active physically, without Daylight Saving Time you have one hour less in the evening to keep in shape. Or, if you are so inclined, you have one hour less to weed or mow because the hour of sunlight lost in the evening is not really gained in the morning since it comes at a time when it is practically useless to slow starters.

+++

The only real advantage seems to be to those who attend drive-in movies, and I seem to be getting too old for that sort of thing.

They say that farmers voted against Daylight Saving Time because they didn't want to interrupt their cows' schedules, but since farmers are notoriously early risers they could let their cows stay on schedule by getting up an hour earlier themselves.

In winter it is no problem to sleep in in the morning because old man sun is not knocking at your window, but lately I find myself waking up at 5 o'clock in the morning because the sun is in my eyes and the birds are chirping, and what constructive activity can an all-American young man get involved in between the hours of 5 and 7 a.m.

+++

I think the real key is that Michigan is only one of two states in the nation that hasn't adopted a uniform time system and there is no reason for our state to be different.

It is just adding to national confusion.

It is too bad the election was in November when the voters really didn't care about summer time. It would be nice if the legislature would give us another opportunity to vote on the matter by placing a new referendum on the ballot next year.

...'On the Boardwalk'

By John Reddy

There I was. On the Boardwalk in Atlantic City. Like most people at conventions, I checked into the hotel, pinned on my name card and set out to see what I could see.

Wandering the Boardwalk was surprisingly relaxing. No deadlines. Nobody to listen to. No noisy, gaseous intersections to bet your life in crossing.

The sun warmed one side of the face. The other side was cooled by a soft Atlantic breeze. Perfumes, sun-tan lotions and searing hotdogs competed with the senses.

+ + +

Swarming out of the city's Convention Hall were many people carrying brief cases and wearing tags that said they were attending the National Library Association Convention. So it was that when one black-haired woman came smiling towards me, I could tell she was a librarian even before I could read her name tag.

"Will you take my picture?" she said with a smile and a wave of the hand that gripped a small camera.

"Yes," I said, taking the camera. "What do you want me to do?"

+ + +

"I'll stand over there by the railing," she said, smiling and removing her glasses with an accompanying jerk of the head that tossed a curl back into place.

As I looked through the viewfinder of the inexpensive camer, the lens of which was ringed with dust and lint, I could see her compose several smiles in search of the one she liked best.

When it was done, she put her glasses back on, took the camera from me and squinted at the printing on my name tag.

"Oh, Michigan," she smiled. With a twist of her camera-carrying hand, she flashed an even wider smile and exclaimed: "Minnesota here."

+ + +

I groped. "That's nice," I said. "It's probably nice and cool there."

"Yes," she said.

"Bye, now," I interjected.

And as I walked away I no longer was relaxed. All the stories of lonely people I ever had heard began to haunt me.

But what an interesting introduction. Looking through the viewfinder I had waited for her most glamorous moment, a professional courtesy any photographer would allow.

As a consequence, I have the best possible remembrance any librarian from Minnesota could expect-her most perfect moments in front of a lens.

If it Fitz

He forgot to wet his whistle

If he wakes up in time, Jim Fitzgerald should be back next week. In the meantime, here's a repeat from March 14, 1966.

For me, life began at the age of 5 as I was walking home from Jefferson School with some other kid's galosh on one foot.

That is my earliest memory. All which occurred before that day is a blank. And there are countless gaps in the years since then - I can't remember what happened last Saturday night - but I've never forgotten the reckless abandon with which I got mud on that strange galosh. I hopped through every puddle.

This memory was revived last week by a sad picture in the Port Huron Times Herald. It portrayed the dying gasp of Jefferson School. They have torn it down. Zounds. I must quit reading that paper before I run out of nostalgia. That town, as I remember it, is crumbling in the face of dratted progress.

Gone is the marvelous pavilion in Pine Grove Park where a kid could find a zillion hiding places...and buy huge Holloway suckers that picked up more lint than a vacuum cleaner...and prance grandly while the Kiwanis band played Sousa spine-tinglers.

Gone is my church for which I have already conducted memorial services. I delivered mail in Port Huron and, so help me, they have leveled my entire route. The same fate flattened most of my newspaper route. Urban Renewal, that gigantic bruiser of boyhood memories, has replaced dozens of worn but warm homes with a few cold office buildings. I wonder where all the people went, and if they are getting their mail and papers alright.

Now they've done away with Jefferson, my first school, and I will soon run out of places to drive by and point at and bore my kids talking about. Some of the poolrooms are still there but they look like dime stores; they even smell good, for gosh sakes, and I don't like them anymore. I can't find a bartender who knows me, or knows anyone I knew, not even the most famous lushes. And when I tell them, ha ha, I paid for this bar, they just shrug and uncap a beer for some Boy Scout.

I attended Jefferson for only one year, kindergarten. Two things, besides the wrong galosh, I remember most. One is what I had to wear. Short pants and long, lumpy stockings held up by a garter belt. Remember? If my 7-year-old son reads that his Dad used to wear a garter belt he will fall down laughing and say I am kidding. But I can close my eyes and see again my long underwear bulking out between the tops of my stockings and the bottom of my pants.

The other thing I can remember most is our kindergarten band. I played the water whistle in it. Is there such a thing as a water whistle today? I don't think so. My whistle was shaped like a bird and you filled it with water and then blew through the tail and a shrill, gurgly noise came out the beak. I have always thought that Lawrence Welk must have played a water whistle in school.

Our band had a recital for parents, of course. My dad attended and complained for years after. He swore that I blew and blew but no noise came out. He was right. I was nervous that day and I forgot to put water in the whistle. When you are 5 years old, this is a terrible thing. But it makes a lovely memory.

When you write a column like this you can write about yesterday, today or tomorrow. When I write about today I am usually angry about something. For tomorrow I am hopeful, but leery.

Yesterdays are the best. The memories make me smile, and my eyes get damp. And almost always I go back to that first day, hopping through the puddles, and I wish I could remember if that other kid ever got his galosh back.

ON THE 'FLIP' SIDE

Depot Beach is calmer this week.....rules are better observed and special privileges are not being extended to certain persons.

We can thank Deano Davenport for swift action once he was made aware of the situation.

Deano told us that he solicits complaints from beach-goers concerning misconduct. He promises corrective measures.

And, we believe him. Recently it was our poor fortune to observe a man, who felt he was above the law, used Depot Beach as a boat launching facility, paddling a canoe around swimmers in the roped area; standing on the shore and kicking a ball among unsuspecting swimmers (he was not the only one guilty of this); and on at least one occasion, bringing his dog to the beach and allowing him to roam among visitors.

What bothered us most was he was a grown man, said to be a solid citizen. Yet, he ignored regulations which were established for the safety and control of all who use our beaches. He was well aware of the rules, as he was responsible for enforcing them a couple of years ago when he served in the capacity of lifeguard.

There are always those who feel that laws are made for everyone but them.

However, Davenport quickly assessed the situation and corrected it less than a day after he received the information. Quick and positive action like this keeps our beaches among the safest anywhere. We tip our hat to Deano.

This issue of the Courier contains a special section on the "move in" of the First State Bank.

Few companies have the opportunity to pick up their belongings and trot a couple of blocks to brand, spanking new quarters.

Sure wish Jerry Redeker and friends needed some help carting that "long green" to State Street....we'd be first in line to volunteer our services.

+++

Venetian Festival weekend is upon us, and we hope the event has received the proper planning and all will develop without a hitch.

We'll know this weekend.

+++

Long-time residents of our city tell us that they have never seen the harbor as busy as it is this summer. More and more boaters are discovering the pleasures of Charlevoix.

+++

Sea Scouts from Green Bay Wisconsin, spent a day in Charlevoix last week. They included the area on a ten day cruise through the Great Lakes. One of their leaders spent much of time exploring the new ship-wreck contents at the Weathervane.

ONE MAN'S PHILOSOPHY

"Rain or shine, some people go about their jobs the same way every day of the week...with never a single new idea to contribute to their company . . . then they sometimes wonder why younger, less talented' men (or so they seem to think) go sailing past them into positions higher up the excutive ladder. The reason may well have been that the 'less-talented' men had a few suggestions now and then that helped cut costs, increase profits, improve efficiency, facilitate distribution, or otherwise enable the company to enlarge its scope of operation."

—J.C. Penny

Out of the past

Two years ago

--Bruce Newman was appointed manager of the State Liquor Store in Charlevoix. He was assistant manager of the State Retail Liquor outlet in Pontiac for 12 years, moving to Newberry in May, 1966, as manager.

--Venetian Festival crowds jammed Charlevoix. There were beauty contestants, bar-b-cues, pole climbers, and water-ball fights. A scene of sun, fund and frolics was found that week.

--Rex Milligan, superintendent of schools, said he would answer any question in regard to the election August 7 on a 6.5 mills, for school operations. The Charlevoix Courier conducted a telephone survey to get opinions from the public.

--The class of 1957 held their tenth reunion in Charlevoix. Some of those who attended were Mrs. Vane Smith, Don Balch, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Way, Tom Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Jerrolle Drenth, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Davis.

Five years ago

--Gov. and Mrs. George Romney visited Charlevoix during the Venetian Festival, and crowned the queen, Marcee Wallace.

--Dr. Walter F. Hoffman, first ward alderman, suggested a strong program to create a world-wide image for Charlevoix. It was a program to print such slogans as "Charlevoix the Beautiful" on each piece of mail leaving Charlevoix. This suggestion by Dr. Hoffman to the Council would promote the city each time a letter was mailed.

--Charlevoix had successful angling of all sizes and descriptions that summer. Tom Berman and Bernie Ward Jr. had caught some small mouth bass ranging up to four pounds in size. They caught their lunker bass near the railroad bridge in the channel.

Ten years ago

--Mrs. Edward Lemcke, chairman of the Art Fair, met with Mrs. Jake Townsend, and Tom Symons, and Dr. William Ratigan to plan the Water Front Art Show. Their meeting in East Park resulted in the creation of an art exhibit, first of its kind in this area.

--Charlevoix City Band presented its first concert on the new stage. C. A. Odmark led the band concert in East Park with such numbers as Bombast, Desert Song, Down South, and partiotically, The National Anthem.

--Sixty-one Charlevoix County farmers received federal assistance last year for their participation in the agriculture conservation program.

--A revised edition of "Fishing in Michigan" prepared co-operatively by the Michigan Tourist Council and the Michigan Conservation Department, was released. A 32-page guide outlined the year round fishing opportunities in this vacation state.

Seminar planned

"Two Encounters: With Socrates, With Jesus", "The Examined Life", "Dogmatic Theology - What Man, What World and What God Are We Talking About?" --these are a few of the topics to be introduced by nationally known resource leaders and discussed by clergymen and laymen in "talk-back" sessions at northern Michigan's third annual Inter-Faith Seminar on Religion and Contemporary Man here this summer.

The Seminar, which is to be held August 5 to 7 on the Northwestern Michigan College campus, is designed to assist the clergy and lay leaders to better understand and deal with dilemmas facing man in this age of great revolutionary change. The theme this year is, "Contemporary Theology and Its Relevance to Modern Man".

The three resource speakers will be Dr. John F. A. Taylor, Professor of Philosophy at Michigan State University; Dr. Joseph Sittler, Professor of Systematic Theology, The Divinity School, The University of Chicago, and Father Robert J. O'Connell, S. J., Associate Professor of Philosophy at Fordham University. Beginning Tuesday morning, August 5, and ending Thursday afternoon, August 7, the speakers are to address the Seminar on challenging subjects, after each of which discussions and "talk-backs" are scheduled.

Reservations thus far are about equal between Protestants and Catholics. The Michigan State University Continuing Education Center in Traverse City, the Ecumenical Commission of the Catholic Diocese of Grand Rapids and the Grand Traverse Area Council of Churches are sponsors.

Laymen are invited to attend and the clergy are being urged to encourage them to attend. Seminar sessions will be open only to those who are registered, but evening sessions will be open to the public. Speakers and their topics at evening sessions will be: Tuesday, Professor O'Connell, "Christian and Secular: The Augustinian Burden of the Tradition", and Wednesday, Dr. Sittler, "Ethical Theology - Space, Time, America and George Wallace".

"IT'S A BLAST!"

"When this 34 22-34 chick missed a putt only this long on our miniature, I thought she'd knock me off the wall. But then she parred in, beat her date by 2 strokes, downed a chili dog and split for elsewhere. If you know where she's cruising, tell her to come back to Petoskey Pines. She won a free game." Venetian Festival Time

CHARLEVOIX - July 26 and 27 may represent the last weekend in the month to people elsewhere, but to those in northern Michigan it means Venetian Festival time in Charlevoix.

Highlights of the annual event will, as always, be the Venetian Boat parade Sunday night. . . a parade that features decorated boats circling the waters of Round Lake under a colorful display of fireworks.

But this is the climax of the midsummer event which will open Friday evening with the Venetian Queen pageant in East Park. Beginning at 7:30 p.m. The candidates will appear first in bathing suits and then in formal attire before a trio of judges. After the judges have made their decision, the 1969 Venetian Queen will be crowned according to David Juilleret, chairman of the Queen's committee.

Saturday's festivities will open at 2 p.m. with the Street parade from south State-st. where the parade will form north to Park-ave. with spectators lining the shaded street the length of the parade route.

The scene will shift to East Park where the gymnasts from the National Summer Palaestrum at Williamsburg will return for the first time in several years to present a show at 4 p.m.

While East Park takes on a festival air with the many booths at the street level Saturday evening, the crowd will later move to the nearby Oleson Parking lot where the Western Square Dance Club, The Pairs and Squares, present a western square dance at 8 p.m. There will also be music for other dancing.

The Doll, Pet and Dress-up parade, a popular event for the youngsters and adults alike, will begin at 2 p.m. Sunday from the Park Stage in East Park.

Following this at 4:30 p.m. will be two of the 'fun' events of the festival, the Water Ball Fight between two means of volunteer firemen followed by the greased pole climb sponsored by the Boy Scouts. These two events will also be held in East Park.

The Sunday evening activities will be centered in East Park where the Venetian Boat parade and fireworks will climax the busy weekend as darkness falls.

The festival is sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Stone babies are little dolls made from rocks which are part of the arts and crafts classes at North Arm Resort. Sharon Stoffel has become intrigued with this artistic media.

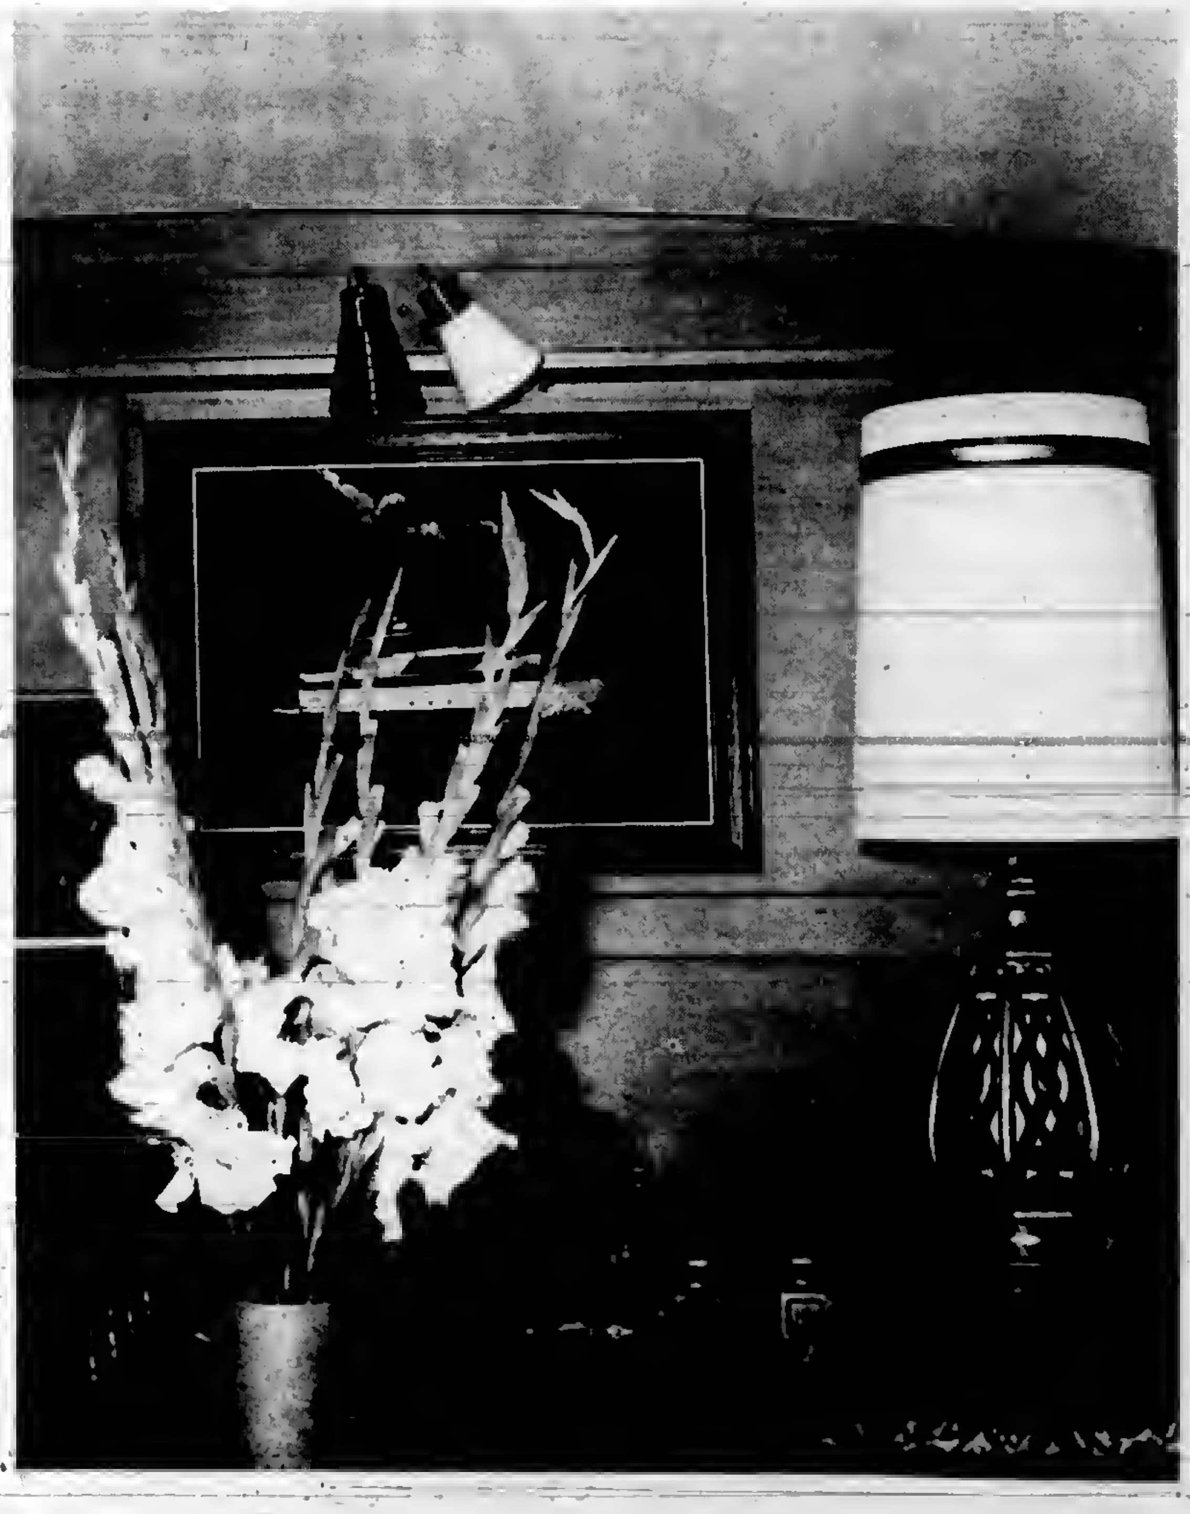
Above is a shot of the bridge of the "Sun Aqua", a 55 foot craft which is on a northward cruise from Ephraim, Wisconsin. The journey is to be 600 miles round trip with return to Ephraim expected by Labor Day. The boat's equipment includes radar, radio direction finder and a depth indication. The interior, shown below boasts a Honolulu painting on velvet by Bill Erwin who is noted for such work. The interior is a beautiful masterpiece done in gold and green. The owner is Robert Sieving.



Mrs. Ken Dorch and her daughter Nancy are "roughing it" at the docks in Charlevoix as they do the cooking outside. Mrs. Dorch, Mr. Dorch and their son and daughter are vacationing on their boat the "Hi Hopes" from Mt. Prospect, Ill.

OUTDOORS COOKING EASY FOR BOATERS

There's something about boating that stimulates an appetite like nothing else. To insure happy memories of your outing on the water, it's important to give plenty of planning time to keep your hungry crew well fed.

If it's just a day-long trip, you can probably rely on a homemade picnic lunch. Plan a longer cruise, though, and you'd be wise to consider hot, well-balanced meals.

If your boat is equipped with a stove, you've probably already learned what food to stock and how to cook it. For the novice nautical chef, however, the Johnson Motors News Bureau has compiled a list of some basic boat cooking gear.

A portable stove should be stowed onboard if you don't want to cook over a shoreside campfire. Choose one with two burners, large enough to handle a big skillet and a saucepan at the same time. Use your everyday pots and pans from home.

A portable, top-loading ice chest is also necessary these days. So are those tight-sealed plastic food containers (which, incidentally, offer other storage benefits once the food is gone).

To keep cool liquids cool and hot liquids hot, use insulated jugs and thermos bottles as required.

Paper plates and cups and plastic tableware are worth their light weight in storage ease. There're no automatic dishwashers in the outdoors!

And don't forget the rest of the accessories — things like salt and pepper in moisture-resistant containers, matches wrapped in a waterproof covering, lots of paper napkins.

Preparing a menu beforehand will reward itself later. Think in terms of big, hot breakfasts; quick, easy-to-fix lunches; and hot, ample dinners.

A portable cooler probably won't hold everything you want to take along, so scout the supermarket for easily-stored canned and boxed foods. Be sure to hold perishable foods to a minimum.

And don't forget any special dietary foods that may be required.

Even the most experienced boat chef occasionally will leave something important behind. It happens to everyone, so don't worry.

Unless you're cruising the remotest of waters, you'll probably come across a store along the way where you can replenish your supplies.

But just in case — don't forget the can-opener!

Interlochen Coming Events

INTERLOCHEN -- The National Music Camp will host the United States Military Academy String Quartet for two performances on Wednesday and Friday, July 23 and 25.

The ensemble will be at Interlochen for an entire week as part of the University Division's program this season. In addition to their two concerts, the quartet also will hold open rehearsals Tuesday and Thursday and will visit camp classes. The Friday concert will be presented in conjunction with a lecture on contemporary music.

The ensemble will play five modern works, quartets by Leslie Bassett and Charles Ives in its concert in Room C 7 A at 8 P.M. Wednesday and quartets by Jacob Druckman, Paul Cooper and Bela Bartok in the rotunda of the Dow Science building at 6:45 Friday. The Bassett, Druckman and Cooper works have been composed in the '60s.

The U.S.M.A. String Quartet is made up of Academy band members, which in turn is comprised of regular army men assigned to West Point to provide music for Academy functions and ceremonies. Mark Sokol, first violinist, formerly was concertmaster of the University of Washington Orchestra; Thomas LeVeck, second violin, holds a music degree from the University of Michigan, where he studied with Gilbert Ross and Angel Reyes -- the latter a member of the Interlochen faculty; Don Ehrlich, violist, who holds degrees from Oberlin and the Manhattan School of Music, and David Gibson, cello, holder of a bachelor's degree from the Juilliard School of Music.

Dresser	450.00

It's that informal elegance you find in antiques crafted in the French provinces...charming and intimate. Now Thomasville re-creates the style with great authenticity of design detail. Floral garlands are carved with crispness and finesse. Spindles, a favorite motif of craftsmen in Brittany, are beautifully turned. Doors and table tops have parquet inlays. Edges are worn and highlighted. All carvings are executed in solid oak, except for the sunburst overlay which is simulated wood. Premium wormy oak veneers and oak solids are finished in Vintage, mellow with a satiny patina. Certain pieces come in fashionable accent colors: Calais White; Faded Yellow; Brittany Blue. Take a tour of Chateau Provence. Here, today!

FIRST STATE BANK OF CHARLEVOIX MOVES TO ONE-ELEVEN STATE STREET

New building shows warmth

First State Bank of Charlevoix will stage a "Move In" this Saturday, as their new building at 111 State Street becomes occupied.

The new building, tastefully designed and furnished, will provide the North with the most modern, up-to-date banking facility possible. Added customer services and courtesies will be available in the new building, making banking a pleasant, relaxing experience.

The Board of Directors and Officers of the Bank have invited all area residents to visit the new facility at their earliest convenience.

Greeting visitors in the lobby will be the First State receptionist. Breaking with tradition, she will greet customers not from behind a railing, but from an open desk near the entrance.

From this first noticeable "difference." to a red carpeted drinking fountain, First State Bank will reflect an atmosphere of warmth, cordiality and relaxed, but complete, service for its customers.

Completely air conditioned

When you enter the new bank building during the summer months you'll be "calm, cool and collected" with the automatically controlled air conditioning. Summer or winter, First State has installed equipment to keep visitors comfortable.

Deluxe carpeting

Carrying through the Bank's history of "red carpet" service, the interior of the new structure is completely carpeted in plush red.

This theme doesn't stop with the floor, either. The carpeting is found on dividers, check writing stand, swinging doors to various departments, the drinking fountain and even throughout the vault.

Customer parking

Parking problems experienced on Bridge Street were not overlooked by Bank officials. They have provided 20 parking spaces for customers at the side and rear of the State Street address.

Bank President Jerry Redeker stated that ample customer parking was a "must" when plans were being drawn. He also noted that plans have been made for future expansion of the parking area when it becomes necessary.

No waiting for checks

Personalized checks have become commonplace in the past decade, with name, address and account number imprinted on each check. Until recently, there was a delay to customers as the checks were sent to a printer for the work.

First State announced last week that the delay had ended. The Bank has installed a check printer, and personalized checks will be created for customers while they wait. . . .a matter of minutes for a job which used to take about two weeks.

Community room

The general public hasn't been forgotten by First State building planners. At the basement level, the Bank has provided a large Community Room, intended to allow organizations and groups to hold meetings, day or night. Named the "111 State Room," the meeting place will be offered free of charge.

In addition, complete and full-sized kitchen facilities have been included adjacent to the room, which can accommadate 125 persons at once.

Those interested in utilizing the room should contact bank officials.

Courtesy corner

For customers who desire the use of an adding machine or typewriter, the new building will house a Customer Courtesy Corner where these machines will be available.

This is thought to be a banking first in the area.

All new furniture

The new building has been furnished with a modern, comfortable decor. Steel Case furniture was chosen, and marks the first major Steel Case installation in Northern Michigan.

Certain to be one of the highlights of a visit to the bank is their large fireplace.

The gas burning fireplace will hold four "golden oak" logs. Many visitors may find themselves stopping at First State even when they do not have banking business to sit by the fire and relax.

Many other features

To list all the new features of First State Bank would be impossible in one story. Just as there are many new customer services in the new building, much of the tradition, and all the complete banking services of the past, will continue.

Some of these include:

Private offices for conferences.

The latest in protective equipment, including an alarm system connected with the local police department.

Drive-up banking window which allows customers to complete their transactions without leaving their car.

Overall design

Design of the new building has been carried out in the modern mode, representative of the modern, up-to-date approach to banking at First State.

The interior provides an easy, relaxed, cordial atmosphere between customer and banker.

Keeping tradition alive, a portion of the sidewalk surrounding the new building will be red, just as it was on Bridge Street.

And, for those who wish to continue banking at the Bridge Street address, a walk-up window will be maintained.

Charlevoix's old Library of 1909 has been remembered in the new building, too. The cornerstone from that structure has been placed at 111 State Street.

First State Bank's "Move In" opens a new banking era in the North. From the old library cornerstone to plush modern appointments in the new structure, First State has combined progress with tradition to provide the area continued achievement.

President Jerrald Redeker

Jerrald H. Redeker was elected President of the First State Bank of Charlevoix in June. He filled a position vacated by the retirement of Archie L. Livingston.

Redeker, a native of Waupun, Wisconsin, is a graduate of Hope College, Holland, Michigan, where he majored in Business Administration. In addition, he holds a graduate certificate from the American Institute of Banking.

He joined Michigan Bell Telephone Company after his graduation from Hope College, working in the traffic department until 1960, when he left to begin his banking career with Old Kent Bank & Trust Company, Grand Rapids. During 1958-1959, Redeker served in the U.S. Army Medical Corps., spending 17 months of this two year period in Germany.

Beginning as a teller with Old Kent, he was promoted to assistant branch manager in 1962, and in 1964 at the age of 29, became the youngest branch manager in Old Kent Bank's history.

In May 1965, he joined Metropolitan National Bank of Farmington, as vice president, where he remained until November 1, 1967, when he joined the First State Bank of Charlevoix, then known as The Charlevoix State Savings Bank.

Ten months later he was promoted to Executive Vice President and became chief administrative officer of the bank. His advancement to President was announced June 13, 1969. at a meeting of the Board of Directors.

Redeker is a board member of the Chalevoix Public Schools, vice president and elder of the Consistory of Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix, charter board member of Petoskey Area Youth for Christ and a director of the Charlevoix Lions Club.

He served as chairman of the commercial gifts division of the Charlevoix United Fund Drive last year.

Redeker and his wife, Elsie, and their three children, Lisa, Joel and Cara reside at 712 E. Dixon Avenue, Charlevoix.

Taking a look at the new building

The First State Bank of Charlevoix first announced plans for the new $200,000 bank building on May 13, 1968.

The new bank, located on the northwest corner of State and Clinton streets, was designed by Architect Jack Begrow.

The new bank has many significant features. One is the community room, located in the lower level of the new main office of the bank. This room will be available to all interested groups in the Charlevoix area.

The new bank, which is carpeted throughout, has private loan offices in addition to the familiar loan platforms, board room, bookkeeping, and drive-up window. A heated red sidewalk under the north canopy will continue to carry on the tradition of warmth and cordiality well known to customers of the First State Bank.

A raised hearth fireplace which will burn constantly, and a receptionist located right in the lobby of the new bank will add to the friendly atmosphere which has become a trademark of the First State Bank.

Reaches milestone

The First State Bank of Charlevoix recently reached a significant milestone in the bank's 64-year history. For the first time in history the bank passed the five million dollar mark.

When the announcement was made, Jerrald H. Redeker, then executive vice-president, stated that this achievement was believed impossible just 16 months ago, when the total footings of the bank were only $3.4 million.

To thank the community for their confidence and support, First State Bank gave away a beautiful AM-FM transistor radio to the lucky depositor representing the $5,000,000 person, Al Smith of Charlevoix.

First State 'firsts'

The First State Bank of Charlevoix takes credit for a number of "firsts", which prompted the change of name from The Charlevoix State Savings Bank on November 6, 1968.

The First State Bank was the first bank in the State of Michigan to offer $3.50 per hundred per year financing of consumer goods. Although this rate has been changed due to increased costs of money, First State still is a leader in the state with its $4.50 rate to customers of the bank.

Charlevoix County's first drive-up window was opened by Mayor William Fochtman in January, 1968. First State led northern Michigan banks in offering 5 percent 90-day time certificates in handy passbook form, and First State is one of the few banks in the entire state with no service charges on checking accounts, personal or business, regardless of number of checks written, or balances maintained.

Another first which some customers thoroughly enjoy is the longer banking hours. The drive-up window is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday thru Thursday, and from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Friday.

Bank's name

The Charlevoix State Savings Bank became the First State Bank last November after The Michigan Banking Commission approved changing the 63-year-old bank's name.

The name change was sought by the bank, and approved by the commission, due to confusion caused by the similarity of its name to the Charlevoix County State Bank.

Majority control of the bank was purchased a year ago by a group of Detroit area bankers.

During 1968, the bank's assets increased from $3.4 million to $4.2 million. The amount of unearned interest (interest due on maturity of outstanding loans) increased from $13,000 to $114,000.

The book value behind each share of stock increased from $285,000 to $304,000 since November, 1967.

The amount of loans increased from $1,249,000 to $2,570,000. Net earnings increased from $18,000 in 1967 to about $35,000 in 1968.

Congratulations

We would like to express our congratulations to First State Bank of Charlevoix for the fine addition it has made to Charlevoix the Beautiful through the construction of its new Bank Building.

Festival sloshes on despite bad weather

Rain and winds plauged Charlavoix's Venetian Festival Friday and Sunday, but inbetween, the activities were plentiful.

A crowd estimated at 5,000 lined the streets for the parade Saturday afternoon, as approximately 30 entries marched and rode over the long route, led by the new Venetian queen, Barbara Smith and her court, Jeanne Smith, Beth Baldwin, Sherry Austin, Rae Marie Szudzik, Mary Schuch, Debbie McDowell and Geri Santek.

Tom Acton, parade chairman, said this year's street parade was the largest ever held.

WINNERS

Winning entries included: Civic division, Ellsworth float and Charlevoix Band; second, Central Lake float, Charlevoix float; third, Boyne City float, Bellaire float; fourth, East Jordan and Gaylord queens.

Miscellaneous first prize went to the Fire House Five of Petoskey. Second place was awarded to Smiths of Boyne City and Dr. Walter Hoffman of Charlevoix; third, Ed Mann of Charlevoix, and fourth, Josh Barnes and Cas Russell, both of Charlevoix.

Marching unit awards went to the Charlevettes and Sharon's Silver Starlettes of Boyne City.

In the industrial division, first prizes went to Art Dry Cleaners and Stub Swanson; second to Michigan Consolidated Gas Company; third to Harbor Hardware and fourth to Erber Auto.

Ribbons in the horse division went to Kay Louis, Susie Helms, Randy Smith, Ronnie Sharrel, Laura Custer, Susan Driggett, Betsie Shaw, Bill Habel, Marsha Whitley, Fay Whitley, Wayne Pardce and Sherry Burdick.

QUEEN

In capturing the Venetian Queen title Friday night, Barbara Smith succeeded Mary Beth Goodenough. The contest was moved from East Park to the high school early Friday evening when a downpour showed no signs of letting up.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smith, she will begin her freshmen year at Western Michigan University later this year.

An outdoorswoman, she enjoys skiing. She was an exchange student in Germany a year ago and would like to return to that country soma tima in the future.

RUNNER-UP

The runner-up title went to Jeanne Smith, who was also named Miss Congeniality. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Smith, she will be a senior at Charlevoix High School this coming term. She has been a member of the student council for three years and will edit the school newspaper next year.

The girls competed in swim suits, street clothes and formals. David Jullieret, chairman of the queen committee, served as master of ceremonies.

Saturday's activities included an exhibition by the National Summer Palaestrum group of Williamsburg, Michigan. The gymnasts demonstrated techniques on the trampoline, side horse, bars and beam.

Sunday's scheduled boat parade fell victim to the rains, but the fireworks display was held.

Venetian events which were held were well attended.

Youngsters felt the effects of the rain directly, too, as the annual pet, doll and dress-up parade, set for Sunday afternoon, was cancelled due to bad weather.

THE CHAIN O' LAKES

Bellaire entry in Street Parade won a prize for decorative appearance. Approximately 30 entries paraded before an estimated 5,000.

Hospital adds 3 to staff

Rollie M. Dudik, administrator of Charlevoix Hospital, Board of Directors have approved the appointment of three new physicians to the hospital's growing medical staff.

They are Dr. R.W. Mansfield, D.O., of Boyne City, active staff; and Dr. J. A. Kiley, M.D., of Petoskey, courtesy staff.

Dudik stated that the Charlevoix Hospital facilities are more than adequate to provide services to the areas of population these physicians represent, as well as being capable of expanding even further.

Earlier this month, Dr. John H. Lignell was named Chief of the Medical Staff of the hospital.

Dr. Lignell, a graduate of University of Michigan College of Medicine, has been practicing medicine in Charlevoix for the past six years and has previously held several offices on the medical staff of the hospital.

He is also a member of the board of directors of the Charlevoix Lions Club and a member of the Charlevoix Congregational Church.

He, his wife and their four children live at 423 Michigan Avenue, Charlevoix.

School Board firms plans for election

by Jeanne Mutz

A special meeting of the School Board was held Monday evening in the high school.

The first order of business of the evening was to set the proper time for meetings during the year. Board members agreed to continue meeting on the second and fourth Monday of the month as has been done in the past.

The Board also discussed public relations relative to the August 11 election on operational millage. Among ways to inform the public about the proposed millage election were a public meeting and canvassing the community. The Board felt that canvassing the area would be a very good way to inform the people. High school students and recent high school graduates are to be contacted as to this idea.

Next on the agenda was a discussion of the middle school gym floor. Milligan presented a $1,000 estimate for refinishing the middle school gym floor.

Board president Jack Rader felt that since the gym was being used the Board should go ahead and take further estimates as to the cost of the job.

If the gym floor is repaired, physical education classes would be held if the gym for the middle school grades. The gym would remain in use for the roller skating program. A high school student attending the meeting inquired about whether repairs on the gym floor would withstand the roller skates. Milligan said that the sealer is a penetrating sealer and is supposed to hold up to the roller skates. Four coats would be applied now and one at Christmas. Board member Burr Blanchard brought up the fact that repairs on the gym floor could only be done if the millage passed.

Reports on the new school revealed that the building is progressing very well. Milligan brought up a question about the landscaping in back of the new school. A decision on this will come after Board members have had a chance to see the plans.

A member of the community asked the Board about the low drop in the drive by the street which fills with water after every rain. Board members agreed to check into the matter.

The next item on the agenda was a discussion on the starting date for school. Milligan told the Board that he would have to negotiate with tha teachers as to the starting date and the calendar school year. Dale Boss suggested that the starting date for school be the Monday after Labor Day, "with a good, long Christmas vacation, if possible."

The Board also discussed the possibility of having one week spring vacation. Milligan said he saw no problem in this as the school year could work into June.

Vane Smith reported on Title 1. He said the program has been cut back this year from $1,400 to $1,100. He suggested that the bulk of the funds be spent for summer school and library services. Some of the money is needed for counseling. Another suggestion regarded the establishment of a dental program whereby if a student had a dental problem he would be sent to the dentist. This would be a service to children who can't afford to go to the dentist, but have serious dental problems.

The remainder of the money would be used for a service fund so the librarians could work with the library aides. If there was any money left over it would be set aside into a services fund.

Board members decided to continue the program since Title I had allotted Charlevoix the $1,100 and it was available to us without any cost to the school.

The Board decided to drop the community program as co-sponsored by the Mott Foundation. The Foundation was to be notified of the decision.

Nathan Cummings loans Degas work to Fair

By Edith Gilbert

The following article, written by free-lance writer, Edith W. Gilbert, author of the popular book, All About Parties, published by Hearthside Press, is reprinted here with permission of the Detroit Free Press.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cummings have generously loaned one of their works of art each year for exhibit at the Charlevoix Waterfront Fair.

The date of the Fair this year is Saturday, August 9, and will be held as usual in East park, overlooking Round Lake.

The Cummings have chosen Edgar Degas' "Ballerina" from their collection of impressionist paintings. This original oil painting will be one of the special exhibits at the Waterfront Fair, the date co-incides with the Cummings 10th Anniversary.

Nathan Cummings rotates his art collection like Michigan farmers rotate their crops.

"I feel I'm working for the Railway Express Agency most of the time instead of the founder and Honorary Chairman of Consolidated Foods Corporation," sighs Art Christ, caretaker of the Cummings summer place, the Anchorage, in Charlevoix. A crate of Leger paintings just arrived from Connecticut College, (Mrs. Cummings' alma mater) where they've been displayed in the newly dedicated Joanne and Nathan Cummings Art Center. This fall they will be shipped on to various companies owned by Consolidated Foods Corporation. However, none of the paintings will go to the only Michigan based company, the Michigan Fruit Canners in Benton Harbor because they already have other originals on their walls.

Ten years ago, newly weds Nate and Joanne were invited to a Charlevoix cocktail party. Between hors d' ouevres they ducked out long enough to look over the late Judge Robert Marx estate, which included a log cabin, boats and dock, swimming pool and sauna on a wooded 80 acres on Lake Charlevoix. Before the Cummings returned to the party they had decided to buy!

Over the last ten years, the Anchorage, both inside and out, has become one of Michigan's show places. The original Neptune-size anchor on the front lawn is about the only thing that hasn't changed. The rustic log cabin has now taken on a provincial French character. Authentic antique furniture picked up on any one of the Cummings' numerous European trips blend to perfection with the ship's wheel chandeliers salvaged from the Great Lakes.

Walls are hung with paintings by famous artists such as Catalin, Jerome, Delacroix, Barnaby and Della Fresnye. Many of the Cummings sculpture pieces and paintings have been loaned from time to time for exhibit at the Charlevoix Waterfront Fair before moving on to major museums around the country. Massive bright yellow bouquets, freshly picked from the garden daily, fill the rooms and on cloudy days (or during the ski season) one may find a lively group chatting in front of the native stone fireplace.

On bright sunny days, guests head for the poolhouse for a game of ping-pong, gin or backgammon and here Valentin, the Spanish butler serves Sangria's in the afternoon.

An unwitting stranger might be taken aback during a stroll about the landscaped grounds to run into General Mark Clark shooting a round of skeet; or Detroit's sculptor Walter Midener eyeing the planted brook-trout in the stream; or ballerina Maria Tallchief being photographed beside one of Manzu's ballerinas; or Carl Haas from Interlochen Music Camp browsing through the art gallery; or the Max Fisher yacht tied up at the dock; or Senator and Mrs. Javatiz watching Joanne Cummings water ski.

And what's 72 year old boy-host Nate doing? Why he's on one of seven extension telephones either talking to the French Consul General, Jean Balliard about the forthcoming September exhibition the Cummings are sponsoring at the Musee Galliera in Paris for Antoine Poncet or maybe it's to the director of the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts where there will be an unveiling of a cummings gift of sculpture in late September. In between calls he's on the intercom advising Maria, the cook, that there will be five or six businessmen jetting in by chartered plane for a luncheon conference, "and be sure to tell Rube to pick plenty of Rucola for our salad and some fresh raspberries!"

Luncheons for corporate officers (Sara Lee, Monarch Foods and recently acquired Electrolux Co., among others) are deftly sprinkled between Joanne's Saturday poolside parties and their annual young people's bash, given for all their friends' children. Both Nate and Joanne have the enthusiasm for gracious entertaining that makes them an unbeatable team. Food is chosen with great care, menus are always imaginative and each platter is beautifully garnished. One of Joanne's favorite Anchorage dishes is Pot-au-Feu, which she frequently prepares herself, but she's not above serving prepared Sara Lee desserts to her guests occasionally.

One well-known artist who's scheduled to be a guest at the Anchorage this summer is Abbott Pattison, Chicago sculptor, who has been commissioned to do a portrait of Cummings. There are already numerous Pattison bronzes at the Anchorage and one called "The Sower" was donated several years ago to the Charlevoix Library.

Most visitors who leave the Anchorage by car (some leave by boat) wind along a narrow road through flickering poplars and dense pines, where one may be startled to meet a young fawn or a fat rabbit. But no-one leaves without the feeling that Nate Cummings is a very lucky man and the beautiful part of it all is that he knows it!

Charlevoix beacon dates to 1885

By Bernice Wexstaff

Today's aids to navigation are so familiar to sea dogs and landlubbers alike that all and sundry tend to take them for granted... However, the lights, markers and buoys were not always here to aid the storm tossed mariner: This safety service is actually a scant century old on northern waters of the Great Lakes.

It is known that Charlevoix had a light on the north pier channel as early as 1885. With its installation, it was found to be in conflict with a light in the tower room of the H.P. Parmalee cottage at 517 Belvedere, then called Breezy Point and Mr. Parmalee was ordered by irate sailors, who had come close to grounding their vessels because of the double light, to remove it.

The Charlevoix beacon was moved to the south side pier a decade before World War I...The date can only be approximated, but Mrs. Harry Gebeau testified that Wright Ripley, lighthouse keeper and a relative of the Gebeau family, lived in the house now occupied by Dr. Walter Hoffman's dental office and tended the light. (the house, built by pioneer Amos Fox was then known as Government House and had been purchased for the use of the lighthouse keeper.)

Those were the days before electricity powered automatic devices and it brightened the blackness of moonless nights in the North Country. On stormy nights it was said that lighthouse keeper Ripley often had to crawl on hands and knees clawing the wooden planking of the old pier with desperate fingers to fight the gale and save himself from the turbulent waters below.

During World War I the duties of lighthouse keeper was transfered to the Coast Guard then called locally "the life-saving station." However, with the advent of electricity to the Northland the task became less arduous.

During World War II days and new knowledge of electronics the light became automatic as did the signal...Now the old bell which had tolled so mournfully in fog was replaced by an electronic horn that so startled the populace that dozens of irate summer resorters filed complaints with the Coast Guard. But to no avail.. "Ferdinand", as the racuous horn is called today, continues to bellow mercilessly in storm and fog. However the citizenry have learned to live with "Ferdinand" and it is doubtful if much sleep is lost because of his harsh dirge.

Although progress can't be avoided it is good that the old lighthouse, esthetically sillhouetted against Lake Michigan's million-dollar sunsets, continues to survive as one of the old-time memories of both old and new pioneers.

Interest ceiling remains at 7%

The bill to increase the interest ceiling which may be charged on conventional home mortgages was defeated in the House of Representatives last week Rep. Robert W. Davis reports the bill has been one of the most hotly contested measures of the 1969 legislative session. The vote was 44 in favor and 58 opposed, with 56 affirmative votes needed for passage.

The House version would have raised the maximum allowable interest rate on mortgages from 7 to 8.5 percent. As passed earlier in the Senate, the bill would have upped the ceiling to 9 percent.

Had the bill been passed, said Rep. Davis, the conventional mortgage interest rate would not have automatically gone up to 8.5 percent. It would have allowed financial institutions to charge any rate of interest up to 8.5 percent. However, financial experts have said, in view of today's tight money market and rising interest in other areas, the rate probably would have jumped to the maximum in most cases.

According to Davis, there was a division of opinion on the bill within both political parties, and this was reflected in the final vote on the bill. Labor unions had strongly opposed the bill initially. It was pointed out, however, that failure to pass the bill might cause a downturn in housing construction, thereby putting union construction workers out of jobs. By the time the vote came, AFL-CIO opposition was very strong but some unions, especially in the building trades, were openly supporting it.

Most of those opposing the bill seemed to do so because of the increasing burden on citizens of higher taxes and higher prices. They argued that people are already hard pressed financially, and that the Legislature should not add to this general burden.

Proponents of the bill contended that if a person wants to buy a house, paying a higher interest rate is better than not being able to get mortgage money at all. They said that sources for mortgage money would dry up as these funds found their way into more profitable investments.

After defeat of the bill, it was revived and tabled, which makes it eligible for possible future action. It has also been suggested that supporters of the higher interest ceiling might move to attach the 8.5 percent rate to some other bill as an amendment. For the moment, however, the issue is dead and whatever conventional mortgage money is available from Michigan sources will continue to be governed by the 7 percent usury limit.

Summertime means a lot of different things, to different people. For instance, to a store manager, it means an increase of customers and business; to a golfer, it would mean sunnier days and brighter games, to a business executive it means time off for an over-due vacation.

But to a housewife it may mean "trouble." It's the old game of cat and mouse; the latter in reference to the young, full-of-energy children, and the first being the tired-out work-to-do Mom.

Of course, summer is the time for sun 'n fun, and that brings extra hours of daylight. Have you ever wished the sun would set at noon? Well, to some people, these extra hours of daylight bring extra night time work.

Your children may have friends over, and they may decide to help you re-arrange your home, yard and any other moveable object. After they have exhibited their endless supply of mischief, mom comes around to un-do their doings.

In my case, I inherited an "instant family" for the summer. Between Ethel, my mother-in-law, and myself, we shared the title of "summertime foster mom" to three boys, and one girl. We added these extras to our original ranks, and on weekends, we claimed additional pop-in-for-awhile visitors. We can rightfully claim our residences as a "miniature resort area."

Between boating, riding, swimming and eating, we have enjoyed such adventures as strawberry picking, snake-killing, and fish cleaning. It's amazing how much effort it takes to keep up with four healthy, ambitious youngsters. After a day of outing with them, it takes a couple of hours to recooperate. But not them; they are ready to go after they have downed a bottle of pop, or just a "slug" of water.

I've watched local youngsters riding their bikes through town or walking over the bridge. They seem to possess an extra bounce that no one can imitate.

Although my instant family is only a temporary situation, it sure will seem funny and awfully "quiet" when they return to their rightful homes. I've learned many things from their visit here with us. First off, children are very aware of what's happening. Their perception is quick and deep. You can't fool them. If you even try, you're the one who is made the fool!

And second, summer is truely a childrens' time of year. They seem to sense it and realize that it's the time to enjoy everything and as much as they possibly can. They don't hesitate to mix work with play. It makes for a well rounded vacation (and a few extra dollars.) They aren't afraid to try something new or different, for they have already discovered that it is the only way to learn.

But above all, they try to please! Michael and I have enjoyed having these kids with us this summer and I think that each mother, deep inside, realizes that their own children won't be young forever. It's their time to live a little. The mess they make or their occasional outbursts of sudden screeches, only let you know that they are around. Without them it could be very lonely. They serve as a comfort and as little teachers in their own small way.

So mom, take head; enjoy your summer and children now. It won't be the first mess you've had to clean up, but someday there will be a last!

Calm, cool and collected, summer resident "Paul" hams it up for the Courier camera. His friend David, bewildered by Paul's pose, looks on quizically.

Happy Reminiscing

I think that the only reason why babies grow up to be parents is because parents have short memories. If they didn't they'd kill their dear offspring long before they reached adulthood.

An old friend of mine blew into town last week and we started some happy reminiscing.

"Do you remember," she asked, "the time when you couldn't get a baby sitter for my twenty-first birthday party and so you had to wheel Cathy in the buggy to the Pretzel-Bell?"

"Or the time when you and your husband planned that nice party in the backyard and Janet poured a bucket of sand into the hi-fi speakers?"

"Do you remember that month when Lee had to be rushed to the hospital twice to have his stomach pumped?"

Fortunately I had forgotten.

"Do you remember that time when you called the police because Janet was lost, and then you found her sleeping under the couch in the den?"

"Do you remember how funny Janet looked after she got gum stuck in her hair and you had to give her that bubble gum haircut?"

"Do you remember the time that Jack brought home the two kittens as a surprise, and the children cuddled them so much that they had to escape by climbing on the rafters in the basement? To get them to eat you used to have to sit in the dark basement for 15 minutes before they would come down."

Fortunately I'd simply forgotten all of those things, but when Yvonne reminded me of them it made me think of a few others that hadn't crossed my memory in years. Why I had a list of gripes a page long. The more that I thought about it the more angry I got.

I remembered the time that Lee pounded a hole in the wall with his educational toy, a Playskool hammer. It cost us $150 to repair the damage. What an education that was--tiny hole, big bill.

I remembered the time when Cathy was three years old and ate the center out of her birthday cake just before the neighborhood party.

That was 11 years ago, but I brought myself up to date with memories through the years until just a month ago on a cold June day when Ann, aged six was a real dum-dum and fell off the dock into the lake just two minutes before the start of our sailboat race. Of course I didn't get off the boat, but I did throw her some dry clothes and that fiasco caused us a bad start. Ann has been standing on docks since she was three years old. Why in the world did she have to pick that moment just before race time to fall in the water?

To me it simply doesn't seem fair for children to treat parents the way that they do. I decided that I had to have revenge for all of the injustices that they'd meted out against me. A simple slap was not enough. I joyously plotted how I would get even with each one of those little rascals.

I would watch the Today Show instead of Captain Kangaroo.

I'd go to the beach only on rainy days.

I'd make them go hungry on school days when they left their lunch sitting at home on the front hall table.

I'd refuse to wash special clothes for special people at special times for special events. Especially when they forgot to put them in the laundry in the first place.

I'd make each person clean his own sand out of the bathtub.

I'd only buy diet pop which they aren't allowed the drink.

I'd stop serving chocolate cake, sauce, ice cream and candy. It's fattening and I'm always the darn fool who ends up eating it.

I'd stop saying, "Yes you may come with me," when I really wish that they'd stay at home and watch television.

Oh revenge would be sweet, and I plotted my course with care.

Then a funny thing happened which caused me to have some second thoughts. Lee Paul had been away on a little trip and I was thinking about how nice and quiet the house was when Lee wasn't around to tease his little sisters and make them scream. Of course his little sisters missed him so much that they both colored lovely "miss you" type pictures and sent them to him.

Nevertheless I really enjoyed the peace and quiet around the house.

Then Lee rolled in the door with a big smile, a big kiss and a hug for each one of us.

"Look what I got for you, Mom!"

It was a gold plated key chain with a fancy medal on it that declared, World's Greatest Mom. I decided then that many incidents are just better when they are forgotten.

Hospital Guild

The Charlevoix Hospital Women's Guild held it's monthly meeting on the second Monday of July at the Charlevoix Hospital. Mrs. James Gallagher was elected as the new vice-president, and will begin to act in this capacity at this time. This completes the full slate of officers.

A thank you letter was read from Rollie Dudik to Guild members for participating in the volunteer service program. This service rendered by members to augment hospital personnel in the various departments.

An explanatory letter will be mailed to all active members. Mrs. Donald Berlage and Mrs. Donald Couse are chairmen of this activity and invited any inquiries.

Three television sets owned by the Guild are now in full service. These are getting good use, thanks to Cable T.V. of Charlevoix, who donated the cable hook-up. Patients may now have good rental service.

A request for a Sklar Electric Evacuator has been approved by the administration and it was decided to purchase this for hospital use. Also three subscription to the Charlevoix Courier. These will be available to all the patients.

The Women's Guild is proud to announce at this time, the net proceeds from the Kitchen Tour is $1,025. A hearty thanks to one and all for the good reception and the hard work.

FASTBALL LEAGUE

Medusa now has its back to the wall in the fight for the second round title. After starting the week out in first place, they lost twice and now find themselves about to be eliminated if they lose another.

American Mold did the honors first with a 5-4 victory. Don Kowbell did the big damage as his double in the sixth highlighted a three run rally. Medusa left the bases loaded in both their sixth and seventh innings. Stew Cunningham homered for the losers.

First round champ, Morweld Steel, pounded Medusa 11-1 scoring seven times in the fifth. Mike Lord unloaded two home runs while Bob Klooster chipped in with one.

American Mold moved into first place with their 11-4 win over County State Bank. Harv Cole banged out two home runs and a single. Ken Balch doubled and singled for Mold. Dave Novotny and Tom Drenth collected two hits apiece for the losers.

Novak's received an unexpected gift when Freedmans upset Deyoungs in the final game of the first round to give the Insurance boys the title. The loss of Deyoungs cost them the title and was their second as compared to Novak's single defeat. A seven run second inning hilighted the 11-3 victory. Tims, Carey and Doan shared Freedman's hitting honors with two hits apiece while Carey's pitching kept Deyoung's hitters in check.

Fishers repopulate state's forests

If you see a creature that looks like the above as you travel through Michigan's northern forests this year, you'll probably be taking your first look at a fisher. He's a returnee to the state, trying to re-establish residence here.

Having populated the area in fair abundance when Michigan was young, he retreated before the settler's ax, partly because he likes to spend a good share of his time in trees, points out Dr. William Prychodko of Wayne State University's Biology Department. Steel traps and rifles also took their toll.

Now the fishers are getting solid encouragement to come back and stay. The 61 which National Forest officials released in the western Upper Peninsula's Ottawa National Forest have had progeny which are apparently prospering.

The creature is the size of a large house cat with short legs and a bushy tail. His name "fisher" is a misnomer, since the animal is not aquatic and does not enter the water in search of fish. He frequents the areas of streams and lakes, and can swim, but, as both a tree-and-ground dweller, does not wander far beyond the deep forests.

One of the fiercest and fleetest of the tree-climbing fur bearers, he growls, snarls and spits and occasionally cries mournfully.

Among the many wild creatures he is capable of killing and eating is the porcupine. Fishers are noted, in fact, for their ability to catch and eat these spiny creatures with which the northern forests abound.

Conservation officials are not interested in eliminating all procupines because of their interest in preserving all members of Michigan's wildlife family. But they are interested in reducing the population in areas of overabundance, so they have encouraged the plan of bringing fishers back.

Official conservationists are not the only people interested in the fisher-repopulation plan. Some Michigan sportsmen look forward to the day when the fisher may again provide valued furs for hunters and trappers as in Michigan's early days. Others are simply glad to see any former mammalian resident of Michigan regain his citizenship after a period of exile.

You probably won't get near enough to the fisher to observe this feature, says Dr. Prychodko, but the creature's head, neck and under parts are slightly grizzled and buff in color. The rest of his body (except the black tail) is a bit unpredictable in shade, but a typical specimen is deep mahogany in color, with bluish overtones.

He is a member of the weasel family, so that his trait of ferocity is a family characteristic. Some have described the fisher as a large edition of the marten.

Hunting the fisher at this time carries a strong "don't" from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources which is watching with interest the return of the once discouraged resident to a state he again is happy to live in.

Area Marine gets degree

By Lee Smits

If you meet up with specialists in wildlife management from Washington and various states and organizations -- men who are well informed on what is going on, coast to coast, you discover that Michigan is rated among the leaders in the conservation of natural resources. It will be explained to you that our state was one of the first to get rid of politics in fish and game affairs, and that Michigan was also a pioneer in scientific research.

Although the number of people who make use of Michigan's outdoor resources exceeds the total population of the state, most of them probably have only a vague idea of just what the Department of Natural Resources considers as its area of responsibility. Director Ralph A. MacMullan has listed the aims and purposes of the Department in an introduction to a biennal report he refers to the "busiest two years in the department's history," which, he predicts, is a "forerunner of things to come."

+ + +

No biennal report is needed to recall for an old-timer the stages of conservation in Michigan. First, game laws and game wardens; a continuing contest between poachers and officers. Then, fish-planting. Dumping cans of infant fish off bridges, doing more harm than good.

Then came the big forward step. Research, scientific study, the enlistment of biologists. Michigan was out ahead in this innovation and now that we are in a third stage -- applied ecology -- we see the great value of that pioneering.

About this time a truly great advance was made -- the control of forest fires, which were making a charred desert of big areas of what had been pine forest.

+ + +

The comparable problem in 1969 is, of course, pollution, insecticides. It is a safe prediction that pollution will be minimized by the time the next generation takes over.

Included in the vision of what Michigan will be doing for natural resources in the next 50 years is the reasonable hope that ecology will be an important subject taught in schools. Youngsters will learn that human welfare is as dependent on nature as it ever was and that the safeguarding of water, soil, air is essential to our continued residence on the planet earth.

(Mr. Smits' column is presented through the courtesy of Michigan Consolidated Gas Company.)

Contract progress

Continuing progress is being made in contract negotiations between teachers and Boards of Education in the northern part of the lower peninsula.

"In Cadillac this past week, tentative agreement was reached through mediation, and tentative agreement was also reached in Frankfort. The total number of schools in this area which are settled now stands at 24," according to Mrs. Wyatt, MEA Field Representative for this area.

"Negotiations are suspended in Alcona, Atlanta, Benzie Central, Fairview, Ellsworth, and Suttons Bay, and a third mediation session is scheduled for Hillman July 30," Mrs. Wyatt said. "Continuing to negotiate are Alpena, Boyne Falls, Cheboygan, Alanson, Mio, Posen, Elk Rapids, Kingsley, Kalkaska, and Northport," she concluded.

Hobbycraft officers

The officers and committees of the Lakeside Hobbycraft Fair are:

General chairman, Verna Helms; vice chairman, Cal Gould; treasurer, Robert C. Burns; secretary, Margaret Burns; publicity chairman, Bernice Wexstaff; screening committee, Ed Heise, chairman, Marge Davenport, Cal Gould, Bob Miles, and Verna Helms; grounds committee, Norm Helms, chairman; Art Wexstaff, Ed Heise.

Maverick gives you tough brakes, unitized body construction, rustproofing, and four coats of paint. Its 3-speed transmission is able to handle twice as much horsepower as the engine turns out.

It doesn't burn a lot of gas.
Maverick gives you the kind of mileage you'd expect from a little import—even with a powerful six-cylinder engine.

It doesn't hold back on power.
Turn on the engine and turn loose 105 horses—nearly twice as much as the leading import. This means highway power, passing power. The kind of power you need.

It doesn't handle like a kite.
The road might be wet and the wind strong but Maverick's tread is wider than the car is high—great for stability. (Most economy imports are higher than their tread is wide.)

It doesn't follow the herd.
Maverick's new, different. A bright idea with bold, new colors. See your Ford Dealer for the rest of the story. Find out why Maverick is the hottest selling new car to come along since Mustang.

Camp Charlevoix

Corral Chatter

The fourth week of camp started off with the camp going on Sunday Schedule, rising at 8:30 and breakfast at 9:10. This was to allow the boys to sleep later due to their being up late to see the landing on the Moon. However, the boys going to Mackinac Island were up early to get off to a good start on their day on the Island. They were excited to get to ride in the new school bus that arrived on Saturday. It is a 60 passenger bus, and will give us great transportation to events where we take a large group. Sure a change after all these years of using our green truck. The boys on this trip are all boys enrolled last summer for this the 1969 season. At the close of last sommer we had 133 boys enrolled for this year, so these boys get this trip, half going now and the other half during our second four week period. This is an annual trip as a reward to those boys who enroll this summer for the following sommer and already enrollments are coming in for our 1970 season. The boys on this trip are: Steve Baker, Jay Bandera, John and Robert Bauer, Robert Buck, Brian Caukin, Ross Compton, Jim and Tom Cullison, Bill Drew, Jimmy Eberts, Steve Edmands, Scott and Greg Gilmore, Ed Gits, Pat Green, Chris Hansen, Bill, John, and Tom Harbeck, Bob and Mike Healy, Ed Holmwood, Robb Howell, Jim Johnson, Kirt Joseph, Bob McKinney, Leigh Merrill, David Morton, Doug Mulligan, George Musekamp, Jim Osborn, Bill Ramey, David Rhame, David Roe, David Rossi, David Sanders, Cam and Fitz Simmons, Robie Smith, Tod Soderstrom, David Swain, Court and Jeff Towle, Riley Turner, Larry Webb, Mont Wickham, Doug Yoder, Dana Young, Mike Zoeller and Bob Pfouts. Bill Townsend, Director of Activities and four staff men accompanied the boys on this trip.

Two of our Junior cabins left for a day on the sand at Lake Michigan. David Tottle and Mike Kelly, took their boys as did Woody Roe and Dick Hartger. Cabin 8, with Mal Pardee as the counsellor took off for a hike and overnight at the campcraft area. These boys were: Eddie Gits, Tim Burnside, Felix Bolonotto, Jason Joseph, Mike Wayne, Mike Woodward, Bob Danaher, and John Kahle.

Tuesday morning after breakfast, the Camper Representatives met and decided where to send the money we take in from our chapel collections, from the Carnival and from the Refreshments at the Rodeo. They made four very good choices, and the boys always seem pleased that they can decide where this money goes.

The three day horse trip left camp and these boys were very excited at being chosen for this trip that was out two nights. The boys on this trip were: Tod Soderstrom, Tim Washburn, Paul Francisco, Steve Edmands, Doug Yoder, Tom Harbeck, Dave Sanders, Bill Harbeck, Dave Swain, Ed Holmwood, Steve Baker, Tom Cullison, Jim Cullison, Jim ZeBranek and Bob Wittmer.

Chuck Leider, Cabin 7, took his boys on a hike to the campcraft area for an overnight. These boys were: Bob Healey, Jay Bandera, David Townsend, Bruce Yoder, David Cronin, Frank Perron, and Kevin McCarty.

Wednesday was a dark day, with a little shower in the afternoon, but most of the day and all of the evening was just fine, sunny part of the time. Rusty Smith and Tom Dorsek took their cabins down to Eastport, about 20 miles from here on Grand Traverse Bay. In the evening, we had a Capture The Counsellor Event. A certain amount is placed on each counsellor as he is found, and the team winning the greatest amount of reward money gets the points, and again the GREENS come through winning 3 to the Greys 1. This put the Greens far ahead in the competition.

Thursday morning was a beautiful morning after a night of showers, making everything fresh and the trees green, and activities were off to a good day. The Riflery Team went up to CAMP ALGONQUIN (A "Y" camp) and the members of our riflery team were: Fitz Simmons, Dana Young, Jamie Stuart, Bill Slater, Bill Ramey, with the two alternates being: Chuck Buschmann and David Morton.

Though our boys lost the match by only 14 points, we had four men shoot 94 or better, with one boy being way off his usual 95 scores. It was a fine experience for the campers who enjoyed seeing another camp. In the evening, the cabins winning the clean-up honors for this period were taken into town. The winning cabins were Numbers 3 (Ken Oakley); 7 (Chuck Leider) No. 14 (Tom Dorsek) and No. 20 (Prabu). The boys were all dressed in their whites and look great. They were pleased to be going in our new school bus which is coming in very useful several times already.

Friday we had several boys leaving early, and we also had a most welcome rain which started about five in the afternoon. This was the first rain in three weeks, and we really needed it. In the afternoon, we had the MILE SWIM for the boys here this period, and it was very successful. One hundred three passed the half-mile mark. It was a perfect afternoon for the swim and eighty-seven boys finished. A new record for the Junior Section was set with nine Juniors finishing the mile, with Billy Gates, Grand Rapids, coming in with the fourth best time in camp. It was an amazing feat and everyone was so proud of him.

The Juniors finishing the full mile were: Billy Gates, John Breitinger, Jeff Sandoc, Larry Webb, Bruce Johnson Carl Pfeiffer, David Rentschler, Jim Cook and John Bauer. The two best times in camp were, first Jim ZeBranek, and second, Robb Howell. Both these boys (Seniors) went on to swim two miles. The best times in the Prep Section were first Ross Compton, followed a minute later by Jim Shook. In the Intermediate Section, Brian Caukin had the best time followed a minute later by Robbie Quinn, with Trey Henkel, and Larry Lepard coming in a minute later.

In the Senior Section other top times were: John ZeBranek, Mike MacNair, Dave Tripp, and George Musekamp. By the way, the Greys won three points and the Greens won one, so the underdogs picked up on the leading Greens. It was a very fine afternoon. In the evening the boys packed for leaving on Saturday and after they were all packed, they saw a movie.

Saturday was a beautiful day, and bright, and just an ideal day for our change-over day. We had over 500 parents in camp that day and Ken and Ruby were busy meeting and greeting parents, all of whom were most complimentary on their son's camping experience, on the staff and on the looks of the camp. About FIFTY boys enrolled for next summer, the 1970 season, and these boys will get the MACKINAC ISLAND TRIP next summer. All boys enrolled this sommer (before August 24) for next summer, will get this trip to that historic Island. In the evening, we once again had pillow fights to introduce the boys. We have boys this summer from one hundred one cities or towns, SIXTEEN states (the most ever) and from Alaska, Santo Domingo, and Dakar, Africa. So we are truly International.

The results of the pillow fights were: Mike O'Neil, Ormand Beach, Florida, beat Dave Austin, Park Forest, Ill. Bill O'Neil, Ormand Beach, Florida, beat Bruce Crawford, Midland. Larry Schuler, Marshall, Mich. beat Kurt Meyer, Dearborn, Mich. Dick Geddes, Mildord, Ill. beat Fabrice Merthelot from Dakar, Africa. Greg Mast, Bloomfield Hills beat Jim Hartger, Grand Rapids, Mich. Mickey MacNair, Jetmore, Kansas, lost to Mark Weber, Ann Arbor. Bill Bray, Cleveland, Ohio, beat Mike Murphy, Newark, Ohio. Walter Sheehey, Traverse City, beat his cousin, Trip Howell, Grosse Pointe. Scot Striglos, Decatur, Ill. won over Chip Jackson, Troy, Mich. Ken Stockwell, Grosse Pointe, won over Jeff Kirkendall, Kokomo, Ind. Greg King, Lima, Ohio, won over Jeff Larkin, Alexandria, Virginia. Terry Mast, Grosse Pointe and Alex Bravo, Troy, Ohio fought to a tie.

Dennis Bledsoe, Grosse Pointe won over Randy Chapman, Birmingham. Bill Roeker, Redford, Mich. and Carl Didier, Grosse Pointe fought to a tie. Steve Edmands, Chicago, won over Robb Stockwell, Grosse Pointe. Mike Furbush, Las Vegas, Nevada, beat Scott MacNair, Jetmore, Kansas. Tom Belbutoski, Fort Wayne, beat Dan Thomas, Kalamazoo. Robb Swain, Mansfield, Ohio, beat Mark Wilson, Birmingham, Mich. Tom Miller, Grosse Pointe, won over Jeff Edison, Grand Rapids. Felix Bolonotto, Santo Domingo, and Eddie Gits, La Grange, Ill. fought to a tie Cliff Smith, Northbrook, Ill. won over Dave Edmands, Grosse Pointe. The boys really enjoyed these matches. After the singing of taps the boys returned for the night..

Sunday morning was a wet one and chapel was held in the Bigwam. Several parents were present, and Ken gave the talk challenging the boys to "build a good reputation." Dave Wiekizer read the scripture and Freddy Beyer gave the prayer. It rained all afternoon, and the entire camp gathered in the dining room for games. In the evening, we had a very fine seas movie which the boys enjoyed. More next week.

Chamber Chat

BY WALLY LODER
CHAMBER MANAGER

Sorry folks, not much time this week with this Venetian Festival detail going on to accomplish the Chamber Chat. Thanks for bearing with me.

I hope some of you people observed the USS Hollidaysburg, PCS 1385, come in about 5 p.m., last Wednesday. As indicated before, this ship is from the Fourth Naval District, U.S. Navy and Marine Corp Training Center at Lorain, Ohio. It was necessary to tie up on the outboard side of the Sundew. It was an interesting boat to inspect, and I and others enjoyed it very much.

It was a pleasure to take several officers but for a land cruise of Charlevoix the Beautiful. There were quite a number of officers, and among the lot were two commanding officers and a compliment of about 50 men. It was interesting to note this boat was principally of wood construction and of the vintage of one of our earlier wars, and in service as a mind sweeper.

Of course, the ship had been re-equipped to some degree, including radar, etc. It had two big diesel engines, of course, twin screw drive. In this present day it is claimed that it could hold its own among the best of them. It left early Thursday for another port of call, namely Milwaukee.

Our approximately two hour program at the band stand in East Park Thursday evening was quite entertaining, somewhat different, so much of the audience expressed themselves. Unfortunately the open air queen's contest in the park for Friday evening had to be shifted because of the heavy rain late afternoon. Dave Juilleret and his wife sure made sparks fly to relocate this contest at the high school gym. It was attended my several hundred people and served the purpose very well.

The young girls were quite nice and put on a pretty good show. Barb Smith, of course, is the new queen, and the first runner-up and Miss Congeniality was Jeanne Smith, another charming little Miss.

Of course, the highlights Saturday afternoon was our street parade which I understand had been improved upon but unfortunately, I had to hold the fort down so I could not join the great numbers to view this parade.

So far, this year's festival is seeming to go along smoothly. Lyle Miles is working very strenuously as chairman of the boat parade to have it very much a success. Needless to say, the finale of aerial fireworks will be pleasing, as usual.

I am pleased to mention that this past week we have received two what we call membership subscriptions from interested persons, which memberships, of course, are other than the minimum $40 voting right membership, but they are equally appreciated and it is gratifying to us here at the Chamber when we receive these different checks from these interested persons. Every little bit helps considerably. Thanks a million! As one of the prominent actors said "Just keep those things coming".

Fancy Meeting R & R Here

At the hairdressers in Paris in June one of our three feminine 'scouts' picked up the French magazine MAISON & JARDIN and casually flipped the pages to discover a full page in color of one of our interiors -- it read as follows --

Un coin détente ou conversation est ménagé dans cette salle de bains, très classique à l'origine. Le papier peint à fleurs, la moquette, les meubles romantiques, le tableau moderne l'ont débanalisée et rendue luxueuse. R. et R. Robinson ont conçu ce décor pour M. et Mme Max W. Burrell's à Milan.

Kathleen Lewis left recently for San Jose, Calif., where she is enrolled in the Bryant-Straton School of Business.

what's a funny place for a phone?

That depends a lot on your sense of humor. If splashing through the house to answer a telephone leaves you a little cold, then perhaps there is nothing funny about an extension telephone in the bathroom or dressing room.

Extension telephones save steps and let you do your telephoning from where you are.

Call your Michigan Bell Business Office or ask your telephone man. For as little as ninety-five cents a month (plus tax) you can have an extension telephone in any funny old place you'd like.

Barbara Smith, Boyne City Road, and Cheryl Kenney, 708 Mercer Blvd., both of Charlevoix, attended a three day summer orientation program at Western Michigan University. Half the class of 1973 participated in this program, held under the direction of Norman K. Russell.

At the orientation, students were acquainted with the WMU campus and facilities, took tests, met with counselors and registered for the fall semester.

There were 150 students per group, which were housed in campus residence halls. They were invited to attend seminars given by upperclassmen on what to expect of college life.

The orientation programs, which began in June, will end in mid-August.

Wasn't it exciting and a thrill to see our Astronauts come down the ladder and step on the moon's surface. I kept my fingers crossed for fear Appolo 11 wouldn't take off as planned after being in the moon's atmosphere and to see the splash down all alive and safe on Earth. What wonderful achievements have been made since Columbus made his trip and the landing of the Pilgrims on Plymouth Rock. I wonder what their thoughts and reaction would be and we are wondering what the future will be. No doubt a new Planet to be explored and send some of our growing population to live to keep the earth's seams from bursting. We may have a new and different story of Noah's Ark to tell a new Generation. Who knows?

What a cold and rainy Sunday, but it didn't seem to hamper the churchgoers this morning but what a disappointment to the vacationers who came many miles for the annual Venetian Festival in Charlevoix, and also those who had booths and concessions in readiness during the beautiful sunshine on Saturday. What did we do to the old weather man? With all the rain this season, we gardeners haven't had to drag the hose around to keep things growing and green, but it sure has kept the lawn mowers humming. Will be with you next week.

I was taken to the Charlevoix Hospital last Sunday morning by my good friend Evelyn Vanderwall and daughter-in-law Evelyn Alexander and spent a few days. That surely is the place to go with all the attention and good care one has to feel better. Therefore no local news last week. Sorry.

John Wilson of Palo Alto, California, is spending two weeks with Mrs. Wilson and children at Sunnyslope with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson.

Mrs. Alice McClanathan is a medical patient in the Charlevoix Hospital. She has the very best wishes of her local friends.

Consumers to study L. Michigan waters

A joint research project to study the environment of Lake Michigan has been announced by the six Investor-owned electric utilities operating in the four-state area bordering the lake. The study complements other research projects already underway.

The announcement for Consumers Power Company was made by Harry R. Wall, senior vice president, in a talk before a Governor's Conference called to discuss the effects of warm water discharged into the lake from nuclear power plants.

Wall said the study will be conducted by the Great Lakes Research Division of the University of Michigan's Institue for Science and Technology. "The joint research project is a further demonstration of the concern of the electric utilities in the lakes area in preserving and protecting the quality of our environment," Wall said.

"Consumers Power Company is on record that it will avoid any action or any practice tha would damage our environment. At the same time, in justice to all the people who use electricity, it is our obligation to determine exactly what dangers exist, and how they can best be contained. This is what we are tying to do, by these extensive experiments. Needless expense for needless equipment sould be avoided, just as firmly as we would avoid inflicting environmental damage," said Wall.

The cooperating utilities involved in the agreement along with Consumers Power are: American Electric Power Corporation (for Indiana & Michigan Electric Company), Commonwealth Edison Company, Northern Indiana Public Service Company, Wisconsin Eelctric Power Company, Wisconsin Public Service Corporation (for Wisconsin Public Service, Wisconsin Power and Light Company Madison Gas and Electric Company).

The environmental study will include an inventory of materials presently in the lake, and a projection of the condition of the lake in 1975.

The University of Michigan also recently announced an initial grant from the National Science Foundation's Sea Grant Program which will "strengthen and expand its efforts in the marine sciences, water resources, and their management--with emphasis on the Great Lakes."

At the time of the grant announcement, Professor James T. McFadden, chairman of the program committee, said: "A coordinated effort on behalf of the Great Lakes basin is needed at this critical juncture of its ecological history."

A wide variety of Great Lakes-related projects, involving a sizeable investment of money and manpower, now exist at U-M, Professor McFadden noted.

The Great Lakes Research Division of the Institute of Science and Technology is among the University units to take an active part during the program's initial stage.

Wall and his associates from the Michigan Electric Association reported to the conference today on other ecological studies and temperature surveys sponsored by utility companies. He emphasized that the independent efforts of the Sea Grant Program will "admirably fit in with the electic utilities research projects already underway." Wall is past president of the Michigan Electric Association.

Consumers Power sponsored studies are these:

--In 1967, determining the behavior of the plume, or thermal discharge, from generating stations. It has been demonstrated by repeated tests that a "zone of passage" not influenced by the plant discharge, was maintained. Beyond the natural mixing zone the State Water Temperature Standards were met.

--In 1968, a biological and temperature survey was conducted at the James H. Campbell plant, near Grand Rapids. The biological work was done by T.W. Beak Consultants Limited of Montreal, Canda and with the cooperation of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. The temperature surveys were done by Consumers Power personnel. On the basis of the results, there appeared to be no observable thermal damage to the benthic fauna of the main plume area at the Campbell site.

--Underway now, a five-year biological and temperature survey at the site of the under-construction Palisades Nuclear plant, 35 miles west of Kalamazoo. The project includes a three-phase study adopted following reviews with various state agencies. Included is the survey now underway to assess the present state of the lake before operation of the nuclear plant. After the plant becomes operational in 1970, the thermal plume will be mapped and as the third phase, a further ecological survey will determine the thermal influence on the biota.

School $ $

To the Editor:

The school administration prepared paper explaining school finances reveals that Charlevoix taxpayers will be charged $97,008 more in taxes in 1969-70 than in 1968-69 at the present 14.7 mill tax rate because of increased State Equalized Valuation, but the schools will receive $46,194 less in State aid for a net increase of $43,053 based on 92 percent collection. This increase is then dismissed with the statement, "It will require the increased revenue for 1969-70 to offset the excess spending in 1968-69." That statement is then supported by these figures. "Estimated Expenditures in excess of income--1968-69"

"Balance June 30, 1968
"Estimated Balance June 30, 1969

28,756"
(20,000)"

8,756 in excess spending

as I figure it. That is a long way from $43,053.

In a June 4 Charlevoix Courier pro millage advertisement teacher's salaries were presented as $7,200 per year, per teacher.

In a radio broadcast the superintendent of schools stated that the average salary of a teacher under the new contract would be $7,900 per year. In the paper prepared by the School Administration under "MAJOR ITEMS CREATING INCREASED COST IN THE OPERATIONAL BUDGET FOR 1969-70."

"Additional Teachers - 4 $33,500" An average of $8,375 per teacher without seniority. It has been stated that 80 percent of the school budget is in salaries. If 60 teachers are paid an average of $8,000 per year, it would amount to less than half a million dollars of the requested million dollar budget. What is the destination of the $300,000 per year of nonteacher salaries?

If the School Administration, and School Board, would give the public a simple, accurate, complete financial presentation of the school budget, they would obtain far better results than they will if they say, "What we ask is what we need, and if you do not give it to us we will takey away the programs that you like best."

To citizens

An open letter to the citizens of Charlevoix and Charlevoix County:

How long are you good citizens going to stand for the permissive attitude of your elected officials in allowing Medusa to continue to pour upon us what they (tongue in cheek) refer to as steam? How many times a week do you now have to either wash your car, boat or porch as against BM (Before Medusa)?

How many times more does the good wife have to dust the house as against BM.

There is an anti-pollution law but it must be enforced. Tell your councilman or your supervisor you want action and now. Let's get this dirt stopped. It can be done.

BIG ROCK POINT NUCLEAR POWER PLANT

Recalling a World's Fair!

Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant silhouette frequently has reminded artists and photographers of the Trylon and Perisphere which identified the New York World's Fair of 1939...making that event's official symbol truly prophetic. For at Big Rock Point, nuclear energy—a fantastic dream in 1939—is working every day to bring electric power to Consumers Power Company's customers throughout Michigan's Lower Peninsula. More than 500,000 tourists and area residents have visited the plant's Public Information Center since it opened in 1962. Only a short distance north of Charlevoix, the Information Center is open every day, 8 to 5, just for you!

Festival parade

Venetian weekend was marred by buckets of rain and high wind, but Saturday's Street Parade deserves special mention.

Blessed by sun and comfortable temperatures, the parade was the highlight of the weekend. Said to be the largest in Festival history, chairman Tom Acton should be commended for putting the event together and controlling it to conclusion.

If the crowd estimate of 5,000 is correct, it is unfortunate that more residents and visitors were unable to attend.

Acton planned a parade which only one thing--more music. And bands are hard to get during the summer unless you are operating with a big budget.

The Charlevoix Band, under the direction of C.A. Odmark, did its usual fine job, and we could have listened for hours to the Fire House Five from Petoskey.

Even though many portions of the Festival were cancelled because of the rain, we were treated to an outstanding parade.

And, for that, we can thank Acton and his committee.

Nothing inevitable in politics

As Senator Edward M. Kennedy's star dims, the hopes of other Democrats for the 1972 presidential nomination naturally begin to rise. Names such as Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine, former Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey and Senator Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota edge back into the political news.

Senator Muskie, for example, reveals that old political friends have begun to call him again now that trouble mounts for Senator Kennedy. Earlier Muskie had all but called off his own soundings for the 1972 nomination when he discovered Kennedy had it practically wrapped up. Now the 1968 Democratic vice - presidential nominee seems to be firmly back in the running.

The blighting of Kennedy's hopes also revives the oft-thwarted presidential aspirations of the 1968 Democratic nominee, former Vice-President Humphrey. He is returning from a trip abroad to renewed speculation that in 1970 he will run for the U.S. Senate from Minnesota now that Senator McCarthy has announced his retirement.

McCarthy, however, still is keeping his presidential options open. He said at a press conference he was not ruling out all politics in the future by reiterating his position he wouldn't run for re-election to the U.S. Senate. Yet it appears he'd have to campaign for the presidency as an independent since he wouldn't seek the Democratic nomination.

Even Senator George S. McGovern of South Dakota, perhaps the most outspoken dove left in the Senate, is reported to be flexing his wings for another presidential bid in 1972. And there are others, we are sure, waiting in the wings.

All of this speculation, of course, comes only a week after the word in the Democratic Party was that Senator Kennedy's nomination in 1972 was "inevitable." What a difference a few days make . . .

Youth for understanding

When man has reached the moon, it appears increasingly difficult for any one person to be able to contribute to the totality of world peace or understanding. Everything happens on such a grand scale today. What can a mere individual or family do?

Yet, thousands of families in the United States have discovered a way in which they can participate in a world wide program towards peace. It is through Youth for Understanding's family-living plan for exchange students. By opening up their homes and hearts, families all across our nation have hosted high school students from 40 countries of Europe and South America, from Mexico, Japan, and the Philippines. How much these families have given in love, understanding, experience, and exposure to their foreign son or daughter, will never be fully calculated.

What the YFU program means is that an exchange student does not come as a guest; neither does the family offer its home as a "charitable contribution" to the program; rather, it is a mutual opportunity for which the student has applied and paid, while a United States family desires and accepts the responsibility of a new family member for a year or six months. The family also recognizes that this will be a mutual exchange. The student is there to be a part of an American family, a part of the American way of life, and exposed to both the favorable and unfavorable aspects of everyday life here. The family is the student's family and includes him in all the normal activities of their living.

It is also a fact that these students who have been carefully selected for participation in the YFU exchange are future leaders of their own countries. They will be the most knowledgeable about world affairs and the cultural differences between peoples.

Youth for Understanding itself has grown in 18 years from a small organization handling 20 to 30 students, all from Germany to a really international program involving over 4,000 students a year from 40 different countries. All overseas arrangements and applications are processed by well-qualified national committees. The YFU program is both interfaith and inter-racial with a total purpose of developing international understanding through a living experience.

Families who are interested in becoming a host family or a foreign student or who want to find out more about the complete YFU program should write to Youth for Understanding at its headquarters--2015 Washtenaw Ave., Ann Arbor, Michigan 48103.

Rich-for a minute

The story is told of the man with $5,000 in savings who, fearful of inflation, decided to invest in stocks. He visited a broker and bought General Motors, IBM and Champion Homo Builders.

On his way out of the office, he was struck by the falling bucket of a window washer. He awoke from a coma in Mayo Clinic in 1989. All was a blank from the moment he had bought the stock.

Told of the time lapse his first thought was of the stock. He asked the nurse to call the broker and find out how he had done. The nurse obligingly went to the pay phone in the hall, reached the broker in Detroit, and explained the situation.

The broker remembered. "Yes, of course," he said. "It was a terrible accident. I remember it well. Please tell him his GM is now worth $12 million, his IBM is worth $8 million and his Champion is worth $15 million."

"My gosh, I'm a rich man," gasped the man.

At that moment the operator came on the line. "I'm sorry," she said. "Your 3 minutes is up. Please deposit another $1 million."

Smoking

By Hank Hogan

I noticed a very curious thing the other day.

Statistics show that smokers have a higher incidence of death resulting from cancer and heart attacks.

While statistics can usually show what you want to prove, there should be no question in the mind of any reasonable person that smoking doesn't do you any good.

For several years now the United States Surgeon General's office has maintained that smoking is a severe health hazard. Polls show that about half of the American people share this opinion.

+++

More to the point, the American Medical Association has begun to oppose smoking as detrimental to health.

As a result of all this, the government, through the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is spending at the rate of $4.4 million annually to discourage smoking.

But what's curious is that while the federal government, through Health, Education and Welfare, is spending all of this money to discourage smoking and the Federal Communications Commission is requiring free antismoking commercials by radio and television stations to balance-off the paid tobacco commericals, another part of the United States government is spending a lot more money aiding the tobacco industry.

+++

The department of Agriculture takes the wholly different tack of encouraging widespread use of that valuable farm product, tobacco.

It is spending $28.4 million to subsidize tobacco exports.

It also is spending $5 million for research, quite a lot of which is aimed at making cigarettes more attractive to the consumer.

As you go through the various items of spending in this area the current total is substantially more than $60 million a year.

Tobacco farmers and processers think this is dandy, naturally.

+++

It does seem odd, though, that we would spend $4.4 million to discourage smokers and more than $60 million to aid the tobacco industry when we know that the use of the end product is not good for our citizenry.

One of the best ways to cut down inflation is to cut down government spending and, while $60 million is probably a drop in the bucket for the federal government, every little bit helps.

This is only one area where two governmental agencies apparently are not aware of what the other is doing. The lack of a governmental policy is costing us taxpayers a substantial sum.

Wash and wear

Without wash-and-wear fabrics, vacations could be a drag. Especially travel vacations. But there is a wrinkle in some of these mriacle fabrics.

The wrinkle is formaldehyde. This chemical, used to produce some synthetic finishes on clothes, can cause skin eruptions--on patients' extrimities, thighs, and buttocks. Earl J. Rudner, M.D., a dermatologist at Detroit General Hospital, who has been studying the problem, said the lesions cleared up after these patients stopped wearing wash-and-wear garments treated with formaldehyde. So far the eruptions have only affected a limited number of people.

Dr. Rudner found that these patients often complain of a laboratory odor to their newly purchased synthetic garments. They can, in a sense, "smell" trouble ahead.

Skin eruptions are not the only health problem created by the switch to some synthetics. Workers in clothing manufacturing plants--where formaldehyde is used-also report distress. Their complaints are similar to those of persons exposed to high levels of air pollution. Respiratory problems. Eye irritation, fatigue, and psychological depression.

These complaints were documented in a recent government study conducted by the Environmental Control Administration of the department of Health, Education, and Welfare. In the survey, up to ten percent of the employees in eight permanentpress clothing plants--which used formaldehyde for finishing--had symptoms serious enough to seek medical attention following normal operational exposure to the gas.

Watch out the wrinkle in your wash-and-wears. And be concerned about the air you breathe. It's a matter of life and breath.

Dad gets poor but honest

What I did on my summer vacation:

—Tested my honesty. For around 3,000 miles our family motel-hopped through several states, spreading our business evenly between Howard Johnson and Holiday Inn. Both landlords offer the family plan - no charge for children 12 years or younger. We also patronized countless tourist attractions and drive-in movies with the same policy. All of which can squirm the conscience of the father of a 13-year-old girl. Should I lie and save a few bucks? Or should I pay the full shot and thus give of my children a splendid example of Christianity and Americanism in action? Heck, the kids also needed a lesson in Diplomacy, so I decided to compromise and lie only half the time. However, it turned out that daughter Chrissie is proud of finally becoming a teenager and she wants the world to know she is practically 20. The little dear threatened to blow the whistle the first time I tried to pass her off as a 12-year-old infant. And that's how fathers become poor but honest. Onward and Upward.

—Read 10 books, the best of which was A.E. Hotchner's biography of Ernest Hemingway. IT was an appropriate time to learn that I have one thing in common with Hemingway: he also thought the best way to travel is by auto, with frequent and lengthy stops along the way to see what's behind the billboards and at the end of the exit ramps. We drove to the Smoky Mountains in North Carolina and then to St. Louis before returning to Michigan. And it probably took us 4 times as long as it would the normal motorist. On several days our driving time was a whopping 90 minutes. We kept arriving before Howard Johnson had the beds made. On no day did we drive over 4 hours. The greatest part of motoring is sitting beside a pool with a good novel and a cold drink. The important thing is to travel equipped for dry states.

—Played golf, tennis, Ping Pong, pool and baseball with my children. We also bowled and did 12 dozen belly-flops onto hard water. The only thing I refused to join them at was miniature golf. This is because miniature golf is the only thing I can't beat them at. My kids are insufferable winner and all-around lousy sports. I really don't see how they got that way.

—Reaffirmed my stupidity at the Atomic Science Museum in Oak Ridge, Tenn. It's incredible that I should nod my head wisely while some brainy youth explains how atoms are split and how nuclear hardware functions. And then I return to the motel and complain to the management that the TV won't work. And the management asks if I remembered to turn on the wall switch. And I didn't.

—Dressed son Eddie in his Detroit Tiger T-shirt and paraded him through beautiful Busch Stadium, home of the St. Louis Cardinals. This is the type of childish strutting I enjoy and I chuckled continually as we reminded Cardinal fans how our boys zonked their boys in the World Series. I chuckled until returning to the Busch parking lot and discovering a fresh dent in the fender of my new car. Even when I win, I'm a loser.

—Laughed a lot as I enjoyed my annual reintroduction to my family. There was Eddie with binoculars, on Howard Johnson's back lawn in Indiana, gleefully watching a drive-in movie across the street. There was my dieting wife, continually urging the kids to order food they couldn't possible eat so she could eat it herself, claiming "it would be a sin to let this food go to waste." And there was Eddie, at a Smoky Mountain resort, suggesting that he and his big sister walk alone to the cafeteria that night, and dine without their parents. "We can pretend like we have a date," he said. "You don't have to like me."

I just read about the grand opening of the $60 million International Hotel in Las Vegas. One of the advertised features of this magnificent establishment is a separate dormitory for the youngsters. The idea is get the little brats out of their parents hair, thus freeing the adults for long nights of gambling and show-watching.

To each his own. Some day too soon, my kids will be out of my hair. And what I do on my summer vacation won't be near as much fun.

ON THE 'FLIP' SIDE

Last week's Courier contained 58 pages, the largest issue of the paper's history, and, though it created some extra work for all members of our staff, the end result was worth the effort.

*****

Hank Hogan of the Birmingham Eccentric sends along the following commentary:

I suppose how you reacted to the Teddy Kennedy incident over the weekend depends upon what side of the political fence you are on.

I've heard people exclaim, "Another Kennedy tragedy" on the one hand and "They'll never do anything to a Kennedy" by some of his less-than zealous admirers.

The facts seem simple enough. Sen. Kennedy was driving down a dirt road toward the beach with a secretary who had worked for his late brother, between midnight and 1 a.m. Sunday.

He tried to cross over a small wooden bridge which had a slight turn in it, and his car left the bridge and fell into the water.

He was next seen at the local police headquarters at approximately 9 a.m. the next morning.

At about the same time the police found the car in the water and discovered the girls' lifeless body.

They are now planning to hold a hearing on whether a warrant should be issued because Kennedy left the scene of the accident.

At this point I part company with the local police chief.

I don't mean to jump on a man when he is down, but if the driver of that car had been practically anyone other than Ted Kennedy, a warrant would probably have been issued for manslaughter, because the facts would indicate negligent driving.

Further, the police would immediately investigate where a missing driver had spent the approximately eight hours he was out of sight, and check the condition of his sobriety-not let him seclude himself behind a guarded compound to avoid being questioned.

Is it any wonder that the blacks in the core city riot against the police because every time they look or act suspicious they are thrown in the clink, while others are accorded a special place under the law?

If what happened early Sunday morning is another Kennedy tragedy, it can develop into an American tragedy if he is not treated like anyone else.

It has been claimed that there are two classes of citizens in this country-and this has been hotly denied.

The truth of who is right may unfold in Massachusetts in the next couple of weeks.

ONE MAN'S PHILOSOPHY

Government is the evidence that as individuals, we have failed.

A good woman is the best of women. A good man wants watching.

I wonder who appointed the Americans to world leadership. Could it have been the Americans?

Dogs Take To the Air To Hound Criminals

BY CHRISTOPHER MacDERMOTT

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) – The crack dog corps of the South African police has a bite that is definitely worse than its bark. Any number of criminals can ruefully attest to the truth of this statement.

The dogs Alsatians have been so successful in aiding in the battle against crime that police believe they have cut down the use of firearms in making arrests or halting fleeing suspects.

For the past seven years dozens of dogs have been trained for patrols in urban areas and for tracking in the country districts -- all of them taught to sniff out marijuana, to help in rescue work and in detection of mines.

Now, says Col. Andries Brink, commander of the Dog School at Pretoria, experiments are under way with airborne parachute patrols in which dogs will be dropped in inaccessible areas where criminals have often thought themselves safe from pursuit.

Heading the experiment is Constable Anthony Prinsloo and his dog "Prins". In all the practice jumps so far the dog has shown no fear, even in leaping from the open door of a light aircraft at the command of and in company with his handler.

Same Parachutes

Prinsloo and the dog use the same two parachutes but there is an emergency chute for Prins in event of a break in the line joining him to his handler. This parachute opens automatically.

According to Brink a unit of parachute dogs will be able to accomplish much in heavy bushveld or mountainous terrain where the police are hampered by transport difficulites. They will be specifically directed against marijuana growers and cattle rustlers who operate in remote areas and on the slopes of the Drakensberg Mountains.

South African police have awarded a number of decorations to police dogs. The most recent went to "Caro" who pursued an armed, escaped convict through dense tropical bush. Although wounded, the dog sprang into a tree where the convict was hiding, brought him down and held him.

WATER SKIING EASY, FUN

Exhilarating, fun and as safe as you make it — that's water skiing, 1969 style!

From what once was considered an aquatic "stunt" to a thrilling sport now enjoyed by more than 10-million persons each year, water skiing has come a long way in four decades. Manufacturers estimate that water skis and related accessories account for a whopping $30-million in annual sales in marine and sporting goods stores.

An excellent safety record has accompanied the explosive growth of the sport. Instructors and water ski champions say the low accident rate results from general observance of simple, common-sense rules on what skiers and their boat drivers should and shouldn't do.

A nationally known water ski star and instructor is 24-year-old Joker Osborn of Winter Haven, Fla. He calls attention to several "guideposts" to safe water skiing, and emphasizes that beginning skiers should not only know how to swim well, but should wear a flotation device such as a ski belt or ski jacket.

"Skiers should check their equipment closely to see that there are no sharp, protruding objects on skis such as wing nuts, loose runners or splinters, "said Osborn, a member of the Johnson Sea-Horse Sports Advisory Board and winner of the Masters and National championships in 1964. "Beginners should learn to keep their eyes 'straight ahead' and stay away from docks and boats. Good practice is to run parallel to the shore and come in slowly when landing.

"When you fall, clasp both hands overhead to let the driver know you are okay. If you fall in an area that is fairly well-traveled, hold a ski up in the air after the fall so that you will be easily noticed.

"Do not ski in shallow water. Five feet is the minimum depth considered safe for adults. Do not wrap the tow rope around any part of the body, or put any part of the body through a so-called bridle, or loop.

ANCHORS AWAY

SMART SKIPPERS WATCH WEATHER

"Getting away from it all" certainly is a valid and common reason for pleasure boating.

But if your cruising takes you very far from shore, it's important you don't get your mind too far away from the weather.

Weather is one of the most important ingredients of all for safe, fun-filled boating. Fortunately, it doesn't take a college degree in meteorology to know about the weather, and how to predict it. A little knowledge and a lot of common sense is all that's necessary.

Don't let enthusiasm for an upcoming fishing trip or cruise make you go against what you know is right if the weatherman forecasts some nasty weather.

Even if the weatherman isn't handy, nature acts, in a way, as her own forecaster. A combination of clouds and wind direction, for example, often tells the boater all he needs to know about upcoming weather conditions.

Boaters should be wary of the massed cumulo-nimbus clouds which usually foretell an approaching squall line. Most squalls move from west to east at about 20 miles per hour, so if you spot one on the horizon, expect a blow within the next couple of hours.

Fog is another problem. This condition forms when warm and cool air mix, and can make boating virtually impossible. But fog is easily predicted, and easily avoided.

Experienced skippers also acknowledge there is wisdom in some of the familiar old weather proverbs. Such advice as "red in the morning, sailor take warning; red at night, sailor's delight" and "long foretold, long last; short warning, soon past" offer more truth than rhyme.

Probably the most important weather forecasting device available to the pleasure boater is the barometer. A quick rise in the barometer indicates unsettled weather. Accompanied by moist air and falling temperatures, this rise signals approaching wind and rain.

A rapid fall in barometric pressure indicates stormy weather ahead. If accompanied by dry air, the storm will probably approach from the north; moist air warns the skipper to look to the south.

It's a wise skipper who learns his weather, and keeps an occasional eye on the sky. Boating fun depends on boating weather. It's as simple as that.

BIG ROCK POINT NUCLEAR POWER PLANT

Recalling a World's Fair!

Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant silhouette frequently has reminded artists and photographers of the Trylon and Perisphere which identified the New York World's Fair of 1939...making that event's official symbol truly prophetic. For at Big Rock Point, nuclear energy—a fantastic dream in 1939—is working every day to bring electric power to Consumers Power Company's customers throughout Michigan's Lower Peninsula. More than 500,000 tourists and area residents have visited the plant's Public Information Center since it opened in 1962. Only a short distance north of Charlevoix, the Information Center is open every day, 8 to 5, just for you!

'Fog Machines' Fight New War

NEW YORK (UPI) Smoke screen equipment developed during World War II to protect ship movements, troop landings and shore maneuvers is now being used in a war against mosquitos and other insects throughout the world.

The so-called fogging machines, which range from ones mounted on jeeps and trucks to hand portable models, have battled mosquito infestations in Regina, Canada; an outbreak of encephalitis in North Dakota; malaria in Sao Paulo, Brazil, and pests in horse racing stables at Saratoga, N.Y.

Use of fogging machines for pest control was not a consideration in their original design, according to William Bohn, president of Todd-CEA, Inc., the manufacturer.

The U.S. Navy faced a critical need for high-output smoke generators to provide a low-hanging, long-lasting dense fog to mask its operations from the enemy and developed the product in cooperation with Todd Shipyards, former parent company of Todd-CEA.

The fogging machines were adapted for pest control when U.S. servicemen faced tropical disease-carrying insects in landings on Pacific islands.

Arrows for Ivan Come from Old Sherwood Forest

By MARIS ROSS

LONDON (UPI) — In Sherwood Forest where Robin Hood and his merry men strode, modern day Britons are busy making bows and arrows for the Russians.

"But not from Sherwood wood," said Michael Stuttle. "That wood's quite unsuitable, notwithstanding the Robin Hood legend to the contrary."

Why, in this technological age when the Russians send men into space, do they need good, strong bows that can shoot an arrow dead on target? The whole thing is in the name of sport.

The Russians have ordered 250 bows and 1,000 sets of arrows from Britain for their archery teams. They have their eye on the 1972 Olympics when archery will be featured for the first time since 1908.

Stuttle, 32, sales director for an archery equipment firm at the Sherwood Forest village of Cuckney, near Nottingham, thinks he has put Russian bow makers out of business since he won a trial order last November and follow-ups this year totaling 20,000 pounds ($48,000).

"So far as I know, the whole of the Soviet Union's archery requirements are being purchased from our small company," he said. "We have also got our first order from Hungary."

Proud

Naturally enough, the world does not have many quality bow makers, just a few in Europe and the United States. Stuttle, who says he promotes bows like he would vacuum cleaners, is rather proud he beat the Americans on these sales.

The firm's location in Sherwood Forest, next to a pub in a picturesque village, is more coincidence than connection with the legendary Robin Hood who has shot many an arrow on movie and television screens.

"Even in medieval times, the wood for Sherwood bows came from Spain," Stuttle said. "About the only thing Sherwood wood was used for was to make fires."

Today's bows are very different from the weapons carried by medieval archers. For a start, the wood no longer bends. Hard rosewood from India or bubinga from Africa forms the center section held by the hand. The curving, bendable end sections, called limbs, are made of fiber glass.

At least the bows are still hand-made, but not by any ancient craftsmen at the 15-year-old firm.

THE TURTLES WILL PLAY THIS THURSDAY AT CLUB PONYTAIL

Recently having played at Tricia Nixon's masked ball at The White House, The Turtles have headed northwest to Michigan. They will be appearing this Thursday evening at the Club Ponytail. Advance tickets are on sale at the Dairy Queen and The Music Shop in the Temple Theatre building in Petoskey, announced Mr. and Mrs. Stan Douglas. According to a recent story in PARADE magazine (July 6, 1969 pages 4 and 5) the Turtles were personally invited by Miss Nixon along with the Temptations, a group of great players from Detroit, to play at her debut as a White House hostess. "When we received the invitation to play at the White House," according to Turtles drummer and guitarist Mark Volman, "I was both excited and apprehensive. . .at first, I thought the invitation was a phony. . when we found out the invitation was legit we quickly accepted."

Original 'primitive' in Library exhibit

BY BERNICE WEXTAFF

Charlevoix Public Library has been accorded the rare privilege of showing the original "primitive" of Charlevoix Harbor of the 1890's. The painting is the work of the late Sarah Stanley Frantz, nationally noted artist who made her summer home on the Belvedere Club Grounds and who painted this scene from memory.

The painting is a delight....The red lighthouse on North Pier (it was moved to South Pier about 1906)...The harbor itself, enclosed in private wharves, local shipbuilder's ways and commercial docks...(two schooners appear to be stranded on dry land on the south beach, but, of course, were actually on ways for repairs) Other schooners; the HAWK, the OTTAWA and even the famous ROSA BELLE noted in Sara Teadale's well-known poem, lay at anchor in Round Lake.

The painting shows the railroad bridge (constructed on the site in 1892) and also a steam engine trailing a fuel car and two passenger coaches as it approaches the open swing bridge. Sail boats, row boats and a couple of racing shells, one manned by the artist's brother, Jack Stanley, who kept up his training for later professional and college events, completes the water scene in the Lake Charlevoix (then Pine) channel.

On land, the scene depicts the houses surrounded by fences to keep wandering cattle from contaminating the premises...The old Charlevoix Summer Home Association boarding house, newly designated the Belvedere House with its three towers, long before it became the swank Belvedere Hotel....

On the left, on the terrace above the hotel, the original Mahon cottage where Sarah Stanley Frantz spent her girlhood with her mother, also an artist, and her grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Mahon...It was here she began her career which, many paintings later, was to give her a place of prominence in famous galleries in New York and Washington.

Sarah Stanley Frantz's "primitive" is a slice of history in color from the log booms being hauled by drag-line and steam tugboat, to the horizon-line of hardwoods bending in the summer wind and willows drooping above Old River...The white steepled Episcopal church a stone's throw from Pine River Channel depicting a spiritual life in the community offset by the red saloon which speaks of roistering lumber jacks and the revelry of Saturday nights in town.

Small wonder the Belvedere Archives committee chose the Sarah Frantz primitive for the frontspiece in their recently published Belvedere Club history.

Sarah Stanley Frantz came frox an artistic family: Her grandfather was John Mix Stanley, a noted painter of landscapes and Indian scenes whose portrayals in oil of frontier and aborigine life are in leading museums and have become collector's items of priceless value. Sister, Alice, (Mrs. Dean Acheson), has added her contribution to the family renown as has also daughter, Joan Stanley Meyer of New York, who, with her father, Architect Robert Frantz of Saginaw, loaned the painting to the library for the duration of Art Festival week in Charlevoix.

Mrs. Meyer, a popular artist, often exhibits in the Charlevoix Waterfront Fair. Mrs. Meyer's daughter, also named Sarah, has inherited the family talent and at this date it appears Charlevoix may have a continuing privilege of sharing some reflected glory in the great talents of the Mahon, Stanley, Frantz and Meyer fame.

School dist. voters go to polls Monday

Charlevoix School District voters return to the polls for the third time this year on Monday to determine the fate of next term's school program.

Following two election defeats, at which 3.75 mills for operational expenses were asked, the School Board has lowered its request to 2.99 mills.

In doing so, some district programs have been dropped from the budgetcompletely, and others have been reduced in scope.

In addition to the 2.99 request, voters will also cast ballots on a request for one mill for five years for insturctional materials.

Voters also turned thumbs down on the single mill request twice, but by slightly smaller margins.

School Board members have termed the request a "get-by measure". According to the Board, the millage would allow the district to operate adequately, but does not allow for improved education.

The election will be held in Charlevoix High School from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. All registered voters may cast ballots.

Lt. Don Luedke, right, reads citation to retiring Chief Petty Officer Master Richard J. Cobey, while Chief Petty Officer Master Charles C. Hambley, his replacement, looks on. Petty Officer Cobey is retiring after 21 years in the Coast Guard, the last year and one half in Charlevoix. He will retire to California.

Ex-resident gets award

Stanley M. Swinton, assistant general manager and director of world services of The Associated Press in New York City, has received the Distinguished Service Award of the American Asiatic Association.

Swinton is a native and former resident of Charlevoix.

Born in 1919, he wrote his first news story at the age of 15 for the now-defunct Charlevoix Sentinel, and he has been in journalism ever since.

Swinton recalls that the Sentinel was the Courier's "competition" at that time. His two-inch story brought him $1 . . . .and a desire to stay in journalism.

Swinton has had the journalistic career of which young reporters dream.

As a foreign correspondent, his byline has appeared on dispatches from more than 100 countries.

As an executive, he bears the twin titles of Assistant General Manager and Director of World Services for The Associated Press, the oldest and largest international press association.

Stan–he prefers that to the more formal Stanley Mitchell Swinton–has covered wars, revolutions and foreign ministries. He is a personal friend of the famous, ranging from film stars to presidents.

He wrote a famous eye-witness account from behind the German lines when Benito Mussolini, Italy's Fascist dictator, was killed and hung by his heels by Communist partisans. The late King Farouk once expelled him from Egypt for disclosing to the world that Farouk planned to make the fiance of a young Egyptian commoner his Queen against her will.

In 16 years as a foreign correspondent, Swinton covered revolutions in Indonesia, Vietnam, Malaya and Burma. During World War II, on leave from AP, he was a front-line correspondent for Stars and Stripes, the Army newspaper, in North Africa, Italy and Southern France, where he and cartoonist Bill Mauldin landed together on D-Day. He resumed his war correspondent's role during the Korean conflict.

In 1946 he covered the first phases of the Vietnamese revolution, which then was directed against France. He interviewed Ho Chi Minh, the leader of North Vietnam, several times in the capital of Hanoi. In 1966 he was the first American newsman allowed back into Indonesia after the Communists were overthrown.

Today Swinton directs AP news and newsphoto distribution in more than 100 countries outside the United States. An average year finds him overseas four months with visits to more than 20 countries.

Swinton has been in charge of AP operations in Southeast Asia, the Middle East, Italy and much of the Mediterranean before returning to New York as General News Editor of AP's World Services in 1957. Later, he was promoted to Director of World Services. In 1964 he was given the additional title of Assistant General Manager.

Swinton won the National Interscholastic High School Press Association editorial award as a high school senior. His first published short story, written at 16, won him an Avery Hopwood Fiction Award at the University of Michigan. At Michigan he was city editor of The Michigan Daily, an AP daily, correspondent for several papers, president of the Michigan chapter of Sigma Delta Chi and did regular programs over the Michigan Radio Network with Tom Harmon and Mike Wallace, both fellow students and noted TV personalities now.

He joined The Associated Press at Detroit the day he was graduated from the University. Nine months later he left on military leave. During four and one-half years in the Army, his Stars and Stripes byline became known to tens of thousands of soldiers.

Swinton is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, Sigma Delta Chi and the Overseas Press Club.

14-year-old electrocuted

A 14-year-old boy, vacationing in Charlevoix County with his parents, was electrocuted Monday afternoon at the family's vacation home at Big Pine resort in Eveline Township.

Keith Winders apparently was getting out of the water when he touched a water pipe on shore at 3:30 p.m. Another youth in the water, Marc Roth, 14, of Birmingham, went for help and mouth to mouth resuscitation was administered.

He was pronounced dead at the scene.

The youth was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Winders, 1352 Dorchester Street, Birmingham.

The County Sheriff's department is continuing its investigation.

City gets investment recs; hears proposal

City Council heard its accounting firm recommend that a portion of city money be removed from local banks and invested in federal securities.

The recommendation came from Dinwiddie and Kandt, Petoskey accountants, at Council's meeting Monday evening.

Representatives of the firm reviewed the city financial report with the body, and made several recommendations, most of them dealing with procedures.

"The city could be criticized for not investing its money to the best advantage of the people," Darryl Dinwiddie said. "Right now, there is $237,000 invested in certificates of deposit which yield five percent. Investments in federal securities would yield up to eight percent. The city should have its money working to the best advantage."

Council discussed such a move and decided to invest a portion of its emergency fund in treasury bills or other federal securities.

The first transfer will take place shortly, when $20,000 from the electric fund will be invested.

In other business, local attorney Arthur R. Reibel appeared before Council in behalf of Robert Hamilton, owner of Hamilton Boatyard.

Reibel indicated that Hamilton would exchange 14 feet of the East side of his property for 27 feet of property which the city plotted as Alice Street.

Council took the proposal under advisement.

Council also appointed two residents to the Planning Commission. Ronald Peterson, of Garfield Avenue, was named to fill the unexpired term of Lee Moerland, and Councilman Nate Boss was re-appointed to the commission for a one-year term.

City attorney John Michael joined Council in a discussion of the pros and cons of annexation, if needed, is the simpler of the two forms of growth.

Mayor William Fochtman announced that voting machines would probably be coming to the city. A state law was recently passed making it mandatory to purchase machines in communities with more than 800 registered voters. The law becomes effective April 7, 1970.

Council again discussed the flow of traffic on Dixon Street. A decision will be made at the next meeting, but it was the consensus that the one way flow be maintained throughout the year.

Over 250 artists prep for Waterfront Fair, Sat.

BY EDITH GILBERT

Charlevoix's eleventh annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen, to be held on Saturday, has attracted over 250 entries so far reports General Chairman, Mrs. Paul Olsen.

The Fair, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce will be held on the terraces of East Park, but in case of rain, exhibits will be shifted to the Charlevoix High School.

A special exhibit of an impressionist oil painting by Edgar Degas, loaned by Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cummings, entitled "Ballerina" will be shown on the Band Shell.

"Lots of artists are coming back who've been here before," says Mrs. Olsen, "and there are lots and lots of new ones not only from the mid-west but from states as far away as Texas. We even have an application from a French artist who does beautiful wood reliefs. We're fortunate to have a high percentage of professional artists, too!"

Five popular local professional artists who are returning to the Waterfront Fair this year are the Brumms, Staffels, Hugh Riker, Allen Harris and Robert Engle.

Their studios, like the artists, have their own air of romance. Some are set high on a hill; others are located in the middle of a busy shopping center; some are pitched along a Lake Michigan beach; some mushroom on a busy highway. One is stashed away in a converted chicken coop.

NORMAN AND JUDY BRUMM: It was a spring flower, the May-apple, that brought Norman and Judy Brumm together four years ago at the Grand Rapids Art Fair.

A May - apple sketched by Norm. The work was unsigned so Judy, herself an artist wrote asking him to meet her at the Ann Arbor Art Fair and sign the painting. He did meet her there; he signed the painting and made a date with Judy.

Shortly afterward they began exhibiting on Michigan's summer art fair circuit as husband and wife.

This is just one of the pleasant tales that surround the artists and the growing art colony in the Charlevoix, Petoskey, Harbor Springs area.

Norman and Judy Brumm's studio, south of Charlevoix on U.S. 31, looks like a gray shipwreck washed up on the beach during one of Northern Michigan's three-day blows. Framed low against the blue water of Lake Michigan, it's surrounded by marshy grasses and sandy dunes. There's no border of sidewalk or patch of lawn. No welcome mat. No potted geraniums.

Not a clue to indicate that deep inside the constant make-shift additions lies a temple dedicated to the reverance of nature --where the shape of a leaf, the texture of a mushroom, the form of a bird or the shading of a flower are lovingly recorded in metal and enamel sculpture.

Stumbling inside the studio is like moving suddenly into a dark, thick woods filled with silent birds and butterflies; bits of bark; wild berries in blossom; brown leaves and books. Most of these items are stashed on shelves either under glass or in jars; every available sample ready for quick scrutiny by Norman and Judy. This is where they live and work together.

The three Brumms (there's son Andy, now, too) recently made their second extensive trip to Mexico in their travel-trailer, with studio equipped with acetylene torch, solder and copper sheets along with diapers and bottles..

Norm and Judy work as a team creating and designing their metal table sculptures which are sold in many fine shops and galleries including the Left Bank Gallery, Flint; Gallery One and the Mole Hole, both in Petoskey; Abercrombie and Fitch, Chicago and America House in Birmingham, Mich.

BONNIE AND WILLIAM STAFFEL: "If Bonnie wasn't a potter she'd be a beach-comber!" confides husband William Staffel as he stands in front of their converted chicken coop situated on five-acres of rolling grassland adjoining an old orchard on Route 1 seven miles south of Charlevoix.

For the last four years the Staffel's

Among the 393 students who received degrees from Central Michigan University last week were Leonard S. Staley of 244 Carpenter Street, Charlevoix, and Annette M. Schenck, 20 2909 M-66, East Jordan.

Staley received a master's degree, and Miss Schenck was the receipent of a bachelor's degree in education.

Five foreign students, all candidates for graduate degrees, were listed among the graduates. Included are students from 57 Michigan counties and from 12 states other than Michigan.

The July graduating class, annually one of Central's smallest, did not participate in a formal commencement program, but all graduates are welcome to attend the mid year commencement program in January.

This year's graduating class numbered nearly 100 more than in July 1968.

Camp Charlevoix

Corral Chatter

The fifth week of camp started off with a very rainy Monday, and as it had rained all day Sunday, all night Sunday night, and all day Monday, things were really wet. Monday morning, the camp nurse put all the new campers through a physical exam, looking for scratches, bruises, colds, athlete's feet, etc. etc. In the afternoon, each Section met for a Green-Grey Quiz program. Questions were geared to the ages, and after much good competition, the Greys picked up three points, winning in three Sections and tying in the fourth. In the evening, the boys were shown a movie of twelve top cartoons, and they really enjoyed them.

Tuesday was a beautiful bright, sunny, warm day and activities were off to a flying start for the new boys. Swim tests were held so that boys could be classified according to ability. The Intermediate Section left camp for overnight, the cabins involved were Numbers 12, 13, 14, 15, with Cabin 16 staying in camp.

Wednesday was another beautiful day with the temperature up around 82 degrees and in the late afternoon, the entire Junior Section took off on an overnight. It was quite a sight as Cabins 1 and 2 hiked over to our campcraft area, while cabins 3, 4,, 5, and 6 hiked over to Susan Lake. The little fellows were all excited and pleased that camp trucks took over their gear and their food. In the evening, we had a CAPTURE THE CAMPER event, and boys love this. The campers hide in the woods, and the counsellors take off looking for them. The teams with the fewest boys caught, get the points, so the competition is great. At the end of the evening, the Greys won 3 points, the Greens only 1, so these Greys were really gaining, as the seasons score at this point was GREENS 20, GREYS 18. This was the day that the teams elected their leaders. The following boys were chosen: Junior Greens: Capt. Pat Green, Lts. Ken Hayden and Tim Kelly. Junior Greys, Capt. Scott Peterson, Lts. Scott Striglos and Dan Wells. The Prep Greens picked Capt. David Townsend, with Lts. Bob Healey and Robbie Stockwell. Prep Greys chose Capt. Tony Smith, with Lts. Nick Genematas and Steve Edmands. The Intermediate Greens picked Capt. Chuck Zitsman, with Lts. Scott MacNair and Ignazio Bolonotto. The Intermediate Greens chose as Capt. Ed Henkel, with Lts. Mark Achor and Tim Washburn. The Senior Greens chose as Capt. David Rhame and as his Lts. Leigh Merrill and Steve Bernia. The Senior Greys picked Capt. Dennis Bledsoe with Lts. Pete Bowers and John Dancer. There is a great amount of leadership among these boys and it will be interesting to see how they organize their teams.

Thursday was a dark and windy day with the sun shining off and on. The sailboats had to be pulled up on shore to be sure they didn't break anchor. In the afternoon the sun was bright, and though still windy, regular activities were held. Overnight trips were cancelled due to wet grounds in our area. The Seniors had a Capture the Flag event which the Greys won.

Friday was a beautiful sunny warm day and boys were busy with their activities. Representatives from each cabin were elected to the Camper Council, with the honor going to the following boys: Ben Dancer, Jamie Zitsman, Lee Wells, Jeff Edison, Dave Lockhart, Don Sinelli, Cliff Smith, Karl Ruedemann, Bill Guggenheim, Lock McKelvy, Robb Stockwell, Chuck Zitsman, Bob Haynie, Rick Matthews, Scott MacNair, Ben Miller, Eric Artman, Terry Mast, Bob Wilson, Mark Wever and Jim Johnson.

On Saturday morning, we took our ball team over to Camp Sea Gull. It was a close game, but our boys lost 14-11. This was the day for the dance at Camp Chick-A-Mi, the boys in cabins, 19, 20, and 21 were busy polishing shoes, showering, etc. The Assistant Counsellors also went along, and once again, our school bus (new to us this year) really came in handy. In the evening we had the first skit night of the year. It was organized by David Porter, one of our counsellors who is a dramatic major, and all of the skits showed imagination and were very well done. Needless to add that the boys in the skits enjoyed them, as did the audience. Cabin 4, Bob Arters boys, put on two short skits, "Shut Up in Trouble" and "The Ghost of Mable". Woody Roe's boys in cabin 6 put on "The Snake Bite" with Don Sinelli as the snake. Cabin 9, Dave Porter's own cabin put on three short skits. Cabin 15, Ed Kalat's boys put on a skit about Movie Making, with Mark Achors reading the script. Cabin 16, Lee Fernstrums boys put on one called "The Editor's Desk". It was very funny and had some good lines. Cabin 17, Merrill Stahaeli's boys put on "The Enlarging Machine". It was really an evening of fun, and everyone had a good time.

Boys are starting RODEO practice and parents are reminded that this event is on Friday afternoon, August 22, at 3 p.m. We ask that parents plan to arrive about that time and they they do NOT come down into camp, as boys will be very busy.

Sunday morning chapel was held out in the woods in our lovely setting, with Bill Townsend, Director of Activities, as the speaker. He spoke on "Building A Personality" which gave the boys a great challenge. The Scripture was read by Terry Mast and the prayer was given by Brad Mast. It was a beautiful day, on the hot side, and the campers had a great time at a Waterfront Afternoon. It was Green-Grey Competition. After all the events were over, the Greys had won all four points, and gone into the lead for the first time this summer, 22-21.

In the evening, the Junior Section was taken over to Greensky Hill to visit the Indian Church and Indian Cemetery. Lee Fernstrum conducted the tour and told the boys all about the area. It is most interesting.

Boys are already enrolling for next summer and as of this date there are over 40 enrolled. So we are already planning for the 1970 season, with only three weeks of 1969 left.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Gengle

Miss Hamilton weds James A. Gengle

Robert S. Hamilton announces the marriage of his daughter, Frances Christine, to James Anthony Gengle, son of Mrs. Frank Gengle, and the late Mr. Gengle.

The couple were wed on June 29 at the Treasure Island Naval Chapel, San Francisco, Chaplain Don. M. Michael at a 7 p.m. service.

Attendants were Ruth Ann Gengle and Dean Gengle.

The bride wore a French Lace Cage over taffetta dress, with gathered re-embroidered lace circling the jewel neck line. She wore a silk illusion shoulder length veil with a taffetta Dior bow. She carried a white butterfly orchid bouquet with white roses and baby breath.

The couple will reside in Oakland, California.

Davis says state jobs available

State Representative Robert W. Davis has announced that the Civil Service Department is now accepting applications for state jobs in the diversified fields of prison social work and Great Lakes port development.

Representative Davis said that an August 18 deadline has been set for submission of applications for the jobs, which are available on an open competitive basis.

The port specialist position, employment level 14, has an annual salary range of $12,600 to $16,400. Prison social workers, level 9, receive $8,250 to $10,150 per year.

An evaluation of education and experience will be an important factor in judging applicants. Written tests for the jobs, if necessary, are scheduled for September 20. An oral appraisal may also be required.

Rep. Davis suggested that anyone interested in more complete information on the qualifications, work responsiblities and salaries of these and other state employment opportunities should contact their local state employment office or write to the Michigan Civil Service Department in the Lewis Cass Building, Lansing.

Chamber Chat

BY WALLY LODER

CHAMBER MANAGER

These humans stoop to many things. The brown trout population in the fish pond next to this office is slowly being reduced, and none of them are dying of any natural causes and temporarily floating on the top of the water, either.

One of my more recent and interesting observations, especially in early evening or on Sunday, is a little trip over to our Municipal Airport. Try it some time. Manager Joe McPhillips and his wife would be pleased to see visitors. In the peak season now, I have observed many comings and goings and furthermore, it is interesting to note the number of planes on the ground for overnight or longer storage. Recently I counted 21 and another time 27. To me, this facility is as fascinating and interesting as our beautiful harbor. Maybe I am alone, but I enjoy it.

Of course, it is to be expected here at this office, and there are received a wide variety of compliments and complaints and the most recent complaint, and the gentleman was truly rebelling, was that he had to pay $1.25 in Charlevoix for a Tom Collins.

For you boat travelers, I noticed an article in July 25 Marina News that Ontario, Canada, is revising boating pollution laws. If you care to read it, stop by this office.

Any of you ribbon winners, having to do with our Venetian Festival street parade, congratulations, and ribbons are being mailed. Also expression of thanks for voluntary contributions to the street parade and queen's contest have been mailed. Further having to do with the Venetian Festival, of course, we all here were disappointed and regretted the necessity of calling off the program Sunday afternoon, July 27, and including the boat parade. However, we were fortunate to get the fireworks run off, many of the patient folks stayed and others came in for the fireworks, which has resulted in many compliments coming in here at this office.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of this Chamber is held as usual the first Tuesday of each month, this month being August 5. The highlights will appear in the next issue.

I should like to point out for what it is worth, the folks down at Alma, Michigan, which community is responsible for the nationally known Alma Highland Festival, has been very well in advance preparing the next Alma Highland Festival and Games, Saturday, May 23, 1970. I have already received a printed booklet on the affair.

In the regular publication from the C of C of the U.S., there are interesting bits, and I quote two recent ones..."Communications is not what you say, or how you say it; it's whether the person you are communicating with understands, and believes, what say". Robert Leys, vice president, Allstate Insurance Company. Another is "The free enterprise system cannot continue to succeed if private business is not willing to play a role in shaping our environment as well as responding to it"--William Miller, president, Textron, Inc. And I choose to add another "There is nothing wrong in change, if it is in the right direction. To improve is to change. To be perfect is to have changed often."--Winston Churchill.

I should like to add it appears that every voluntary organization will be what its members want it to be. Chambers can be outstanding—that has been amply proven. Many are. The vehicle is unimpeachable; the people in it are not. The vehicle goes where its people insist, and stops when they leave it. You're one of the passengers. No chamber is able unless the members are behind it with willing support and are willing to participate all within reason. There is no real reason why there should be an ineffective chamber anywhere. The success pattern was thoroughly developed. A chamber is organized by cooperation and effort, and if this is not obtainable, then????

Rep. Davis says surplus too small

"The final week of the regular legislative session was the most hectic of the year," according to State Representative Robert W. Davis.

"For the third week in a row we had sessions lasting from morning until midnight in an attempt to get final action on the mass of bills on the calendar.

"By mentioning those exhausting hours I'm not trying to impress anyone. While the long sessions did take place, it's my opinion that the extended rush-rush work days at the end of a session could be, and should be, avoided. Proper planning and leadership could prevent these jam-ups, but things always seem to be put off until the end," he said.

During the last week final action was taken on the State budget, always the top priority item on our agenda each year, and a number of other important measures. Some other significant proposals were defeated or delayed until fall, when the Legislature will reconvene. During the interim a number of study committees have been asked to make in-depth studies of proposals for future action, and members will be gathering background material on education reform which will be the number one item of the fall meeting.

"I am devoting this report to the 1969-70 State Budget," Rep. Davis noted.

Michigan expenses for the 1969-70 fiscal year have been set at $1.535 billion which should leave a small surplus of $5 or $6 million. The budget, as passed by the Legislature and sent to Governor Milliken, is about $25 million higher than the Governor's recommendation of $1.510 billion.

The executive budget bureau reported recently that revenues are running higher than anticipated, which will keep spending within available income this year. The Governor said that in view of the improved revenue picture he was generally pleased with the budget as passed by the Legislature.

"I would agree with that statement. I generally approve of the job the Legislature did on the budget. I do have some reservations about some of the appropriations included. I thought we should have held spending closer to the Governor's recommendations and provided for a somewhat larger surplus to protect against unforseen problems. Even the most optomistic estimates I have heard of the projected surplus are $10 million. In the past events have often forced additional mid-year spending of more than that. It is not likely, but it is possible, that the State could find itself pinched for funds before the current fiscal year is over," he added.

Pat's Reaction

Summer Yummies

Summer time is the time of year for dads, mothers and children to abandon all pretenses like regular meals at regular hours and to do a little experimenting.

I for one am a real stickler about breakfasts during the school year. For instance no one in our family is allowed to eat sweet cereals during the school week for I feel that they are all sugar and no vitamins. Far be it from me to have some little chick of mine turn into a lackluster at eleven in the morning simply because he needs a protein push. But in the summer I don't care, for if someone is hungry he can always get something else to eat.

Therefore as soon as school was out I lifted my winter restriction against sweet cereals and let my children eat them whenever they wanted to do so. Do you know what happened? The children soon got tired of Captain Crunch, Trix and Sugar Smacks and actually chose to eat Oat Flakes and Wheaties. That was really a good thing too for when we were at the beach and they got that starved feeling at about eleven o'clock I didn't feel the least bit conscience stricken passing out pennies for Pixie Stix and licorice whips.

Do you know what pixie stix are? If not your summer education is not complete. Pixie stix are long thin pencil like papers which contain a dry kool aid type sand. They're pretty good if you like colored sand. Those red licorice whips are the really gritty yummies. I've noticed that kids like to show off by buying a whole fistful of them and then letting them lie around on beach towels for all the other kids to envy. The whips may be smooth to start with, but by the time that the children eat them they are so sandy that you could use them to polish Petoskey stones.

Now although I can't take licorice in those gritty licorice whips there's another summer treat in licorice that I'm just crazy about. That's the Bat Girl ice cream cones that are available in this area in the summer. I suppose that City Slickers can eat them all winter so licorice ice cream is no treat for them, but for us natives it's a real departure and blackens up the summer. A double dip cone of Bat Girl and Bubble Gum ice cream is a taste sensation that is unforgettable.

Once in a while when our family gets off schedule for meals or I get too harassed to remember the last hectic time that we tried it we get in the car and head for the drive in restaurant. The waitresses are smiling, the food is yummy and the price is right, but what is it then that turns the whole experience into a fiasco?

It's the accommodations. Six of us just can't eat dinner in the car with root beer floats and fried chicken without everyone turning into a mess. Daddy and my older daughter never accompany us to these drive-in events. They'd rather stay home and starve. No matter how hard we try someone is bound to get ice cream in his lap of ketchup down his back. It's inevitable, but since it's also so convenient I suppose that I'll just have to take the worse with the best and eat in a relaxed manner at the drive-in from time to time this summer.

After all when I get home there's always Biz for the clothes and Joy for the bubble bath. I just sort them out clothes in one pile and children in the other and swing into action to clean the residue of summer off of them both.

Library notes

The weather being what it is and with patrons coming into the Library wearing nautical costumes and golfing togs, we thought it was time to suggest some of the summer sporting books on our shelves.

"Sport for the Fun of it" by John R. Tunis, is a compact little volume dealing with every sport from archery, badminton and bicycles, to golf, softball and tennis. Sports for everyone, of all ages, are listed, and the book contains current changes in official rules.

"Enjoying Life as a Sportsman's Wife", by Jean Vermes is a light-hearted book written for the wife who is not a rugged-pal outdoors type. The author gives good advice on how to speak the husband's language, how to be enthusiastic about his tall tales, how to freeze and cook what he brings home and how to live with your mate even when he fills the garage with duck down and dumps a bucket of squirming fish in the kitchen sink.

"The Fun of Family Camping" is a practical guide, written by George S. Wells, the editor of Camping Guide magazine and a well-known expert in the field. Drawing on his own camping experiences in all parts of the continent, Wells discusses recent changes in methods and equipment. It is an invaluable handbook for lovers of today's tamed wilderness.

"Small Boat Cruising" by D. M. Desoutter is a practical guide to moderately priced cruising boats and their handling. There are charts, photographs and instructional sketches. The chapters deal with navigation, buoys and lights; anchoring and mooring, rules and regulations, taking care of sails etc. and is an important book for boat enthusiasts, Arnold Palmer has written "Portrait of a professional golfer" and nothing much more needs to be said. There are many large, clear photographs.

Sportsman's Camping Guide" was written especially for hunters, fishermen and other outdoorsmen. It covers such vital matters as trip planning, equipment, fishing camps, water traveling, cold weather camping, game cooking, float trips and canoes, first aid and the care and handling of firearms.

"Scuba Diving" is a sensible and well-photographed guide for the young sportsman. The author explains basic equipment -- types and styles, what to look for and what to guard against. Van Ellman describes spearfishing, specimen collecting, underwater photography and underwater exploration. It is a fascinating guide to one of the sportsman's most exhilarating--and valuable--pastimes.

"Modern Surfing around the World," by John Severson, is a large, attractive book, profusely illustrated with photographs which show the author and other surfing experts in action. Even those who are not sport minded, will enjoy the amazing and spectacular photography in this book.

This week the Library is very proud to acknowledge two extremely unusual contributions. On loan to the Library for the few short remaining summer weeks is the primitive "Charlevoix Harbor in the 1890's" painted by Salli Frantz. This important Michigan artist spent her summers in Charlevoix for many years. Her memories of Charlevoix which she put on canvas in such a light-hearted, chuckling way are now collectors' items. This particular painting--surely one of her best known and most famous--is on exhibit in the front area of the Library and patrons are invited to come in and view it during the short time it will be on display.

Mrs. Gregory Williamson, one of our most generous patrons, presented the Library with a copy of the magnificent Andrew Wyeth collection in memory of Mrs. Katharane Babst Parsons. The making of the book was supervised by the artists step by step. Almost the entire body of his major work was photographed directly from the originals for this book. The binding of so large a book presented a unique problem requiring the setting up of special machinery and much careful handwork. No comparable effort on so large a scale in the field of fine printing has ever been made in this country. America's great artist and America's most expert bookmakers have combined to make this remarkable book, and everyone's "Wyeth favorite" is included.

Dawn of the Gods, by Jacquwtta Hawkes is another handsome volume contributed to the Library by Mrs. Williamson. This history of ancient Crete is profusely illustrated with large photographic plates and will be of interest to the art lover as well as the student of history.

To commemorate the Charlevoix Art Festival, the Library will have a special display of art books which can be circulated or enjoyed during a visit to the Library on the way to or from the Fair.

The display will include a beautiful volume on Matisse by Giuseppe Marchiori who very tastefully reviews Matisse's work from both the historical and esthetic point of view. There are $20 illustrations of which 16 in full color.

Painting in America from 1502 to the Present is a great and definitive book dealing with the history of American painting. It covers every painter who has had lasting significance.

Abstract Painting with text by Michel Seuphor is another handsome book with 530 reproductions including 382 in full color. This book was presented to the Library by Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury Ransom in memory of sali frantz.

"The Story Behind the Painting will also be on special display for the Art Festival. Here are unforgettable stories about the world's greatest painters and their masterpieces. It is the product of five years of creative effort by the editors of Look Magazine. There are 139 illustrations, many of which are in full color.

FASTBALL LEAGUE

Things reach the crucial stage in the fastball league this week as league leader, American Mold, clashes head on with its two nearest rivals, Modusa and Morweld Steel. Neither team can afford a loss against the defending champions.

American Mold took a giant step towards the second round title when they scored an eighth inning 4-3 victory over Morweld. Mike Lord gave the Ellsworth boys a one run lead, then teammate Hud Drenth duplicated the trick an inning later for a 2-0 lead. Ken Balch and Harvey Cole strung together base hits to get one back, and an unearned run in the next frame tied it. It stayed that way until the eighth when Morweld appeared to "salt it" away on Ken Richardson's triple. However, Balch singled, and when Cole tripled it was tied. This set the stage for Don Kowbell, who promptly dropped a single into short center to send the winning marker home.

Medusa used similar tactics to stay in the race. They trailed County State Bank 4-1 all the way to the sixth inning. Then things happened. Steve Smith, Raphy Doan, and Davenport hit consecutive singles. Steve Faculak doubled home everybody and Stew Cunningham singled home an insurance run for a 6-4 win. The losers had hitting heroes aplenty, with Gary Stutzman collecting three, and Gary Crain and Jim Stewart two each.

Mold's second victory was much easier as Nate Boss allowed the Bank but three hits in route to a 9-1 victory. Lee Cross, Ken Balch, and Jim Alger all collected two hits each. Mike Crain's homer was the only damaging blow for the losers.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Electra went down to two defeats during the week, losing to both DeYoungs and Freedmans. Novaks, first round champions, were rained out of their game.

Batting averages indicate that Steward Coleman has the edge on several teammates in the race for the batting crown. He is hitting at a .579 clip while teammates Norm Ostrum and Kraag Lieberman are tied for second at .500.

PEANUT LEAGUE

The Cards picked up where they left off with two lopsided wins during the week. The first round champs bombed the Tigers 12-2 behind Jim Potter's five inning no-hitter. They handed the Lions a 9-2 loss earlier.

The Astros came close against the Braves before falling by one run 5-4.

SLOW PITCH LEAGUE

The big game in the slow pitch league between the two league leaders takes place tonight (Wed.) when Olesons and Carey Oil clash at 6:30. Both teams are 5-1 and both won big last week.

Olesens pounded out a 19-3 win over Astros with three home runs by Duane Taylor, Phil Skeel, and Duane Wiiks.

Dean Mikulski's two round-trippers led Carey's to a 17-12 win over the Air Force. Ron Gibbs had two homers in a losing cause.

The other game will be the battle to escape the cellar with both teams, Air Force and Astrns taking identical 1-5 records with them.

BLOOPER LEAGUE

Howards Oilers continued to mop up the opposition in the Blooper League. They defeated Freedmans 11-3 with the big news being the unassisted triple play made by second baseman Tom Garlock. After a diving catch he calmly tagged two runners and a big Freedman threat was thwarted.

Medicine Chest and Mold hooked up in one fine contest with M. Cudd's triple in the bottom of the sixth, scoring two runs for a 2-1 win.

WOMENS LEAGUE

The Dairy Queens and Burger Chef continued along their merry way in search of the Women's League crown. However, they are on a collision course and their rained-out game to be made up later will no doubt determine the winner.

Burger Chef dumped Edwards 10-0. Bev Sobleski led the winners with three hits.

Likewise, the Dairy Queen had no trouble with John Deer, winning in easy fashion.

Coho Navy 'hot line'

The Coho Navy, during a late evening action session in Ludington, adopted measures that will mean much to the salmon fishermen this year. The Navy, which is made up of charter boats with home ports along the entire length of Michigan's West Coast, established an information "hot line" for fishermen to call. The number is Area Code 616-T-H-E - C-O-H-O. (843-2646) when dialed in letters instead of numbers.

Information on where the schools of big fish are and how to get to them will be passed along to all fishermen who dial THE COHO number.

The Navy will hold maneuvers on Saturday, August 2, following a briefing at breakfast at 6:30 a.m. at the Stearns Motor Inn in Ludington. The fleet will sail from the port of Ludington for fish exercises.

The importance of the "hot line" to the sports fishermen cannot be over rated. It will provide him with information updated hourly so that he may enjoy the best Great Lakes fishing season yet.

Over 250 prep for Waterfront Fair

Robert Engle, pop artist, works in his Harbor Springs studio.

have loaded their station wagon in Maumee, Ohio with ceramic pots, hand blown glassware, weavings and prints and travelled north to their summer studio where they sell their woodsy ceramics and witty stationery to eager tourists.

Bonnie and Bill met 25 years ago at the American Academy of Art in Chicago and since then both have received national recognition in the art world. Bonnie's plump ceramic birds are sold in New York by George Jensen and will be available in Detroit this fall at Warren's Jewelry Store.

"We exhibit every year both at the Ann Arbor and the Charlevoix Waterfront Fair," says Bill. "We have regular customers who look for us on the first day before we're even unpacked. Sometimes people look around before they come back and decide to buy, but by that time their favorite piece is gone! Most artists are glad to hold it for them if they'd ask...Fairs are funny. One fellow will sell five hundred dollars at one fair and absolutely nothing at another. Gradually we learn which Fair is the right for us!"

Last winter, Bonnie was invited to join a group of studio craftsmen at the Toledo Museum of Art where she is learning how to blow glass creatively. "It's like working with taffy," Bonnie says, "and I've developed muscles I never knew I had!"

But that isn't all. This summer's project is weaving wall hangings. Open, lacy patterns through which Bonnie slips unusual grasses and weeds that she finds only in this area. Where? On the beach, of course!

ALLEN HARRIS: In a rough hewn, converted barn with weathered cedar shingles, surrounded by picturesque wagon wheels, buggy seats, etc., Allen Harris sets up his summer studio overlooking Lake Charlevoix. Here in Ironton, the Harris family, (originally from St. Louis) has vacationed for many years and each summer, Harris one of America's most noted sculptors perfects his wax models which are later cast at his foundry in Philadelphia.

As a practitioner of America's dying art of bronze casting, Harris has won numerous awards in the U.S. and abroad for his work. Many of his works are in collections throughout the world including the Swedish Academy in Rome and the Cortille of Honor in Pompeii.

Harris is an instructor of sculpture at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Art and has for several years exhibited at the Charlevoix Waterfront Fair. This year, Harris will exhibit "Swimming Girl" at the one day fair. This bronze will be returned to the fountain at Castle Vanllaver for the rest of the season.

HUGH RIKER: Hugh Riker's studio is not set in pastoral isolation, but is located in the middle of Oleson's Shopping Center on the main drag in Charlevoix. He shares the Loft, as it is called with his attractive bride Margaret who runs a charming antique shop facing the street.

Riker arrived in Charlevoix two summers ago on the second Saturday in August--the annual date of the Charlevoix Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen. With one appraising look at the colorful activity going on by the rolling terraces adjoining Round Lake, he quickly decided, "This is the place I want to live!"

Riker's reputation as a pen and ink artist was well-established before settling in Charlevoix thanks to an earlier commission in 1962 when he was asked to do a picture of the late President Kennedy's Palm Beach home, a sketch that was used on the President's social stationery.

Subsequently Burdine's Department Store in Florida commissioned Riker to do more Florida scenes for note papers and since then orders have poured in from all corners of the United States, including a commission from J.L. Hudson Co. for Detroit scenes to be done this fall. Riker also completed a pictorial history of Frankenmuth, Mich., which happens to coincide with the complete history of the Lutheran Church in Michigan. This project took three months to complete.

ROBERT ENGLE: Robert Engle's airy summer studio is set high on a hill like a square soap bubble caught in a tree top. Once inside, one sees a view of rolling green countryside through the large glass windows, framed by a gnarled fruit tree.

In the studio are shelves where finished ceramic pop pots and wind bells are displayed for the adventuresome tourist who finds his way to this remote hide-away five miles from Harbor Springs on the State Road.

How does one learn about Engle's Studio? Not by radio advertisements or billboards you can be sure, like Castle Van Haver, but by the softer sell of Sorority girl waitresses from Juillerets (an ice-cream parlor, restaurant in Harbor Springs where "Sleepy Time Gal" was composed in 1923) and where some of Engle's pots are displayed. It's a cozy arrangement for in return the girls are invited every year for a hearty buffet luncheon on the studio lawn!

Engle usually arrives at the studio around June 1 after completing his teaching assignment as Assistant Professor of Art at Ohio Wesleyan University where he teaches both ceramics and photography. Then during July and August he teaches a ceramics class for Bay View Summer College in a separate outdoor studio in the afternoons, but his eager-beaver students usually arrive at noonish, unpack their lunch, turn up their portable radios and stretch out in the sun.

Tall, lanky, relaxed and smiling Engle reminisces about a 7 month travel and study trip to Japan in 1967 thanks to a Great Lakes College grant which took him to numerous small home operated potteries located in the back country. He travelled from place to place on his motorcycle, cooked his own meals and slept in various Buddhist temples each night which he explains have accommodations like our Y.M.C.A.'s for the lonely traveller.

The the Nori Taki Factory, Engle's decal approach to ceramics had it's origin as he watched factory workers apply rose decals to china plates. Upon his return he began experimenting with transferring photographic images onto clay surfaces, images of Bette Davis, Winston Churchill, Brigitte Bardot, etc.

"I'm not interested in pots which are simply pleasant to live with--items for interior decoration. I'm interested in pots which are visually challenging and which pose intellectual problems to be solved."

Engle's problem pots, decals and all will be at the Charlevoix Waterfront Fair again this year. "I haven't missed this Fair in nine years--including the year I went to Japan!" Not a bad record.

Gift given to Hospital

This week Charlevoix Hospital received a birthday gift from the James J. Reis Pediatric Fund. The gift is a beautiful Zenith color television for the pediatric room. It will be placed on a swivel shelf which can be rotated to accommodate the small patients who might be bed-ridden.

This fund was established a few years ago by the children of James J. Reis, and is to be used toward the comfort of pediatric patients. Anyone wishing to commemorate an occasion in honor of, or in memory of a friend or relative, may do so by sending a contribution to the hospital and specifying this fund. The hospital will in turn send the proper card to the recipient.

Through this most generous gift many people will be touched, the children, the parents who comfort their child and the dedicated nursing staff.

1st. State 'moved-in'

First State Bank of Charlevoix experienced a fine "move-in" on Saturday, July 26, to its new banking facility at 111 State Street. The bank, which is 64 years old, has enjoyed tremendous growth in recent months. An item of note, according to Jerrald Redeker, President, and Chuck Themm, Vice President, when reviewing records on July 3, they came across Savings Account No. 1. This account was coincidently opened 64 years earlier, also on July 3.

First State Bank expressed appreciation to the Charlevoix School Band, which musically led the "move-in" parade by a contribution to the Band Boosters Club. Also a contribution was made to the Boy Scout Troop No. 111, and Cub Scout Pack No. 111, who carried the (not too light) bags of coin from the old vault to the new vault. The parade procession was gala and created keen interest during the Venetian Festival.

It was learned that many persons found some "marked" styrofoam First State Bank antenna balls that were dropped from a helicopter that same day. Any one who found a marked ball can bring it to First State Bank during August (one per person) to be entitled to an amount of $5 to open a new, or add to an existing savings account.

During the "drop" it was reported that some of the balls dropped into the yacht basin. Some persons decided that a dip was in order and dove right in after a ball hoping that it may have a number on it. Also some phone calls were received asking if the balls had to be cut open to find the "hidden" numbers.

Many persons have already stopped by to see the new office and walk on the plush red carpet. First State Bank will invite the public to a formal open house in late September, when they will have new 1970 model automobiles on display from the local dealers. However, all are welcome to stop by at any time to cool off in the air-conditioned lobby or community room, or on a cool day to feel free to stop by and sit by the warmth of the fireplace in the lobby.

The bank reported that the new community room, named "One Eleven State Room" has already been used by one civic group. The bank officers are happy to have this facility to offer to any civic or benefit group, by appointment. While attention is being focused on the new banking facility on State Street, the Bridge Street office remains open and is undergoing modification, offering a sheltered walk-up window, thus extending a greater variety of service both downtown and off main street with plenty of parking space.

EMU boasts new building

The new seven-story Pray-Harrold Building at Eastern Michigan University has the greatest student capacity of any classroom building in Michigan. The facility will nearly double classroom space here, accommodating 4,500 students per class period.

Named for two former professors at Eastern, the Pray-Harrold Building has 75 classrooms, four lecture halls, and office space for 407 faculty members. The lecture halls which extend from the main floor of the building will seat 1,400.

Although Michigan State University and the University of Michigan have larger buildings in terms of square feet, Pray-Harrold is the largest in student capacity. The building exceeds the next largest facility in the state by 542.

Pray-Harrold is equipped with new furniture and furnishings. Some classes and faculty offices are located there now. Full use of the facilities is scheduled to begin with the fall semester.

Dental program in Ellsworth

The summer topical fluoride program in Ellsworth began Monday at the Bellaire School according to Linda Cran, chairman of the P.T.A's topical fluoride committee.

Lynne Nensewitz, from Alpena, a senior dental hygiene student at Ferris, is cleaning children's teeth and applying the fluoride solution.

According to Mrs. Cran, 106 children have enrolled in the program, which consists of four visits to the clinic. A few appointments are still available. During the first visit, teeth are cleansed and a solution of fluoride is applied directly to the surfaces of the teeth. The fluoride application only is then repeated at the three succeeding visits.

This procedure has been shown to reduce tooth decay by about 40 percent, compared with the 60 to 65 percent reduction cavities obtained with fluoridated water, she said.

According to Michigan Department of Public Health dentists who assisted in the development of the program and who will supervise Miss Nensewitz, the topical fluoride should not be considered a substitute for regular care of the teeth either at home or by the dentist. Although fluoride applications can help prevent cavities, it is still necessary for children to brush their teeth thoroughly, particularly after meals, avoid between-meal sweet snacks, and visit their dentist. regularly for professional care.

Little League

Charlevoix's Little League program began this year, and at the last count, 24 young men between nine and 12 years of age were learning the fundamentals of baseball.

The city has long enjoyed an outstanding summer softball program for youngsters, but hardball has been neglected.

Ex-teacher L.J. Ford recognizied this lack and took the matter into his own hands. The result is a two-month-old team which, up to now, has been financed entirely by Ford.

Three weeks ago the Little Leaguers decided to sell newspaper subscriptions. With the profits from this sale, the team will be outfitted with enough playing equipment to put it in the class with Little League teams in surrounding communities.

Ford, who now represents a local real estate firm, organized the team and serves as its coach for absolutely no tangible gain (although he may carry around a sore arm from pitching batting practice). He does not even have a child who is old enough to participate.

He feels that baseball, as well as softball, should be a part of a young boy's life. He feels this strongly enough to devote countless hours and money to the project.

Larry Fords are few and far between these days. We thank him for his efforts, and cannot help but wonder if the teaching profession hasn't lost someone who exemplifies what the job of education is all about.

More levity needed

While loafing beside a pool recently, we got to pondering on how ponderous it would be if there were no such word as "nudity." We would have to say "clothlessness."

Or, without "poverty," it would have to be "moneylessness."

The tongue staggers.

These are not frivolous thoughts, brought on by warm breezes and general laziness (worklessness.) Our concern with weighty words, in fact, was prompted by our nation's space program. A newspaper story described the "weightlessness" of a man on the moon. Now there's a terrible word and we'd think so even if we didn't write headlines. It isn't just big; it has no euphony; it is a heavy negative.

Obviously, in a world fast floating into space, a new word is needed. And we have a suggestion. How about "levity?" The dictionary says levity means more than frivolity or lack of seriousness. Levity also means "lightness of weight; buoyancy. . .a tendency opposite to gravity."

Ah, how much better to ask if man could survive in a constant state of levity, rather than weightlessness. It rolls magnificently off the tongue to say the TV showed an astronaut shaving in levity.

There should be more levity. Too much gravity isn't good for a person. Without levity, there are weeks when this might be an editorialless page.

Story to remember

An editor's column in a small Georgia newspaper recently recalled the depression days of the 30's and how hard times brought people together. The incident awful slump in commodity prices.

All possessions of the farm were to be sold by the sheriff at auction. And when auction day arrived some 15 neighboring farmers were on hand. The first item to be auctioned was the bankrupt farmer's 6 prize mules.

A farmer bid $2. There were no other bids. The sheriff hesitated, but his glance met steely eyes from every farmer at the sale. He proceeded with the auction. Machinery brought a dollar or two, or 50 cents; other possessions brought similar amounts. Finally the sale was ended—and every buyer had a legal bill of sale, with the sheriff's stamp attached.

Then they all gathered together and went over to the bankrupt farmer, their neighbor, and gave him the bills of sale. He was back in business again, free of debt.

The philosophy in this true story included a truism that hard times sometimes bring people closer together. Conversely, prosperous times often produce jealousy, envy and undesirable traits and trends. In today's divisions and domestic strife—and hatreds—this is a story to remember.

Farmers deserve some tax relief

Right now, the Treasury Department and the House Ways and Means Committee are planning to end the 7% investment credit. Investment credit allows farmers to deduct from their tax bill 7% of what businessmen pay for new machinery and euqipment.

The whole idea of the 7% investment credit when it was spawned a few years back was to encourage businesses to keep their machinery up-to-date so that industry remains (1) productive and (2) can compete with imports.

Now tax reformers want to do away with investment credit. They say that it's inflationary-raising demand and causing higher prices.

Just the opposite can be argued. Since investment credit increases productivity and the supply of goods, it tends to lower consumer prices. This allows us to compete better with imports and strengthens our currency. Some say that small business and farmers need investment credit anyway, so that they can compete with big businesses, which have easier access to capital.

The least that should be done is to continue the 7% investment credit for the first $25,000 of yearly capital investment by farmers and all other businesses-such as was done in 1966 when investment credit was suspended for 6 months. The reasons are plain enough to see.

Look at the real cause of inflation: Increased government debt, deficit financing, and goading the economy with government spending push up the money supply.

As more money chases available goods, prices go up. This triggers economic forces that push prices even higher. For example, labor unions strike for higher wages, and usually get them. Wage escalation clauses automatically hoist wages as the cost of living rises. Businesses, beset with higher costs, raise their prices-and get away with it, due to inflation fever.

Inflation fever is a general expectation that prices will go right on rising. People go out and borrow to buy more than usual. Business, thinking that prices will be higher later on, borrow now to expand before costs go up. Everyone runs faster just trying to stay even.

Instead of contributing to inflation, farmers have fought it. They are bearing the brunt of it. That's why we say farmers merit tax relief instead of being hit by broadside tax reforms that require them to pay more taxes. Farmers - as well as many others-have already been taxed heavily by an inflation that has backed them into a corner and is shearing them like sheep.

We urge that, as a minimum, the 7% investment credit on $25,000 be retained.

Robin Hoods? No, thieves!

BY DICK BROWN

One generation too late!

That's a price many concerned Americans are paying as they listen, read and observe the gyrations of the new philosophy-new morality of today.

A contrived incident at a Detroit area supermarket a couple of weeks ago coupled with memories of an incident in my purple past points out the difference. Both incidents concerned grapes.

Down in Detroit a group of grape boycotters, including men of the cloth, entered a supermarket and walked out with bags of groceries without bothering to go through checkout lanes or exchanging the coin of the realm for said groceries.

In the parking lot the "thieves" were the glare of popping flash bulbs of the previously alerted gullible big city news boys.

In jail the modern Robin Hoods posed as heroes of the oppressed and were released with fanfare when the prosecutor's office dropped the charges.

The general substance of the heroes' statements were that they were taking groceries to repay past grievances of the poor.

It may not have looked like thievery to the prosecutor but it was thievery never-the-less.

Let's go back a generation to a warm late-summer night when Cordie Bashford's grape plantation at South street and Lansing street was loaded with dark blue nuggets glistening with night dew.

A bunch of west side "Robin Hoods" decided to strike a blow for humanity and embarked on a share-the-wealth crusade. Over the fence we went.

With shirt front bulging with symbolic grapes we turned the end of the row and ran smack dab into Cordie Bashford carrying something in his hands which surprisingly looked like a 105 howitzer.

Sheriff Hugh Silsby was soon on the spot and off we went to be bastille now known as the Hilliard Building, an ironic twist of fate as I recollect there was a Hilliard in the group with a blue stained shirt front.

A Sheriff Silsby lecture for wayward Robin Hoods was something else again. From there is was a ride home to parents who hadn't forgotten where the woodshed was.

The next stop was before 10-foot toll Justice of the Peace William Seelye. All these stops took up most of the night.

Justice was swift and painful. Cordie Bashford had some free bracero labor for a couple of Saturdays although we did cut up a watermelon or 2 or 3 or 4 with him furnishing the melons and the knife.

But make no mistake-at every stop on the road of justice we were labeled thieves. We just couldn't carry off that Robin Hood image.

Frankly, those people who hit the Detroit supermarket didn't carry it off either. They were thieves, too:

Selections

A recent trip through the supermarket brought to our attention the enormous variety of breakfast cereals available to consumers and even though one little tyke nearby cried loudly for a specific kind we would have experienced difficulty in selecting if we had been in the cereal buying mood.

But in ambling up and down the aisles we were struck with the thought that this difficulty in selecting items for purchase has grown to be one of the tiny pressures exerted upon those of us who are members of this affluent society. Almost daily there seem to be dozens of new items added to sales floors and display racks which, at best, are merely modifications of an original product.

We can no longer buy a quart of milk, a car or a hat. We must first determine if the milk is homogenized, fat-free, high-protein or just plain pastuerized. The car may be a beautiful Belchfire Eight with luxurious appointments hanging out of every window, or a Sneezespark Two which is a pocket sized miniature minus the center arm rest. Somewhere is between there's the Firebird Four which has the arm rest but the windows remain tightly closed so the appointments won't hang out.

Anybody remember Witchhazel? Now there was a product that did everything from refresh the mouth to soften corns but through the years so many related items have been introduced to the market that Witchhazel is rarely mentioned. Imagine how neat modern medicine cabinets would be if this all-purpose potion were still popular.

Perhops we are unable to make quick decisions, and if this be the case, we're in for some tough times. About the only thing they're thinning out these days are the ranks of the saints. (Clinton County News)

ONE MAN'S PHILOSOPHY

"Seeing Man os a creature part intellectual, part animal, part living, part vicious, part lustful, part spiritual, we should logically conclude that such a creation was the product not of one God, but of a committee, which was hopelessly deodlocked, and ended with compromise. This conclusion should not dismay theologians, who believe the concept of "one God" leads to a better world. On the controry, if there is only one God, there is a great temptotion to please Him, to fight for Him, to lunch for Him and to declare war in His name. There is no such temptation to do evil in the name of a committee because nobody cares about pleasing a committee."

Cat-lovers, don't read this

Let's start this sad story with a question: Am I the only hard-hearted Scrooge who hates to hove a cot jump on his face, especially when he's sleeping which is often because I'm mighty tired of the woy things have been going oround my house?

Several years ago I wrote that cots were stupid animals, with about as much real usefulness as the Prince of Wales. This was after some dumb broad asked Ann Landers if it would be ok if her cat were her bridesmaid (Ann said yes, if the wedding were held in a kennel which it probably was. The world knows no foolishness to match that which fills pet cemeteries with weeping and flowers every Memorial Day).

Anyway, I olso wrote with glee about my childhood when I used to drop cats off roofs. This was not cruelty, it was scientific research. I dropped them 10 times each to test tho 9-lives theory. Actually, I never hurt a cat, a fact due less to my humanity than to the neighborhood architecture. Ours was a ranch-style block and a full-grown cat could jump over the highest roof.

Please note, dear cat-lovers, that I wrote these terrible things many years ago when I was young and brave and single. And I was immediately attacked by hordes of Little Old Ladies. They collected cot hairs from their furniture and braided them into a cross which they burned in my front yard. Ever since, I have been very respectful of cots and their owners. I even observe Notional Cat Week, drinking my booze from a saucer. I pray that nothing written here today will be misunderstood. I want no more trouble with old ladies, especiolly relatives. Cats are fine.

Except the stupid things keep jumping in my face.

Steady readers (Mother and Aunt Madeline) are probably wondering how a cat ever came to live in our house. Well, in the first place, it's not a cot. It's 2 cats. Honest. In a weak moment, I promised the 2 youngest kids a pet to make up for the loss of our expected child. I decided a cat would be less trouble than dog. And my brilliant wife decided the 2 kids might fight over ownership of 1 cat, so let's get one for each of them. (This worked great. Now Eddie wallops Chrissie "because your cat scratched my cat").

So now the house smells like a barnyard. So now the new furniture might as well be old furniture because it's covered with blankets so the cats can't tear it up. So now I have to look carefully before I sit or step.

And now, worst of all, I must argue with my wife over whether it is cute for 2 cots to leap into the face of a hard-working breadwinner who likes to snooze while watching TV.

"It means they love you," she says.

"Daddy's a dirty rat," Eddie says.

"If you hurt those cots I'll tell the police," Chrissie says.

Boy. If a man's home is his castle, this king hos been overthrown and there are cats littering on my throne.

There was a big discussion about what to call the cats. The kids wanted something clever, such as To and Fro or Huff ond Puff. I suggested Dumb and Dumber. There was finally a democratic vote, while I was at work, and the cats were named Molly and Polly.

But I call them Onward and Upward. Through my tears.

ON THE 'FLIP' SIDE

Our relatives from Pennsylvania have been visiting us for the past couple of weeks and we have taken the opportunity to act like tourists, taking in many of the sights we had missed.

One of our first trips was to Beaver Island. We boarded the Beaver Islander, ladden with cameras, sweaters and lots of hints on where to stop.

+ + +

Then the Venetian Festival was upon us....but so was the rain. Saturday's parade made up for much of the disappointment of cancelled events.

+ + +

So much for Venetian weekend....we'll plan on more sun next year.

Local Little Leaguers are still "on the prowl", and selling Courier subscriptions. They receive $1.50 for each new subscription and will use the money to purchase much needed equipment. In addition, the Courier will award official little league shoes and glove to the top salesmen.

You're helping our youngsters help themselves when you subscribe.

+ + +

The August 11 school election is rapidly approaching, and very little comment is forthcoming from the citizenry.....much less than before the two previous elections. Does this indicate passage?

+ + +

Courier classifieds last week scored again!! One person we know needed a babysitter for her two youngsters while she worked. Her ad brought eight calls in two days. She had her sitter for a dollar.

We received a letter this week from a reader in Falls Church, Virginia. . . .Keith R. Bruhl.

We're not certain whether or not he wrote in jest, but the results are quite humorous. He wrote, in part, "Your paper is prone to picking nits. I refer to two photographs and editorial space devoted to the Pine River speed limit signs. . . .If you had spent your time cutting the underbrush rather than taking pictures you could have performed a public service instead of talking about it."

We have been mulling over his suggestion for some time. . . .should the editor of the Courier take sicle in hand ond brave the elements to free the sign from the clutches of the greenery?

If so, should the organization whose job it actually is be forced to publish the Courier one week?

Should we decide to perform this pruning task, would Pruners and Nitpickers Local 1273 issue a grievance, since we do not carry a union card?

After much thought, we have decided that it is in the best interests of everyone concerned if we allow the proper department to instruct its workers to remove the underbrush.

The ramifications of our editor performing this simple task are too great. And, anyway, it's too much like work!

Monday, August 11, voters of the Charlevoix School District will be asked to vote on a budget request calling for 2.99 mills for one year for operational expenses and one mill for five years for insturctional materials.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Charlevoix High School.

The Courier hopes all registered voters will cast ballots at this election.

Out of the past

Two years ago

--Parker Seiler, school teacher, announced his plans to journey and travel down the Mississippi River on a 12 foot aluminum boat; decorated like an old fashioned river-boat. He planned to leave on August 10 from St. Paul, and reach New Orleans approximately December 1.

--Allen Harris, noted sculptor, displayed a 4 foot bronze female in the park station at the Waterfront Art Fair in Charlevoix. He won numerous awards in the United States and abroad for his work.

--Alderman voted 4-2 to construct a shower-toilet facility for yachtsmen in East Park. The building would also hold public lavatories and a Chamber of Commerce office.

Five years ago

--Glen Rose and Bob Neff were rivals for the Republican nomination as the candidate for County Sheriff. Neff circulated posters, and car stickers and is organizing support in Boyne City and East Jordan. As yet, Rose had held back an effort to meet Neff's strategy.

--Consumer's Power Company's Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant became a symbol of Charlevoix's unique blend of dynamic progress and dynamic beauty. It has attracted about a quarter of a million visitors. Hundreds of people visit the Information Center especially on Wednesday's said Denny Custer, director.

--John Connolly, Jr., was said to have the job of jobs. As dockmaster he communicated with the boaters in the harbor and keeps tabs on them. He also gets to watch the boats and talk to the pretty gals who sun themselves so boldly.

Ten years ago

--Members of the committee to construct a stage in East Park were given added publicity when they appeared on Kenn Haven Limelight show, station WBN-TV, Bob Miles, chairman of the committee, furnished pictures to be used on the show.

--The Upper Torch Lake Association announced its plans to sponsor their annual Fireman's Field Day at Eastport. Guy McPherson is the president of the sponsoring group. Proceeds from the two-day event were used to underwrite the cost of the Fire Department in Torch Lake.

--The Carson & Barnes three ring circus was scheduled to perform on August 16 on the grounds opposite the Airport on US-31 South. The management invited the public to visit the grounds during the scheduled day earth enough to see the baby elephants being fed.

Ruppe wants speed limit

Congressman Philip E. Ruppe (R-Mich.) called today for an emergency eight mile per hour speed limit on the Saint Mary's River near Sault Ste. Marie. He declared that high water and the wakes of speeding ships are creating "a threat to life and property along the river."

The Northern Michigan legislator commended Admiral Rae for acquiring new equipment to detect speeding and for stepping up enforcement of speed laws. He called for continuing strict enforcement.

Representative Ruppe said that he alsu uutlined his plan for an 8 mile per hour speed limit to representatives of Coast Guard Commandant Willard Smith in Washington this week. The Congressman's demands result from an inspection tour he recently made of the Saint Mary's River where he said that he was "shocked at the extent of damage created by high water and greatly accentuated by the waves from ship wakes."

Marine patrol from County Sheriff's office approaches dinghy which was found upside down in Lake Michigan near McSauba Beach last Friday. At this time, Sheriff Philo Sumner stated that ownership of boat is unknown, but it is believed the eight-foot craft broke loose from a larger boat and drifted toward shore until capsizing. Local and county police, as well as Coast Guard, investigated. Boat was first spotted by two youngsters, who reported it to police.

Artists, craftsmen and visitors from throughout Michigan and adjoining states will converge on Charlevoix next Saturday for the 11th annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen. The fair is held in East Park, across Bridge-st. from the business district.

Waterfront Fair to be in Charlevoix August 9

CHARLEVOIX -- This community's East Park overlooking Round Lake will be transformed into an outdoor art exhibit Saturday (Aug. 9) as artists and craftsmen from throughout the midwest gather for the eleventh annual Waterfront Fair.

Mrs. Paul Olsen, general chairman of the event, reports that more than 230 entries have been received and others have indicated that they will be returning entry blanks before the deadline.

A host of arts and crafts will be represented among the entries which come from professionals, teachers and amateurs, she added. Among the entries are paintings in various media including oils, watercolors, charcoal, pen and ink; jewelry in several media; metal sculptor, blown glass, acrylics, wood sculpture, weaving, pottery prints, serigraphs, silk screen, ceramics, glass mosiac, stoneware pottery, scrimshaw and ivory carvings among others. All the works are originals and a number of craftsmen as well as artists will be present to demonstrate their various talents.

Among the entries are Jon Lockhart of Ann Arbor who is returning after an absence of one year to exhibit his paintings and to do charcoal drawings in the park; Paul Collins of Grand Rapids whose Wyeth-like oils were well received last year; Allen Harris of Philadelphia and Ironton, sculptor; Hugh Riker of Charlevoix, whose pen and ink sketches are attracting comment wherever they are shown; Robert Engel of Harbor Springs whose pottery bells have become a highlight of the fair; the Brumms, Norman and Judy, of Charlevoix where they design and make their metal sculpture and enamel entries, so real in appearance that they seem to have been lifted from their woodland homes and another sculptor, Clyde Ball of Gary, Ind., who also works in metal.

As in the past, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cummings of Charlevoix and Chicago, world famous collectors of art, will loan a masterpiece from one of their many galleries. This year they have selected "Ballerina" by French Impressionist, Edgar Degas, a painting familiar to many.

Visitors to the Waterfront Fair, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will find their favorite art or craft on exhibit on the sloping lawns of the park. Said by many critics to be the best show in outstate Michigan, the Waterfront Fair has proven, year after year, to be one of the finest events of its kind in the north.

The Fair will open at 10 a.m. and continue until evening.

Visitors may wander through the exhibits at their leisure.

In the event of the inclement weather, the Waterfront Fair will be held at the Charlevoix high school at Garfield and May-st. one block east of US-31 and M-66 at St. Mary's church.

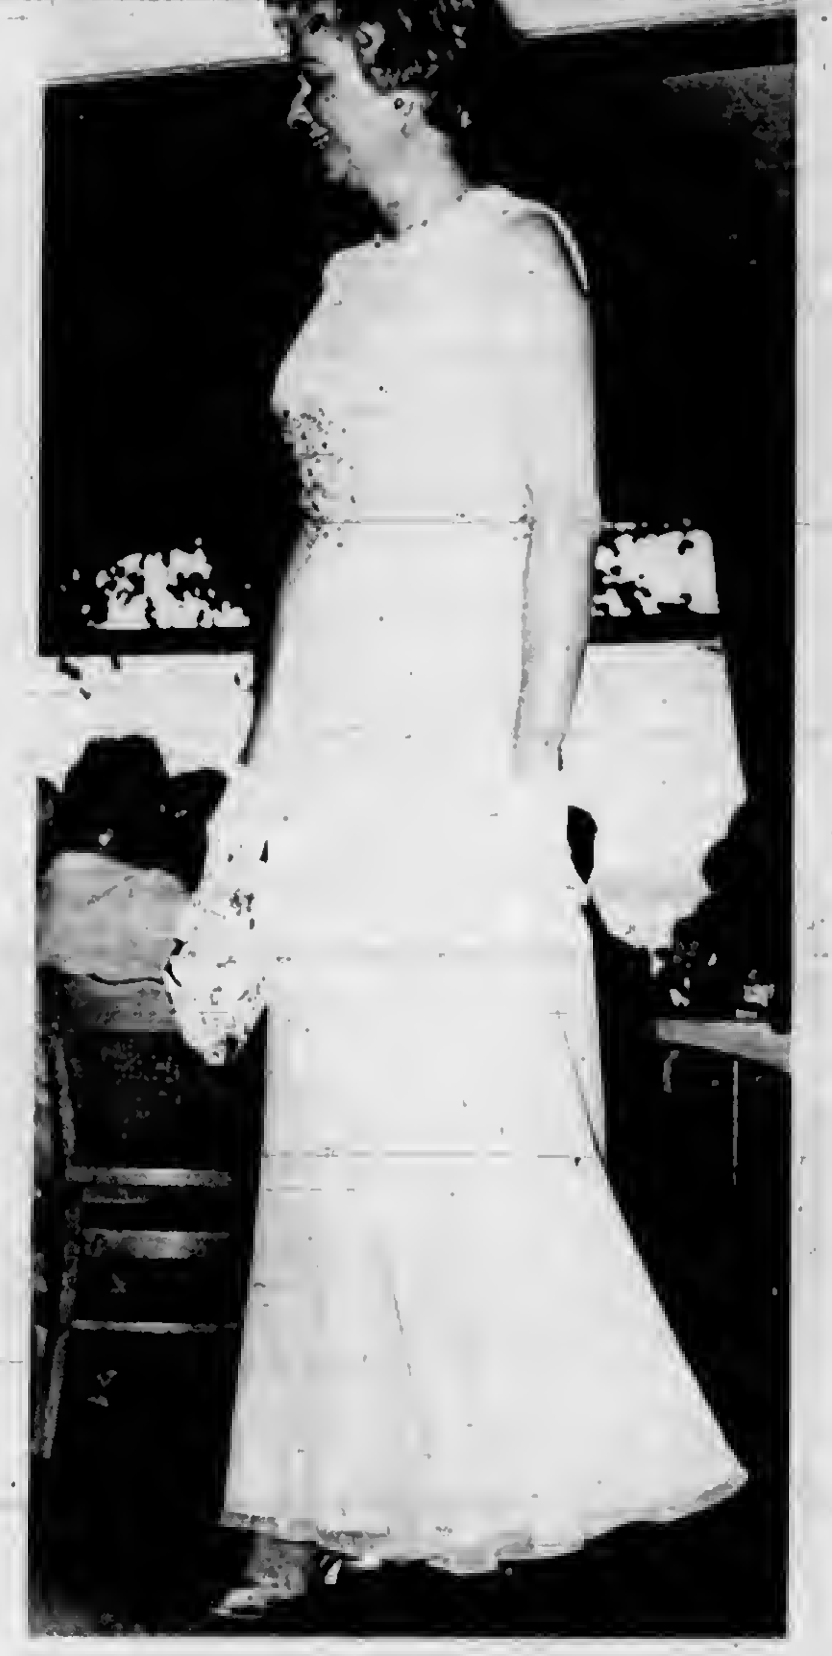
Gay red, white and blue wash and wear hostess pajamas are worn by Audrey Waldrop for the Wednesday fashion show and luncheon held at This Ole House. The attractive 'at home' wear was just one of the many fashions she modeled for Barney Linens on Lake-st. Reservations must be made in advance for the Wednesday show and on August 6 Harold Grant and Young America will feature their fashions.



Yellow is the popular color for 'first ladies' and Mrs. Peg Schweigert, wife of Senator Thomas Schweigert, of Petoskey chose this yellow chiffon Beatrice Morgan original for the fashion show-luncheon held at This Ole House, in Conway. It featured beaded trim around the waistline of the flattering, soft skirt and bands of the same trim accented the neckline and sleeves.

An art form in the photographic medium is being pursued by John M. Pelikan of Bay View, Michigan and Darien, Conn. His special forte' is the portraiture of children with whom he has great success. Pelikan is currently exhibiting in the gallery of R & R Robinson, Inc. and his work includes charming informal studies of the family of Mr. and Mrs. James Conley of Darien. Conley is a former vice-president of ABC network. Among commissions currently scheduled is the portrait of Dr. George Shambaugh of Chicago for the London, England Medical Hall of Fame. An interesting facet of Mr. Pelikan's work in addition to the extraordinary naturalness he achieves in his out-of-doors studies is the new concept in mounting originated in the Museum of Modern Art, New York. Commissions may be arranged until September.

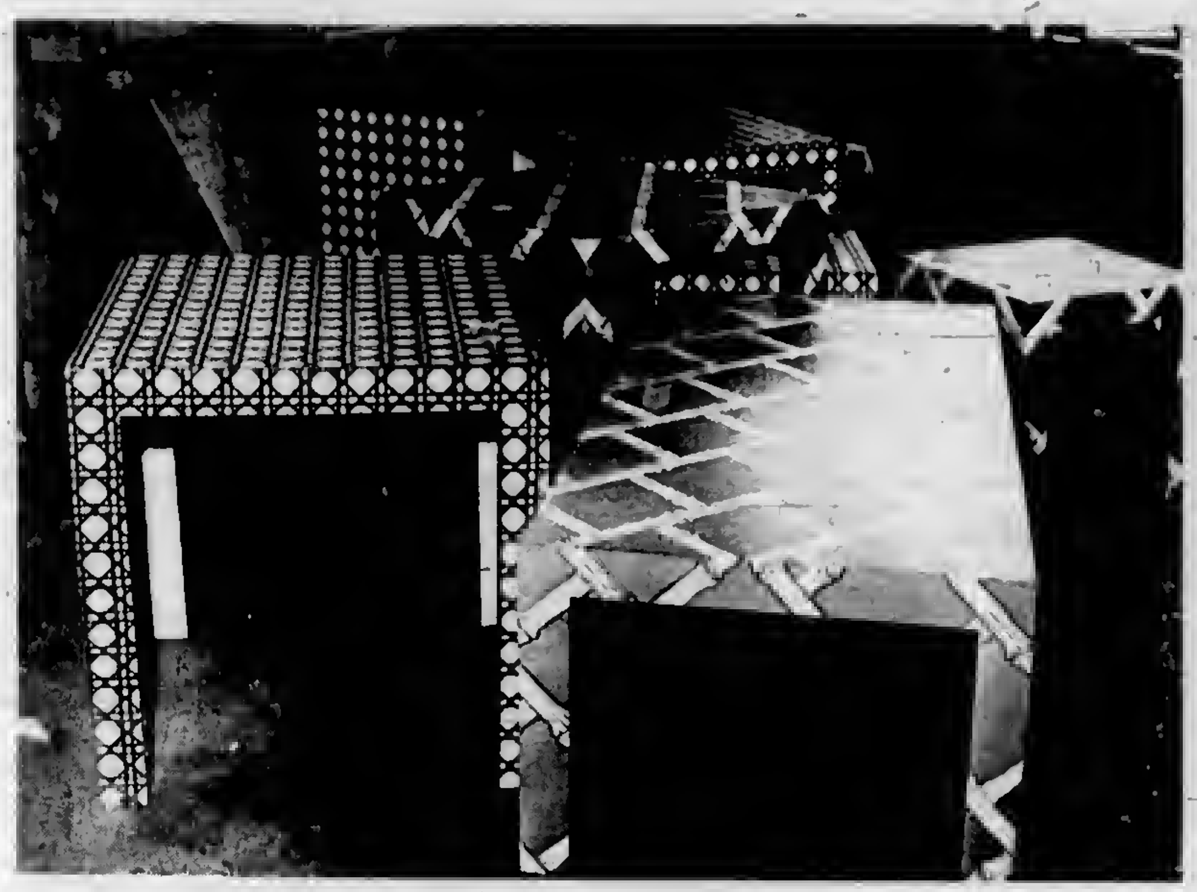
THE "ALL AMERICAN" TABLE



The famous slick, simple, usable, and smart Parson's design table has a new look in the group just unpacked at R & R Robinson, Inc. on Bay View-rd. The table design is one of the purely American successes of the twentieth century originating at the Parson's School of Design in New York City. This design has been created in many materials including plexiglass, but the gay cane and bamboo patterns pictured here are a new approach. Colors are bright greens, lemon yellows, and deep blue all with white. And the production, All-American-style is sturdy, and all importantly stain proof. The cost is reasonable.

Water-Jet Aqua Scooter New Recreational Development

America's consumers are constantly being baffled and confused by the product revolution sweeping the country. New gadgets and inventions are developed, researched, and put on the market at such a rapid rate the average buyer is often left scratching his head in astonishment.

One new item causing him to scratch a little more than normal is the aqua scooter. This sleek little water-fun craft is quite different from other power boats. It runs on water-jet propulsion and has no propellor to stick far down into the water, no oars to tug, and no pedals to pump. Just a turn of the ignition key and a squeeze on the hand throttle sends the aqua scooter zipping across the top of the water.

These new powered waterbugs are real group fun. They are called Sea-Doos and were pioneered and manufactured by Bombardier, Ltd. This same company had consumers scratching their heads about a decade ago when it was the first company to mass market one and two passenger snowmobiles. People in the snowbelt states have stopped scratching because they've been too busy buying the snow machines. Now people in and out of the snowbelt are looking at each other in amazement whenever they see an aqua scooter.

Two Sea-Doo models are available this year—one with a 320 cc, 18-hp engine (model 320) and the other with a 371 cc, 24-hp engine (model 372). The latter has a 2 cycle Rotax engine which is water cooled with an integrated thermostat. The engines link up to a special jet turbine that propels the scooter over any lake, river, or stream with more than 12 inches of water.

TV PROFILE Miss Worley

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood
Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Laugh-In's" Jo Anne Worley, who hates chicken jokes, found nothing humorous in an apartment fire that forced her to move to a hotel for the next several months.

A bachelor girl, the buxom brunette lived in a posh four-room apartment with a magnificent view of the city.

Then came the fire. Fortunately the place was furnished and Jo Anne absorbed only damage to her wardrobe. The cleaning bill for her clothes came to more than $2,000.

Jo Anne is as good natured as she appears on the NBC-TV comedy series. She is unconcerned about where she will live when the new television season begins in the fall.

She is certain only that she will not settle down in beautiful downtown Burbank.

A native of Lowell, Ind., who grew up in Wichita Falls, Texas, Jo Anne is looking forward to a summer of personal appearances.

"When I get back I'll find an apartment with a good kitchen," she says.

The kitchen is a key room in Miss Worley's life. More often than not she spoils her dates with a home-cooked meal before going out on the town.

She claims she is world-renowned for her beef stroganoff, stew, chili and home-baked bread which she makes from scratch with flour, shortening and yeast. Favorite beaux also are treated to her specialty, fresh cherry pie.

"My dates think I'm divine after I've cooked for them," Jo Anne says.

As a mainstay in the cast of "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In," Jo Anne works five days a week, sometimes as long as 14 or 15 hours at a stretch. She enjoys the madness of the atmosphere.

What is Duraclean "flower-fresh" cleaning?

. . . it is a truly miraculous method of cleaning carpets and upholstery right in your own home, with everything ready for use that same day!

Why is it different from other methods? . . . because there's no scrubbing, no soaking, no fading, no harsh soaps. It uses scientifically safe and effective equipment and chemicals handled by trained technicians.

Is it thorough cleaning? Definitely yes! American Research & Testing Laboratories found that Duraclean really removed the dirt from carpets tested. It gets things cleaner all the way through because its unique absorption method removes soil, doesn't force it down to the base of the fibers as do scrubbing machines.

Why is it better than methods using scrubbing machines? A scrubber uses about 10 quarts of detergent solution on every 100 square feet of carpet. Wet vacuuming picks up only about 5 quarts, leaving 5 quarts AND soil in every 100 square feet of fabric! Soil is flushed from top to bottom, thus causing rapid re-soiling.

What is the secret of Duraclean's effectiveness? Duraclean craftsmen do not use liquid or scrubbers. They apply an aerated, absorbent cleansing FOAM carefully, painstakingly. This miracle foam pulls up dirt and greasy soil and holds it in suspension for removal . . . Duraclean magic "peptizing."

To sum up, what are the advantages of Duraclean?
- CONVENIENCE because work is done in your home.
- LONGER LIFE FOR FURNISHINGS because there's no harsh scrubbing to damage or distort texture. Your fine things wear longer, keep lovely longer.
- NO "AFTER CLEANING" WOES because there's no soaking, no fading or dulling of colors—no odors or mildew!
- COMPLETE SAFETY for your investment in furnishings because Duraclean has been tried-and-proved throughout the world for over a quarter century . . . with products insured for safety.

Where can you find your Duraclean Dealer?

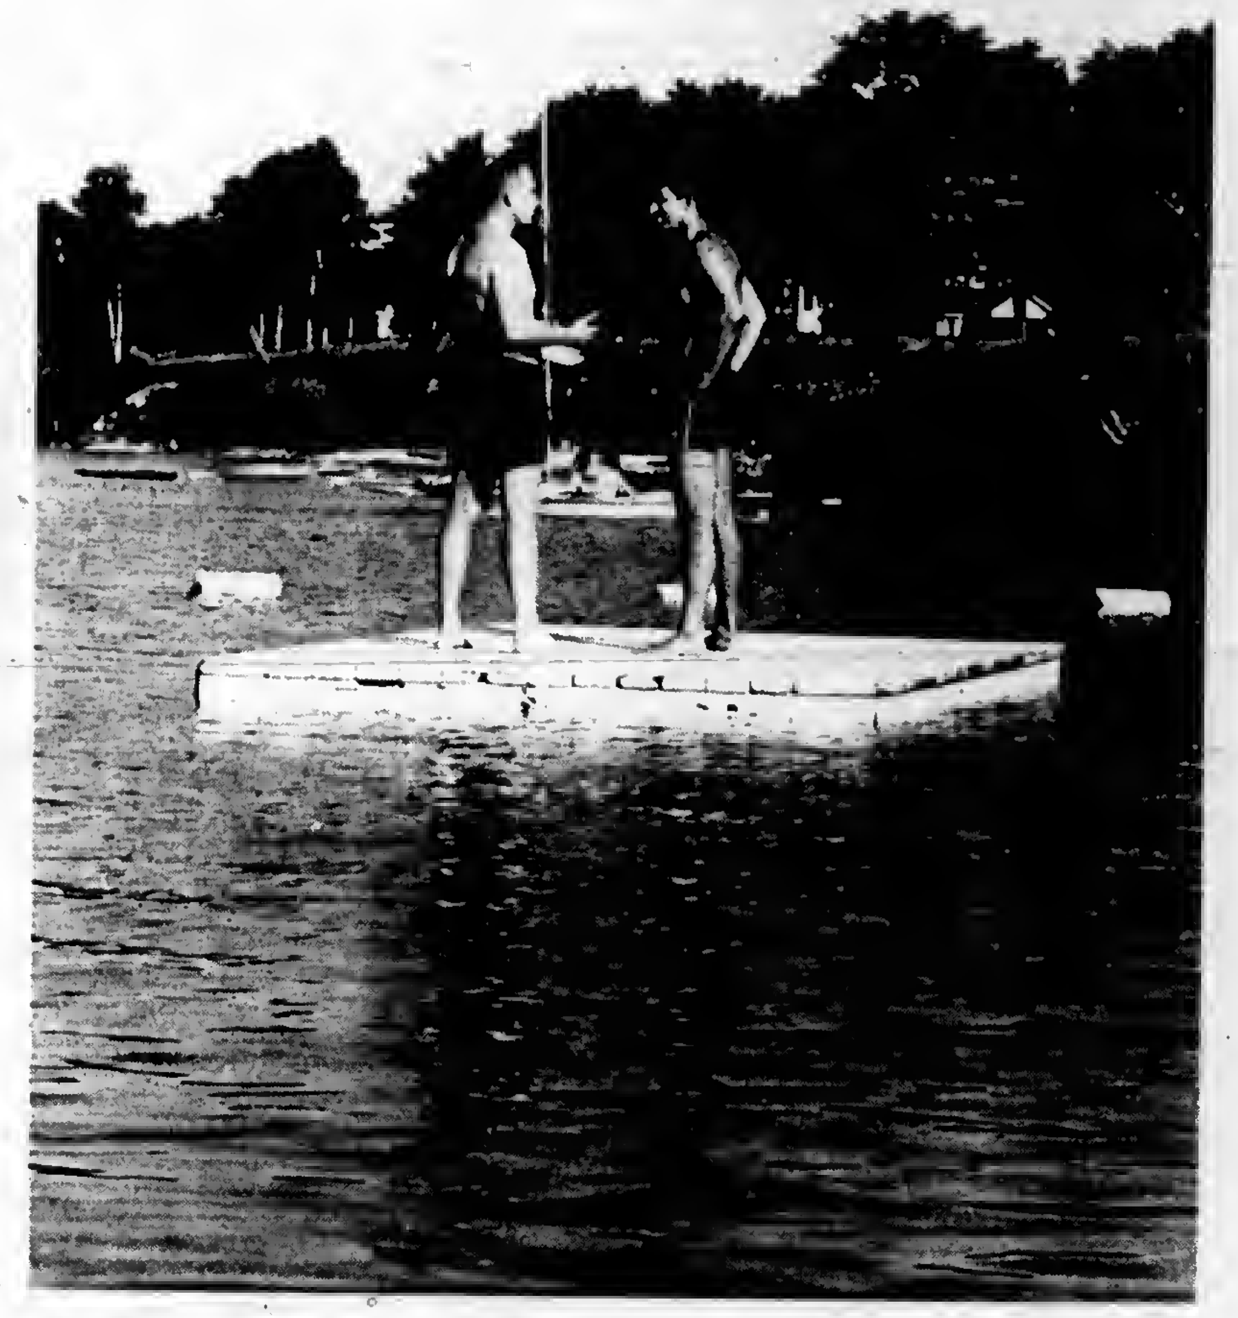
A WHALE OF FUN!

Wally the Whale guards the entrance to the 14th green at Petoskey Pines' miniature putting course, U.S. 31 just north of Petoskey. If you stroke the ball off line, you're in the water, with a penalty stroke to boot. So come on out and whale away. Bring the whole crew. And while you're at it, bring your golf swing. You may want to hit a bucket of balls at the Petoskey Pines Driving Range. Phone: 347-9261.



It may be a strange place to hold a conversation, but the swimming raft at Bay View is just as good as any place else for Petoskey's friendly citizens.

Gallery One to present showing of leading wildlife artists this Thursday

Gallery One will present a fine collection of original and signed prints of the works of America's leading wildlife artists. Opening night is Thursday, August 7, from 7 to 10 p.m. Gallery One is located at 306 Howard-st., Petoskey.

The artists, Ray Harm, Guy Coheleach, Don Richard Eckelberry, and Charles Harper are conservations as well as naturalists. They will be working, through the Gallery, to broaden appreciation of art in general and wildlife in particular; to increase membership in and support of such conservation groups as the National Audubon Society and National Wildlife Federation; to contribute to the promotion, preservation and, possibly, the establishment of wildlife sanctuaries.

Don McClead, manager of Gallery One stated the exhibit would continue through August 12. Mr. Charles Harper will be present opening night giving a demonstration in silkscreening. The public is invited to attend.

BOATING

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fiberglass has almost completely conquered wood in the building of pleasure boats in Scandinavia.

This report comes from the current issue of the magazine Scandinavian Times which adds, almost regretfully: "The pleasant odor of wood shavings has been replaced by the heavy stench of plastic materials."

"In the Scandinavian boat building industry, practically all the big yards have gone over to fiberglass, and most of the smaller ones, using traditional materials and methods, are painfully taking stock of the situation," the magazine says.

It cites the case of Klaus Baess, a Dane, who switched several years ago from wood to fiberglass in his business.

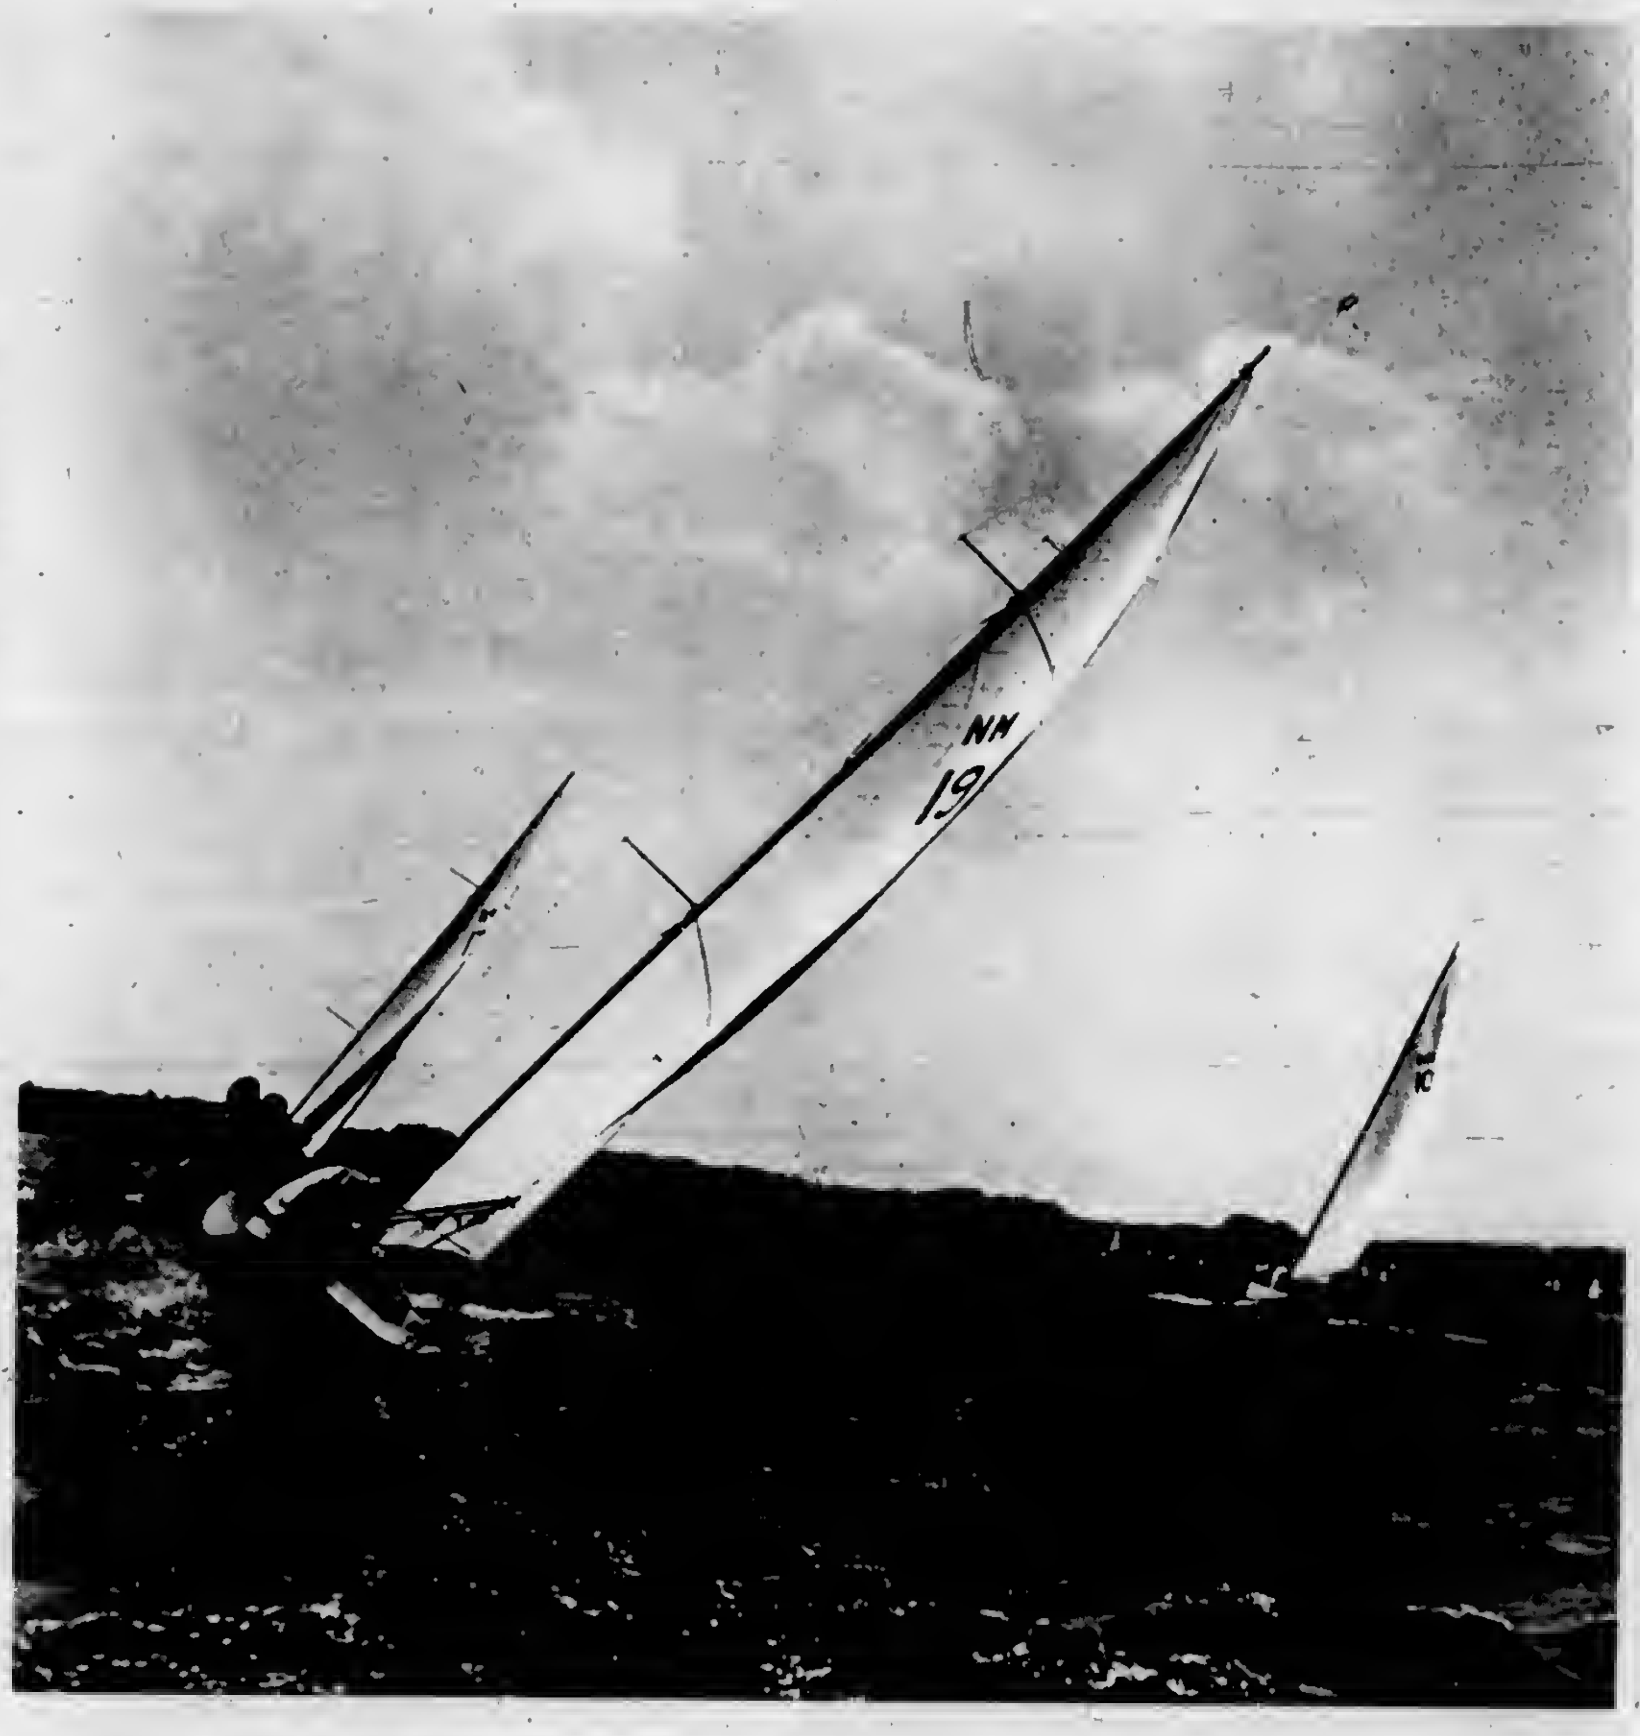
"I used to have a good business buying up wooden boats and selling them in America," Baess says. "I sold about 40 a year. Then, about 10 years ago, business dropped off suddenly, and I sold only about four boats in one year. I went off to the States to find out what had happened. It was fiberglass."

The advent of fiberglass has been almost coincident with a boom in Scandinavia's pleasure boat market and it is estimated there are now close to two million privately owned boats in the area. Sweden alone has an estimated 700,000.

A number of builders exist almost wholly on the home market, although some export as much as 90 per cent of their product. Among the latter, the European market has become generally more important than the American, except for those firms which are tied in closely with American sales organizations.

West Germany, Sweden and England are the main European boat markets.

Scandinavian Times reports that by American standards production runs are not large. Few builders make as many as a boat a day. Denmark's biggest boat builder has an annual turnover of about $5 million annually, whose firm builds nothing but fiberglass represented in sales of about 600 power craft.



In warm weather everyone takes to the water in Michigan. The 36,000 miles of rivers and streams plus the 11,000 lakes and 3,000 mile coastline of the Great Lakes offers infinite boating pleasure anywhere the sailor can go.

JUDITH ANNE FORD

WHAT IS MISS AMERICA OF 1969 REALLY LIKE?

Judith Anne Ford, Miss America of 1969, was born on December 26th, 19 years ago.

Since winning the title last September, the blonde beauty from Belvidere, Ill., must feel that every day of her reign is like the day after Christmas, when one gets to enjoy the holiday gifts.

It has been an exciting and rewarding year for Judi. She has already visited 32 states, become a celebrity while meeting other celebrities, and she will spend the month of August on a 22-day tour of Vietnam to entertain U.S. troops.

Judi will turn over her rhinestone crown to her successor, who will be selected from the 50 state finalists during the NBC Television Network's live color coverage from Atlantic City of the Miss America Pageant Saturday, Sept. 6 (10 p.m. to midnight NYT).

What is Miss America of 1969 really like?

Well, Judi is a baseball fan and since her hometown is only 70 miles from Chicago, she roots for the Cubs and White Sox. But she is also a dedicated athlete who, to improve her diving skill, took up the vigorous sport of the trampoline. After five years of intensive practice, she won the Junior National AAU Women's Trampoline Championship in 1966.

Though the Miss America title brought Judi overnight fame, making her the object of autograph seekers at public functions, she has not lost her detached sense of humor -- or her equilibrium, an essential attribute for a trampolinist.

"Most people one meets are awed by the title," Judi said. "But I do receive other remarks such as "My gosh, you're real" and "My sister's better looking".

But Judi is pretty, poised and with a regal bearing befitting America's distinctive brand of loyalty. She is not contemplating a career in show business, however. The week following the NBC-TV colorcast, Judi will again turn her attentions to her studies by registering for the fall semester at the University of Illinois, where she will major in physical education. "I hope to become a high school teacher," she revealed.

I'd like to get married," Judi said emphatically.

But that is still some time in the future as Judi doesn't have a steady boyfriend. Meanwhile, she's traveling around the country visiting such big cities as New York, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Atlanta, San Antonio, and San Francisco, and less populated ones, including Stark, Fla., Paintsville, Ky., Guthrie, Okla, and Bellingham, Mass.

Her favorite traveling story occurred during a flight from Buffalo to Dayton. "I was wearing a mink coat," Judi recalled, "and I noticed this eight-year-old boy staring at me from across the aisle.

"When we arrived at Dayton, I was met by photographers, a TV camera crew and an official city welcoming committee. Then the boy turned to me and said: "I didn't know you were Miss America. I thought you were some rich old girl."

Above is one of about 4,000 bears in the Michigan area. These playful, fun loving creatures are found in the Petoskey area and are widely scattered in the upper peninsula.

The two Elk above are members of a large herd in the Vanderbilt, Wolverine area where the largest concentration of wapiti in Michigan lives. In September bull elks bugle in calling mates, building their harems or challenging other bulls and many people visit the area hoping to hear or see Michigan's largest game animal. They are protected by law.

White-tailed deer number about 800,000 in Michigan and are a big game attraction for hunters from everywhere in the nation. Two of the local inhabitants are shown above.

Voters pass compromise millage

"tf at first you don't succeed....." must be the story the Charlevoix School Board is telling today, following the strong victory for two miliage requeats Monday.

A compromise request of 2.99 mills was given voter approval by a 738 to 446 vote, with eight ballots spoiled.

Also winning approval was a one mill, three year request for instructional materials. That measure passed by a 725 to 458 count, with six spoiled ballots.

A total of 1189 district voters went to the polls, the third large turnout in as many school elections since April.

Monday marked the first victory for the School Board and administration. Elections held in April and June found a majority of negative votes cast by residents. The prior election request were for 3.75 mills for operational expenses and one mill for instructional materials.

In April, the larger request was turned down 587 to 401, while the single mill levy fell 553-435.

June brought no better fortune to the budget boosters, as the measures went down by 725-523 and 687-650 figures.

Following the second defeat the Board drew up an austerity budget which looped all extra-curricular activities, including sports and band performances, from the program.

Rushing to the defense of these two activities were the Band Boosters and Sports Boosters. Following their pleas, and those of other parents, the Board developed the 2.99 compromise.

The levy returned sports and bank to the school program unacathed except for the elimination of several assistant coaches.

Other educational programs did not fare as well. Among others, the adult education program was dropped; the total number of teachers was reduced, creating larger classes; the administrative assistant was eliminated; the community school program was bypassed; and noon hour supervisory personnel were reduced in number.

In addition, students will rent text books next year at an average cost of $6 per pupil. Though final figures have not been determined, it is thought that rental will total $5 for elementary pupils and $7 for junior and senior high school students.

Monies derived from the 2.99 levy will return several programs to the budget, including the return of one third grade teacher, a full time instead of a half-time librarian and the addition of two students to assist with noon hour supervision in the elementary school.

In the Middle School, restored to the program will be a full time librarian, and in the high school Robert Cook, who organizes the co-op program, will have but two weeks at the beginning and close of school to take care of administrative details.

The post of athletic director will be restored. Outside the classroom, the passed millage will return the bus "town run" for K-4 students.

Naturally, the Board and administration were happy with the passage of both issues. Some Board members atressed, however, that the district will operate at less than "full apeed".

Board members hope that next year the district will not face similar problems. Adding to the hazard is the knowledge of forthcoming teacher negotiations. It is a foregone conolusion that a new contract will include increased salaries and fringes.

Reports indicate that needed millage next year will total considerably more than 2.99 mills.

Craftsmen worked at Waterfront Fair...visitors became the interested audience.

Waterfront Fair attractions draw thousands to East Park

Thousands of residents and visitors attended the eleventh annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen last Saturday in East Park.

Over 250 entries filled the park and dock area, making the Chamber of Commerce-sponsored event one of the largest ever held.

A highlight of the Fair was the "Ballerina," loaned for event by Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cummings. The impressionist oil by Edgar Degas drew the attention of almost all who toured the park.

General Chairman Mrs. Paul Olsen said that many exhibitors returned from previous years, "and there were applications from lots of new artists, not only from the Midwest but from states as far away as Texas. We even received an application from a French artist who does wood reliefs."

One Michigan artist who drew much attention was Paul Collins of Grand Rapids. His oil of boxer Buster Mathis leaning against the ropes won praise from many in attendance.

Professionals and amateurs displayed their wares, ranging from oils, watercolors and charcoals to polished Petoskey stones.

All reports indicate the Fair was another "big success," and local sponsors already are laying plans for next year's Fair.

Sponsors report that this year's Waterfront Fair was one of the biggest ever..both in number of entries and crowd size.

X-ray equipment fund $8,000 short of goal

(Special to the Courier)

A baby swallows a nail. A teenager slides his car into a ditch. A workman's hand slips and a piece of steel is lodged in his flesh. A woman has a pain in her stomach. What do these people have in common?

Ask any doctor because he knows that the baby, the teenager, the workman and the woman will each be x-rayed before the doctor begins his treatment.

Charlevoix Hospital is fortunate to own new Radiology equipment that will x-ray a crying baby in the split fraction of a second, will x-ray a patient no matter how large, that does not need to be operated in the dark, that will give a better picture faster than ever before (completely processed in 60 seconds), equipment better than that which serves many major hospitals.

This new equipment (125 to 150 Kv., 300 ma. unit, 15 to 90 degree table with moving top, fluoroscopic device with amplifier capable of being connected to a TV camera and monitor etc.) has been in operation here since last fall.

"We're using this equipment more than ever before," says June Cross, technician. "We have more doctors to serve a growing population."

But unfortunately the life-saving equipment is not fully paid for. "We've raised $32,500 so far, and we're proud of the many generous donors who have contributed to the x-ray fund--but we're still $8,000 short of our goal," says Julius Gilbert, fund-raising chairman and board member of the Charlevoix Hospital. "We will publish a complete list of contributors in the Courier upon completion of our goal of $41,500."

Until now donations have been privately solicited from individual permanent and summer residents, business and industry.

"We're concerned because we know many interested persons have not been solicited personally, either because these people were out of town during the campaign or are new in the area. We hope that everyone interested in good health who has not been contacted will get in touch with me," Gilbert added. All checks may be sent to Gilbert, 510 Michigan Avenue, Charlevoix. Donations payable to the Charlevoix Hospital are fully tax deductible.

Board sets vacations

Charlevoix's School Board's prime concern Monday was the third millage election of the year, but several other matters did receive the directors' attention.

Business included:

Fixing the opening day of school for teachers at September 8, and pupils September 9.

Establishing vacations from achool for Thanksgiving (November 27 and 28); Christman (noon December 19 to January 5); and Eaater (noon March 27 to April 6).

School will close next June 10, with commencement on June 9.

Hired Theodore Herres as the new tranaportation superviaor and mechanic. He will be on a ten-month contract and will perform all maintenance on busses and other school vehicles, assume Del Terrill'a administrative transportation duties, and will work with the custodial ataff during the summer.

Discussed fencing the west side of the new elementary school property.

Announced that the sewer from the new school to Meech Street has been flushed and is now in operation.

Tabled for further diacussion moving the doora in the bus garage to allow entry of nine vehicles rather than seven.

17 teachers 'vacation' at school

School ended for the summer on June 6 for the young students of Charlevoix, but not for at least 17 of their teachers.

Most teachers spend long hours during the summer preparing for the next school year and keeping abreast of advancements in their field through college courses.

Leonard Staley...looking toward Masters degree.

This year, seven elementary and 10 junior-senior high school teachers attended summer classes. Eight of the 17 not only spent several weeks of that mythical "three months vacation" atudying, but moved to Mt. Pleasant, Kalamazoo, and as far away as Iowa and Colorado to do so, some of them taking their families with them.

During the last three summers, Leonard and Jackie Staley have closed their home and taken their four small daughters to Mt. Pleasant in order that Staley can complete his work for a Masters degree in administration and supervision of secondary schools.

Staley has also taken aeveral courses during the school year, attending claases at night. He teaches world history and sophomore English at the high school and has served as athletic director.

Fourth grade teacher Mrs. Jacqueline Meier attended Michigan State Univeraity off-campus claases at North Central Michigan College, completing 27 term hours toward her Masters degree in Elementary Education.

Her studies included school learning, and two seminars in social and philosophical foundations of education: philosophy of education and principles of guidance and personnel services, taught by Dr. William Ratigan.

(This is the first in a series of articles about Charlevoix teachers who attended summer school.)

Notes approved

Attorney General Frank J. Kelley, Chairman of the Municipal Finance Commission, announced this week that the Commission approved $120,000 of Tax Anticipation Notes for Charlevoix Public Schools, Counties of Charlevoix and Antrim.

Attorney General Kelley said, "The proceeds will be used to pay current operating expenses for the current fiscal year, July 1, 1969 to June 30, 1970.

Life of lightkeeper: island of desolation

Life as a lighthouse operator for the U.S. Coast Guard is lonely.....particularly if you are single, far away from home, and living on less than $160 a month.

Lt. Don Ludke, commander of the Coast Guard Group Station in Charlevoix, think he may have an answer to the loneliness and boredom which are part of the job.

Lt. Luedke explains:

"The United States Coast Guard operates lighthousea located offshore in Lake Michigan and Lake Huron. These lighthouses provide marine shipping and boat operators a means of navigation in all weather through the use of high intensity light, fog signals and in some cases radio beacon signals.

"The men who operate these units, usually four or five to each station, are regular Coast Guard personnel whose last or next assignment may be an ice-breaker on a ploar expedition, patrol duty in Vietnam or security patrol in one of the nation's seaports. They are assigned to these offshore lights during the shipping season from April to December. Their life is a lonely one and subject to boredom. Most are married, and when they are permitted liberty ashore spend their time with their families catching up with the family news and performing the tasks around the home which can be done only by Dad.

"Many others, however, are young, single men still in their teens. These boys may be fortunate enough to afford the trip back home during their six days a month of liberty. Often they can not travel that far due to either time or funds. A seaman or fireman earns a base pay of $155.10 per month, which leaves little for recreation after necessities are provided for. As a result, some of these lads end up seeking the cheapest of lodging and roaming about the community in search of something to do. Too often this leads to the wrong kind of entertainment, and they end up in difficult straita with both the civil and military authorities.

"I would propose to your readers that if there are some who would like to offer the hospitality of their home to one of these young men for a period of six or more days a month, on a one time or repeat basis, that this office would be happy to arrange a meeting. We would also be prepared to provide information concerning these young men to any prospective sponsors prior to a commitment if the sponsor ahows he is sincere in his offer. We would desire references to assure a basis for propriety and in turn would vouch for the character of the young men," Lt. Luedke concluded.

Anyone interested in offering their hospitality to a young Coast Guardsman may contact Lt. Don Luedke, Coast Guard Station, Charlevoix, Michigan. Phone 547-2541.

Trainmen's plea to parents ...

Railroads aren't playgrounds

Is one of these youngsters your son or daughter? If so, will one of them be included in the more than 1,000 deaths this year resulting from children playing on railroad tracks? This group was photographed last Friday between the Railroad Bridge and Depot Beach in Charlevoix. They were placing rocks and coins on tracks just prior to arrival of train.

The question was asked, in agonized tones, by Captain Richard Potts, chief of police for the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad, during a panel interview on the subject of children's safety recently.

The meeting was given particular local impact by the fact that a nine-year-old Allen Park boy suffered the loss of his right leg June 7 when he tried to climb between two cars of a D T & I train standing on the tracks at Markese and Arno, in Allen Park.

The boy had been taking a short cut across the tracks from his home to the public library on Allen road, near Champaign. The train began to move as he was between ears, and his leg was severed at the hip.

NEWSPAPER WARNING

Only a month before the tragedy, a newspaper had featured photographs and an eye-witness account of Downriver children "playing chicken" and engaging in other dangerous practices - on and around the tracks and trains.

And only two weeks after the Allen Park accident, Potts said, he and an assistant had stopped 15 children within a 90-minute period taking the same perilous shortcut that the injured youth had used.

"These youngsters were between the ages of eight and 15, all old enough to know better," he declared. "We made a point of asking whether they had heard about the boy whose leg was amputated. They all said they had - but they didn't think it could happen to them."

OFFICIALS CONCERNED

Joining him in discussing the safety problem - looming ever larger to railroads throughout the country - were Paul Disinger, D T & I's supervisor of safety; Richard Lawrence, assistant claims agent, and L. W. Haydon, engineer in charge of maintenance-of-way.

Fences aren't the answer, all agreed.

Much of the railroad's approximately 800 miles of right-of-way is indeed fenced.

TRAINMEN UNDERSTAND

But it is patently impossible to fence off tracks completely, and if it were possible, children tend to consider fencing a challenge - an obstacle to climb over, wriggle under or even cut through - rail officials say.

For D T & I, Potts and his six officers patrol railroad property 24 hours a day, attempting to spot accidents before they happen, warning youngsters - and, in some cases, turning them over to local police.

Railroad men know better than anyone else the fascination trains have for children. Most railroaders, as boys, began their romance with locomotives and tracks through model electric trains zooming around tracks under Christmas trees.

The legends and lore of railroad history are coupled with the sheer size, power and sound of the trains and the special equipment which enthralls children and is to be found nowhere except in railroad yards or along tracks.

The railroads indeed understand the fascination, but - because of their experience - cannot understand the sometimes total disregard of danger they see every day.

TODDLERS ON TRACK

Disinger recalls that he saw two children, barely past the toddler stage, playing on the tracks in Melvindale a few weeks ago.

"I took them by the hand, found out where they lived (near the yards) and took them home," he said. "Their mother's reaction was, 'How can I be expected to keep track of them every minute. I thought they were playing in the sandbox."

The day before our interview, Disinger said, he had stopped two brothers, nine and 11, in the same area.

'COMIC' BOOK

"Their parents weren't home," he added, "so I wrote them a letter, explaining the danger of the boys' actions, and enclosing a copy of our comic book, 'Dangerous Playgrounds' I hope it helps."

The "comic" book, distributed by the Association of American Railroads, is one example of a continuing effort by railroaders to reach children and their parents.

Disinger spends much of his time during the school year speaking to elementary-age classes, Scout groups and parent-teacher associations, and showing a color film, "On the Right Track," which points out the hazards of railroad play to youngsters.

The booklet is given to each person viewing the film.

RULES LISTED

"Dangerous Playgrounds" lists six oft-repeated commandments taught to railroad workers at safety meetings: (1) that safety is the most important thing about their work; (2) to expect engines and cars to move on any track at any time; (3) never to cross a track without first looking in both directions to know the way is clear; (4) never crawl under a car; (5) never climb on a car, engine or caboose unless it is a necessary part of work, and (6) never walk on top of a rail or on the tracks, but always stay as far from the track as work will allow.

"These and many other safety rules are observed by railroad workers, but children who play on railroad property don't know about the hazards all around them," the booklet stresses.

Accompanied by colorful illustrations, the rules for children are listed:

Keep away from railroad cars, no matter how safe they may look.

Don't climb on a freight car or hop on a moving train. ("It's hard for an experienced railroad man to board a freight at 10 miles an hour, and kids try it at 20," Haydon said.)

Keep off tracks and railroad bridges.

Never place objects on the rails to see what will happen. Don't be the cause of others getting hurt or killed.

Never deliberately dare to stand on the track in front of an oncoming train . . . nor try to beat it to the crossing.

Never throw rocks or shoot at passing trains or standing cars - nor break signals and switch lights.

Never be the cause of an accident by unlocking or unlatching a railroad switch.

Don't take chances - stay away from freight trains, moving or standing still. (Don't play "hide and seek" in empty freight cars. A railroad man might close the door and the train could go a long way before you could summon help to get out.)

Remember - you are playing safest when you DON'T play on the railroad.

Never touch a railroad flare or attempt to light one, nor try to explode a torpedo - they are dangerous playthings!

Obey the rules and signals that would protect you. (One out of three train-automobile accidents happen at crossings with flashers or gates, or both.

FIRST-HAND MEMORIES

The booklet and film warnings are distributed nationwide, but each of the D T & I officials has his own personal horror-type memories of incidents involving children in each one of the cautioned-against hazards.

Lawrence described a recent derailment in Ann Arbor, caused by a child tampering with a switch.

"What was almost as bad, I watched a father leading his child as both crawled under derailed cars," he said. "It's hard to reach the kids when the parents set that kind of example."

"Parents teach their children how to put on their socks and tie their shoes, and how to look both ways before crossing a street - but they just don't teach them railroad safety," Potts added.

100 A YEAR

Disinger said that at least 100 children are killed or seriously injured every year because of playing or trespassing on railroad property.

"Education absolutely must start at home, but we stand ready to help in any way we can," he said.

The "On the Right Tracks" film is being supplemented now with another, to be shown to driver-training students in high schools, on the dangers of playing "chicken" with trains when behind the wheel of a car.

"On the Right Tracks" recently was shown by a Detroit television station, and Disinger believes that such exposure is of "tremendous help."

OFFER TOURS

Schools and organizations may book the rail-safety movies by writing Disinger at the D T & I office, 13530 Michigan, Dearborn.

Tours of railroad installations also may be arranged. These include thorough on-the-spot explanations of railroad equipment and installations, a visit inside a locomotive - and a non-preaching safety talk. (Disinger asks that one adult accompany every five or six children.)

"We like to point out factually (as the film does) that the child is old enough to lose an arm or a leg, old enough to understand what 'killed' means," he said. "We say that a shortcut across tracks may be a shortcut to the hospital, and that it isn't brave to challenge a train - it's show-off stuff."

WORKERS HURT

A surprising number of railroad employees are injured by children, either directly or indirectly.

Potts found a six-year-old attempting to drive a bolt into a switch recently at the Oakwood junction. Had he succeeded, a freight probably would have been derailed.

Youngsters smash signal lights, throw stones at trains and railroad men, and even fire guns at passing trains.

Lawrence said that many workers sustain eye injuries every year because of objects flung by children.

"Our prime concern, however, is with the safety of the youngsters themselves," Lawrence asserted. Despite the fact that railroads are rarely, if ever, responsible legally for injuries sustained by persons trespassing on their property, a moral responsibility obviously is felt.

TABLE TALK

"We don't want even one child hurt," Haydon said. "It's fine to tell parents about safety at PTA meetings, but I am afraid we're not reaching the right parents.

"Since dinner time seems to be the only part of the day when modern families are all together, we wish parents would talk about the dangers at the dinner table - even though it may not be a pleasant topic."

"Something must be done," Potts declared. "The problem is getting worse, and we notice an increasing unconcerned attitude among kids. It used to be that boys, in particular, didn't do a lot of dangerous things, because they knew they'd get a whipping. Nowadays, even the threat of arrest doesn't seem to phase them. The little ones don't care much, but by the time they get to junior-high age, we've really lost them. The parents must help us.

"We're doing just about everything we can do to keep their kids alive."

C&O freight trains travel through Charlevoix twice each day. Youngsters are urged to "keep their distance".

Specialist Moses earned the latter medal while attached to Company A, 4th Battalion, 39th Infantry, 9th Infantry Division in Vietnam.

Garden Club plaque winner

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Etienne, 319 Antrim Street, Charlevoix, were awarded the Charlevoix Garden Club plaque for the first two weeks of August.

The display that won the award contained snapdragons, cosmos, and marigolds, arranged around the fireplace in their yard.

Mrs. Julius Gilbert and her book, "All About Parties".

'All About Parties' is for everyone

In today's flooded advice market, do we really need one more volume on how-to-anything?

"Absolutely", snaps peppy party-giver Edith Gilbert, author of "All About Parties" (Hearthside Press), which she describes as a reference book needed by "everybody--the bride, the experienced homemaker, the career girl."

"It's more than a book. It's a kit with etiquet information, menus, recipes, decorating; flower arrangements, everything in one compact package, With it you can throw a party together as easily as you can toss clothes in a dryer."

Every recipe and party idea has been tested. "One would be amazed if one knew how many authors have never tested the recipes in their cookbooks or how many articles have been written on entertaining by people who never entertain!" says Mrs. Gilbert.

Included is a guide to how many drinks a hostess can expect to get from a bottle of liquor or wine, sample menus for brunches, teas, cocktail parties and simple or not-so-simple dinners and hints on planning fund-raising affairs for hundreds.

For party-givers who live in small towns and don't have access to specialty shops, Mrs. Gilbert includes a section on sources of supply for cooking utensils, gourmet foods and decorative accessories.

"Relax. Go ahead and invited people over. Don't be afraid. That's my message. Your approach is important, however, so don't try to impose something on your guests. Cards or games, for example, if they aren't that type.

"Include a surprise in every party. A little something extra to get out of the same faces, same setting, same menu. But no shocks. An example? When you're invited to a party and you find it is really a fund-raising affair!"

Mrs. Gilbert will autograph her book at Milliken's Department Store in Traverse City on August 15 from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. and on August 16 from 2 to 4 p.m. (All About Parties is available in Charlevoix at the Central Drug Store, Neff's and the Weathervane Lodge.)

She's made numerous personal appearances in major cities around the country including Cincinnati, Detroit, Chicago and San Francisco and has been interviewed on many popular radio and television programs. This fall, Mrs. Gilbert plans to travel through several eastern states including New York.

"I've received so many enthusiastic letters from my readers from all over the United States, they spur me on to spread the gospel, as it were, of helping people to get involved with people. It's the best way to combat loneliness. People are tired of just being in a croud--instead of part of a crowd."

Library notes

With so many of our boating patrons in harbor, we thought we would suggest a list of highly recommended escape literature to be tucked in the emergency kit aboard ship. In the event that the skipper runs the craft aground on a sand bar or seeks refuge during a storm near a remote island or lighthouse station, the books listed here are guaranteed to offer entertainment, distraction, suspense, thrills and chills during the hours of waiting for reseue.

Charlotte Armstrong's books are always good company on a desert island or a less tropical island in Lake Michigan. Her newest book "Seven Seats to the Moon" has a timely title and is her most intricate and imaginative suspense novel to date. It will keep any reader completely engrossed from the first to the final page.

"Bandersnatch" is a first novel by Britisher Desmond Lowden who spent two years collecting all the sea lore for this spine-tingling, action-packed book. The plot, which deals with a wealthy Greek shipowner is completely outrageous yet totally credible. It is good reading whether or not you plan to be marooned on an island.

"Shoot at the Moon" by William Temple is strongly recommended for desert island reading. It is a new kind of science-fiction novel–part love story, part adventure, part murder mystery and all about real, beleivable people. The subject is and expedition to the moon, and the hero is a coarse, clever, rebellious space pilot.

"The Intriguers" by Eric Ambler is a thick, chunky volume which contains four suspense novels dealing with international intrigue. Ambler is a great story teller and a master plot weaver who knows just exactly how to deal with espionage, murder and terror. No one ever puts an Ambler book down until it is finished.

Van Wyck Mason has written a new Colonel North adventure story, "The Deadly Orbit Mission." Always in constant danger and surrounded by breathtaking action, the man from G-2 knows that quick-thinking, vigilance and ruthless methods are what pay off when the chips are down. The book is bound to appeal to all marooned sailors.

"The Red Pavilion" by Robert Ban Gulik is a Chinese detective story which has an unusual plot dealing with a crime committed thrity years before.

"Gideon's Ride" and a companion volume "Gideon's Lot" both by J.J. Marric are only two from a long list of Gedion books which deal with the famous investigator whose name is now almost a housewold word. His fans hope that he will go on forever solving crimes for Scotland Yard, and everyone would agree that at least on Gideon book would be welcome aboard a stranded ship.

Trio here Sunday

A team of men who recently spent several weeks on a Christian mission in the Orient is scheduled to appear for a concert at the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church on Sunday, August 17, at 3 p.m. Singers Ernie Hansen and Gary Bomgaars, of Muskegon, and Doug Tjapkes, from Grand Haven, comprise the musical team "I Sing of Thee," appearing regularly on a Grand Haven radio station, and have produced records as well.

They are also scheduled to appear at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church the same date and will have charge of the evening service, beginning at 7:30 p.m. These musicians and a minister, the Rev. T.R. Oegema, who will also be here with them, went to the Far East, sponsored by World Vision International.

Two thirds of their time overseas was spent in Viet Nam, working with representatives of World Vision and with other missionaries. The men went into schools, orphanages, hospitals, rehabilitation centers, army camps and tribal villages, singing and preaching the Gospel.

Their slide presentation, at the Charlevoix Church, promises to be most interesting, since the World Vision Mission House is located right across the street from the American Embassy in Saigon, which was attacked several weeks later, and since their staying place in Dalat has since been attacked by the Viet Cong. In fact, one mine was detonated near their home before they moved out of Viet Nam. There will be singing by Messrs. Hansen and Bomgaars prior to the slide presentation.

Chuck Carey and Bren LaBlance strike historic poses as they play the role of knights in armor for a General Motors film to be shown to its distributors. The scene is Van Haver Castle which is just south of Charlevoix-the-Beautiful.

Locals

Mrs. Floyd Olney and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Durham and two sons of Mt. Pleasant are visiting at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Harry Gebeau.

The James Jensen and the John Powell families have returned from a week's camping trip in the Upper Peninsula. Earlier Mr. Jensen attended summer school.

Mr. and Mjs. Henry Steves of Chippewa Lake visited recently with friends here.

Pat's Reaction

Christmas in July

Why is it that the retail clothing merchants have the seasons so confused? Somehow or other when the fall and winter catalogue arrives at my house in July, featuring the brightest of winter clothes for those gala Christmas parties, I just can't get in the mood to plan my holiday wardrobe while I'm sunning on the beach.

On the other hand it seems to me that the spring and summer catalogues arrive on my doorstep the week after Christmas, just when I'm thinking about how drab my winter wardrobe looks, but I'm certainly not ready to shop for a sundress. Why that catalogue arrives even before my Christmas bills are even mailed, much less paid. Come to think of it maybe there's method in their madness for the stores want me to call in a big summer clothing order before I realize the awful truth of how far in debt I am from December buying.

Seriously though, why can't the merchants sell summer clothes in the summer and winter clothes in the winter? For heaven's sakes, I barely got my children outfitted in shorts and bathing suits before I was warned that I'd better hurry out to buy school clothes.

Actually I was a little late getting my own summer clothes together, for I got discouraged the first week in July and was afraid that summer would not arrive at all. Then when the weather finally did turn warm I had the dickens of a time finding a bathing suit. Everywhere I turned merchants were showing woolen clothes. Do you suppose that what they were showing me was new stuff or last year's leftovers?

My poor son Chris has run holes through both of his bathing suits and looks like an orphan for he's swimming in cut-off jeans. Even though there's only three weeks left of summer I magnanimously offered to buy him a new bathing suit, but no luck. The only pants that I could find for sportswear were ski pants and it does seem a little early for those.

What do the people in the Caribbean do for clothes? When I was on a tiny island last fall I saw displayed there a spring and summer Sears catalogue which was sent to the islands the previous December. Do the islanders have to use the same old catalogue all year long because they refuse to purchase overcoats and boots?

What about us who live in the cold north for an eight month winter? No matter how many pairs of mittens I buy in October, those eight pairs of hands at our house are alwaya bare by March, and do I ever have to scramble to find mittens to replace those that were lost.

Sure, you can say, use odd mittens and gloves, just use anything to keep those fingers warm. That's fine, but if your house is like our house all that we ever have left is left handed mittens and try as I might they just don't feel right on the right hand.

Another hard-to-find clothing item is boots in April. During April we have the great thaws and Charlevoix is a sea of mud. What happens then if some little boy plugs a hole in your little daughter's boots, her only pair? Finding a substitute at that late date is really tough. I have to get on the phone like a beggar and call my friends who have little girls just a bit older who just might have outgrown their winter boots in February when there was still enough time to buy a new pair.

Actually I guess that the best way to beat the cycle is to buy summer clothes when they are on sale in July. At that time the clothes are such a big bargain that you can afford to keep them until the next season.

Why just last summer I bought a terrific pair of shorts on sale although they were a little bit long for me; in fact, they hung down over my knees. Now if I could just remember where I put them I'd get them ~~right out~~ and shorten them to wear for the rest of the summer. They really were a terrific bargain. Where in the world did I put them?

Take your problems to Church this week — millions leave them there!

FASTBALL LEAGUE

American Mold appears to have the inside track in the race for the second round title. The defending champions got off to a miserable start in the first round, winning only one game. However, they've got themselves untracked, and have silenced whispers of "old age" and "Blooper league champs in 70".

They scored in the seventh inning for a narrow 6-5 win over Morweld, and in doing so, practically eliminated them from contention. Ken Balch blasted a three-run homer in the first but Morweld countered with four of their own before Jim Alger's two run single in the third got Mold the lead again. Walt Kooyer tied it with a homer in the fourth. Mold scored on two walks and an error in the seventh. Nate Boss allowed four hits while Bob Klooster and Ken Richardson shared the Morweld pitching, allowing six hits.

Mold got some unexpected help form County State Bank, who had won just one game all season. The bank boys needed 12 innings to do it but they scored four times in the twelfth for a 9-5 win over Medusa. The loss gave Medusa their third loss. County State Bank came out swinging with two runs in the first on Mike Crain's hit, and one each in the second and third. Sonny Wright and Ike Boss singled to get Medusa two back. A fifth inning marker by the Bank set the stage for Medusa's Ralph Doan to tie the thing up with a towering blast over the center field fence for three runs and a new ball game. It stayed that way with pitchers Wright and Rich Heeris matching pitch for pitch until the twelfth when Mike Crain's two run homer ignited a four run clincher.

Only a night earlier Medusa looked like a sure title threat in dumping American Mold 3-2. Davenport's single in the third gave the winners two runs and two errors paved the way for the margin later in the contest. Ken Balch and Harvey Cole combined to get Mold close in the bottom of the sixth.

American Mold needs only to rack up a win against County State Bank to win the title and then it's on to meet Morweld in a three game set for the city title. The important contest was scheduled for last night.

JUNIOR League

Novaks won twice during the week to all but clinch the second round title. They won a forfit from Electra and defeated Freedmans 10-0 behind the no hit pitching of Bob Crain. Ten walks aided the winner's cause.

DeYoung won a thriller from Freedmans earlier in the week 6-5 when they scored three times in the bottom of the eighth. Freedman went ahead in their eighth when Tim Doan tripled, but Gary Moore and Joe Jones singled around two walks for the important three runs.

Use positive approach

James S. Shepard, East Jordan High School, was challenged to interest more students in post-secondary agricultural programs.

"Our post-secondary program is gradually increasing at the Institute of Agricultural Technology and in the community colleges, but we need more students in some of these courses," said Edwin St. John, supervisor of agricultural education, Michigan Department of Education.

"You, as vocational agriculture teachers, and people in industry had better get together and do some down-to-earth, realistic recruiting," he told participants at the 50th annual Conference for Teachers of vocational Agriculture July 28-31 at Michigan State University.

"Maybe it is time that those of us in agricultural education get busy and really help more of our students to see the opportunities in agriculture."

St. John said that agricultural education can grow, improve and meet the challenges in Michigan and throughout the nation.

"But we must take a positive approach," he stressed. "We must give all of our consideration to how new ideas and concepts can work for the good of agriculture, for education and, above all, for our students."

Camp Charlevoix

Corral Chatter

The Sixth week of camp started out on Monday morning with a beautiful hot day, just great for boys in camp. In the afternoon the Prep Section took off for an overnight hike, two cabins going to our campcraft area, and three cabins going to Susan Lake. In the evening, the MUGWUMP competition was started with the Greys finding it in the woods and thereby having the honor to pick up points by running it through camp once a day without having it taken away. It is wild competition, but most of our alumni when they visit camp ask "Do you still run the Mugwump?" It has become a great tradition here at camp. We had two visitors on Monday, both dads having been campers here in 1940-43. It is always great to have these men return and to hear how much the camp has influenced their lives.

Tuesday morning at seven, the second MACKINAC ISLAND trip left camp. Bill Townsend, plus four other staff men took the boys for their day on the Island. These are boys who enrolled last summer for this season. This, too, has become a tradition. Fifty-five boys were taken on this second trip this summer. The Greys ran the Mugwump Twice on Tuesday, but only one of the runs was successful. In the evening, we had a movie "The Ugly Dashound" which everyone enjoyed so much. Perhaps you haven't heard about the pet raccoon we have in camp. He has the free run of the entire camp and has made friends with everyone in camp. The boys love "Charlie" and he loves the boys. He opens doors, goes in cabins, into the office, into the dining room, and has a great time. He has really taken over the camp. A book could be written about his antics, and a movie of his day in camp would be great. The entire Senior Section hiked to our campcraft area and spent the night there. Boys sure enjoy overnight trips, and the experience is most worthwhile, learning how to live in the out-of-doors.

On Wednesday morning, the three day canoe trip down the Au Sable got away with Tom Dorsek, Bob Arters, and Jim Larimer in charge. The boys were all excited as this is always a trip that everyone enjoys as it is exciting going down this famous river. The boys chosen for this trip were Kim Miller, Dan Noel, Pete Bowers, Paul Dancer, Leigh Merrill, David and Tom Belbutoski, Jamie Stuart, Fitz Simmons, Steve Bernia, Tripp Frazer and Lock McKelvy. In the evening we had a Capture the Camper event and the Greens won three points to the Greys one. The score was tied at 24 for each team on Wednesday night. About midnight, the winds came up and blew, and blew and blew, for three hours, howling around the cabins and sounding very bad. Then the rains came and about six, several of the men went out to locate our raft which had left its mooring. The waves were away over the docks and the men were kept busy. Our speed boat went down the bay, located our raft, and then spent several hours helping some of the residences find their boats, retrieve their motors, etc. It was a terrible storm.

Thursday morning we had games in the clubhouse, while the winds still blew and the waves were still very high. The long hiking trip to the Upper Peninsula got away in two station wagons which were taking them to their starting point. They were hiking in forests, away from civilization, and the boys were really pleased at having been chosen for this trip from about 50 who asked to go. Chuck Leider and Curt Huber, our head trips man, accompanied and led the trip. The lucky boys were Casimero Bolonotto, Fabrice (our boy from Dakar), Scott and Mickey MacNair, Dick Geddes, Rick Bacon, Joe Manby, and Mark Achor. The winds continued all afternoon, and the white-caps and huge rolling waves were really something to see. Most boys and staff were amazed that our lake could be so rough.

Friday the wind was still blowing. Our canoe trip returned in the morning and the boys and staff were mighty excited over a very fine trip. Everyone enjoyed it and there were no mishaps. In the afternoon, a riding trip left camp, and these boys were chosen for that: Neil Summer, Paul Jurusov, Don Clark, Tim Washburn, Leigh Merrill, Dennis Bledsoe, Paul Dancer, David Rhame, Bill Maize, Bill Guggenheim, Ben Miller, Jamie Stuart, Dave Townsend, Bob Healey, Greg Mast, Paul Francisco, Tommy Smith, Steve Edmonds, and Bill Hocker.

Saturday was beautiful, no wind, and that was a blessing. The Senior boys were busy getting the Bigwam ready for the dance that evening with Camp Chick-A-Mi. The riding trip returned and from all reports, the boys had a great time. By the way, due to the fact that Rodney Deyo, our Instructor in Indian Dancing for the last 20 years, is on a trip this summer, we have decided NOT TO HAVE THE FINAL INDIAN CEREMONY. Rather than have a mediocre performance, we decided that we will end the season this year with the camp RODEO at three o'clock on the afternoon of AUGUST 22, a Friday. Cards were mailed out to all parents informing them of this change. At 7:45 p.m, the girls from Chick-A-Mi arrived and the dance was on. The boys had decorated the Bigwam, and it looked great. Everyone had a good time and now the mailmen for the two camps will have a few extra letters each day.

Sunday morning we had chapel in our outdoor chapel with several parents present. Dan Ross gave the talk, telling about an experience he had being lost in the Cumberland Woods in Kentucky. He spoke on "The Power of Prayer". It was a most interesting talk. David Wickizer gave the prayer and Fred Beyer read the scripture. At the Sunday dinner, Jeff Henry, camper from Dayton, Ohio, played two piano solos. In the afternoon, the MILE SWIM was held for this session.

It was a beautiful sight to see these boys trying to make their goal. Five Juniors completed this difficult swim. They were Jeff Edison, Stephen Heldenreich, Tom Miller, Ken Stockwell, and Don Clark. The top ten swimmers came in in this order: Freddie Beyer won the event with the best time, followed in order by Fitz Simmons, Mike Furbush, Ben Miller, Joe Manby, John Grizzell, Dan Noel, Lewis Edison (A Prep Section boy), Terry Mast, Greg King, and Dan Buckley. The Greys picked up three points by having the most swimmers complete the Mile. The score on Sunday night was Greys 30 the Greens 25. In the evening, Vespers were held on the shore of the lake and it was a beautiful night. Dave Tuttle led songs, Dave Porter read the "Sermon on the Mount" from Matthew. Ken gave a talk on "Respect for Others Property". After more songs, the entire camp faced the West and sang "Taps".

Enrollments are coming in every day for the 1970 season, and already we have a great start on next season. See you at the RODEO, Friday afternoon at three o'clock, on AUGUST 22nd. That event will officially close the 1969 season.

Charlevoix Editorial

The last laugh

Alright, everybody, at the count of three pat yourself on the back. You passed a school budget request.

A levy of 2.99 mills passed strongly, with almost 1,200 persons voting.

The voter fought for and won a compromise figure and promptly passed it. Fortunately, the voter doesn't care whether or not the level of local education is advanced...all concern is directed toward conserving the dollar in spite of the results.

However, the voter with children in school who voted against the first two millage requests (and there were many) has really "socked it to himself" this time. It looks like the last laugh is on him.

The millage, set at 2.99 for operational expenses after much haggling and budget trimming, smacks awfully much of a "retail sale price".

To us, it has sounded, since it went on the block, like a "magic figure" placed on an item in a store. "Get it while it lasts," shouts the barker, "now only 2.99".

How sad that our community, one of the wealthiest in the state, will not dedicate itself to producing the BEST educational system in Michigan.

Charlevoixans have proved that when they want something, they will pay for it. We built a new library...outfitted our band in the best uniforms money could buy...and financially supported numerous functions in the community much less important than the education of our young.

To advocate less than average education for the youngsters of the Charlevoix School District (and make no mistake about it, that's exactly what the program calls for) is a crime. Our graduates will be less than well prepared for what follows high school. Many of them will be stifled for all time because of crowded conditions on the elementary level.

+ + + +

With the passage of 2.99 mills, education in the district suffers with some courses dropped, other cut back, and the number of teachers reduced.

The irony of the situation is compounded when two important facts are brought to the fore.

First, the School Board has already acted to have text books rented by students. Second, it is almost definite that the cost of lunches at our schools next term will be increased by five cents.

Book rental will average $6 (less for elementary pupils, more for junior and senior high school youngsters). Based on a minimum of 180 school days, the lunch increase will cost $9 for each student.

The total increase amounts to an average of $15, or one and one-half mills if you own a $20,000 house.

In other words, if a property owner has only one child in school, it will cost $7.40 more than if the original 3.75 mill request was passed...and we would have had a full educational and extra-curricular program, more teachers...all for less money.

Those with more than one child in school will find costs skyrocketing.....

So, as it turns out, everyone suffers. Voters thought they were saving money. Some members of the School Board loudly proclaimed the compromise millage the only hope that voter had "to get his cake and eat it, too".

Yet, in the final analysis, it will cost more than the original request.

+ + + +

Now....honestly....who's fooling who?

Freedom to market

Those who urge a boycott of California table grapes are running head-on into an effective counter-boycott led by irate consumers who make it plain that their right to buy what they wish is being threatened.

They are doing something about it.

"Thank you for stocking California table grapes and for supporting your customer's rights to buy what they wish in your store. We will continue to shop here and encourage our neighbors to do so..." reads the printing on small cards left at checkout counters by growing numbers of housewives. "Boycotts, intimidation of customers, and harassment of store employees must not be tolerated" the card concludes.

At the bottom is the signature "Freedom to Market Committee".

In Michigan, more than two-dozen such committees are organized and coming alive in as many counties. They join more than 2800 such committees now organizing over the nation to confront efforts by labor unions and others to impose a boycott of the California fruit. All have one thing in common -consumer anger at attempts to use shoppers and their purchasing power to bring about labor organization of farm workers against the worker's wishes.

This is the actual issue behind the boycott --an issue largely hidden by emotion--charge and counter-charge. Labor has long had an eye on the nation's farm workers as an organization target, but the workers have spurned union attempts to organize them. With only a handful of farm worker members signed after four years of intensive organizational effort, the union has now focused its attention on growers who hire farm labor. If growers can be forced to sign closed-shop contracts, then all workers automatically become union members whether they wish to or not --the organizers reason. The nation-wide boycott is an attempt to apply pressure on the grower by ruining his market unless he signs a union contract.

Some queer animals

Public reaction to great events sometimes produces some amazing results.

A case in point is the Moon Walk and how it affected certain persons. The vast majority of those interviewed by newspapers, magazines, radio and television lauded the achievement of the American astronauts and called the moon flight the greatest event of history.

But there were others who appeared never to have heard of the flight, others who thought it was a waste of money and even others who showed indifference to the entire proceedings.

Throughout the event every newspaper, all radio and television networks were jammed with news about the astronauts and their progress to the moon and return.

How anyone could have escaped reading, hearing, or viewing this epic event is beyond our comprehension.

The only answer we can find is that there are a lot of people who do not read enough, who do not listen too closely or view pictures with any interest.

At times the great American public seems to be a queer animal, indeed.

A vital right denied

For a lot of Americans fed up with rising crime, the phrase "preventive detention" may have a wholesome and sensible ring to it. On the face of it, the idea seems so simple: when there is reason to think the accused might break the law if released pending trial, the judge can hold him in jail and thus prevent wrongdoing.

In actuality, this proposal in the administration's "law and order" plan for Washington, D.C., embodies a serious threat to a constitutional right. That right is set forth in the Eighth Amendment provision that "excessive bail shall not he required." The administration plan would not, technically speaking, require "excessive bail." Rather, it stipulates that under certain circumstances bail would be denied altogether in cases involving a wide variety of crimes.

+ + +

THERE IS deeply ingrained in the American judicial system the concept that the only valid purpose of requiring bail is to assure the presence of the accused at his trial. That purpose is violated if bail is set at an unreasonably high figure, so that in effect the accused is denied his freedom pending trial. This may seriously hamper the accused in preparing for his defense.

The Eighth Amendment provision is even more grossly violated if a man is held without bail for other than capital crimes. Using "preventive detention" might reduce crime to some extent. It would do so, however, at cost of weakening a right precious to the defendant in any criminal proceeding.

Bank deposit

BY JOHN REDDY

Setting next to a fellow at lunch recently, I discovered he was a Detroit bank vice-president. After the pleasantries of introductions I asked him if he filt any chagrin over a recent column by Judd Arnett of the Detroit Free Press.

The columnist had expressed his annoyance at having been callously treated by a clerk at his bank for not having a deposit slip prepared when he stepped up to the window.

My lunching companion cringed slightly and said he had not read that particular column.

But it sounds like our bank," he allowed.

Then he set out to expiain, a maneuver he wished the young lady who confronted Arnett had employed instead of resolutely insisting that a deposit form be completed even though none was available.

It seems banks have had difficulty with cheats and swindlers as a result of leaving blank deposit forms on customer counters.

The ploy apparently was for a group to fan out in an area after having opened a nominal account in a bank. They would go to the customer service counters in branch banks and write in the number of the newly opened account on a quantity of bank deposit slips.

The cheats counted on the harried housewife or businessman coming to the counter and picking up a form on which they had previously written their account number. Counting on people's careless reading habits, the gang could expect numerous forms to be filled out by unsuspecting customers.

Then, after a day or two, a member of the gang would call the bank and ask that he be given the total amount on deposit as of the last deposit. When this was determined the gang would draw a check on the account swelled by deposits of unsuspecting customers and move on to the next city.

Banks have built in devices to curtail this racket, using, for example, a method of inquiry that requires a customer asking for a report on his account be able to identify in some way his recent deposits.

Another way, is of course, to remove blank deposit slips from easily accessible lobby counters and urge customers to use deposit forms attached to and distributed with their regular check supply.

"Well," my lunch companion sighed, "It really boils down to the fact that it's a problem of people-how do you get them to understand the importance of being courteous?"

To preserve

BY HANK HOGAN

In crossing this great nation of ours you realize that within the confines of its borders we have all the natural beauty a human being can ask for.

We have mountains, canyons, oceans, the Great Lakes, deserts and tropical areas.

Slowly but surely this national beauty is being buried by mountains of litter.

+ + +

Alongside our great expressways, floating down our beautiful rivers, lying along our sandy beaches, are broken bottles, discarded gum wrappers and other trash.

Under Michigan law, if you are caught littering you can be fined $100 or imprisoned for up to 90 days or both if you can be convicted. But, littering is not the type of crime that is easily detected and the fine doesn't seem to be much of a deterrent, considering the results.

Since it costs the nation millions of dollars each year to clean up this blight and still we are falling way behind, maybe we out to do what California has done.

They passed a law providing a $50 reward for anyone giving information leading to the arrest and conviction of a litterer.

This means that instead of relying entirely upon their police department to enforce the litter law every citizen becomes a helper in keeping the state clean and the added incentive of a reward makes it worth their while.

+ + +

It does seem a shame to pit one citizen against another, but if everyone took it upon himself to make our country a better, cleaner place in which to live and play we wouldn't have a problem.

Since it is summertime and we are more likely to be using the great outdoor playgrounds our state and nation offers, we should pledge to ourselves that every place we visit will be left in better condition than when we first visited it.

In other words, if everyone not only made sure that he cleaned up any mess that he might have created but, on top of this, cleaned up a little of the mess someone else left, we would be progressing toward retaining our natural beauty.

+ + +

And to take care of those who won't face up to their responsibility, if we could get the legislature to follow California's suit we might be able to impress our citizens that while we do have a beautiful country, it will only stay that way if all of us pitch in and contribute.

Let's work to preserve those beaches, rivers, mountains and canyons for our kids and our grandchildren.

It takes work, but anything worth preserving is worth a little effort on everyone's part.

If it Fitz

Pass my space suit

Now that we've reached the moon, it is fashionable to insist it is time to cut the space program and apply the same dollars and ingenuity to solving the earth's many problems.

Where to dispose of disposable bottles, for instance, or how to put on loafers at the golf course when your shoe horn is back home.

Important stuff like that.

Of course, not everyone wants to switch the Apollo commitment to earthly problems. There are those who claim the farther we soar into space, the greater things are going to be on earth. The idea, somehow, is that Man will learn up there what he couldn't get through his meathead down here. Marvelous. I knew that someday someone would shoot down that old bromide which warns that you can't solve your problems by running away from them. You just have to know how far to run. Please pass my space suit.

But seriously, folks, other than that I thought Vaughn Monroe should have been there, I wouldn't knock the moon walk. It was a fantastic, incredible achievement which left me completely awed — by the genius of the men who dream up the hardware and by the bravery and fortitude of the men who ride it. I cannot comprehend how it's done. Also, I cannot comprehend how much money is the $24 billion it cost. But I suspect if you broke it into $1 bills and piled one atop the other, the top dollar would be looking down on the Sea of Tranquility.

It doesn't surprise me that Man would soil the moon before cleaning up the earth. The critics say the $24 billion should have been spent seeking ends to war, hunger, racism, urban violence, pollution and so on. But it's not that simple, Charlie. If the $24 billion hadn't been shot to the moon, there would still be Vietnam and starving kids and bigots and snarling slums and stinking lakes.

It is the nature of Man to follow the yellow brick road to wherever it leads. He wants to discover new rest stops. He doesn't much care about the litter he drops along the way, or about the people who can't climb out of the gutter to join him on the freeway to the cover of Time magazine. The important thing to Man is to get over the rainbow-first-and see what's in the pot.

That's the nature of Man and that's why, some day soon, there'll be a Holiday Inn on Mars. And things on earth will still be in a lousy mess.

Until the nature of Man changes, it will do little good to say forget space and spend the money and brainpower eliminating earth's miseries. Hell, if the $24 billion hadn't been blown into space, the government probably would have divided it evenly between the cancer fighters and the tobacco growners.

I wish I could join the dreamers who believe a walk on the moon will somehow prompt Man into caring more about his brothers who have trouble walking on earth. But there's no way.

So Onward and Upward into space, Man. The moon colonists should be ready to fight for their independence from the United States by the time Caroline Kennedy is President.

ON THE FLIP SIDE

For almost a year, we have told our wife about the movie "The Graduate." She was never able to break away from other duties to see it when it was in nearby theaters, but during hockey playoffs a year ago in Rochester, N.Y., we passed several hours watching Dustin Hoffman & Company romp through the problems confronting the young college grad.

We have never been a "big fan" of movies, although we see our share during the course of a year. Yet, we found "The Graduate" to be something special. . . .a week in Rochester found us in the theater for four showings.

What a flick. . . .for our money, the best we've ever seen. And, we musn't be alone in our opinion. It was announced recently that "The Graduate" had become the third largest grossing movie in history, topped only by "Gone With the Wind" and "The Sound of Music."

Pretty good company for a "low budget" film which started with only established "name," Anne Bancroft.

Of course, the movie has given stardom to two youngsters, Hoffman and Katherine Ross.

Unfortunately for those who missed it, "The Graduate" will not be released to TV for many years. It is being pulled off the market September 1, and undoubtedly will be re-released in eight or ten years to again make the rounds of our nation's theaters.

Our point of this rambling is the difference in view between the male and female viewer. We felt a strong empathy for Ben Braddock. . . .but our wife dismisses him with the comment that he is "an awful person."

And now she is suspicious that we were like Ben before she and yours truly met. As Jim Fitzgerald would say, Onward and Upward. . . .but, with nothing stronger than Walt Disney in my wife's movie future.

What is an average man? According to latest statistics, the average man is 69.1 inches tall and 161.9 pounds in weight.

In World War I, the average adult male stood 67.7 inches tall and weighed 142 pounds. During World War II, he was 68.4 inches tall and weighed 155 pounds.

Recent studies, according to the American Seating Company of Grand Rapids, have shown that on the average, sons are 1.3 inches taller and as much as ten pounds heavier than their fathers at the same age.

ONE MAN'S PHILOSOPHY

The function of government is not to mollycoddle the consumer. All that properly can be asked of the state is that it protect us from dangerous products, from outright fraud, and from deliberate deception. At that point, the pull and haul of a free society ought to be allowed free play.

Out of the past

Two years ago

Tom Bergmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bergmann, and Dan and Mike Bergmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bergmann, left Charlevoix for Marquette on August 8 on their bikes.

The 9th Annual Waterfront Art Fair was held in East Park of Charlevoix. Some 200 exhibitors set up shop. It drew a crowd larger than that of the Venetian Festival held in late July.

Two Community Chest Drives were in Charlevoix according to Don Anders, 1967 chairman. Summer merchants were being solicited by Anders, Tom LaBlance, Dr. John Lignell, and Bob Clock.

Five years ago

Charlevoix's newest and largest retail store, Oleson's Food Market, won a landslide victory on its opening day conflict with the weather. In spite of dark clouds and rain, they had a steady stream of traffic into their store.

Councilman Don Parsel, urged City Council to install toilet facilities at the Ferry Avenue and Depot Beaches by next summer. He said by not having them it causes unsanitary conditions.

Ten years ago

New steel bleachers for Kipke Athletic Field was approved at the July 27 meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education. They are being manufactured by State Steel and Supply Company of Three Rivers. The permanent bleachers, on the east side of the field, will be occupied by the home fans in future games.

Former Beaver Island residents and friends gathered at St. James to mark the 59th annual homecoming. The entire weekend was proclaimed a huge success by visitors and residents alike.

All persons operating day camps were advised that these camps must now be licensed. According to Mr. Hooper, a day camp is defined as any group activity giving care to school age children for any part of the day away from their own homes and apart from their parents, relatives, or legal guardians, primarily during the summer months.

The Cards continued to win, posting a narrow 4-2 win over the Cubs. The Cardinals scored all their runs in the third inning when pitcher Jim Potter connected for a home run.

The Braves kept pace with an 11-2 win over the Tigers. Clint Berlage had two for the winners who used nine walks to advantage. The Lions thumped the Astros, scoring four runs in each of the first four innings. Phil Christ had a triple and double for the winners.

SLOW PITCH

Carey Oil dumped Olsen's 10-6 and in doing so took over sole possession of first place. Dean Makulski's homer in the fifth hilighted a five run rally. Bill Supernaw had led off the same inning with a home run that started it all.

Castros went eight innings to defeat the USAF and move out of the cellar. A three run rally did it with Rich Plumm's single the key blow.

Ruppe Reports

Last week the House passed the Appropriations Bill for the Department of Labor and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for fiscal year 1970. Normally, this is a routine legislative matter. However, a classic legislative battle developed over the level of funding for the Nation's education programs. Many of us felt that the Committee's version of the bill did not provide for even the minimum funds necessary for a sound federal school aid program.

At the crux of the fight were two important education programs, Aid to Impacted Areas and Vocational Education. The Impacted Areas Program, known as P. L. 874 provides funds to local school districts whose tax base is affected by federal land ownership. In the committee version of the bill, the program was slashed from last year's level of $505 million to a low of $187 million. The result would have been catastrophic for most Northern Michigan school districts, where nearly half of the land is owned by the government. However, an eleventh hour floor amendment to the bill increased P. L. 874 funding to a record $585 million, a substantial increase over the previous year.

The same floor amendment also provided a major increase for the Nation's Vocational Education Program, which has been given a substantial boost by the Nixon Administration. The Committee sought $357 million for the program, but the floor amendment raised the level to an all-time high of $488 million, which is $240 million above fiscal year 1969.

I am especially gratified that Congress is living up to its commitment to education. The various floor amendments to the bill provide nearly $1 billion in increased education funds for the current fiscal year. While we are all concerned about the crippling impact of inflation on all segments of the economy and the need to hold back on unnecessary government spending, the vast majority of us in Congress feel that the importance of quality education for our young people rises above normal budgetary considerations.

Beware of Poisoning from Picnic Foods

EAST LANSING, Mich. -- Old wives' tales, church and social picnics, potato salad and slices of ham make up the national recipe for food poisoning during the warm summer days, says a Michigan State University food scientist.

"The old wives' tales," according to Dr. Richard V. Lechowich, "include the notion that ham can sit out without spoiling and that hot or warm foods should never go into the refrigerator.

"In the old days, ham did keep at room temperature without spoiling because it had enough salt and sugar to keep bacteria from growing. In those days the salt content alone was about 8 percent. Now the salt content is only about 2 percent or less."

Church and social picnics are notorious for their incidence of contaminated food, because so many people usually help with the preparation and distribution, the MSU researcher says.

Food poisoning does not necessarily mean a hospital ride or death. Sometimes the symptoms of food poisoning are mild, such as a stomach upset, headache, slight nausea or weakness.

The symptoms depend upon the person, the bacteria involved, and the length of time and the conditions to which the food is exposed. Furthermore, the actual symptoms may occur several days after the consumption of bad food.

"In one case of severe food poisoning in Scotland, a group was poisoned at a common feast," Dr. Lechowich notes. "A few survived to attend the funeral of their friends. Later, some of these same mourners died from the delayed effects of the initial food poisoning."

One common source of food poisoning is potato salad prepared by several women or which is allowed to sit at warm temperatures, says Dr. Lechowich.

For example, one woman may have an infection. Bacteria get into potato salad ingredients and grow after the ingredients are mixed together. Salad dressing furnished plenty of moisture and there is not enough salt or acidity to prevent bacterial growth.

At the right temperature in such food, one bacterium can multiply into hundreds of millions of bacteria. The poisons from such bacteria do the damage to people.

Salmonella bacteria can get into potato salad from egg shells handled during preparation.

"The household chopping block," says Dr. Lechowich, "so much in style today, can also be a serious source of contamination if it is not thoroughly washed after each use."

Ham can really get contaminated during slicing, says the MSU food scientist. The knife blade may be contaminated, and with each slice bacteria spread throughout the ham where the temperature and moisture may be ideal for bacterial growth.

"One of the best ways to prevent food poisoning is prompt refrigeration," Dr. Lechowich advises.

"If foods, even though they may contain harmful bacteria, are put into the refrigerator immediately after use, whether hot or warm, the chances for later food poisoning will be much diminished.

"Refrigerators, of course, must be sufficiently cold. They should be as cold as possible without damaging foods. For example, a refrigerator just cold enough to freeze vegetables in the crisper is cold enough to sufficiently retard spoilage. Of course, food will spoil if left in the refrigerator too long."

Even outdoor grilling can be a source of food poisoning, says Dr. Lechowich. If a plate of chicken is brought out for grilling and the same plate is used for the chicken after it is grilled, the food is contaminated. Germs from the raw chicken will be transferred from the plate to the cooked chicken.

"If such food is eaten right away there is no problem," says the Michigan State scientist. "But if leftovers are allowed to sit very long before being chilled in the refrigerator, bacteria will grow. They may grow in sufficient numbers to cause food poisoning."

He notes that "contaminating bacteria can come from just about any source. If food is dropped on the ground it will usually become loaded with bacteria. Some soil bacteria, botulinum for example, can be deadly."

When large amounts of food are prepared, it is wise to distribute the food preparation chores, Dr. Lechowich says, so that no one is preparing huge amounts of food. Such large-scale food handling is for the professionals, because the food has to be prepared rapidly and refrigerated promptly.

"If large amounts of food must be made," he says, "it would be wise to keep the food in small portions and spread out in the refrigerator for rapid cooling.

"Minimize the length of time food is exposed to temperatures between 40 and 140 degrees Fahrenheit. These are the temperatures that bacteria can multiply rapidly in a short time."

Refrigeration usually does not stop the bacteria from growing. But they grow at cool temperatures slowly, or not at all, so that properly refrigerated foods are usually no problem.

One of the many Young America outfits worn by Kay Fuhrman at the weekly fashion show and luncheon at This Ole House, Conway, was this black, white and red plaid coat with a high waisted belted effect. With it she wore a red sheer wool sleeveless dress and a red and grey silk scarf so popular this year. The next show at This Ole House will be August 20 and reservations must be made in advance.

Indian Lore--Every artifact of Indian lore is being recreated and sold at the Ottawa-Chippewa Arts & Craft Inc. shop. Hundreds of items are displayed in the shop. Helen Gilbert, shop employe, checks items on "Indian tree" which is a noval attraction of the neat shop.

Expert Basket Weaver -- Helen Cluocklen, assistant manager of the Ottawa-Chippewa Arts & Craft Inc. shop practices centuries old Indian craft of basket weaving. All items are for retail sale that are made on the premises of the shop at Kegomic.

"Everything Indian"

That well might be the motto of the Ottawa-Chippewa Arts & Craft Inc. shop in Kegomic.

The business is operated by Indians and all works that are for retail sale are made by members of the two tribes living in the area.

Many kinds of Indian artifact have been recreated, mostly on the premises.

A visitor to the neat retail outlet can find woven baskets of all kinds and sizes, teepees, canoes, tomahawks, head bands and numerous other items depicting Indian lore including leather goods and paintings.

The Indians receive trees from the Department of Natural Resources which are cut into logs with the rough side being smoothed. The wood is then cut into the shape desired for the particular wooden item to be made.

Ottawa-Chippewa Arts & Craft Inc. got it start in Harbor Springs under the federal Manpower Act. Here, the Indians were taught basketweaving and other crafts adaptable to future sale items. Many area Indians took part as did a number of whites.

When the money, that was appropriated for the program, was depleted, Victor Kishigo borrowed funds to maintain the program on a smaller scale.

The program serves numerous purposes. It provides jobs for some of the area Indians and teaches the young the folklore and crafts of their ancestors.

Then too, Emmet County provides an ideal natural area for the work of Ottawa - Chippewa Arts & Craft Inc., in that all the raw materials involved in the program crafts are abundant.

Kishigo is the manager of the shop with hours from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. Helen Cluocklen is the assistant manager.

The shop opened May 1 at its present location. Last winter it was located at 315 E. Lake-st. Business is conducted on a year-round basis.

Mrs. Jeeter (Lois) Eason models a Harold Grant sheer wool in butter yellow, a dress adaptable for year 'round. The jeweled yoke adds elegance to the simplicity of the dress. This was just one of the many Harold Grant fashions shown at This Ole House, in Conway at the Wednesday luncheon and fashion show.

This knit dress and jacket in burgandy and dusty pink from Harold Grant was modeled by Mrs. Bud (Betty) Helm, of Bay View at the fashion show and luncheon in This Ole House. The sleeveless dress carried out the two tone jacket effect on the bodice. Ann Fogarty created the outfit and it may be obtained at Harold Grants.

Early prints, etchings and paintings were one of the high interest points at the Antique Fair at the 4-H Center.

Favorite collector's item are China Dolls and Vivian Cole of Cole's Antiques, Warren, Ohio, showed a genuine Wulkner from Germany.

A closer look at fine cut glass was shown by Mrs. H.R. Myers of Lowell, Michigan who had just sold this dish to one of the Antique Fair patrons at the 4-H Center.

NEW YORK (UPI) –, Bob Hope isn't one to forget a reliable old property. Thirty-six years ago he had his first big Broadway role in the Jerome Kern musical, "Roberta." It opened the door to his success. Hope will use the show as one of his NBC video specials for the new season. It will be aired in November. The program will be taped in performances Oct 6,7 and 8 on the stage of the Bob Hope Theater at Southern Methodist University. Another who became a big screen and television star played a jazz band musician in the original "Roberta" – Fred MacMurray.

BOATING

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) – An alarming number of pleasure boating mishaps have been reported so far this year, leading observers to predict 1969 may be one of the worst in terms of casualties and property damage.

Most discouraging have been the number of accidents reported involving multiple deaths, such as a recent capsizing on a Texas lake which claimed six lives.

This unpleasant outlook comes on the heels of the Coast Guard's annual statistical report which shows boating accidents reported in 1968 were up 2 per cent over the preceding year – 4,194, compared with 4,113 in 1967.

It should be pointed out, however, that the number of registered pleasure boats operating in 1968 was 4,742,871 against 4,458,893 in 1967. And that 1968 figure probably has increased by another quarter million at this point.

The Coast Guard report also gave these figures for 1968:

– Deaths in boating accidents were up 2.3 per cent – 1,342 compared with 1,312 in 1967 – but reported injuries were down 5.9 per cent – 1,284 against 1,365 in 1967.

-- Property damage was up 9.5 per cent – $6,631,600 compared with $6,054,100 in 1967.

-- There were 5,427 vessels involved in the 4,194 accidents reported.

A Coast Guard analysis of its statistics showed the familiar pattern of pervious years where fatalities were concerned – capsizings accounted for more lives lost than any other type of casualty, followed by falls overboard and sinkings, in that order.

What is the key to safe and happy boating? The number one answer is probably: USE COMMON SENSE!

City moves to annex Charlevoix Township

City Council approved a resolution Monday night to begin legal procedures to annex Charlevoix Township.

The initial move came after a year of meetings and discussions between city and township officials and progessional planners.

Charlevoix Mayor William Fochtman said that Williams and Works, planning consultants hired by the city, recommend the annexation move.

According to Council, Charlevoix Township formally petitioned the city to annex the township. The city must petition the County Board of Supervisors, which will call public hearings.

Following the hearings, Township residents will go to the polls to vote on the annexation proposal. The Supervisors then approve or reject city annexation on the basis of the election and hearings.

Charlevoix city residents would not vote on the annexations plan.

"It is the general feeling that annexation of Charlevoix Township by the city is inevitable...it's just a matter of time due to economic expansion in Charlevoix and the limited physical space to grow," said the mayor.

Councilman Nate Boss stated that the combination of the two governmental units, "has to be, if only due to the geographical factors involved."

In the past month, a series of meetings between city and township resulted in the decision to petition for annexation at this time.

Consolidation, generally the same process, was decided against, as it was felt the additional steps necessary would only confuse residents.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, Council unanimously approved a motion to make traffic on Dixon Avenue, between Michigan Avenue and Meech Street one way year around, rather than just in the summer.

The proposal had been discussed for several years, but no action had been taken by past Councils.

Park Avenue is next on Council's list to recieve a long look. Traffic on that street is particularly bad according to one councilman.

The city fathers moved to advertise for bids, due no later than Septmeber 2, for several insurance policies due at that time.

Councilman Thomas G. Hanna indicated that he may attend the annual meeting of the Michigan Municipal League, September 9 through 12 in Grand Rapids.

Ralph McRae wrote Council, asking for a zoning change on lots at the corner of Petoskey Avenue and Meech Street from R1 to R2.

McRae indicated to the city that two of the four lots in question, presently owned by Edward Thorpe, are zoned R1, while two of them are R2.

McRae, who may purchase the property, is requesting the change in order to erect multiple housing units.

Council reported that $30,000 in treasury bonds had been purchased, yielding the city an annual interest rate of 7.35 percent.

Petoskey potter Stanley Kellogg views the world thru creations

By Edith Gilbert

On U.S. Highway 31 just outside Petoskey there's a sign, "Kellogg's Sculptured Pottery" and there's also plenty of parking space for the year 'round tourist. Kellogg's is a mecca for flower arrangers who love large pots with a small neck that hold much water--pots in all colors and shapes for the tiniest blossom to the tallest grasses.

Owned by Barbara and Stanley Kellogg (she's the business manager, and he's the creative artist), this small commercial pottery employs eight people.

Although Kellogg has made a commercial success with his pottery, his first love is and always has been modeling portraits. His first portrait, while still a freshman in Petoskey High School, was a snow sculpture of Abraham Lincoln.

After high school he continued his art education at the Chicago School of Sculpture, the University of Michigan and Cranbrook Academy of Art. He was assistant to sculptor Carl Milles for three years.

Recently he completed numerous portraits including a bas-relief of historian, Bruce Catton; a bronze of the late Dr. Joseph Maddy of Interlochen Arts Academy; a bronze of Alan Goldsmith located in Adrian College. Currently he's at work on the bust of Charles S. Mott, 92 year old philanthropist of Flint, Michigan.

Kellogg has appeared at the Charlevoix Waterfront Fair to demonstrate his clay modeling technique--the rest of the year visitors find him hard at work in his studio. The present modern studio with a kiln, work shop and attractive display room has mushroomed around an old house built of hand-hewn timbers with square nails around 1870. In this original house the Kellogg's still live with their children.

"Our heart is in Northern Michigan," says Kellogg. "I love to fish but I'm a poor fisherman, so I decided when we first started the Pottery to try and capture the shimmering beauty of fish as they leap from tha water.

We have reproduced trout, bass and panfish and shipped thousands all over the country. Since then we've added 1,600 separate items to our inventory. Excuse me.. " He dashes off to greet another batch of tourists and answer more questions.

Splash! Duck leads dog on 'goose' chase

A couple of Thursdays ago, a mother duck gave a Labrador Retriever a lesson in water play.

The scene: Ferry Avenue Beach. The time: early afternoon.

Two youngsters were walking their dog near the beach, while their parents sat in a station wagon in the beach parking area.

The mother duck and her young were swimming close to shore when the retriever spotted them and took to the lake.

Instinct took over and mother duck began leading the dog away from shore and her young. She circled like old pro; each turn taking the dog further from land.

After some 20 minutes of this play, the paddling pooch was laboring. The duck led the dog near the pier in the swimming area, and lifeguard Ran Eddy pulled the retriever to shore.

The dog was dragged to the station wagon by its owners....who, by the way, failed to even thank Miss Eddy for her efforts.

The story was related to the Courier by Al Lindahl of Decatur, Indiana, who was visiting the North country.

Lindahl said he talked to Miss Eddy immediately after the incident, and was amazed at the dog owners' unconcern. "They said 'Let him (the dog) go....let him drown'. What a shame. The lifeguard cared more than the owners did."

Miss Eddy, who has spent her summers working in Charlevoix for several years, lives in New York state and will be a senior at Iowa Wesleyan University in September.

(Ed. note: The following story is presented to our readers through the courtesy of the Medusa Mirror, published by Medusa Portland Cement Company. The author, Michael Wagner, is the son of Clem Wagner, Medusa office manager. Mike is presently in the U.S., and will return to Guyana early in September.)

The writer of these letters, Michael Wagner, teaches at a new university in a new nation. The University of Guyana is in Georgetown, capital of what used to be British Guiana. Guyana is the only English-speaking nation in South America. East Indians, about half the population, outnumber Negroes. Amerindians (the real natives), Portugese, Chinese, English and Americans are minority groups.

Wagner was graduated from high school in Manitowoc, Wisconsin. He won a Medusa scholarship ($1,000 annually) in 1962 and used it during his four years at the University of Wisconsin. In 1968 he received a master's degree in geography from the University of Toronto.

When the University of Guyana asked other universities in the British Commonwealth for help in organizing its new departments, the University of Toronto nominated Mr. Wagner as an instructor.

Here are several letters to his parents:

August 31, 1968

Dear Family:

I've just finished lunch with a dessert of mangoes and ice cream – a rather pleasant combination – and am enjoying my coffee in the heat of the day. It hasn't gone above 86, but the very intensity of the light causes a northerner, like me, to think it much warmer.

At times I feel very much at sea – mainly because I don't know the names of the trees, flowers, birds. Many things look tantalizingly familiar, but on closer examination the differences always appear.

Georgetown is like a frontier city. People's homes and commercial establishments intermingle in what passes for the CBD (Central Business District). This is a sign of the Latin American city (which Georgetown is only partly), and of a developing city. New buildings are going up but as yet they are widely spaced. There are many boulevards (good British planning) but few sidewalks and these only in the city's core.

The most obvious fact is that money is in short supply. Average income is between $500 and $1,500 U.S. money – not very much. I'm well off with about $7,000 Guyanese or $3,500 U.S....

Perhaps I should write of my house. It's

Hospital loses $32 M

Charlevoix Hospital operated at a deficit of $32,240.89 during the past fiscal year according to a report from the hospital's Board of Directors.

The Board held the annual Association meeting last Wednesday night at City Hall.

Re-elected as directors for three-year terms were Jack Grubaugh, Gordon Freedman and Fred Willis.

Elected to fill unexpired terms were Fay Davis and Tom Smith of Boyne City.

Other members of the board are Max Novak, Charles Bleha, Gerald Staublin and Julius Gilbert who are elected and Dr. Harry Custer who was named by the medical staff to represent its group for a year.

McDaniels resigns post

Thomas R. McDaniels, general manager of the Charlevoix Courier Corporation, resigned from his post effective last Friday.

McDaniels came to Charlevoix in 1963, and has directed the Courier since that time.

He was formerly the advertising manager for the weekly Ingham County News in Mason, and has been in the newspaper business for 18 years.

McDaniels has not announced his future plans at this time.

New students must register

All students who are new to the Charlevoix Public School system, or who were not in attendance last spring when school was dismissed, should plan to register at the high school on Garfield Avenue. This does not include kindergarteners who are already registered. The time will be Friday, from 9 a.m. to noon, and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Parents will register those children who will be in the kindergarten though the fourth grade in room A-18 which is across from the principal's office. Kindergartners birth certificates will be required. Health records must be up to date by these children having certain shots, if it is their first entrance into a Michigan school.

Parents of children who will be in grades five through eight should check at the high school principal's office for information for registration.

High school students new to Charlevoix who register should see Van Smith, high school principal, in his office.

It is planned that school will start Septmeber 9. The first day for kindergarteners will be September 10.

Miss Nancy Williams joins Courier staff, manning front office.

Miss Williams joins community, Courier

Miss Nancy Williams has joined the Courier staff, in charge of the paper's front office.

She replaces Mrs. Michael Bost, who has decided to "retire" from the working field, at least temporarily.

According to Miss Williams, "For the past 20 years I have lived in Grand Rapids, dreaming of a place where time is slow and things will keep until tomorrow, and you can walk just a short way to find nature unruffled by people and city living. Grand Rapids has many conviences and opportunities waiting everyday, but is too settled and too taken over by man.

"On Wednesday, August 6, I left my home in Grand Rapids with my parents's best wishes, to find a new home in northern Michigan. I believe I've found what I am looking for in Charlevoix. Although I've visited Charlevoix only twice before, it is just as beautiful and picuresque as it was five years ago, when I first saw it.

"The poeple of this town have every right to call this 'Charlevoix the Beautiful.'

"Now, something about me? Well, a synopsis of myself might read as follows: I am Nancy William, age 20, former resident of Grand Rapids, now living in Charlevoix, with a wonderful mother and father still living in G.R., an older brother Hugh, 21, stationed in the Philipines with the U.S. Air Force, a younger brother Greg, 19, who is a student at Grand Rapids Junior College, working this summer at John Ball Park Zoo, and last but not least, a sister Barb, who has spent the summer in tha Netherlands, after graduating from high school. She lived with a Dutch family while there under an exchange student program.

"I was working at the Camera Shop of Grand Rapids as a black and white printer and sorter. I attended Grand Rapids Junior College for two years as an art major, after graduating from Union High school. My hobbies and interests vary from photography and charcoal and ink drawing to gardening and even refinishing antique furniture.

"The first family to welcome me here, and my first friends, were Larry and Eileen Nunemaker, and their two children, Larry Carl and Barbara. They helped me to find a place to stay and feel welcome. I wish to thank them for all their time and trouble.

"I have been working for the Courier now for little more than a week and have already discovered the friendly atmosphere of Charlevoix...not only in the Courier office, but through the people I meet on the street and in the various stores and shops. They are openly friendly and helpful."

Miss Williams' duties will include general office work, subscription details, and some writing.

Italian artist show is gallery feature

Mario Micossi, whose works can be seen at the London Arts Gallery, 313 East Lake Street, Petoskey, is an Italian artist who was born in Argenta by Udine.

Since 1956 Micossi has made annual visits to the United States and has also expanded his European travels to include such countries as Finland, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and the Soviet Union. He now has a studio in Argenta and it is there that he perfected a new technique of making etchings.

He often leaves the plate in the acid a day or longer, instead of only a few hours. This enables the acid to bite deep. Then when the plate is pressed against the paper, a certain tactile beauty is produced -- its effect very much like bas-relief.

The artist has traced a curious path into the realm of fine art. For the past dozen years, the readers of the New Yorker, The Reporter and the Saturday Review have been entertained by his scratchboard vignettes. These small decorative drawings show a flair for the humorous, the grotesque and the fantastic.

From the outset of his career, however, his aim was to find himself as a serious artists and in 1962 he began the arduous task that had won him a place among the leading etchers of today.

Micossi comments on his work: "In general, I am greatly drawn to the classical art of Greece and Italy. I am especially inspired by the Renaissance, and I find myself attracted more and more by the Venetian school. I have a special admiration for Titian, Bellini, Guarini and Tiepolo. As an etcher, I feel very close to Piranesi, owing to his romantic attachment to classical art and his architectonic sensibilities. These things are also characteristic of my etchings."

Construction crews will be building steel transmission towers in eastern, western and northern Michigan starting this month.

Consumers line project will take four years

Consumers Power Company this month starts construction on 710 miles of extra high voltage electric trasmission line on the west, north, east and central portions of Michigan. The cost is expected to be $97 million.

Four thousand steel towers, carrying 345,000 volts of electricity, will link three major generating plants now under construction and connect them with the remainder of the integrated statewide electric network.

The south leg of a figure eight, 165 miles of tower line, has been built from the Palisades nuclear plant, 35 miles west of Kalamazoo, to Detroit Edison Company's Wayne substation, west of Detroit. It makes connections with the Indiana & Michigan Electric Company system on the western end of the system.

The new portion will continue from Kalamazoo to Ludington, to Gaylord, to Midland, to Flint, and across the state back to Kalamazoo.

Construction starts first on a 45-mile leg from Kalamazoo to Grand Rapids. Next, contracts will be let for two lines by different routes, Grand Rapids to Ludington, total 175 miles.

Another portion, 65 miles in length, will follow from Grand Rapids to the Palisades nuclear plant near South Haven. Then comes 115 miles across central Michigan from a point near Sparta to Flint.

A 175-mile stretch runs from Flint to a point near Gaylord via the proposed Midland nuclear plant. The final 135 miles is to go from near Gaylord, passing close to Traverse City, enroute to Ludington.

Consumers Power is investing more than $200 million in 1969 in projects to expand and improve its facilities and to keep ahead of future requirements for electricity and natural gas. The 1969 expenditures are part of a long-range program in which the company expects to commit more than $1.2 billion in capital investment over the next five years.

The major electric projects which are to be connected with the 345,000-volt transmission system are:

The Palisades nuclear plant, 710,000 kilowatt initial capacity, scheduled for 1970 operation.

The Ludington pumped storage hydroelectric plant, 1.8 million kilowatts of peaking power capacity, 1973. This plant is a joint project of Consumers Power and The Detroit Edison Company.

The twin unit Midland nuclear power plant, 1.3 million kilowatt capacity, 1974 and 1975.

The already-built portion of the transmission system in southern Michigan provides interconnections with electric utilities in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

The 345,000-volt transmission system will be operated from the Michigan Electric Power Pool Control Center near Ann Arbor. The control center is a joint project of Consumers Power and The Detroit Edison Company. The two companies are principal members of the Michigan power pool.

The control center centralizes the generation and transmission of more than ten million kilowatts of power. Each company continues to be responsible for the electric service in the area it serves.

Jail Authority faces problem

A petition drive may be in the future to kill the newly-organized building authority to construct a new Charlevoix county jail, and to finance it instead with general obligation bonds. This action is a result of a meeting of the Melrose Township Board Thursday night. The petitioners propose to replace the building authority by financing the jail with general obligation bonds.

Supervisor Larry Matthew said he would confer with other township supervisors before deciding on what action to take.

The building Authority to construct a new $500,000 jail for Charlevoix County was established last week by John Kujawski, chairman, of Charlevoix County or Supervisors who named W.G. Boswell of East Jordan, N.A. Barden of Boyne City and E.D. Hawley of Charlevoix to the newly-organized group.

The Authority is incorporated for the purpose of acquiring, furnishing, equipping, owning, improving, enlarging, operation and / or maintaining a building or buildings, automobile parking lots, recreational facilities and the necessary site or sites.

The authority may issue self-liquidating revenue bonds in accordance with state law after organizing. The authority will then go ahead and build the proposed new county jail on Garfield Ave. and then lease it to the county an estimated $42,000 from the $92,000 received in fees and rentals will be paid annually to the authority over a period of years until the bonds are paid off. The building will then be deeded to the county.

The board of supervisors agreed to establish the building authority after hearing Murel J. Sancrant of the company outline the purposes and functions of a building authority. He appeared at the request of the Ways and Means and the Building and Grounds committees which had met with him earlier to discuss this method of financing and constructing the jail. Sancrant outlined the methods for issuing self-liquidating bonds and how the cost would compare with levying millage.

The object of establishing a building authority to build the jail rather than ask for millage is to lessen the load on the taxpayers of the county.

At the present time, the county receives approximately $92,000 in fees and rentals. The board decided to use some of this money to underwrite the cost of the jail rather than ask for extra millage.

The Melrose Township board's main objection to the building authority as a means of constructing a new jail is the cost.

Melrose township board District 6 supervisor Harry Giffin, representing Melrose and Chandler townships, told the trustees that the $500,000 jail will cost $1,134,000 over a period of 25 years unless the building authority is abandoned.

He went on to say that the same jail could be built for only $680,300 with general obligation jail bonds, issued for a period of only 10 years.

The Board of Supervisors has been advised by the Department of Corrections that it must remodel the present jail or build a new one because the existing jail does not meet specification established by the Corrections department. Robert Russell, jail inspector, warned the board in April, 1966, to do something about the situation. In July he appeared before the board again and advised them to either do something or he could promise them that the present jail would be closed by the end of the year.

The building authority was established as a result of this order.

In voting on the issue Clyde Cunningham, Ralph Richardson, Harry Griffin, Anthony Krulik and Kenneth Staley voted against the establishment of the building authority while Kujawski, Robert Davis, William Taylor, Barney Milstein, Harry Tompkins, Albert Kassin, Lee Moerland and Kit Carson voted for it. Delbert Ingalls abstained and Clayton Smith was absent.

After the decision was made to establish a building authority the board adopted a resolution instructing S.T. Gerganoff of Ypsilanti, the architect engaged earlier, to proceed with the preparation of working drawings and specification for the new jail and sheriff's residence so they can be approved prior to advertising for bids.

After the building authority is in operation, this group will take over the handling of this part of the project, advertising for the bonds., accepting them, selling the bonds and handling all details of the project.

The board also voted to engage Murel J. Sancrant & Co. as financial consultant to the county at a fee of $3,500 and the firm of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, attorneys of Detroit to handle the legal work.

Ruppe Reports

Very often, a constituent writes me with a question that I think would be of interest to all the voters of the Eleventh District. For the next few weeks, I would like to answer some of these questions in the Ruppe Reports column. I hope that you find this new service beneficial.

As a township official, I have been asked to contact you with regard to our need for a new sewer and water system. Could you advise as to application procedures for federal assistance?

I will be happy to send you the application forms for the proper government agency. I will then contact the agency's regional representative who will set up a pre-application conference with you. If your town then decides to apply, my office will follow the project through government channels on your behalf.

Congressman Ruppe, this summer, the effects of pollution in the Great Lake State have become more noticeable. What have you, as our Congressman, done about this?

Pollution is a matter of constant concern to me. I have introduced legislation to prohibit indiscriminant dumping of waste materials into public bodies of water. I have co-sponsored an amendment to the Oil Pollution Act, that makes those who are responsible for oil pollution, liable for the cost of clean-up.

Concert program

The Charlevoix City Band will present its final concert of the summer tonight at 8:30 in East Park.

The program includes The National Anthem; Inveraergill, Lithgow; Poet and Peasant, Von Suppe; Poem, Fibich; A Santa Cecelia, Raedelli; Children's Prayer, Humperdinck; Kentucky Babe, Buck; Sandpaper Ballet, Anderson; Emblem of Unity, Richards; When Day Is Done, Katcher; Prairie Lamont, Walters; Stars & Stripes Forever, Sousa.

Charlevoix teachers take summer courses

Once upon a time a college graduate could march confidently into a teaching career supported only by a B. A. degree and state-issued certificate verifying that the bearer had taken the required number and kinds of courses that qualified him to teach particular subjects.

The day of such limited teacher education is gone forever. In fact, such a life certificate was last issued in 1938. Through the years since then, requirements for teacher certification have kept pace with the growing complexity of public school education.

Current requirements for a permanent certificate are 10 semester hours of study beyond the B. A. degree and at least three years teaching experience. By 1970 the number of additional hours of study will be raised to 15, equivalent to one full semester of college work.

Kindergarten teacher Mrs. Clayton (Kay) Smith recently received her permanent certificate, having taken after-school classes both semesters last year and two courses this summer. Attending Michigan State University classes at North Central Michigan College, she studied The Family in Contemporary America and School Learning I. She has taken several more than the required ten hours through the years in order to be certified for both secondary and elementary teaching.

Further evidence of the increase in teacher educational requirements as public school education has been expanded and improved is the relatively new Vocational Education certification. To receive a permanent certificate in vocational education, the candidate must take up to 15 hours of graduate-level courses (depending on the number of appropriate courses he has taken for his B. A. degree) and have two years of field experience (i.e. working in a business office or in industry) in addition to the regular three years teaching experience.

Mrs. Dale (Sandra) Fassett Lasher has a provisional Vocational Educational Certificate, needing only two more years teaching experience for her permanent certificate. She also has only to get her Master's degree in teaching in the senior high school. She spent six weeks this summer at Central Michigan University, taking seven semester hours of work. Her courses included Principles of Guidance, Business Education Curriculum and a seminar in Business Education. Mrs. Lasher taught senior math and business education at the high school last year.

Friday is Tag Day

Friday has been designated as Tag Day in Charlevoix county, the day that tags benefiting the Grandvue Medical Facility will be sold throughout the county according to Mrs. W.G. Boswell of East Jordan, president of the sponsoring organization, the Facility Auxiliary.

Area chairmen are Mrs. James Lilak in East Jordan, Mrs. Howard Darbee in Boyne City and Mrs. Albert F. Mansen and Mrs. Floyd Chamberlain in Charlevoix. Each will enlist volunteers to assist in their respective area. Beaver Island, which has a number of patients at the Facility, will be included in the drive. East Jordan's Senior Citizens who are planning a field trip Friday and have volunteered to sell tags on the island.

Funds raised by the sale of tags will be used to purchase items from which the patients and the Facility will benefit. Among the items suggested are an aquarium, lawn furniture, radios for patients' rooms, a color television for the recreation room, special equipment for the therapy department and a patio. "There are so many places the money can be used that it will be difficult to decide what to use it for," Mrs. Boswell said..

The auxiliary was organized last month and this is its first major project. Members are hopeful that the residents of the county will respond to the Tag Day project, the only one in the county.

Thirty-six members were present at Thursday's meeting held at the Facility. Members put strings on tags and tagged laundry for the facility.

Tentative plans are also being made for a fund raising project in November to provide Christman gifts and "extras" for the patients at holiday time.

The cost of printing tags was underwritten by the Northwestern State Bank of East Jordan and Boyne City. The Steindler Paper Co. of Petoskey is furnishing the containers for the drive.

BY C.B

I would like to take the time to use my column space for a few words to those who receive the Courier.

I am leaving the Courier office at the end of of this week, and this will be my last Claudia's Comments column. When looking through my files and old newspapers, it is hard to believe the number of items I wrote for the paper.

My job here has really been quite an opportunity for me. I love to write and be involved with the latest news happenings. This job provided the opening for this.

Since living here in Charlevoix, I've learned many new and different items of interest. My way of life had been completely altered from the big city life to a much slower pace of activities. The people in Charlevoix also served as a source of education to me. I consider them different then to those I had been accustomed to. My whole outlook of things had been changed.

While working in the Courier office, I became part of the community. I was made aware of the community's life and problems. I've heard heated discussions about the school millage, I've listened to complaints and praises from customers, and I've had the pleasure of interviewing a few of Charlevoix's citizens. All in all, I became very much a part of the active Charlevoix.

Michael, my husband, also played the role of a teacher. It never ceases to amaze me how much there is to learn about the "country" way of life. Not once had I saddled a horse, picked a chicken, or fryed a perch before moving up here. Mike seems to always be two jumps ahead of me and ready for the next lesson.

Well, now I'm about to call myself retired, at least from the Courier. I'll take in a little of Michigan's sun and see how hard a housewife really works. I'll vacuum more rugs, wash more tubs and read my mail EARLIER!

So now, I'd like to introduce Nancy Williams to you. She is a new resident to our area and comes from Grand Rapids. Nancy will be the new Courier girl eager and ready to help those who come to the office. The paper has been in existance for many years. I think Fiske the editor has done a marvelous job of involving himself in the community's problems and activities, and I'll continue to look for him in all future events of Charlevoix.

Incidentally, being proud as I am, I've a news flash all the way from the St. Louis area. The Chris-Tones, (group previouslly mentioned in an article in this paper) are hitting it big. The liturgical-comtemporary folk group I used to sing with looks as though they are on their way to big success. They recently completed a charity benefit program, raising approximately $1,400 to be sent to Biafra. I am so very proud of all of them. Looks like to youth of today are very much capable of being productive to the present society. The Chris-Tones stand as a living proof. Their singing ability and ambitious motive are driving them to bigger and better things. I say CONGRATULATIONS to each of you. I only wish I could still be there to be a part of all that "goodness".

Thank you for your support, and the many kind comments I've received about my work with the Courier. And thank you for being the people you are in a community that is truly one of the greatest.

Teacher settlements are slow

"Disappointing" is the term used by Mrs. Maurine Wyatt, Michigan Education Association field representative in northern Michigan, to describe the slow pace in contract settlements between teachers and boards of education in the northern part of the lower peninsula.

"Settlements are considerably behind last year," Mrs. Wyatt stated, "and with the opening of school less than three weeks away, time is beginning to run out."

"Of the 20 school districts in this area that had not reached agreement last week, only three have settled–Posen, Fairview, and Cheboygan. At this rate, it would appear that a number of contracts will not be completed before the scheduled opening of school," she added.

"Every effort is being made, however, to avert a crisis in any of the unsettled districts. Mediators and fact-finders are being used where their services speed up the negotiation process. The Michigan Education Association has also provided additional consultants, Walter Williams of Elk Rapids and Howard Taylor of Grayling, to assist in making bargaining sessions more fruitful.

"We hope that both boards of education and teachers will make a more determined effort to step up the tempo of negotiations during the next two weeks," Mrs. Wyatt said, "so that every public school student in our area will start school on time."

The 17 school districts still without teacher contracts for the 1969-70 school year are Alcona, Alpena, Boyne Falls, Twin Valley, Alanson, Atlanta, Hillman, Ellsworth, Mio, Alba, Elk Hapids, Benzie County Central, Kingsley, Kalkaska, Northport, Suttons Bay, and Manton.

Chamber Chat

CHAMBER MANAGER

According to the calendar at least, the season as such has not much longer to go. However, be it as it may, from all appearance before any more or less spot checking, we certainly have had a vast number of visitors this past few weeks. I hope this fair weather continues so as to keep them coming. But, all good things, of course, have to come to an end at one time or another.

From time to time I have indicated compliments for our fair city, etc. Maybe I have neglected to mention some of the other kind of remarks and maybe either or both are needless. I must mention one occurrence today, especially. A senior citizen, as many people of a certain age bracket and over are referred to, a male, came into the office all teed off. He implied that this city was no place for people his age for a number of reasons, especially some of these noisy rattle-trap autos that happened to be here today, and moreover, he said it seems nothing is done about these excessive noise makers "motorcycles" and in addition to the racket, he was also disturbed with the speed that they travel on our streets.

He did not like the idea of how some of the persons use our public restrooms. He referred to them as a laundry place and messy. HE did not give me much opportunity to diplomatically; shall I say, retaliate, but he stood in the doorway and let both barrels go, so to speak. Too bad, I feel sorry for him I really do. As he left, I could not help but think, at least I found it that way, and I am sure I am not alone, that if you are looking for the beautiful in Charlevoix the Beautiful, you most certainly will find it, and the same holds true anywhere else. However, if you are looking for something to complain about, it is not amazing where you can find that sort of thing with little effort.

There must be a new rock shop so called in our fair city, as lately, I have had three contacts here at the office wanting to know where Fred's Rock Shop was. Fred, if you are a reader of this column, please be in touch with me or any of you readers know of any such establishment, please let me in on it. Thank you.

Having to do with the much needed lodging place brochure which detail I started to accumulate months ago and for reasons beyond our control temporarily had to be delayed. In the next short while, as soon as the dust begins to settle and the pressure eases a bit, I must accomplish this listing. This new brochure is to include our eating places, also. Therefore, the premises listed in the older brochure will be contacted having to do with an updated ad and any of you people who have not been advertising heretofore wish to do so now, please promptly be in touch with this office. We are hoping to have this the best issue ever.

A day or so ago there was mailed out a ballot to the retail merchants having to do with 1970 sidewalk sales. This is not too early for any planning of 1970. I hope these ballots will be returned promptly so we can pick up from there with hopes of having a better advertised and better organized sidewalk sale.

Another thing in the hopper at this time is an updated factual and or statistical brochure with a bit of Charlevoix history. To compile this information I have a schedule of contacts that I hope to get concluded within a week or ten days at the most, so as I can get the instrument edited and made available for printing.

This sort of information should be updated at least every second year. I know that the chambers that do this sort of thing for their community make it available usually every two years and some every third year.

Buster Mathis, Grand Rapids heavyweight boxer, was captured on canvas and displayed at recent Waterfront Fair. Buster would rather be on canvas in this manner than on ring canvas, although at this time, "Big Bad Buster" is having trouble getting a match. He backed out of a recent fight scheduled for Detroit's Cobo Hall, and was promptly suspended by boxing commissions in several states. He says he wants to return to the ring in an effort to get a shot at Jimmy Ellis' heavyweight crown. COURIER PHOTO

Food for thought

Homemekers ere getting to be a pretty spicy group of gals these deys. At leest, they're sending to new highs the sales of such spices as black and and white pepper, cinnamon, celery seed, anise and sage. According to the American Spice Trade Association, we imported some 3,116,000 pounds of celery seed alone last year.

It's interesting to note that while thousands of tons of stelk celery is grown in this country, celery seed for the spice shelf must be imported from India, France and Indonesia.

Actually, celery seed for seasoning comes from the fruit of wild celery or smallage which has been harvested for many centuries. At one time it was used for medicinal purposes. And then, as now, the seeds had an appetizing aroma but the rest of the plant was unpleasantly bitter, or "ungrateful" as they called it long ago.

But even the sweeter plant from which our celery flakes and diced celery come took centuries of taming to develop good flavor. Meanwhile, the flavor fillip of the tiny brown celery seed has always been used by good cooks. It is an important ingredient in pickling spices, an excellent addition to chowders and fish soups, egg dishes, sea foods and salads of different kinds.

* * *

Speaking of celery brings to mind that the salad months are here again; end there are few things more fun for the cook to create than a new saled dish. No two need ever be the same.

They can be simple or elaborate; a meal in themselves or a mid-day snack. So, give your imagination free rein. Experiment with slices of cold chicken, ham or canned meats, anchovies or black olives, hard cooked eggs or raw mushrooms.

Pat's Reaction

BY PAT BEGROW

Was I ever in a snit last Wednesday when I couldn't buy a copy of my favorite newspaper, The Charlevoix Courier. Wednesday for me just isn't Wednesday without the Courier, and I guess that everyone who wants a copy on Beaver Island is a subscriber, for there weren't any for sele.

That's the whole trouble with periodicals. They only publish within a certain period. For instance on Tuesday I'd desperately wanted to see the Detroit Free Press but our family left early in the morning to sail to Beaver Island and the best that I could do was to call a friend to save me her Tuesday copy. She did.

We have periodical troubles all the time at our house. Time and Life both carried marvelous pictures of the moon men. We take both Time and Life but how did I have to read about the moon men? By standing in my sons' bedrooms and reading the pages one by one that the boys had tacked on the well. Naturally they liked the pictures best so the story line didn't follow a pattern and I ended up with a pretty garbled account of the most earthshaking event since the dropping of the first atomic bomb.

In a way it's a shame that we adults teach children to read at such an early age. It gets them too early into the bad habits of magazine snatching. The postman comes to the door almost daily with a current magazine, but what happens? Someone snatches it and runs to his room before the rest of the family gets to see it. By the time that the magazine finds its wey back to the family megazine rack it's no longer current.

And is it ever hard to save a newspaper at our house. If I don't clip it and file it on the day that the paper arrives I can never find it again.

Two weeks ago Edith Gilbert had an excellent article in The Detroit Free Press about the Charlevoix art fair. I saved that paper carefully and put it on top of the breadbox in the kitchen which is my special place for saving valuable notes and papers.

What happened to it? Well, we are still painting the kitchen, you know, and Cathy looked at that three day old paper and used it under her paint can. You just can't win it seems.

But we aren't always that efficient. About a month ago I commented on an article I'd read about a hold-up in a Bellaire party store. My husband had read the same article that evening in the Petoskey News for we both knew the store owner and were interested. We hunted up the paper to re-read this local tidbit and only then did we discover that the event took place last February. Don't ask me what that daily newspaper was doing still hanging around the living room in July. I'll just never figure that one out.

I always seem to save the wrong magazines and throw out the right ones. For instance remember my writing about the voyage of the papyrus ship Ra across the Atlantic? I wish I had the old magazine that talked about the anticipated voyage, but I'll probably have to find it at the library. Well anyway, that lucky Thor Heyerdahl will make his do, ra, mi from that voyage for the dumb boat broke up on a sunny day with lots of photographers handy to record the event. Heyerdahl only had to travel on it 56 days and 2,700 miles and now he's able to capitalize on the event just as much as if he'd finished the voyage. After all, who ever photographs and writes about boats that don't sink? Big news is usually bad news it seems. Now, just like Kon-Tiki he'll have the papyrus boat Ra, at least what's left of it, on tour for the next 20 years. You'll read it in every periodical for a month.

I like all kinds of magazines. In fact one of my favorites is Boys' Life, for that magazine gives me lots of good ideas for the Cub Scouts. The only trouble is that everytime I carry Boys' Life off to my room to read, one of my sons scouts around, finds it and steals it back again. I guess that if I want to read Boys' Life I'll just have to get my own subscription. That way I can read the joke page at the back of the magazine first and be the life of the family dinner table conversation.

FASTBALL LEAGUE

Well, in case you haven't noticed, the veteran American Mold team has kicked up its heels once again and have won the second round title. Now they take their momentum into the city playoffs against Morweld Steel, the first round titlist. The first of the two-out-of-three game series was played last night with the second scheduled for tomorrow night (Thursday) at 8:45. The third, if necessary, will be played Friday.

The fact that Mold won the second round after a disasterious first round is amazing enough, but the manner in which they won the crucial final game is near unbelievable. County State Bank, a strong season finisher, had them down 5-2 with two outs in the bottom of the seventh. After Herb Boss had coaxed a walk and Des Milligan had singled, certerfielder Jim Austin's single through the box scored two and he went to second on the throw home.

Then Ken Wojan hit a two-strike pitch on a line into left and Mold had tied the game. It was nearly routine in the first extra inning, the eighth, when the Boss boys combined to get the winning marker. Nate Boss Singled, Herb moved him to third with his one-bagger, and brother Ken promptly scored him with a long fly ball to right. Losing pitcher, Mike Crain, deserved better fate. Until the seventh he had allowed only three hits and he helped his own cause with a two run homer in the fourth.

The championship playoff should be exciting. Check the six previous scores these two teams have posted: 3-2, 1-0 and 6-4 all Morweld. 2-1, 4-3, and 6-5 all American Mold. Add the natural confirmation of two of Charlevoix's finest pitchers ever, Bob Kloosler of Morweld and Nate Boss of Mold, and you don't even need to mention the fine fielding and lusty hitting packed in both lineups. It could be a classic.

BALCH WINS BATTING CROWN

Ken Balch finished in a hot flurry to capture the city fastball batting crown, hitting a fine .418. County State Bank dominated the top hitters, placing Gary Stutzman second, Tom Drenth third, Mike Crain fourth, and Dave Novotny tied for fifth. The league's top hitters are:

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Novak's had only last night's game against Deyoungs standing between them and their second straight Junior League Championship. They have a game edge in the standings and a victory would eliminate Deyoungs. Novaks have already won the first round. Novaks edged Deyoungs during last week's play 4-3 despite picking up only one hit from hard-throwing pitcher Larry Potter. Two errors in the fifth allowed the winning run to score.

Deyoungs redeemed themselves against Freedmans, winning 21-8 Joe Jones, Roger Crain, and Gary Moore each banged out three hits for the winners.

The junior league batting race is shaping up as a near all Novaks affair, although Larry Potter of Deyoung could sneak in with a great final game. Stewart Coleman continues to lead at .522 with three teammates in hot pursuit.

PEANUT LEAGUE

The Cardinals need a win over the Braves this week to clinch the second round title. They edged the same team in a playoff game for the first round title earlier in the season.

During the week, the Braves stayed in the running with a narrow 3-1 win over the Cubs. Pitchers Denny Crain and losing pitcher Tom Moore each allowed only 2 and 1 hits respectively in the hard fought contest.

The Lions continued their strong improvement with a 6-1 victory over the Cubs. Dan Oliver allowed only two hits. Phil Christ banged two long homers for the winners. Jim Potter, Cardinal pitcher, gave a great performance in pitching a no-hitter at the Astros in a 6-0 shutout victory. Jerry Skippergosh broke a close game wide open in the seventh with a grand-slam home run.

Football clinic is success

The parent's football clinic that was held in the high school gymnasium last Thursday was deemed successful by the nearly 40 parents and 60 students.

Head coach Don Carey displayed the equipment worn by the players, indicating that the cost of equipment was not as important as preventing injuries. Carey also showed the parents some of the various offensive and defensive plays used on the football field.

Bill Carey of Carey Insurance was on hand to discuss insurance.

Following the meeting, the parents and players had an opportunity to react to both the program and any aspect of the athletic program.

The reaction that was given the greatest emphasis was that the program was good, and there should be more gatherings with parents and student together.

Bible school at Assembly

Dick Way, Sunday School Superintendent for the Charlevoix Assembly of God, 203 E. Upright, announces the beginning of Vacation Bible School at the church.

Bible School will start this coming Monday night, August 25, and will contunue through Friday, August 29.

Each evening from 6:30 to 8 o'clock, children's evangelist, John and Sharon Holmquists, from Cadillac, will lead the children in singing, Bible stories and Bible skits. Films will also be shown. Lots of excitement will be in store for the children with contests being conducted, mystery seats, and magic being performed.

Each evening there will also be handcraft work for all the children.

The theme for the school is "The Bible-The Living Book." Bibles, along with other prizes, will be given away to those who attend every night. On Friday night, a special program will be presented and every parent is invited to come and watch their child take part in a program which will show all that has been learned throughout the week. A program and refreshment time will also be held for the parents.

Every child ages one to 11 is welcome and is invited to attend every night.

For those who would like to pre-register or find out more about the children's Bible School they may do so by calling Pastor Bob Rutledge, at 547-6430.

New Ford Maverick . . . the simple machine

1. LOW PRICE. Maverick is the best seller of the '70s at 1960 prices. And you get your money's worth. A complete car all ready to drive home.
2. LOW FUEL BILLS. In tests by professional drivers at our tracks, where we do our best to duplicate actual driving conditions, Maverick averaged 22.5 mpg. (Some Maverick owners report they get 25 mpg and better.)
3. 105 HORSES. Maverick's high-spirited Six gives you nearly twice as much horsepower as the leading import's engine. You get fast acceleration, easy passing.
4. PEOPLE-SIZED INTERIOR. Maverick pinches pennies, not people. Its front seat gives you nine inches more shoulder room than the leading import. Plus lots of leg room, hip room and head room.
5. EASY HANDLING. Maverick can outmaneuver the leading economy import. It can U-turn in a tighter circle, nip around corners and slide into tight parking spaces with amazing agility.
6. FEWER SERVICE CALLS. Maverick is actually easier and less expensive to maintain than an economy import. Maverick oil changes come only once every 6,000 miles and chassis lubrications once in 36,000 miles. The leading import recommends an oil change twice as often and a chassis lubrication six times as often. (Maverick gives you economy without inconvenience!)
7. SIMPLE SERVICE AND REPAIRS. The Maverick Owner's Manual has 24 pages of instructions for routine maintenance jobs you can do yourself, if you wish. You can change spark plugs, replace fuel filter, adjust ignition timing, and more. Even a smashed grille can be replaced in as little as 13 minutes.
8. WIDE-OPEN TRUNK SPACE. No more cramming in luggage just because you have a small car. Maverick gives you 10.4 cubic feet of luggage space—nearly twice as much as the leading import. (With Maverick, you can take it with you.)
9. SOLID DURABILITY. Maverick's unitized body construction makes it light, strong and durable. (And Maverick's 3-speed transmission is tough enough to handle twice as much horsepower as the engine turns out.) (Maverick may be little, but you don't have to treat it like a kid.)
10. BUILT-IN SAFETY. Unlike most economy imports, Maverick's tread is wider than the car is high. That means stability—mighty important when the road is wet or the wind is strong.

Tiger Tales

Bill Freehan has been in the major leagues six years and already has made the American League All-Star team five times and has been voted the Gold Glove award for defensive excellence for the last four seasons, 1965-1968.

After a lackluster 1966 campaign, the 1967 and 1968 seasons were two of Freehan's best, during which he established himself as the No. 1 catcher in the league. Freehan improved on his excellent 1967 records in 1968 and was a key player in the Tigers' drive to the world championship. He finished second to Denny McLain in voting for the Most Valuable Player award in 1968.

The sturdy Tiger backstop clouted 20 home runs in 1967, most ever by a Detroit catcher, then bettered his mark in 1968 by hitting 25. He also set an American League mark in 1968 when he was hit by 24 enemy pitches, eclipsing his club record of 20 set the year before. His average dropped from .283 to .263 in 1968, but his RBI total jumped from 74 in 1967 to 85.

His banner seasons in 1967 and 1968 represented a strong comeback from the two previous campaign. In 1966 Freehan was forced out of the lineup three times because of injuries, missing 14 games. Still he was a key performer in the Tiger third-place finish, committing only four errors in 958 chances and having only three passed balls. In 1965 he had 20.

A back injured suffered in spring training in 1965 kept Bill off-stride all through the year. His average dipped to .234 – and remained there in 1966. Only a new fielding record for Tiger catchers (.966) and his first Gold Glove brightened the year.

One June 16, 1961 the Tigers gave Freehan an estimated $100,000 to sign a contract. It made the youngster their biggest bonus player, and they outbid 19 other clubs to sign him.

Freehan had been a "must get" prospect after starring on Detroit sandlots, where he led his club to the national title in 1959 and 1960. He was a standout athlete at Bishop Barry H.S. in St. Petersburg, Fla., and later at the University of Michigan where he lettered in football, led the Big Ten with a .585 average and was named to the All-American squad as a sophomore.

Camp Charlevoix

Corral Chatter

The seventh week of camp started off with another beautiful hot day, and one could feel the excitement as boys were busy in their activities, trying hard to get the coveted "Stars" in that activity for accomplishment. In the morning the sailors were busy getting their gear ready for the three day. The boys chosen for this trip were Bob Wilson, Dave Ewald, Chuck Buschmann, Ignasio Bolonotto, Neal Summers, Bill Bray, Dan Thomas, Rick Rowse, John Weisnar, Chuck Wattles, Craig Hanson, Alex Bravo, Mrak Weber, Dennis Bledsoe, and Jim Hartger.

Two cabins popped corn and one cabin had a taffey-pull on Monday night. Boys enjoy these extra arrangemnts, and hardly a night goes by but what three or four cabins aren't either popping corn or making taffey. Yes, we always check boys with braces at these taffey-pulls. One night several years ago, one cousellor was in the midst of pulling the taffey when Ruby asked him how many of his boys had braces. You guessed it. EVERY BOY WAS WEARING BRACES. It was a terrific letdown for that counsellor, but I'm sure he learned a lesson.

Tuesday was another hot day, and activities were going full blast. The Sailing trip was still out, and it was reported that the boys were having a fine time. The boys riding in the Rodeo were busy practicing their events, and the Drill Team was busy perfecting its formations. In the evening the Intermediate Section had a Scavenger Hunt with the Green picking up a point, making the score at this stage, Greys-30, Greens-27.

Wednesday morning at ten o'clock, eight boys and two counsellors took the boat from Charlevoix over to Beaver Island for a four day trip. This is a most historic island 35 miles out in Lake Michigan and was ruled by a King Strang for many years. They lucky boys choosen for this trip were Matt Vorce, Eric Meyer, Dan DeLongchamp, Bob Haynie, Larry Slocum, Tony Smith, Steve Abbott, and Tim Washburn. In the afternoon, the sailing trip returned from a marvelous trip. In the evening, we had a second CAPTURE THE COUNSELLOR event in which the men hide in woods and the campers try to find them. At the end of the capture the Green picked up three points, the Greys-1, so the score Wednesday night was Greys-31, Greens-30.

Also on Wednesday, Cabin 7, with Chuck Leider in charge, took off for a hike and overnight down to the campcraft area. These boys were: Jay Bandera, David Edmunds, Bob Healey, Kevin Sheehey, Cam Simmons, Cliff Smith, Daivd Townsend, and Carl Werner.

Thursday was a hot day, the temperature up around 86, and boys were busy.

Friday, another hot day, and the Catholic Boys were taken into town for the service on this Holy Day. In the afternoon, as the weather was so hot, we had a waterfront afternoon. Boys were swimming, sailing, canoeing, water-skiing, and everyone was on the beach. It was a glorious day. Lee Fernstrum took his Cabin 16 down to Eastport on Lake Michigan for an overnight. These boys were Ignaelo Bolonotto, Craig Hanson, Jim Hartger, Trey Henkel, Matt Noel, Ben Miller, Mark Oetting, Greg Mast, and Tim Washburn. A riding trip also left camp, and thess boys were Scott Dwoning, Tom Smith, Scott MacNair, Casimero Bolonotto, Paul Rynak, Pual Dancer, Billy Guggenheim, Steve Bernia, Dave Wickizer, Dan Buckley, Cliff Smith, Tim Kelly, Don Clark, Bill Maize, Terry Mast and Rick Bacon.

Saturday was another hot day, and the boys from Beaver Island arrived back after a great trip. They enjoyed the island very much, and were pleased with the hospitality of the people on the island. They had perfect weather and they hiked over many miles. At dinner on Saturday evening, the Annual Birthday Party was held. Ruby and her assistants, Ruth, Alice, and Sharon had the table set beautifully with the centerpiece being a huge barrel from a tree filled with fresh fruit which the birthday boys enjoyed. Each boy or counseller who has had a birthday during camp was seated at the long table (28 guests) and each was given a birthday present which was a Mexican Valcro, a tricky game, and the boys were pleased. As the entertainment, we had a Mock Wedding for our head cowboy, Merrill Stahcli from Enterprise, Utah. The entire staff was in the wedding party, and it was a riot. Merrill was completely surprised. To close the day, we had a movie "Samson", and the boys enjoyed this. Saturday was indeed a full day, and just a forerunner to the Final Week of camp when things really jump. However, the eighth week during which we go on Sunday schedule, getting up at 8:30 and eat breakfast at 9:15. It is such a busy week that everyone needs this extra rest.

Sunday morning the Chapel Service was held in the outdoor chapel with Lee Fernstrum giving the talk. He spoke on "What You Should have Gotten Out of Camp This Summer". It was a most worthwhile talk. It has become a tradition at CAMP CHARLEVOIX that on the last Sunday of the season to hold the Annual Obstacle Relay, which encompasses every camp activity, and takes it about 124 boys. This ends the GREEN-GREY Competition for ths year and you can imagine the excitment on this afternoon. The event is ended by two boys boiling water. The lead changed several times furing the relay, but at the end the GREENS were victorious and thereby won the comptition for the year. The final Vesper Service for the year was held on the proch of our clubhouse. Luis Valenzeula, our cowboy from Mexico, gave a talk and answered many questions the boys had about his country. It was all very interesting.

The final week of camp is upon us, and it is hard to believe that seven weeks have passed so quickly. Weatherwise this has been a truly great camping summer.

Library Notes

In preparation of school days ahead, the Library has added a large variety of juveniles. The selectior included fiction, biographies and books on travel and science. Listed below are some of the new titles:

"Clara Barton, Battlefield Nurse," by Peggy Mann, describes the life of this courageous woman who worked so valiently on the battlefields of the Civil War and then traveled to Europe to learn about the Red Cross in action.

"Smeller Martin" by Robert Lawson, a new fiction for boys with charming illustrations.

"All of Turkey," by Judith M. Spiegelman tells of a small boy who has to leave his home and friends to move to a new village in western Turkey. Ali's daily activities will introduce American boys and girls to a way of life that differs from their own in many ways, but his efforts to feel at home in a new place are true the world over.

"Glooskap's Country and other Indian Tales" by Cyrus MacMillan deals with the supernatural hero of Eastern Canada, Glooskap. The legendary tales are complemented by John A. Hall's numerous line drawings many of them in two colors.

"The Planes They Flew In World War I" is a slim volume profusely illustrated with photographs which describe the early-day machines both Allied and German.

"The Last Emperor" is the story of Mexico's fight for freedom. It is a fascinating story Mexico's determination never again to bow to a foreign king.

Troubadors sing Sat. at Assembly

Rev. Bob Rutledge, Pastor of the Charlevoix Assembly of God, 203 E. Upright, announces that the Christian Troubadors from Nashville, Tennessee, will be giving a Gospel Concert at the church Saturday night at 7 p.m.

They are one of the most exciting groups in the gospel singing field The insturmental, singing group is featured on Heart-Warming Records. Not only the United States and Canada, but Japan, Okinawa, Korea, Guam and other countries have listened and accepted well the ministry of this exciting group.

The gourp consists of Wayne Walters, emcee for the quartet. Bill Carter, who for 15 years was a country and western entertainer, now sings and plays the bass and piano for the group.

Phil Price excells on the five-string banjo and electric guitar; then for a refreshing sound he often plays the 12-string guitar and classical guitar. Seventeen-year-old Noel Walters sings the lead part and plays the bass.

The congregation and pastor of the Charlevoix Assembly of God invite you to listen to them sing and play gospel music this Saturday night at 7 p.m. After hearing them you will appreciate and understand why there is so much interest in them everywhere they sing.

Letters to the editor

Viet war

Dear Mr. Martin:

The following is a letter which I received from Janey Hart, wife of Senator Philip A. Hart. I have her permission to share it with your readers.

"Dear Mrs. Vogler,

"You probably will never forgive me for not answering you before this. If I were supplied with what so many people think, a secretary, my mail wouldn't get so far behind.

"At the opening of Congress in 1968 I participated, with 3,000 women, dressed in mourning, in a silent march on the U.S. Capitol. A petition was presented to the majority leaders of both houses. The previous October I taped a few heads bashed by U.S. Marshalls at the Pentagon. All in the cause of peace in Vietnam. Nothing has changed. I am convinced we go to war for economic reasons. The Pentagon-Industry-Labor combo have a vested interest in maintaining a high income level. These interests are served by any war and keep the three elements well organized. Peace people are fragmented and ineffective. Peace marches by women are treated with amused tolerance. Peace marches by studented are treated with harsh brutality.

"Peace will come when war is a greater threat to the economy then peace. That makes me a realist. But I think we must keep trying to convince Americans that this is the way it is and perhaps enough will rise up and say "NO".

Sincerely,
Janey Hart

In closing, I would like to thank you for allowing me to share this letter and commend Mrs. Hart for having the courage of her convictions which seems to be a rare commodity in todays political life.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Jean H. Vogler

Millage

Editor:

The millage has passed now and most people can sit back and relax for awhile. . .but, I would like to protest the Charlevoix Courier's reporting of the situation and in particular several remarks made in the Courier of August 13, 1969.

On your front page report you state that . . .(1) The total number of teachers was reduced. This is not a correct statement. The total number may increase over last year, but we will not know for sure until we find out if there will be teachers available to fill the several new positions (additions to the curriculum) that were created by the passage of the 2.99 millage. (2) You say that the reduction in number of teachers has created larger classes. This is not true because the number of teachers has not been reduced. Several classes will vary in size compared with last year because we do not have the same number of students starting school each year. By the same token some classes will be smaller than last year. A case in point is the kindergarden this year which has an indicated reduced enrollment. . .so fewer teachers will be needed.

(3) You state (when looking ahead to next year), "Adding to the hazard is the knowledge of forthcoming teacher negotiations. It is a foregone conclusion that a new contract will include increased salaries and fringes." This may be your thoughts concerning teacher negotiations, but I certainly don't share them. I believe that our previously underpaid teachers have come a long way in the past five years. These teachers now command very good wages and when measured against the incomes of the average taxpayer who is supporting the school the teachers are "way ahead" of the game. The teacher wage increases during the past two years have been very large. They have made up for lost ground. The "pulse of the community," as I see it, will not condone another large increase next year. I don't want to try and predict what will happen next year and to my knowledge the school board and teachers have not had any meetings this year on salaries, so your statement is in error (purely a guess on your part?).

(4) Your statement, "Reports indicate that needed millage next year will total considerably more than 2.99 mills." I wonder where you get your information? Your statement is not a news item. I believe it is strictly conjecture on your part. As a school board member I don't at this time have any idea as to what millage we will need next year. With the cost of living going up it is possible that more millage will be needed . . . but who can tell at this early date?

Turning to your editorial on page 13 of the same Courier issue you have made a statement which attempts to belittle the people who voted yes on the 2.99 issue. . . Your statement. . ."Fortunately (did you mean Un-fortunately?), the voter doesn't care whether or not the level of local education is advanced. . .all concern is directed toward conserving the dollar in spite of the results." I personally know many of the voters in Charlevoix and I think that the vast majority of them are willing to pay (in taxes) as much as any nearby community, or even more, for a high class above average education for their children. Our voters are intelligent and many of them did investigate to some degree the pro and con aspects before they voted in the three recent elections. They know that Charlevoix's current school taxes are about the lowest in the area.

I believe that these same people will pay more if they are convinced that they will get their money's worth and the children will get a better education. You are new to voters as yet, so I believe that you have really put yourself out of a limb by heckling the people of Charlevoix. Many Charlevoix people may have valid reasons for voting no. Why don't you take it upon yourself to investigate their reasons?

You also had words about the 2.99 millage figure. The entire 7 member school board spent considerable time working on the budget. 2.99 was not a force figure . . . it is just what happened to "come out" after a constructive work session. You may think what you like . . .but, the figure was not dreamed up!

You also state . . ."To advocate less than average education for the youngsters of the Charlevoix School District (and make no mistake about it, that's exactly what the program calls for) is a crime." What are you using as a yardstick for comparison? I do agree with past school board president Glenn Kenney's statement that Charlevoix residents may have oversold themselves on the quality of education here and that improvements should be made . . . but improvements are being made. This year's school program includes additions over last year in Art, physical education and - or lower grade guidance. The 2.99 millage did allow for improvements and additions to the program.

Your next statement (for contention on my part) is, "With the passage of 2.99 mills, education in the district suffers with some courses dropped, other cut back, and the number of teachers reduced.? The only area where this statement holds true is the adult education (night school)-Community School program. Would you please present the facts in print to support this statement of yours as it would apply to the children of Charlevoix in grades K-12?

I will agree with one statement you made, "Yet, in the final analysis, it will cost more than the original request.? This could be true for the families with children in school. But, the retired people on fixed income did get a break and we have placed more emphasis on making the people who are using the schools pay more. I believe that a "lot-of-good" has come out of the budget which the 2.99 millage has set up. We have eliminated some expense areas that were getting out of hand and we have set up a contingency fund which even the 3.75 original budget proposals did not have. I was sorry to see the night school program cut. Maybe next year it will be possible to bring it back.

In closing I would like to say that we do have a tremendous number of people in Charlevoix who do know why they are voting the way they do. . .they are intelligent and they do want to provide a better than average school system of the children. . but they also want their money's worth.

In the future I hope that the local newspaper will provide at least adequate coverage of upcoming school elections instead of "harping" about the results after the elections are over.

Sincerely,

Richard Donaldson

Preschool health exam important

As August draws to an end, mothers are eagerly counting down to the day their children return to school. On the other hand kids are doing everything they can to slow down the passing of the final days of summer vacation.

J. Irvin Nichols, executive director of the Michigan Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, Lansing, has one more item that parents should add to that list of things to do before school starts. Nichols said, "Parents should see that all of their children receive a preschool, health checkup."

School age children are at a point in life when their health must be carefully observed. It is important that parents do everything they can to safeguard their children's good health.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Nichols continued, "This adage is so true at this time of the year when a preschool, health checkup will assure parents that they've done their part to make this year a healthy one for their children. It will be a good time to catch up on needed vaccinations or booster shots."

"What about protection against whooping cough, diptheria, tetanus, smallpox, polio or measles," Nichols asked parents. "And while at the doctor's," he continued, "be sure to play it safe and get a tuberculin skin test. It's a good time for parents, too, ask your doctor to give you a skin test, it only takes seconds. Any Charlevoix doctor will be glad to perform the test."

Nichols said, "Neglected ailments or a substandard condition of general health can have its effect on classroom performance." Your Christmas Seal Association urges Charlevoixans to call their doctor today to get preschool, health checkups for all their children.

Greilick camp over

After seven weeks and 813 Boy Scouts, the regular camping season at Camp Greilick ended on August 16. Boys from the 18 county Scenic Trails Council of the Boy Scouts of America had been at the camp since June 29. Two weeks of Cub Scout day camp preceeded the opening of the camping season. Enthusiasm for this year's program promises an even larger number of boys attending camp next summer.

An expanded program in all areas of camp allowed for more advancement through the Scout ranks. Five different merit badges were offered by the Aquatics Department, ten by Scoutcraft, and three by Field Sports. A program counselor was assigned to each unit to instruct the campers in Scoutcraft skills required for the First and Second class ranks.

Special nights for visitors were held each Wednesday and Friday evenings. The program consisted of skits and singing on Wednesday, and Indian Dances on Friday.

During the last week of camp, more than 60 boys from the Grand Traverse area attended a special week of camping. These boys, mostly non-scouts, experienced a week of Scout camping beginning on August 17. This is the second year that this program has been sponsored by the Traverse City Kiwanis Club.

The Camp Director this year was George W. Stone, District Scout Executive for the Southern and Western Districts of the council. Forty-seven other adults and young men served on the camp staff.

The summer camping season next summer at Camp Greilick will open on June 28 and last six weeks. Scouting and civic groups in the Scenic Trails Council are planning several camp improvement projects to insure that the 1970 season will be the best yet at Camp Greilick.

Local girls attend WMU

Two local girls from Charlevoix attended the second half of the class of 1973 orientation at Western Michigan University. They were Cheryl Larue Kenney, 708 Mercer Blvd., and Barbara June Smith, Box 80, Boyne City Road.

The program, under the direction of Norman K. Russell, acquainted students with the university's facilities.

They were grouped in 150 and were housed in campus residence halls. They were invited to attend seminars given by upperclassmen on what to expect of college life.

Virgin Gorda... yours for dialing

Telephone calls go to some really far out places. Ever hear of Virgin Gorda, Carriacou or the Seychelles Islands?

These are three of the latest out-of-the-way locations around the world that can now be reached by telephone.

Virgin Gorda is part of the British Virgin Islands. Carriacou, also in the Caribbean, is one of the Windward Islands. The Seychelles are in the Indian Ocean.

In fact, overseas telephone service is expanding to some of the unlikeliest places: a hopping-off point for planes running mercy missions, and an island frequented by business executives who don't want to be called.

Nine locations have been added so far this year to the list of overseas points that can be called. Besides the three mentioned, they are: the Falkland Islands, also known as the Malvinas Islands, off South America; Laos in Southeast Asia; Bequia in the West Indies, Christmas Island in Oceania; Nevis in the Leeward Islands, and the Republic of Equatorial Guinea in west Africa.

Formerly known as Fernando Po, the Republic of Equatorial Guinea has been used as a hopping-off point for planes taking food and medicine to the revolution-torn peoples of Biafra. Telephone service to the Spanish-speaking Guinea was instituted shortly before the country became independent in October, 1968.

Not everyone was introduced last year to the Cayman Islands near Jamaica. Some executives who vacation there while trying to escape the everyday bustle of their business offices indicated that they liked being beyond the telephone's ring.

Overseas connections are often requested by countries that suddenly begin attracting large numbers of tourists. This is generally accomplished by setting up a radio link to the nearest location that has access by cable, radio or satellite to one of the Bell System's overseas operating centers in this country.

In some remote places an overseas call can be placed or received at only one phone. This phone might be in an unattended booth or in someone's home or office. Wherever it is, this one line becomes an important link with the outside world.

American industry in concerned about mandatory controls on investment abroad. The controls are part of a package which was designed to reduce the overseas overflow of U.S. capital during the international monetary crisis associated with the devaluation of the British pound and the run on gold.

Rep. Tunney (D.-Calif.) has pointed out sound reasons for the elimination of these controls:

"Foreign investment has consistently been a 'plus' in our balance-of-payments picture, returning more capital than it has drained off. Between 1950 and 1966, U.S. private foreign investment totaled $39 billion. These investments returned $58 billion to the United States during the same period.

"The controls run counter to the historic interest of the United States in progressively reducing the barriers to worldwide commerce, trade and investment.

"The controls were imposed without any direct authorization, or supervision, by Congress."

Such controls are contrary to the principles of our free economy and are a step backward from the movement toward greater freedom in international transactions. They are damaging to our economy in both the short and long run. They are useless as a remedy for the balance-of-payments difficulties of the U.S. and if long continued will cause them to become much worse. A schedule of dates should be promptly announced for the termination of these controls.

Expand our fair

This year's Waterfront Fair proved that art is on the upswing, at least in Northern Michigan.

It may also have proved something else ... the Waterfront Fair has outgrown a single day.

With some 200 artists and craftsmen, East Park and the dock area were so crowded that it was almost impossible to move around.

Perhaps in the future the Fair should be expanded to cover two days, with exhibitors split into two groups, one group to exhibit each day.

About half as many artists in the park on a single day would make a visit much more enjoyable.

To stop the griping

Our country spends hundreds of millions every year on foreign aid. We send money, machinery, supplies and men to help other countries.

A trip half-way around the world and observation of five Oriental lands convinces us that one of the greatest things we could do for our own country would be to take part of that money and feed it into foreign economies in a different way.

Round up a thousand of the leading militant gripers in the United States and give them an all-expense paid flight to the Orient. First choice of designations might be Bangkok. Let them take the motorboat ride up the Chao Phuy River and the 15 miles of canals leading to and from the famous floating market.

Let them see the gross poverty in which these people live. Let them watch naked boys come popping up through the chocolate brown canal water, garbage hanging from their hair, trying to peddle little temple bells. Let them see emaciated old men scrubbing their teeth by the river. Let them see mothers washing their plates by dipping them in the same stinking stream in which, next door, a man is cleaning chickens and a girl is taking a bath.

Or let them go out in the Mountains north of Manila, where farmers try to raise rice on mountain-sides so steep it looks like they need handles to hang on. Let them see the way people live on an average income of $130 per year. Where only 16 percent have electricity. Where the water supply is a constant invitation to "El Tor," the stomach trouble which plagues so many.

Let them look at mothers "toilet" training their babies by holding them over the combination drainage, irrigation and sewer ditch in front of the house.

Let them look at the thousands of corrugated tin and bamboo shacks of squatters in the teeming slums of Manila. Let them walk along the breakwater of Manila Bay in early morning, before the beach-combers have awaked. Let them see a ten-year-old girl asleep in a store doorway.

Let them see how millions of the really under-fed, under-privileged live. Then let them come back to America and thank God they can complain because some people have more of the abundant life than others. And thank God they live in a country where they can complain as loudly as they like. (Collinsville, Ill., Herald)

Return to sea

BY BOB MYERS

I'm off again on a sailing vacation in Lake Michigan. I have never lost a childhood passion for water. The sight and sound of it cures my mind, and most of my pleasures are ordered around it.

I don't take a shower. I wallow in a bath, not to get clean, but for a pleasure deeper than that — what a philosopher once told me was an indulgent return to the weightless peace of the womb. I would rather think it's a return to the lapping those warm, primeval seas where all life began.

Water has a thousand pleasures and a thousand faces, and it is the most versatile of the elements. Fire is masculine, monotonous, blundering, crude. Water is feminine and subtle. It can offer the heaped-up power of a murderous storm, or the miniature frolic of the courthouse fountain, or the bucolic vacancy of a farm pond.

Water is the puddle just big enough for a boy's bare foot, the thundering curtains of Niagara, the star in snowflake, the mist on a cobweb, the drop on a waxed car. It is the sting on the lips in a sailboat beating to weather. It is the chisel that cut out the shape of Michigan, the singing spout of a kettle, and the last cry of a man in the desert.

Water is all things to men, and most of them good. Most of all, it is a great healer and pacifier. We do not go to the beach to fight or make trouble, but to sit and gaze at it, or splash about.

Water is the single great innocence left on earth, most of which no one has yet spoiled. Our littered lands may stretch right to the coast, but few scars are yet upon the Great Lakes, and non upon the sea.

Highways

Have you let those predictions of traffic deaths scare you off the highways on holiday weekends?

We did, too, until we learned that the scare techniques used in holiday traffic safety campaigns have little basis in fact. The Chicago Motor Club - AAA says that startling highway fatality predictions can be made for nearly any weekend.

They point out that the emphasis on holiday death counts do nothing to promote traffic safety, but instead adds to the worries of the average driver and discourages many from enjoying a holiday trip by auto. The CMC-AAA is now advocating a positive approach to safe travel filled holidays, a campaign called "Bring 'Em Back Alive!"

The new campaign stresses the wider observance of common sense rules of good driving.

While "Bring 'Em Back Alive!" is primarily aimed at the motoring public, it does not pass over the concern for pedestrian satety. Pedestrians, who annually add to fatality counts, must share equally with motorists in responsibility for traffice safety.

"Bring 'Em Back Alive!" strikes us as a sensible approach to holiday highway safety on a number of counts: It encourages the individual travel that is economically healthy for the state; it takes into consideration our need for recreational outlets and our desire to travel about in our free time; and it calls on all of us to be totally responsible for ourselves and others on the highway.

If each of us, when driving, is a little more courteous, a little more careful, knows a little more about safe driving practices, then each driver also has a better chance to "Bring 'Rm Back Alive!"

This year, we are looking forward to indulging our vagabond spirit over the Labor Day holiday by keeping both eyes on the road, both hands on the steering wheel, and by resolving to "Bring'Em Back Alive!" (Atkinson, Ill., News)

Rx for post office

In a report to American newspaper editors and publishers last week, Postmaster General Winton M. Blount gave a progress report on the Post Office Department that is an encouraging sequel to his predecessor's ominous prediction that it was about to be overwhelmed by catastrophe.

Within the span of six months, the new head of the postal system has begun the most sweeping reforms in its history. Traditionally a slave to politics and politicians, the system was run by a huge, old manual that told how to sweep floors, lock the office safe and perform a thousand other details. It stifled completely all initiative, incentive and creativity on the part of postal personnel.

The big book was the first that had to go, and go it did, Blount asserted. He is now bringing modern management methods to the department, recruiting the best possible team of managers that can be found. A postal service reform bill is in preparation that will fully restructure the management of the post office. It should become self supporting in five years, providing faster, more efficient service than ever before.

One of the proposed changes is now in operation on a testing network of cities across the country, including two in New York, Albany and Binghamton. This is the Mailgram service, which combines the swift, message sending system of the Western Union telegraph, with the massive delivery system of the post office. A letter is sent by telegraphic equipment directly to a receiving office where it is immediately placed in an envelope and delivered on regular carrier schedule.

Watermelon for dinner

"Old liberal Jim went swimming with the niggers again, and probably had watermelon for dinner.

So spoke a friend of mine upon my recent return from a weekend in Detroit. Yes, I said friend. Which brings us quickly to the subject at hand: the astonishment of several University of Michigan students who invaded Detroit to make a detailed survey of white attitudes toward blacks.

These door-knocking liberals found the prejudice they expected. Oh, white Detroit isn't as wary of Negroes today as in 1967, year of the riot. There are, in fact, a growing number of white Detroiters who recognize that blacks get a bum deal and something should be done about it. But please let someone else do it.

What surprised the surveyors was that truly "nice people" are racial bigots. Many of the sutdents finally admitted they had been guilty of the same stereotyping they condemn when the other guy does it. They had decided all bigots were nasty rednecks who pick their noese and spit at black children. They weren't prepared for the graciousness and likeability of many whites who served the surveyors highballs and cookies along with sincere tch-tches over the plight of the Negro: "But my neighbors would never speak to me again if I sold my home to a Negro."

"I had to change a lot of my thinking," admitted one surprised surveyor who had been well charmed by neighborhood of polite racists.

Well, I'm surprised. They must have been brought up in a liberal vacuum. The world is full of nice people who couldn't possibly be unkind to an individual Negro. But they are certain that blacks "are really happier living with their own people"-- in some rat-infested ghetto. And they're dead certain the few violent, well publicized blacks are typical of all Negroes--but they'd never judge all Italians by the Mafia.

A big part of the racism problem in racists who don't know they are racists and will deny it to the death. They have that one blind spot: They cannot put themselves into a Negro's shoes and understand the humiliation and fear and desolation and bitterness of being a second class citizen. Will this restaurant treat me politely or refuse to serve me? When my child is first called a nigger, how do I explain it to him? If i buy a home in this nice neighborhood, will the neighbors be friendly or will they throw rocks through my window?

How would you like to live with questions like that?

How can so many people be so wrong? I blame fear-fear-of the unknows--or, to put it in modern jargon, a lack of communication. The U of M survey turned up a telling fact: whites who associate regularly with blacks are much less bigoted than white who don't.

So I regularly take my family to a Detoit motel where at least half the customers are black. I want my children to sleep near Negroes, eat with them and swim with them. This is no big thing and no sermon is attached to these weekend vacations. I just want the kids to see what I see: black people are fat and skinny, loud and quiet, handsome and ugly, just like white people. Black fathers beam proudly and a littel foolishly at their children, the same as I do. Black mother look sharp and yell warnings when Junior gets frisky at the deep end of the pool, the same as all mothers everywhere.

And I am not surprised or angered when a good friend razzes me about "swimming with the niggers." He is a good, man, and I know it. But he could be better.

He simply wasn't pushed into the right pool when he was younger.

ON THE 'FLIP' SIDE

Last week's school election brought smiles to the faces of many . . . .but most of those smiles will turn to frowns when we find out just how much it is costing us to send one child to school (book rental, increased cost of lunches, etc.).

Looks like about four and one-half mills from this angle, if you have one child; more for larger families.

+ + +

Dick Brown of Ingham County sends along the following story.

Down in Tulia, Texas, H.M. Baggarly has forged out a reputation as a newspaper editor and writer of note. Here is one of his better pieces:

One of the wisest utterances ever sounded by a human being came from the sage who wrote, "Give me neither poverty nor riches."

During our youth it was popular for graduation speakers and those chosen to advise youth to challenge us with goals far beyond our capabilities. The goals to which we were directed included the Presidency of the United States, the presidency of General Motors or some such high position.

Life's failures were identified as those who chose to stay home and farm or work in an office instead of going on to college and skyrocketing to "success." "Successful" people invaribly become millionaires. . .so they said.

American youth should never lose sight of the fact that there is no legal barrier which would prevent them from becoming President or millionaies. There is nothing amiss when one aspires for the top rung of the ladder. But it must be admitted that some of our greatest failures in life have been people who reached the top.

Our cemeteries are filled with "successful" millionaires and famous personalities who become suicides or else died in the gutter.

To over emphasize fame and fortune is dangerous, just as is failing to warn youth of the dangers of the sloven, lazy life, one without goals. Poverty is no disgrace when it is one's choosing, when it is due to misfortune over which one has no control. But to aspire to nothing higher than a breadline is a disgrace.

The happy, well adjusted person, the one most apt to please God and be a blessing to his fellowman, is one of that vast middle class who will never qualify for membership in the Cipango Club and who will never have to appeal to the welfare association for a sack of groceries or a pair of shoes.

He knows neither poverty nor riches.

He is that person who lives in a medium-priced house, who drives a medium-priced automobile, who dresses modestly, who is able to pay his debts, who enjoys the usual comforts of his generation, who enjoys a moderate standard of living, who holds a respectable job and performs its duties efficiently and diligently. He is lost in that horde sometimes called "the common man."

He will never be President of the United States nor of General Motors. He may do well if he is even able to help his children through college. But he will never be in a breadline.

He knows that 100 years from now it won't make much difference whether a person was a $75-a-week clerk or President of the United States.

A visiting Swiss judge, after appraising the American family, came to the conclusion that in the American family the wife comes first, the children second, the family car third and the husband fourth.

In contrast he pointed out that the Swiss family priority list is quite different with the husband No. 1, the wife No. 2, the children No. 3 and as there is a scarcity of cars, no priority is given them.

I've got news for the visitor. If the Amercean family has a dog, a color TV set and a motor boat, the husband runs the risk of dropping to seventh place and if there are teenagers in the family Dear Old Dad drops to eighth place behind the telephone.

Out of the past

Five years ago

The School Board kept its pledge and cut deficit spending in 1963-64. The annual audit revealed the school district kept a tight rein on the budget to reduce the deficit accumulated from the other years. This was possible because the state ordered all schools to follow uniform accounting procedures, which automatically took $19,422 out of the deficit column.

The Bay Shore Post Office was moved across U.S.31 to Bruce Green's grocery store and service station. Bay Shore appeared on the verge of losing its postmark when Postmaster Mrs. John (Lydia) Stolt announced she was retiring. The Post Office Department considered closing Bay Shore and having patrons served from Charlevoix.

A group of citizens petitioned the County Democratic Committee and won the help of Senator Pat McNamara in saving the Bay Shore postmark.

Medusa vice-president, Worth Loomis, met with City officials to discuss in detail the plans of the cement company in building a plant in Charlevoix.

He explained that modern filtration techniques make it possible to eliminate practically all obnoxious smoke.

After nearly four hours of discussion, Mayor E.D. Hawley, Councilmen Bill Fochtman and Dr. Walter F. Hoffman, and Chamber of Commerce manager, Dean Davenport, told Loomis they felt the proposed cement plant will be compatible with Charlevoix natural beauty.

The dock proposed from the plant would extend off the east side of South Point, allowing small craft to pass under and not blocking normal navigation.

An emergency Polio Fund Drive, conducted in Charlevoix on August 13 and 14, 1959, netted $211.19. A group of girls from the various churches sold litter bags during the two day drive.

On August 20, Floyd Brown, H.A. Craig, Mrs. Kit Carson and Mr. Hans DeYoung, were re-elected to the Charlevoix Hospital Board of Directors for a three year term.

Formal dedication of the new Charlevoix County building, located on State St., was a big event on Sunday August 30. The new building was completed in February 1, 1958, at a cost of $259,249, most of which was raised through a sinking fund, established in 1948.

Mrs. Earl A. Young's paintings of Washington and Lincoln were unveiled, Sunday, August 16, in the new Charlevoix County building.

SLOW PITCH LEAGUE

Castro's scared league leading Carey Oil before they fell by a 9-7 score. Brad Carey's two run homer way back in the second inning proved to be the margin of victory. Castro's Larry Nunemaker hit his first round tripper of the night in the opening frame and it pushed the losers to a short-lived 5-2 lead. His second homer in the seventh only made the final score closer.

Oleson's escaped from the USAF 5-4 in an exciting contest. Two runners in the bottom of the seventh made it tense for the winners. Both Jay Ferguson and Duane Taylor had two hits for the winners while Wilson banged two in a losing cause.

If Carey's post a victory tonight against the USAF, they will reign as league champions.

Freedmans enjoyed their 6-2 win over arch-rival American Mold. Three runs in the sixth turned the trick. Lehman, Barta, and Zeiller had two hits each for Freedmans while Barrows long home run led Mold.

January 2, 1969

Dear Family:

I took a short 1½-day trip to a place called – of all things – Adventure. Last Monday I was so bored I just up and took off for parts unknown at 3 p.m. I purchased a ticket on the ferry across the Demerara River and was prepared to go anywhere.

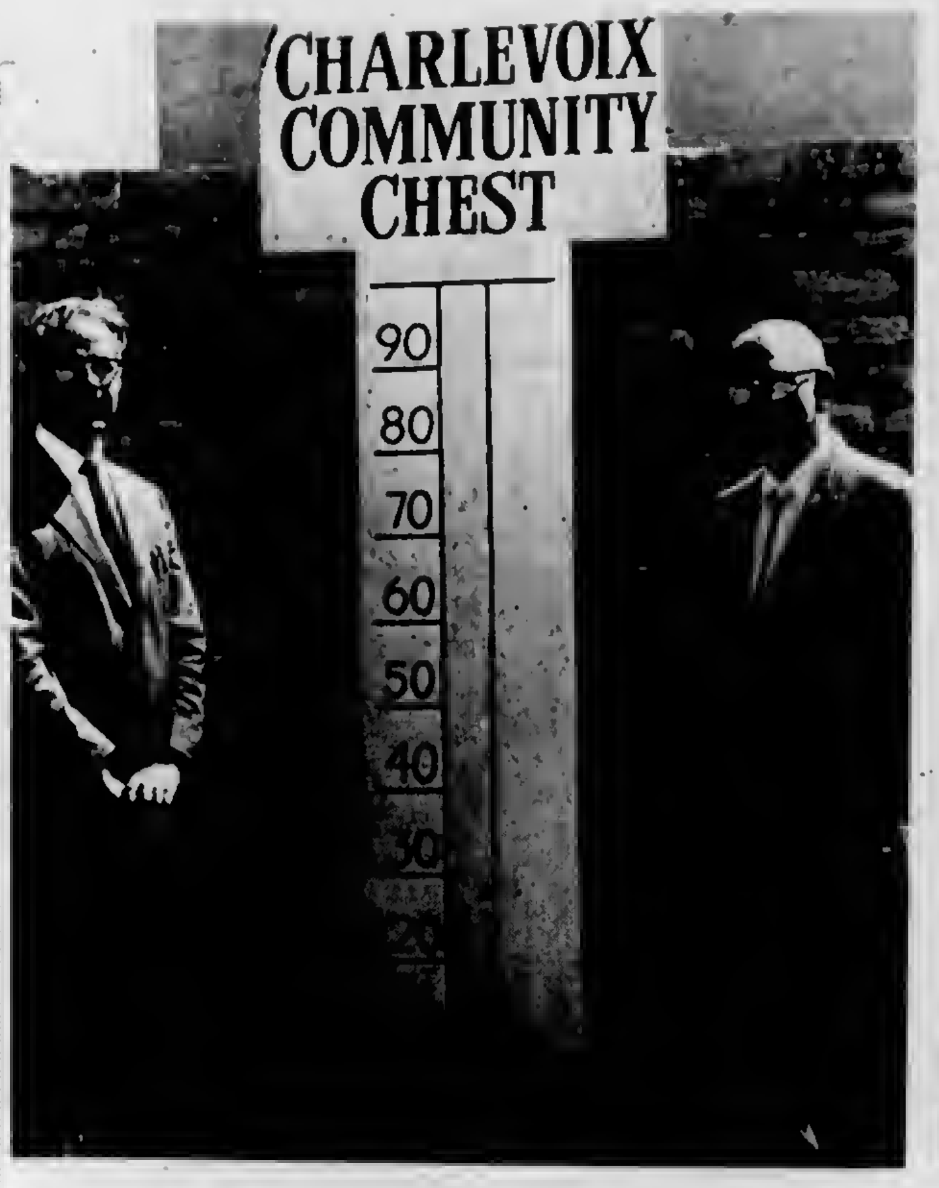
As I was waiting at the dock, wearing my Guyana bush hat (like the Australian hats, buttoned up on the lefthand side, dark fawn in color, and when I'm wearing my dark glasses, the effect, with my sideburns, is – modestly speaking – sexy) – well, anyway, I was standing there, when this East Indian came along (about 22 years old) and remarked that I looked like a cowboy. We gabbed a bit and he invited me to his home in Adventure. . .

So I went. First to Parika, arriving at 5 p.m. It's only a 50-mile journey but it takes two hours. Then on the Adventure steamer and another three hours. We arrived in Adventure about 9:30. Everyone was asleep. It was pitch black dark and only the stars and brilliant fireflies lit our way. Electricity is available, but his family did not have it – though the neighbors did. What I'm saying is that they were poor.

Their house was about the size of your living room. In this, six people lived. Though shabby, it was clean. Anyway, everyone was awakened and food was prepared – rice with heated-up sardines (canned) – and three of us (the third guy was the fiance of a daughter of the house and was there when we arrived – it's an arranged marriage which has caught fire – the husband-to-be and the bride-to-be were romantically mooning over one another – this is unusual where arranged marriages are concerned) drank rum and went to bed about 12:30. I was given the bed of my friend's father, and this man of 45 slept on the floor. During my stay, he addressed me as "chief!" We were going to catch the 4:15 a.m. steamer but missed it by a couple of minutes. Luckily, a special 1:45 p.m. run was being made on the same day. So back to bed, up at 6, no food in sight. Well, I couldn't say anything, so I borrowed their bicycle and pedaled five miles up the coast, taking pictures and looking and being looked at. I got back at 9 a.m. – breakfast time. I was given roti (a tortilla-like bread, served warm) and calaloo (a green, delicious, steamed vegetable). Then a mug of hot, sweetened tea – lovely.

Meanwhile, outside, hucksters were pedaling by, selling prawns and fish, and blowing conch shells to attract attention. After breakfast, I took pictures of the husband-to-be climbing a cocoanut tree 40 feet high. He tossed down about 30, and we stuffed ourselves on cocoanut milk (it's called cocoanut water here) which is great stuff. Those cocoanuts one gets in North America are old and dry and not at all like a fresh cocoanut. The water is sweet, not bitter, and the flesh is soft, almost jelly like, and easily scooped out with a piece of shell.

Then at 12 we went for a beer – walking 10 minutes to the pub. I bought. Back at 1 p.m. – more food was pressed upon us. Delicious rice and curried prawns, all cooked on a little metal table over a wood fire. The rice was fluffy, something I cannot manage with a modern gas stove, although our maid, Muriel, can do it.



E. D. Hawley and Archie L. Livingston, in charge of the Special Gifts Division of Charlevoix Community Chest, check totals of drive. To date, their division has reached 50 percent mark.

The Hemingways I Have Known

Exclusive to the GRAPHIC
by Henry W. Toluzzi
NBC News Cameraman

It was to film Patrick Hemingway's unusual occupation that NBC News assigned me to Africa, where I had hunted and worked on and off since 1938. I had me and covered his father, Ernest Hemingway, several times; Last in Venice following his miraculous escape from two airplane crashes. Ernest Hemingway was a former Walloon Lake summer resident and he lived here one winter after being wounded in World War I in Italy. The following year Ernest Hemingway went to Toronto. The Pat Hemingway, second son of Ernest Hemingway, story will be presented on the NBC television network on September 1 from 9 to 11 PM. Pat is now an instructor, teaching the technique of hunting and opeation of the tourist industry, at the College of African Wildlife Management, situated on the slopes of Mount Kilmanjaro in Tanzania.

Like many sportsmen before and after him, Ernest Hemingway fell under the spell of the African plains. His "Green Hills of Africa" recounts his first big game safari in East Africa. His buffalo hunt near Lake Manyara inspired his classic short story, "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber," and the majesty of Africa's highest mountain nearby set the scene for "The Snows of Kilimanjaro."

As the trophies began to arrive at his home in Key West, Fla., Hemingway enthralled his family with stories of Africa's magnificent wildlife, of hunting big game in a big country.

His youngest son, Patrick, decided then and there that he wanted to become a professional hunter himself. Ernest Hemingway vowed to return to the big country soon. But a World War and nearly 20 years passed before he returned to Africa on a fateful journey.

By then, young Patrick Hemingway had realized his childhood ambition. In his early 20s, after a stateside education, Patrick had struck out for East Africa. First he worked on various farms and plantations in Tanzania, getting to know the country and its people, learning to speak Swahili, the indispensable lingua franca of East Africa, and hunting in his spare time.

But to become a professional hunter and guide, Patrick Hemingway had to apprentice himself to a licensed professional hunter. Pat recalls these years as assistant to Russel Bowker-Douglas, a then prominent guide of the classic school, as "a tough, hard life--doing the myriad of dirty and disagreeable tasks which are part of everyday safari life in the African bush." Persistence and experience led to his full license as a professional hunter. With some capital of his own, young Patrick Hmingway set up his own safari company in Arusha, northern Tanzania, on the slopes of Mount Meru and nearby Kilimanjaro.

Pat describes professional hunting as "a tough, demanding profession, notably lacking in glamour. . . as touch a working day as one can imagine, with long periods away from home and family. A busy hunter spends about nine months away on safari in the bush."

"Of course, it's not hunting for your own pleasure anymore. It's a business -- the constant need to get the client and his gun within range of a trophy animal, often against the pressures of time and weather. Too much time is taken up making the clients comfortable in camp, too much time listening to tall stories and stale tales."

After a decade of professional hunting, Patrick was offered a position as an instructor with the College for African Wildlife Management in Tanzania.

My first meeting with Patrick Hemingway took place after a memorable flight across the fabled crater of Kilimanjaro, when our small plane rolled to a stop at Moshi, in northern Tanzania, heart of the famous Kilimanjaro coffee country.

We found the college nestled on the slopes of Kilimanjaro. A guarded gate admitted us to the sprawling campus, which probably has no equal anywhere in the world. Towering trees, lush clipped lawns, tropical flowers in profusion everywhere. Modern dormitories for the students ranged up the slopes of the mountain. Traditional and ultramodern bungalows near the instruction hall provide comfortable quarters for the multinational faculty, which reads somewhat like the roster of the elite of former game wardens, national park wardens, professional hunters, plus several American and German scientists, and trained wildlife officers on short-term duty.

Some 30 African students clad in jungle greens were loading up mountains of camping gear and supplies into eight hunting trucks. The college was preparing for the annual field trip to a remote part of Tanzania -- the highlight of every instruction course.

I found Pat Hemingway and other members of the faculty in the comfortable day room of the college, discussing the forthcoming field trip during a break in lectures.

Hemingway, who lives alone in a spacious, traditional brick bungalow, invited us to lunch and an overnight stay until the start of the field trip early next morning. Pat turned out to be a gracious host and companion both at home and during the many weeks we spent together in the bush. He exudes much of his father's earthiness and directness and much of his mother's charm. There were books everywhere. Pat's crammed bookshelves gave him away as an avid reader. Books on wildlife, biology and, above all, on the sea and big game fishing predominated.

Behind Pat's easygoing social manner I soon sensed that he was essentially a very shy person. It was not until later, during our trek to Lake Rukwa that Pat could and would talk freely about his father.

He talked about his strong bonds with his father, whom he described as a very considerate father and friend. He recalled the many days spent fishing off Key West with him; the days of World War II when father and son watched on many occasions the smoking, burning inferno of American coastal tankers torpedoed by German submarines lurking in the Gulf of Mexico. Fishing with his father in his big-game fishing cruiser Pilar was perhaps Patrick's strongest, most vivid and lasting childhood memory of him.

Like his father, Pat Hemingway is strongly drawn to the sea and fishing. After the buffalo hunt, I drove with Pat down to the Indian Ocean coast of Tanzania, where he owns a cozy, comfortable bungalow at Pangani Bay. His small outboard - powered fishing cruiser took us out to the coral reef where he donned goggles and flippers and spent hours collecting coral specimens.

Pat spend every free day, every weekend, in these South-Sea-like surroundings, fishing, studying marine life and collecting specimens. He seems at utter peace with himself here. Big game fishing is more than a hobby with him; it seems a destiny, as it was with his father.

Pat Place, Kim Hawver and James Mathers found some interesting specimens at the bottom of Boyne River. James said, "Here's where the fun is!" Kids from all over Boyne City will swim in this favorable spot for the "younger generation."

PLAN THAT CRUISE NOW

Planning a cruise is one of those games usually played while bumper-to-bumper on the expressway or shoulder-to-shoulder on the 5:20 commuter special. For most, it's primarily a winter and spring diversion, but the winners aren't known until that cruise becomes, hopefully, a pleasant memory.

The key to a successful cruise is, in a word, planning. Whether it be a day-long run around the lake or a year-long run around the world, a little advance thought and common sense given to the what-where-why-how of the cruise is the best insurance available for troublefree fun on the water.

First, recommends the Johnson Motors News Bureau, be certain your boating rig is shipshape. Have the motor checked out by a reputable service expert and make sure the boat meets Coast Guard safety standards.

Don't forget to stock a few key extra parts (spark plugs, prop and the like), and make sure you have plenty of line and anchors onboard.

There is much else to consider, though, besides the boat. Where are you going? What will the waters be like? What ahout the weather?

After you select your route, get nautical charts of the waterways you'll be cruising. Don't rely on roadmaps, which often fail to note such boating considerations as dams and water depths. (But some oil companies offer maps specifically designed for the cruising boatman. These are excellent.)

Work out a leisurely, flexible cruise schedule. You aren't out to set any endurance records, so don't be overly ambitious.

If you happen on some good fishing or an exceptionally beautiful area (and you will), you may want to stay around there an extra day or two. On the other hand, if you encounter a dull stretch of water, you'll probably want to open the throttle a bit and speed on to the next pleasant area.

There isn't an abundance of restaurants and hotels along many of our nation's waterways, so don't plan on finding the same travelers' accommodations that are available along a highway. Even if your itinerary includes overnight stays in shoreside motels, bring along some basic camping gear just in case.

Experienced boatmen always bring along extra fuel, drinking water and food on extended voyages; and they make sure someone left behind knows where they're going and how long they'll be gone.

And if you're a beginner planning an extended voyage, a short weekend-long cruise will give a pretty accurate idea of what'a involved.

Cruising by boat is ouldoors family fun at its best. All that's needed for an unforgettable vacation is a good boat and motor, a little camping skill . . . and just a touch of the adventurer's spirit.

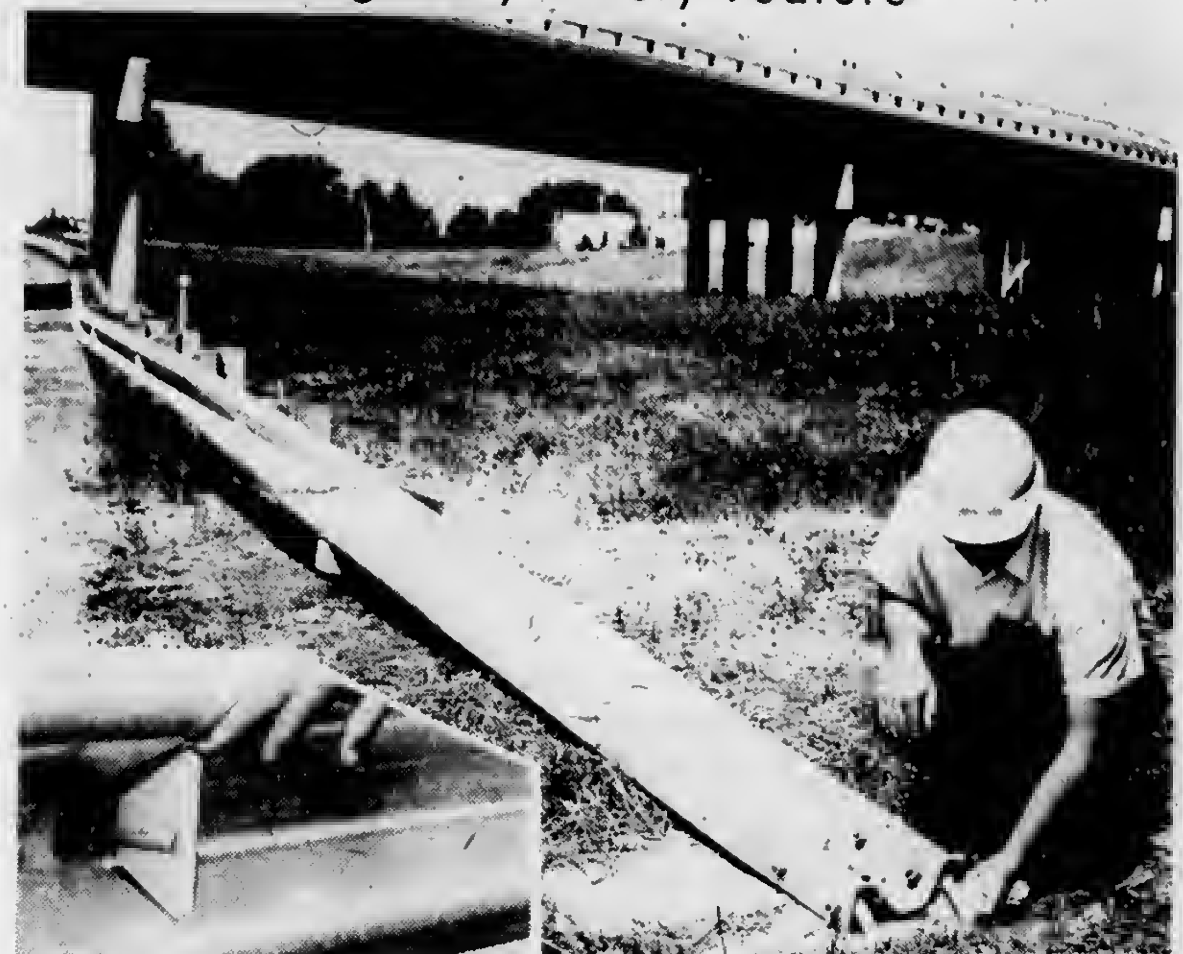
Highway Safety Feature



BURIED GUARD RAIL -- Here's a safety feature on Michigan highways you can see without taking your eyes off the road. Buried ends of guard rail, bent down, twisted flat and securely bolted to iron loops anchored in concrete blocks, tend to deflect errant cars away from solid bridge piers and other obstacles. As part of its continuing effort to make Michigan highways safer, the Department of State Highways is burying the lead ends of guard rail on new construction, and is modifying existing guard rail installations at hundreds of locations. Wedge-shaped reflectors (insert) make guard rail more visible at night. (Department of State Highways photo)

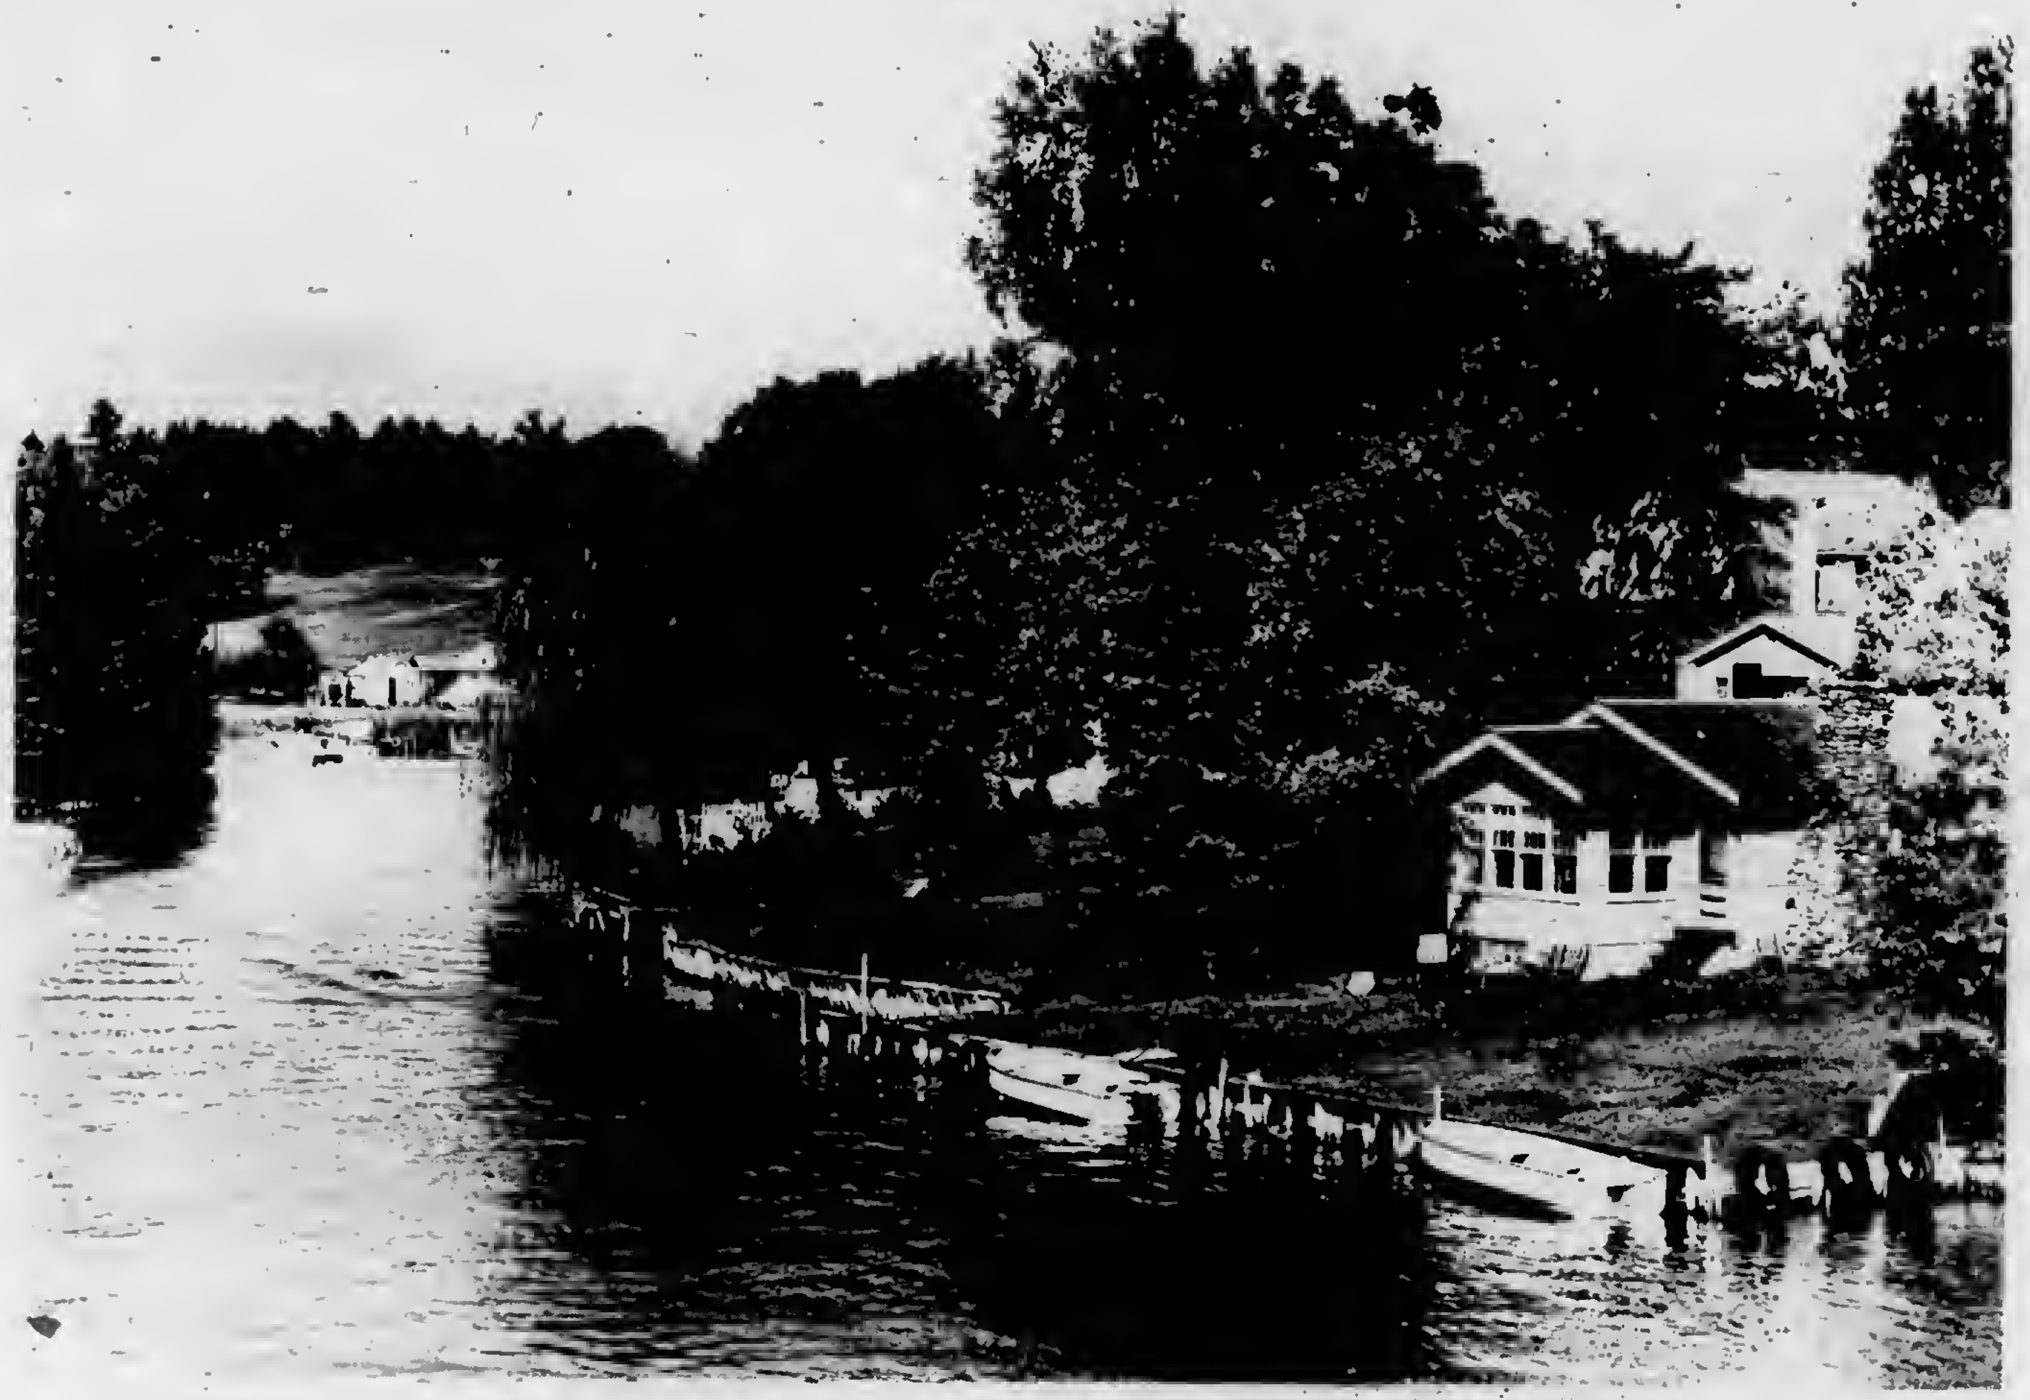
Inland Waterway winds through Indian River



Up the lazy river--Coursing through lakes and rivers, the Inland Waterway offers miles of pleasure and relaxation to summer visitors. The waterway begins at Cheboygan and works its way 40 miles inland through Mullett, Burt, and Crooked Lakes. A nice day's trio is to begin at Conway on Crooked Lake, with lunch and shopping in Indian River just off Burt Lake on the Indian River. Then continue on to Mullett Lake, Cheboygan and return. Boaters may also stop in Alanson for shopping and fine hospitality. Information is available at Chambers of Commerce and Marinas along the Inland Waterway.

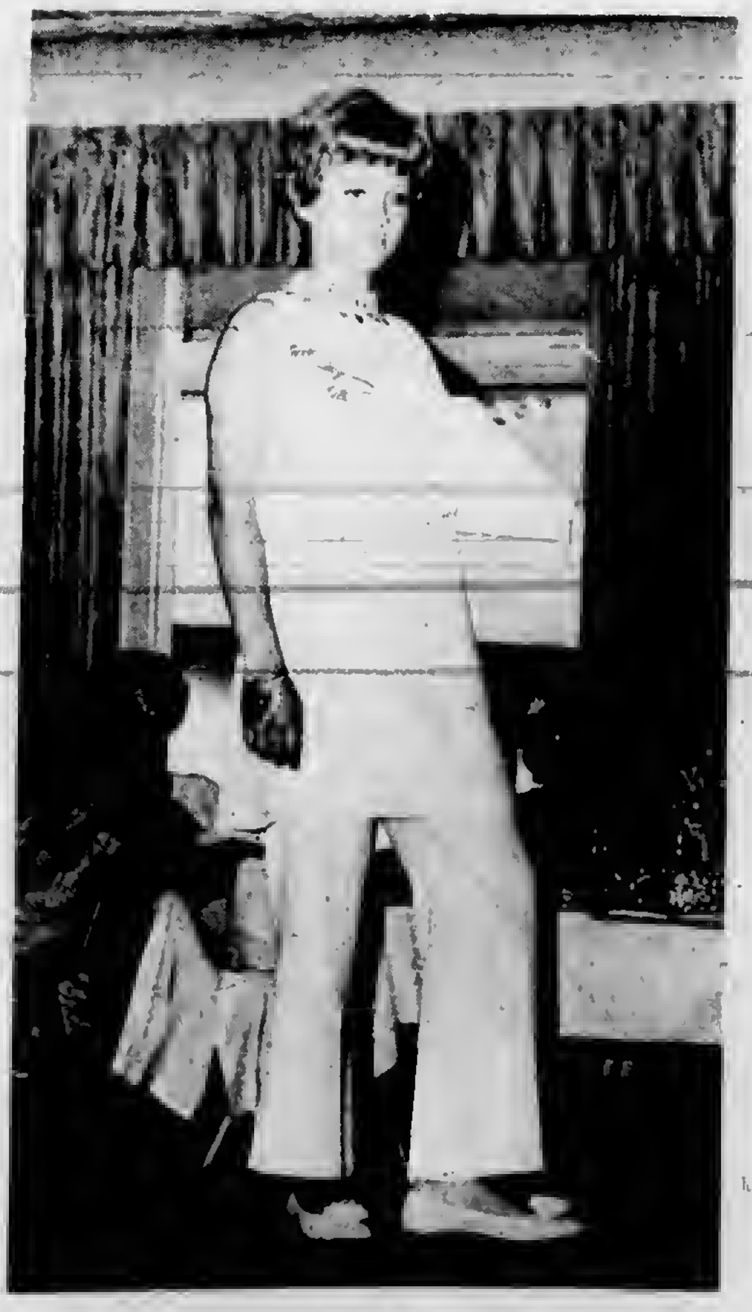
Virginia Brownlee modeled a brown brocade after five dress from Harold Grants. Gold and silver threads spun throughout the dress added a shimmering affect. Virginia accented her outfit with silver shoes and a black bag.



Gail Anderson, an employee for J.C. Penney's modeled a shocking pink tunic and pants, made of Rayon and Crepe, at the annual Little Traverse Hospital Auxiliary Fashion Show last Wednesday. The tunic, that can double for a mini-skirt, was accented with a gold braid neckline.

Once again the Little Traverse Hospital Auxiliary had a record crowd attend their 20th annual fashion show and luncheon held in the Sail and Prow Room of the Perry-Davis Hotel. The 'after five' theme was set with a skit which took the guests from 6 p.m. through midnight. Fashions were shown by various area shops and 44 gifts were distributed. Proceeds are used by the auxiliary to provide 'patient comfort' at the hospital.

Sports Afield

By Ted Kesting

Since a large share of camping is concerned with hiking of one kind or another, and as these jaunts often are off-trail in terrain bewildering to the vacationer, it is a pious and fruitful notion for each camper to carry and use a compass. It need not be an elaborate model. Indeed, for average use, the less complicated (and thus less expensive, generally) the better.

A more than adequate camper's compass (not a professional compass) can be had from around $2.75 to approximately $12, I've seen some for less that worked okay. Never use a compass whose needle or dial doesn't have some mark, such as "N", indicating north.

The earth has two northern poles: the geographical North Pole, which always is north of you, (unless you are standing on it) and the magnetic pole, the one to which your compass needle or dial, barring interference, will unerringly point. Sometimes, this will be true north. In other words the two poles are then aligned. A highly useful map plainly giving you the correct east and west delineations in this country (lower 48 states) is the isogonic map.

According to John Jobson, Camping Editor of SPORTS AFIELD Magazine, the farther east or west you are from that isogonic line, the more you're going to have to cope with deviation of magnetic azimuth or put another way, the greater will be the difference from where the needle points (magnetic north) to true north. In Idaho or Oregon, for instance, the difference between true north and geographical north is a substantial portion of the compass face.

Like many things, this sounds like a complex problem, yet the solution is exceedingly easy. Find out (from a map or Forest Service/Park official) the amount of degrees true north deviates from where the needle points. Rotate the compass until north on the face aligns with the needle. Now turn the compass counter clockwise, left, shrewdly estimating the necessary amount. This is a simplification of the technique, but one that works.

There are some heady and sophisticated methods of going at this, and you may want to graduate to these after you are proficient with the basic way. To tell the truth, I and others of my acquaintance, often take a fast reading like this and find it sufficient. Many compasses have some means of adjustment and compensation, so you set the declination.

If you are in a country with prominent features like big rivers, mountain peaks, etc., quite often a common road map, used judiciously in conjunction with your compass, suffices. But I strongly urge you to obtain reliable topographical maps.

COOPE

Early farm tools and leather harness equipment are included in the several panels and dioramas at Teysen's Museum in Mackinaw City. Other displays include Indian handicraft, Fort Michilimackinac and Fort Mackinaw displays and a marine display from ships sunk in the Straits.

Mackinaw City townspeople annually re-enact the Massacre at Fort Michilimackinac, rebuilt at its authentic location at the south end of the Mackinaw Bridge. A cast of 100 will recreate the exciting days of 1763 when Indians, using a lacrosse game as a ruse to gain entrance to the Fort, massacred or captured the entire British garrison.

At the Petoskey waterfront there's always ample parking for those who trailer their boats. Ramp is shown at left.

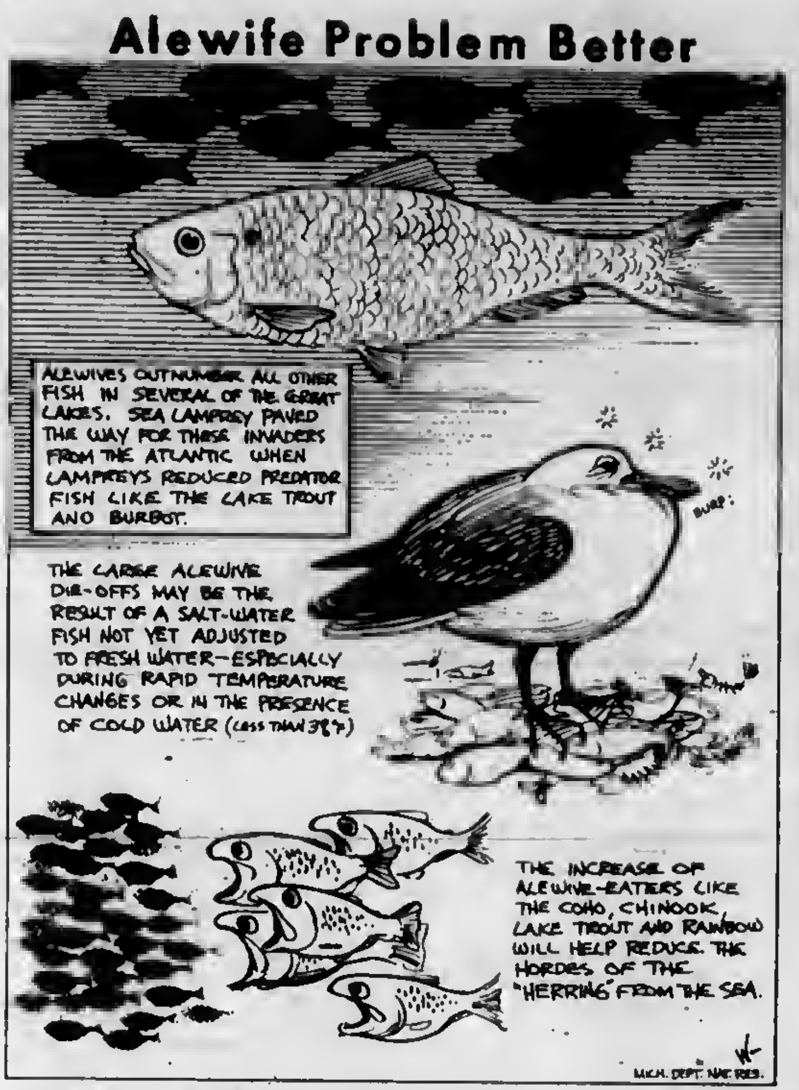
Alewife Problem Better



ALEWIVES OUTNUMBER ALL OTHER FISH IN SEVERAL OF THE GREAT LAKES. SEA LAMPREY PAVED THE WAY FOR THESE INVADERS FROM THE ATLANTIC WHEN LAMPREYS REDUCED PREDATOR FISH LIKE THE LAKE TROUT AND BURBOT.
BURP!
THE LARGE ALEWIVE DIE-OFFS MAY BE THE RESULT OF A SALT-WATER FISH NOT YET ADJUSTED TO FRESH WATER—ESPECIALLY DURING RAPID TEMPERATURE CHANGES OR IN THE PRESENCE OF COLD WATER (LESS THAN 38°F)
THE INCREASE OF ALEWIVE-EATERS LIKE THE COHO, CHINOOK, LAKE TROUT AND RAINBOW WILL HELP REDUCE THE HORDES OF THE "HERRING" FROM THE SEA.
MICH. DEPT. NAT. RES.

The cause of alewife die-offs is still shrouded with speculation but, whatever it is, the problem it poses this summer is not expected to approach the disastrous proportions of 1967 in Lake Michigan. An assessment study made last fall by the U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries indicates that adult alewife oumbers south from Ludington along the east shore of Lake Michigan are at---or perhaps slightly below---the level they were in 1967 following that year's massive losses of the nuisance fish. That die-off knocked the lake's fall population of adult alewives 65 percent below 1966, and mature stocks of those fish have been unable to rebound. Thus, there is not expected to be a ''conspicuous'' die-off of alewives in Lake Michigan this summer or probably in 1970. So far, fisheries men haven't been able to measure what impact planted lake trout and salmon have had on alewife stocks in the lake. However, as populations of these predator species increase, they will play a decided role in limiting alewife levels and, by virtue of this, convert the alewife problem into a big sport-fishing plus. ---Mich. Depr. of Natural Resources.

The Truth About Golf And Other Lies

by Buddy Hackett

Golf affects different people in different ways, but there's one way it affects all people. They become liars. Not big liars, but petty liars. Guys get a certain amount of larceny in them when they get on a golf course which they wouldn't tolerate anywhere else.

A person who wants to steal a few strokes will tell you almost anything. He'll lie about his best round, his worst round, his mother's maiden name, anything. But most of all he'll lie about his handicap. A handicap will cost you the difference between your ability and par. Golf is the only game I know in the world that you can take the best and the worst and handicap them — and the worst can beat the best. I count heavily on this.

Every guy who belongs to a golf club has his handicap listed. So when you go down to some vacation area and meet a guy on the first tee, naturally the first thing you're going to ask is, "What's your handicap?" Always be suspicious of guys who answer, "Hmmm well, my home course is a par 70"—as opposed to your course which is probably 72. Try to get him to tell you his course par first so you are in the position to make a few adjustments.

Guys with a handicap of 9 at their home club never end up with less than 14 on the road. To save yourself from lying, the best thing for you to do is turn in accurate scores at your home club. If you do this, you'll always have a big enough handicap to take with you anywhere and you'll play a respectable game away from home.

Even just being on a golf course can affect a guy's ability to tell the truth about anything. One day I met Irving Mansfield and Phil Silvers at the Concord golf course. We played a few holes when Phil said, "Buddy, where were you yesterday?" and I said I had worked the Sagamore on Lake George. Irving said, "Oh, I remember that, that's in Glens Falls, isn't it?" I said, "No, it's near Glens Falls, but the town is Bolton's Landing." Irving went right on, "Glens Falls, what a wonderful time I had in Glen Falls. What a wonderful village. . . ."

Now everyone knows Glens Falls is a factory town with a dirty yellow river running through the middle of it, and so we knew that Irving was about to take off. "I once had the most wonderful time of my life in Glens Falls. I rented a beautiful bungalow, right on the river. There were just two of them, and who do you think I spent the most wonderful summer with that I ever spent in my life? — Greta Garbo." At this point Phil interrupted, "Irving, make it Poughkeepsie and I'll give you Merle Oberon."

Based on some stories I've heard, I have begun to believe that deep down in their shafts, golf clubs are very similar to magic wands. I know that a lot of times they look like they are being used by a fairy godfather. These miracles occur most frequently when the player is alone on the course with his god, whichever one it may be. Sometimes miracles occur when playing in foursome, but even then the worshipper to whom it occurs is usually off by himself, without even a caddy around, somewhere in the rough or, like Moses, in a desert-sized trap.

Irving Mansfield plays a nice stick, as the saying goes, and one of the main reasons he has that reputation is because Irving has never been known to have a lost ball. No matter how deep he is in the rough, almost before he gets out of the cart you hear him cry, "Here it is!" Sometimes Irving will hit a ball into the woods, three eagle-eyed partners will look for it, and just before the five minute searching time is up, Irving will find it. The most miraculous thing happened to him once when he was playing an English Penfold. If you are familiar with the way they are wrapped, you will understand that it seemed strange to us that when he found his ball in the rough, he had hit it in such a fashion that it was back in the paper again. With that talent, he'd make one hell of a caddy.

I wasn't there but Joey Bishop told me this story. One time he was playing on a public course called Sportsmans — about 35 miles from the heart of Chicago. I've played there a couple of times myself, but nothing like it happened to me. On the seventh hole, Joey hit into the trap. He took his wedge and sculled the ball, it flew out of the trap, hit a tree, bounced back on the green and went into the cup. Joey didn't even say "Wow" or anything. When one of the foursome said, "What a lucky shot," Joey replied, "Don't ever say that to me — I played it that way."

"How do you play it that way? You couldn't even hit the tree again."

"Oh, no?" He took another ball, threw it down in the trap, swung at the ball, blasted it out of the trap, bit the tree again, it bounded onto the green and went right in the cup again.

Joey has never been doubted since on the golf course. He's also never made another trap shot. He hates to play any trap now that doesn't have a tree near it.

The most important thing about keeping score is to do it honestly. Don't try to make friends with somebody by putting down less than he really had, unless it's a lawyer or a doctor and you're looking for a little something off his bill. Don't improve your own score. Never get the reputation that the best club in your bag is your pencil. The most important reason to play the game honestly and put down every stroke you had is that otherwise, at the end of the day, you'll be short of aggravation, and golf cannot be enjoyed without a full measure of frustration and pain. If you don't take care of your score, you can be sure someone else will.

Once I was golfing with a shifty-looking stranger. After carefully counting his strokes on a particularly tough hole, I asked innocently, "What did you have on this hole?"

"Well, let me see," he replied. "It was an eight. No," he said, stopping and pretending to count them out in his head, "no, it was a seven."

"Actually, you had a nine," I was forced to say. "So I'll have to put you down for 10. You know the rules, there's a one stroke penalty for improving your lie!"

Golfers sometimes lose track of the reason for lying. They add strokes when they should be taking them off. One day I was refreshing myself at the bar when I overheard two other bums talking. One said, "I'm the worst golfer there ever was in the world."

The other guy said, "You mean next to me."

"Next to you, with you, without you — nobody is as bad as me. The grass hates me! You want to match cards?"

"OK."

"What'd you have on the first hole?"

"On the first hole I picked up."

"Ha," the first bum replied, "you're one up."

Anyone can make a bad bet, but sometimes if you use the knowledge you have of the game and people's feelings you can correct your mistake. For instance, after you hit your tee shot, and the guy hits his tee shot, don't say, "Hey, you look a lot better than you said you were." Just wait until you get down the fairway to your ball and look back at the foursome behind you. When you see someone standing there say, "How do you like this? Here I am away on a vacation and there's a guy playing behind us that I happen to know. Oh, he's a nasty guy. He'll hit right into you. He's hit at least three people I know but he keeps his insurance high and you'll get paid to forget a bad bruise from his ball."

After that always stand parallel to your opponent's head when he's playing, or even a little out in front of him where he can see you. Then, when he's about to hit, just kind of look back behind you in the direction from which the other guy's hitting and make little motions with your head like you're ducking and say things like, "Oooh, that was close." You'll get the guy pretty well shook and this will make up for the fact that he was able to outlie you on the first tee. You can't get away with it forever, but just knowing what you are trying to do will aggravate him enough so that it will work. You'll get by.

Carey sells interest in Charlevoix Agency

W.R. "Bill" Carey this week announced the sale of his ownership and interest in Charlevoix Agency, Inc., to Richard J. Martin of East Grand Rapids, effective September 1.

In announcing the surprise move, Carey said he was "particularly pleased that a man of Dick Martin's integrity and background is replacing me in the agency. He is familiar with Charlevoix and is looking forward to becoming a resident of our city."

Carey, who has been in the insurance business locally for 12 years, told the Courier his business plans are indefinite at this time.

He purchases the Hamlin Agency in 1958, forming the Carey Agency, which operated for nine years.

In 1967, he and E.D. "Pat" Hawley merged insurance agencies to form the Charlevoix Agency, Inc.

"I would like to express the appreciation I feel for all the clients and friends who have permitted me to serve them in the past. All of them can rest assured that Dick Martin will have their best interests at heart," Carey added.

Martin, a native of Grand Rapids, was educated in its local schools and received his B.A. from Aquinas College in 1953.

He has taken various graduate courses through the University of Michigan and Michigan State extention courses principally in the insurance field.

He entered the insurance business following military service in 1955. His first job was as an underwriter, but he joined the Zurich-American Group in 1957.

Martin was an underwriter, special agent and finally agency supervisor until May 1966, when he was appointed branch manager.

In the latter position, he was responsible for underwriting, auditing, engineering, production and claims in all of Western Michigan, including the eastern six counties of the Upper Peninsula.

He is married to the former Margaret J. Hynes of Grand Rapids. They have three children, Michael, 5, Anastasia, 3, and Sharon, 1.

Master's degree list keeps growing

The number of Charlevoix educators who have earned a Master's degree is growing rapidly.

All four administators hold such a degree and the counsellor has a doctorate. Most of the teachers who attended summer school are working toward that goal.

James Jensen, high school science teacher, will bring the number of teachers holding the advances degree to ten.

Jensen, whose bachelor of science degree was from Huntington College, Huntington, Indiana, will be granted a Master of Science degree in physical science by Central Michigan University in October, graduation time for those who completed the degree requirements in August.

Spending ten weeks on campus, he studied astronomy, directed research in radiation, and two workshops: science demonstration materials, and elementary science.

In addition to teaching chemistry, physics, and general science at the high school, Jensen is head of the science department.

Also attending Central Michigan University this summer was Mrs. Fred (Emma) Payne. Mrs. Payne was on campus for eight weeks, studying children's literature, teaching of arithmetic in elementary school, and teaching of reading in the elementary school.

She is working toward a Master's degree in elementary education and has been taking courses to meet requirements for an elementary certificate.

Already a certified home economics teacher, Mrs. Payne has done substitute work in that department in Charlevoix, and was a half-time study hall supervisor last year.

This year she will be teaching sixth grade social studies.

5 Arrested by Sheriff

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office has reported the arrest of five persons, two of them juveniles, in connection with a series of break-ins in the county over the past four months.

Arrested were Virgil D. Bates, 17, of Boyne City, Gale Janet Shaler, 18, of 510 West Lake Street, Petoskey, Stanley Boris, 17, Boyne City, and two juveniles.

The arrests began last Wednesday and continued through Friday.

Sheriff Philo Sumner said that the recovered loot, most of it cached in wooded areas, included everything from skis, a mini-bike, tape recorders, televisions, record players, chain saws plus a cash register taken from the Carey Oil station in Petoskey to small items such as screw drivers and stop watches. He went on to say that this was only a part of the items reported stolen since May. He added that it is doubtful if some would ever be recovered.

Sheriff Sumner said there were others in the area that may also be solved.

Medusa dust proposal explained at meeting of public, company

Last Tuesday night 85 interested persons attended an informal meeting on the new use of water by Medusa Portland Cement Co.

Dean Mikulski of the Environmental Health Division of the Health Department explained that the use of water is controlled by the Michigan Water Resources Commission. He explained further that Medusa wanted to dispose of the dust problem through the use of water. Now the dust, which is finer than a talcum powder, and having aflow ability greater than water, is dumped on the sight creating an air pollution problem. Medusa has asked for permission to use additional water from Lake Michigan for this purpose.

George Liddle, Jr., of Cadillac, represented the Water Resources Commission at the meeting, saying that Medusa proposed to dispose of about 57,600 gallons of water per day from a wet dust system into Lake Michigan. Restrictions and conditions to be observed in this plan are the amount of acid or alkili; the amount of suspended solids (not more than 20 milligrams per liter or ten pounds of suspended solids per day); and that it is not to contain substances of a nature or in amounts sufficient to interfere with any lawful use of waters, or contaminate the water. The company under the order would make analysis of the water and report their findings once a month.

Gerald Staublin, an engineer at Medusa, presented the method whereby the company hopes to solve the dust problem. He said that all of the dust is supposed to be returned to the kiln, but in order to maintain a high quality of cement this is not always possible. Previously, a redi-mix truck was used to mix the dust with water and haul it away. This was not practical because such a truck is not always available.

He went on to explain the proposed new process. He said that 150 tons per day would be placed in a giant-sized blender where it would be mixed with about 57,000 gallons of water to creat a slurry. This would then be pumped into tanks or reservoirs 260 feet by 270 feet by 10 feet deep.

A final determination of Medusa's request will be made at a meeting of the commission.

American Mold veteran third baseman Des Milligan was selected as recipient of the Larry McBride Memorial Sportsmanship award. In announcing the selection, Dean Davenport, city softball director, praised the popular Milligan for his fine example of sportsmanship and conduct both on and off the field. He joins the select company of previous winners Nate Boss and Bob Klooster.

Debt retirement set; 10 new teachers hired

Charlevoix taxpayers will not be paying as much for debt retirement as they did last year.

The School Board, at their meeting Monday, levied taxes of 1.6 mills for the 1959 bond issue and 3.3 mills for the issue voted in 1968.

This compares with last year's levies of 1.75 for the 1959 issue, and 3.5 for the 1968 building issue.

Superintendent of Schools Rex Milligan reported that the cash balance on hand for the 1958 issue is $72,807.19. Payments this school year total $64,500, and based on a 92 percent collection factor, the 1.6 mills will raise $61,311.

Cash available for the 1968 issue totals $62,206.37, while payments will amount to $129,150. The 3.3 levy will net $131,698.

As reported by the Board, school district residents will be paying a total of 22.69 mills for operation and debt retirement.

Broken down, the total includes 8.3 mills allocated for the district; 6.5 mills voted in June, 1968, for three years; 2.99 mills voted this month for a one-year period, for a total of 17.79 mills for operational purposes.

Debt retirement totals 4.9 mills for the 1969-70 school year.

According to Board figures, the 22.69 mills will raise $902,989, based on 92 percent collection, from State Equalized Valuation (assessed value) of $43,379,346.

The Board also discusses the hot lunch program, and decided to raise some prices, but keep the majority at last year's scale.

Raised were adult meals from forty cents to fifty cents. In addition, all student from fifth grade up will pay $1.75 per week or 40 cents per day. Last year, fifth and sixth graders paid 25 cents less per week.

Remaining the same were charges for first through fourth graders, $1.50 per week, or 35 cents per day, and high school student, who pay $1.75 per week or 40 cents per day.

The Board noted that prices were raised last January, and the cafeteria lost $1,400 this past year.

"The lunch program must be self-supporting," said Milligan. "We'll have to watch it and perhaps raise the prices this year if we see it isn't paying for itself."

A resolution concerning book rental charges was adopted by the Board.

Pupils in first through fourth grades will be charged $2.50 for the use of books; fifth through eight, $5; and high school students, $7.

In addition, students will be required to buy all workbooks, and there is a penalty clause for damaged or lost texts.

In other business, the Board hired 11 teachers, ten of them new to the district.

They are: Mrs. Patricia Schultz, third grade, a Central Michigan University grad; Miss Jeanine Keeney, third grade, CMU grad; Mrs. Marjorie Spence, fourth grade, CMU grad; Rosalie Donnely, vocal music, MSU grad; Mrs. Frances Tollas, U. of M. grad.

Mrs. Phyllis Osterman, fifth grade Western Michigan University grad; William Matchinski, social studies, Northern Michigan University grad; Albert Shindorf, math, Ferris State grad; Howard Hoot, art, CMU grad; Mrs. Doris Robinson, science, returning to the district from a one year leave of absence; and Norman Cook, industrial arts.

Milligan told the Board there is still one vacancy. Mrs. James p. Richey notified the district Monday she will not teach this year.

Charlevoix County State Bank, the lone bidder, was awarded the $120,000 tax anticipation note for their 5.75 percent bid.

Other bids awarded included the American Oil Company, gasoline at 14.3 cents per gallon and number 2 fuel oil at 13.92 cents per gallon.

Butternut Bread was low bidder on bread and hamburger and hot dog rolls; and Maxbauer's Dairy was awarded the milk contract for its low bid.

Guild names 5 girls to receive aid

Five local nursing students will continue their studies this term with financial help from the Charlevoix Hospital Guild.

Receiving aid are Miss Sue Martin, Mrs. Marsha Breakey, Miss Vicki Ulvand, Miss Nancy Peterson and Miss Cynthia Shooks.

The announcement of aid recipients was made at the monthly meeting of the Guild last Monday evening.

In other business, Mrs. Donald Cause reported that the volunteer in-service program at the hospital is well underway, and Guild members are urged to volunteer their skills and time to the hospital.

Mrs. June Davidson was appointed chairman of television rentals for patient use. Mrs. Byron Wright reported that memorial donations are in need of some encouragement by members. It was noted that anyone can have a memorial donated in the name of a deceased relative or friend by contacting Mrs. Wright.

Mrs. Peg Driggett presented a sample brochure to members, portraying all aspects of hospital life to new patients. The leaflet is designed to give patients some idea of how the hospital and Guild work together for their benefit, and also describes some of the services offered by the Guild.

James Rypkema, Marine Patrol

Sheriff's Dept. does it again !

Attorney John W. Bell and his wife of Pontiac hold the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department in high esteem.

No, Sheriff Philo Sumner & Company didn't "fix" a traffic ticket or keep the Honorable Mr. Bell out of the pokey.

What they did was take a quick trip in a Marine Patrol boat.

Bell told the Courier, "On Monday, August 11, my wife and myself were sailing outside of Charlevoix on the chartered sailboat "Sundowner", owned by Mr. J. Barnes of your city and commissioned through Robert Hamilton of Charlevoix.

"At that time, my wife's son, Gregg Weiss, while at camp in Southern Michigan, had become very seriously injured as a result of being kicked in the mouth by a horse. Extensive damage was done to his mouth and nose requiring surgical permission to operate, and the surgeon understandably was unwilling to operate without permission from the parents.

Contact was made with Hamilton Boatyard, and the Sheriff's Department was notified. They, with great dispatch, located us on the lake, took Mrs. Bell back to the city of Charlevoix, where she could contact the doctor by phone giving her permission."

Bell added that he "wishes in some way to express my appreciation of the effectiveness of the Sheriff's Department and specifically of the deputy who operated the boat, contacted us, and took Mrs. Bell back to Charlevoix. Would you please express my personal thanks to him?"

The deputy who helped the Bells is James A. Rypkema, who finds Marine Patrol duty full of such emergency calls. "I wouldn't want to take a guess on the number of emergency calls we've had since I joined the department in March, but it has been quite a few.

Deputy Rypkema, who joined the county after retiring from the U.S. Air Force, said such calls are just part of the job.

"We're here to help boaters...from emergency calls to keeping county waters safe for boaters...the job certainly is not only 'writing out tickets'."

Chamber Chat

BY WALLY LODER
CHAMBER MANAGER

Again over at Posen, Michigan, the 17th annual Posen Potato Festival, the program starts August 28. The guest of honor will be Miss Michigan, and there is an interesting program during the whole festival. On Sunday, the Chamber of Commerce holds a potato pancake breakfast with polish kielbasa, tent entertainment and refreshment; 2:30 p.m., famous Posen Potato Festival parade which includes many floats, bands, etc. At dusk will be the giant fireworks display, and at 8 p.m. will be the queen's ball with Paul Dropczyk and his Polish band from Detroit. As usual, they anticipate this event to be a gayla affair.

Another annual event, being the third, the past two being a success is the Benzie County National Coho Salmon Festival, August 29, 30, 31, and September 1 at Honor, Michigan. The National Coho Salmon Queen contest will be August 28 at Crystal Mountain Ski Lodge.

I received a letter this week from Kent Damon having a Naval address out at San Francisco, and I quote in part: "I am a former resident of Charlevoix. While in the Navy, I have not had a chance to get back to Charlevoix. I remember the great times I had in your town, and would like to have any brochures you have of Charlevoix the Beautiful, which I hope has not changed too much since I was last there. Here in southern California, my ship is homeported there, I have not found any town that is close to being as unique and picturesque." So you see, folks, some get the bug and really retain it.

Unfortunately, personally I did not get any black and white pictures of this year's Waterfront Art Fair. I should like to have a few pictures available here at this office, and accordingly, if any of you folks have any black and white pictures, I would appreciate borrowing the negatives long enough to have reprints made. Thank you.

This season we had a sizable amount of young people listing for summer employment anywhere from grass cutting on up. I do not know whether it is the quality of the applicants work, working conditinns, wages, or what, but there seemed to be considerably turn over in this type of labor to the point that it was difficult to get some to go to this place and that place, and so on. It was not a good situation, and I only wish there was some way to smooth it out so that the employees and the employers would have things more favorable.

Now the talk is "color tours". In the past, Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at times provided an interesting color tour brochure, but like a lot of other governmental bureaus, it seems as though they could not bring about enough funds to repeat again this year. This Chamber, fortunately, was supplied with these brochures, but of course, this year we will have none, as we were not able to put out any either. However, if you have any contacts for a color tour, send them down here, and as long as the maps hold out we will gladly mark them out for them. In addition, I have a news release from the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce. This year they were able to get out a folder-guide having to do with four color tours over in Emmet County. I hope to have a supply, how large, I do not know. Petoskey Chamber of Commerce folder guides will be available at the Petoskey Chamber. Should you be that way, stop by their facility and pick one up, or they might mail you one if you call 347-3968. Principally, they bring about the trip on U.S. 131 clear on into Cross Village, etc.

Attention snow mobilers: If any of you are familiar with any snow mobile trails in this area, particularly in any state forest group, let me know, other than the premise that Pete Winnick has out on Burgess Road. I am beginning to receive inquiries from snow mobilers. Part of their questions I can easily answer, but as to the exactness of trails, I have not been able to establish anything worthwhile.

According to different articles and news media, and words over a cup of coffee, Coho salmon are to some degree located in a sizable school and are being caught some distance out in Lake Michigan at the present time off shore of Ludington and two or three other spots, such as Manistee. If all goes true to form, they will be out in Charlevoix as well as Little Traverse Bay and the Bear River area. Many areas, I find, are ready and waiting for the influx of fishermen. There might be quite an attraction here, and there might not be; however, is Charlevoix ready?

Our traveling trade is slowly lessening and many take time out to stop by this office to say thank you for earlier information, etc., and some stop by to say they had a ball, they like our town, and so forth, and equally as many seem not to like the rates of the lodging places and the cost of food this year. I have no idea, of course, what they might be telling some of you folks, but at any rate, from the dollar standpoint, it appears we should have no less than last year, and it is a possibility of many having larger gross than last year. One thing they could not disagree on was the weather in August.

Health Week Oct. 19-25

Statewide leaders in health, education and private enterprise will join forces to add greater impetus to the 1969 Community Health Week scheduled October 19 to 25 throughout Michigan.

Called to an East Lansing brainstorming session recently, the leaders discussed joint and individual efforts to promote this year's theme of health careers to more young people.

"The demand is obvious, as one of every 10 Michigan high school graduates now must be recruited into health fields to meet the state's needs," points out James J. Lightbody, MD, Detroit, president of the Michigan State Medical Society, which called the meeting at its headquarters.

"Community Health Week should be observed every week of the year," emphasized Edwin G. Rice, of the Michigan Department of Education, one of those attending. "This week in October might be the initiatory thrust."

Rice's suggestion for expanding the efforts of health careers recruitment is the development of school-community health councils, bringing together physicians, nurses, dentists and any other technical personnel serving the schools, with school personnel.

This recent legislative session, with the wide support for a four-year medical school at Michigan State University, has given more visibility to the need for physicians and allied health professions than any other short period of time, it was pointed out.

Community Health Week was started by the AMA on a national level in 1963 and has been promoted in Michigan by the state medical society, Michigan Health Council, and Michigan Association of the Professions. Each year, several topics such as careers, quackery and venereal disease, have been suggested by the AMA and have been carried out in Michigan.

The 1969 Community Health Week observance, reports John A. Doherty, executive director of the Michigan Health Council, will open with a day-long meeting at the University of Michigan, Monday October 20.

In discussing Community Health Week, MSMS President Lightbody reports that, "Agencies and associations in the health field and many public and community groups are all concerned about health manpower and quality health care. Competition is keen for high school graduates, calling for the combined effort of the health team if we are to meet our combined needs.

Camp Charlevoix

Corral Chatter

The eighth and final week of the camp season started off on Monday with another perfect day. We have indeed had one of the finest seasons ever, the weather being just great all eight weeks. We have had very few rainy days, maybe four in the whole eight weeks. Boys were busy finishing up activities and working hard to complete their star requirements. Cabin four, Dave Tuttle and Mike Kelfy, counsellors, took their cabin on a horseback overnight, going to the farthest part of our camp property. These boys were: Mike Healey, Tim Kelly, David Lockhart, David McBride, Kurt Meyer, and Larry Schuler.

On Tuesday, another hot, sunny day, the losing Grey team was busy making preparations for the GREEN-GREY Banquet that night. The decorations committee, the program committee, the speeches committee, etc., were busy meeting and getting ready to start work right after lunch for a busy afternoon. The dining room was decorated with Green and White crepe paper, and ferns were attached to each of the "Year Logs", and the mantle was all decorated. The speaker's table looked great and all the Captains and Lieutenants were seated there. The captains gave very fine talks and everyone was impressed by their speeches. The entertainment was very good and several boys displayed an unknown talent for us. Stuart Hartger and Jeff Larkin played their guitars with John Grizzell at the piano. Jimmy Johnson sang a solo with Ken at the piano. Jeff Henry played a piano solo, and Mike Mulcahy played a guitar solo. The program was topped off with Dan and Alice Ross, of the staff, giving a skit which was very funny and the boys laughed loud and long.

It was a very fine banquet and Doug Otto and his committee deserve a lot of credit. Leigh Merrill, Senior Captain of the winning Greens was presented the MUGWUMP to take home for his room. He was very pleased as this was the most beautiful MUGWUMP we have ever had, and it was made by one of the Assistant Counsellors, Jeff Rouse, who also carved into the wall of the clubhouse the GREENS '69, which when unveiled was given a loud round of applause. It was a night to remember.

Wednesday, another beautiful day, was given over to activities and Rodeo practice for the riders. Beginner riders have their class in the morning. This was the last cabin night for the year and the winners of cabin-cleanup were taken into town to see Walt Disney's "Rascals". The winning cabins in each section were: Cabin 1 and 3 in the Junior Section tied. In the Prep Section it was Cabin 9. In the Intermediate Section the winning cabin was Cabin 12, and the Senior winner was Cabin 17. Our tennis team went into town and met the Belvedere Club and the boys really enjoyed playing on their beautiful courts. Once again our boys were victorious by the score of 10 matches to 5. Mark Weber won, 10-6; Trey Hankel won 10-8; Paul Wever lost his match 10-0; Lee Merrill lost his match 10-0; J.P. Ryan lost his match 10-3; Mike Murphy won his match 10-6; John Weiksnar, won his match, 10-6; Scott Downing won 10-0; Mickey MacNair won 10-0; in double Henkel and Weber won 10-4; Washburn and Weber won 5-3; Merrill and Haynie lost 4-6; Murphy and Downing won 6-0. The boys really enjoyed the matches and we want to thank the Belvedere for inviting our boys. We do appreciate it.

Thursday was a beautiful, hectic day with preparation for the Final Banquet in the evening. The Rodeo boys had a dress rehearsel for the Rodeo, and at seven o'clock in the evening, we had the Final Banquet. The dining room was decorated very well, and boys and staff were dressed in white shirts, ties, and sport jackets. It was hard to recognize some of the folks all dressed up. Jim Larimar was the toastmaster and did a great job. The boys loved the turkey, dressing, cranberries, etc., topped off by banana splits. They gave a big rousing Chinese Toast to Lewie, Rose and the kitchen boys for preparing such a feast. The entertainment started off with John Grizzell, piano, Stuart Hartger, Guitar, and Fabrice (our French boy from Dakar, Africa) on the drums. They did a really great job. Jeff Henry played two piano solos very well. Jim Larimar and Curt Huber sang three folk songs, and these were very professional.

The speaker for the campers was Pete Bowers, Grosse Pointe, and he gave a very fine talk. He was a fine representative of the campers. The staff speaker was Bob Arters (Depaw University) and he gave one of the finest staff talks we have ever had. It was inspiring. Ken gave his talk, recalling funny incidents of the summer, and mentioning what a truly fine season this has been. The staff gave Ruby a bouquet of red roses and both Ruby and Ken were really touched by the standing ovation given by everyone in the dining room. Ruby made a most gracious thank you. The program was brought to a close with 28 of the staff marching into the darkened room, singing the Whiffenproof Song, each man carrying a lighted candle. It is a most impressive sight to see these fine young men, all in a line, singing camp songs and including Halls of Ivy. They marched out sunging once again the Whiffenpoof Song, singing the last chorus from the porch. Needless to say there were many tears and lumps in many throats as the banquet was brought to such a drammatic close.

Another season officially brought to an end. The log with everyone's name on it was unveiled by Jeff Rouse, an Assistant Counsellor, who made one of the most beautiful logs we have ever hung in the dining hall. It was interesting to note that exactly 20 years ago tonight the Jeff's dad, Rick Rouse, had unveiled a log that summer, 1949, when he, too, was in our handicraft shop and he was a counsellor here. It was really a coincidence.

Friday morning the boys spent packing their trunks and getting all their gear together. Excitement was running high as parents were expected and the RODEO was on Friday afternoon. We had a great crowd, about 500 people, and the boys rode very well. Ribbons were given the first three place winners in each event, and the cowboys should be very pleased and happy as it was a very fine rodeo. Ruby and Ken rode in the "Surrey with the Fringe on Top" around the rodeo ring and the highlight of the afternoon was the Drill Team, 12 boys who rode intricate patterns and never missed a trick. These boys are to be congratulated. After the rodeo many boys left with their parents, and Friday evening more boys left.

Saturday was a busy day with boys being taken to busses, to planes, and camp vehicles were kept running all day long. The staff put the camp to bed for the winter, and thus ended the 44th season of Camp Charlevoix.

With 111 boys enrolled for the 1970 season, we are already making plans for another good year. This was one of our top years as we had a great group of campers, a fine staff, and marvelous weather, with only five rainy days all summer.

See you all next year, and once again "thanks" for letting your sons be with us.

Inflation robs value

A cartoon widely reprinted in the depression featured a tattered gentleman sitting in discouragement on a park bench. A nearby squirrel holding a nut in his paws asks: "Why didn't you save when times were good?" The man on the bench wryly replies..."But I did."

Saving is futile under conditions which remove the value of that which is saved. Right now America is riding the crest of an inflationary flood which robs the value of money. Inflation is cruel -- especially to elderly retired people and others on small, rigid incomes. A savings account begun in 1940 and cashed for use on today's market would buy only about 40 per cent of the purchasing power it had 29 years ago.

Current proposals in Congress to relieve low income families from paying a federal income tax, merely dodge the issue -- for a while. Keeping the federal surtax is another such dodge -- although admittedly one which will buy time during which meaningful anti-inflation measures can -- and must, be taken.

Many people appear to have trouble understanding what causes inflation and what can be done about it. Inflation occurs when purchasing power (money) increases faster than desirable goods (cars, homes). Right now salaries and wages are increasing at about seven percent each year while new goods and services are only increasing at about two percent per year.

There are several obvious cures for inflation -- chief among them a balanced federal budget as called for recently by the board of directors of the American Farm Bureau Federation. In a statement sent to President Nixon, to the Secretary of the Treasury and Chairmen of both the House Ways and Means and Appropriations Committees, the farm excessive government spending and budget deficits. Inflation hits farmers particularly hard as their expenses rise more rapidly than the prices they receive..."

Unfortunately there seems to be little Congressional sentiment for cuts in spending. Congressmen are in a poor position to slash the spending of others after having voted themselves a handsome 41 percent salary increase.

ID tags help return strays

"Last year 55 million lost, stray and surplus pets were euthanised in America's pounds and shelters. A lost pet wearing a shiny, individualized I.D. tag on his collar has a better chance of being returned to his master," claims the Animal Protection Institute of America, a national humane society based in Sacramento, California.

Recognizing the extent of the stray problem in each community, API formed the American Pet Registry. The Registry promotes registration and tagging of pets to insure their immediate identification and return if they accidentally stray. "Without registration," said Belton P. Mouras, API President, "rescuing lost pets is largely a matter of luck. Don't trust your pet to luck."

To register your animal and order his I.D. tag, print your name, address, your pet's name and species (dog, cat, other) breed, sex, color or markings and send with $2 to Animal Protection Institute, Box P, Sacramento, California.

In addition, a one year membership in the Animal Protection Institute will be sent to each registered pet owner.

Rep. Davis says:

'Pace is hectic'

"Capitol events last week revolved, as they have for several weeks, around bills signed into law by Governor Milliken," reports Rep. Robert W Daivs

"We have been nrimarily occupied with meetings of special interim study committees and the part of our job we normally term 'constituent relations'. Many people have the impression that their representative's job involves only his work in committee and during formal sessions of the House In reality this is only about half of the job. The other half is study of future legislation and contacts with people in the home idstrict

"The 'constituent relations' aspect of the job is, of course, an ongoing yearround process. However, during times when the Legislature is not holding formal meetings this phase of a legislator's responsibility picks up dramatically. Most of us, for instance, answer each and every letter we receive, except for bulk mailings generated on a specific issue by an organized group. This correspondence get way behind for most of us during the hectic final weeks of the session. The problem is compounded by the fact that the most active protion of the formal session is also the time when mail volume often hits it peak. So, catching up on correspondence is a major task awaiting me when a recess begins.

"During an interim period I also, generally, have more time to spend in my district," added Rep. Davis. "This creates a sharpe rise in invitations to speak to group interested in past and pending legislative action. Getting out and talking with people in the district is another very vital part of constituent relations. It is during times like these that I have the opportunity to answer questions in a direct dialogue with the people I represent. Another valuable outgrowth of these meetings in my district is their impact on future legislation. If there were some way to research the question, I think we'd all be surprised to discover how much legislation is produced by suggestions from constituents as a legislator visits throughout his district," said Rep. Daivs.

"Contacts with constituents are a very important part of a legislator's work. In fact, most people would agree, I'm sure, that nobody could be a true representative if he did not devote considerable time to the various activities we group under the heading 'constituent relations'."

NEW LAWS

Here is a summary of a few of the more interesting bills signed into law recently by Governor Milliken:

Senate Bill 48 - Provides funds for capital outlay (construction) projects within state government. The appropriations made by the bill total nearly $52 million, and include a $4 million dollar item for finishing plans and beginning construction on a new Capitol. As you may recall, I did not agree that the best means of dealing with the problems of our outmoded Capitol building was to build a new one. However, the majority prevailed and supporters and opponents of the building must now be united on one point: since the new Capitol is to be a fact, all legislators should work to see that it is as funcional and efficient as possible without unnescessary frills. And, we should also work to assure that it is a structure the people of Michigan can be proud of.

H.B. 3699 - A consumer protection measure which safeguards Michigan citizens against loss due to the insolvency of a property or casualty insurance company.

DO NOT ENTER
WRONG WAY

WRONG WAY SIGN -- To reduce the frequency of severe and often fatal head-on collisions, the Department of State Highways has erected bright-red, reflectorized "Wrong Way" signs on exit ramps of Michigan freeways to warn confused motorists that they are driving directly into one-way traffic Stop at once if you see this sign ahead of you Don't panic Just pull to the right and stop. If visibility is poor, turn on your lights When traffic clears, turn around, or back carefully out of the ramp. Reflective delineators at pavement edge also are red, to serve as additional warning. Pat's Reaction

By PAT BEGROW

It's not that I don't love my children but when they put my back to the wall and begged me to take them to the Emmet County Fair it was with a definite lack of enthusiasm that I agreed to go. I hate to be with hoards of people in crowded places, and that combined with heat, and the smell of cotton candy and rancid buttered popcorn really turn me off.

Actually I have bad memories of fairs. The last fair that I attended was the Michigan State Fair and I was young, unmarried and on a great date. We went in the evening and I was enthralled with the lights of the runway, the two-headed calf and the wiles of the barkers.

Then my escort said, "Let's see the livestock exhibition."

Well that ended the whole thing for me for ten minutes after that livestock pavilion I was overcome with a terrible hayfever attack. The hay, and the dust were absolutely too much for a hayfever sufferer. I sneezed and sneezed. My eyes streamed and I couldn't get home soon enough.

Naturally then I didn't anticipate having much fun at the Emmet County Fair last week, but I was in for a surprise.

As we entered the fair the children ran for the first ride, the Trebant. It looked like a nice little ride so I gave the operator two tickets for the little girls to ride.

"Don't you want to ride with them, lady?"

"No thanks, I'll just watch them go around."

Foolish me, I had never seen it moving. Not only did they go round and round they went up and down on a whirling tilting platform. After they'd gone around forwards the machine came to a halt and began to go around backwards. I was sure that those two little six and seven year old girls would be terrified.

They loved it.

"Can we go again? Can we go again?", they cried.

They did.

"Let's try something else for a change," I said.

This time we went on the ferris wheel. Frankly I didn't want to go, but I was afraid to let the little girls go around alone, so I plunked myself in the middle seat with one of them on either side.

As the wheel started to go around I was sure that I'd made a terrible mistake. When we reached the top and started down I couldn't even look.

"Don't be afraid, Mommy, this is fun."

I must have looked as scared as I felt. One thing for sure, if either Beth or Ann had started to fall I don't believe that I could have unfrozen my hands to grab them. Mother love can only go so far.

As we got off the boys ran up.

"Hey Mom, that ferris wheel isn't as good as the one at Expo '67. Remember you could rock those bubbles as you went round and round."

I breathed a silent prayer of thanks that we couldn't rock the Emmet County ferris wheel too much. There are good things to be said for the small local fair.

After we worked our way through the Octupus ride and the bubble ride that rotated, revolved and tilted, we finally found ourselves at the kiddie rides, but neither of the girls wanted to ride those little rides.

I finally convinced them that every child should ride the merry-go-round, so the little girls got on to ride while the boys ran off to play games of chance.

This kiddie stuff was not for Ann and so just to show off and scare me she rode around with her arms outstretched not holding the pole. I prayed that the attendant would say something to make her cautious, but he was dreaming into space and paid no attention at all to the children on the ride. Stick on or fall off. It was strictly up to them.

For one last ride the children went over to ride the thrilling Trebant again. This time when the attendant saw me with the string of kids he insisted that I ride at his expense. There was absolutely no gracious way to refuse his kindness so I gave up and let him buckle me into a seat.

What a mistake. I was scared to death. We went round and round and up and down and forward and backward. I thought that we'd never stop.

Beth who was sitting in front of me turned and yelled, "Mommy, your wig's flying off."

Fearfully I let go of the bar with one hand and grabbed for my wig with the other. I shrieked and screamed to get off, but instead of that convincing the guy to let me off he thought that I was having a great time and it encouraged him to give me a longer ride.

When it was finally over I reeled out of the fairgrounds with my hairpiece askew.

I'm sorry that we had to miss part of the fair for I heard that the floral displays were lovely, and I suppose that the cows were too, but I knew enough not to chance it again in a building full of pollen or hay.

The boys had a good time testing their skills at the games and Lee was victorious and won a statue of Mary and a statue of Smokey the Bear. Right now they are sitting side by side on the table in our living room, a nice reminder of the fun that you can have at a county fair.

BY LEE SMITS

Michigan has one species of venomous snake -- the massasauga rattlesnake. They are rarely encountered and, after giving fair warning, prefer to glide away rather than strike.

There comes from California the report of an animal attack that conceivably might occur in Michigan; a three-year old boy, bitten by a wildcat on a poultry farm. The child developed symptoms of rabies. Ontario has had minor outbreaks of rabies in recent years, although Michigan seems to have been free of the disease for some time.

There is just one thing to be borne in mind in case any animal, wild or domestic, makes an unprovoked attack on a person. The skull should be saved, undamaged, so that the brain can be examined for signs of rabies. This may save the victim from the necessity of taking painful preventive shots.

There is another possibility of harmful contact with animals. Rabbits, muskrats, game birds are subject to tularemia and can infect human beings with this devastating disease.

Michigan has more bears than it had 50 years ago, when the black bear was without any legal protection. A black bear is an unpredictable beast, and common sense precautions are called for in dealing with the species. Garbage dump bears have lost their fear of man. If you are watching bears at a dump, stay in your car. Perhaps the odds are 1,000 to one against a feeding bear molesting you, but why take even that kind of a chance? Carl T. Johnson, a member of the Department of Natural Resources Commission and a leading member of the Michigan Bear Hunters' Association, probably knows as much about black bears in the wild as anybody. He tells what to do if you come upon a bear that might make trouble.

+ + +

"The bear is in his own territory," says Mr. Johnson, "and he resents an intruder. So try to let the bear know that you are leaving. But do not turn your back and run. Walk rapidly away, keeping an eye on the bear. Do not climb a tree. A black bear is an expert climber. A department man, a woodsman who knew bears, met up with a bear on an old road in the Upper Peninsula. The bear came toward him. He backed up a mile to where he had left his car. Along the way he picked up an old oil can and as he retreated, he banged on the can with a rock. The bear kept following him, but did not attack.

Tiger Tales

Pitching and power! That's the prescription for Earl Wilson, the big righthander who came to the Tigers midway through the 1966 season from the Boston Red Sox in a trade for outfielder Don Demeter.

The "Duke" overcame a long series of injuries in 1968 to post a mound record of 13-12 with several key contribution so the Tigers' pennant success and showed his usual punch at the plate with seven home runs and 17 RBI.

However, it was 1967 which saw Wilson top his previous pitching efforts. En route to a 22-11 record, big Earl became the first 20-game winner in the major leagues and ended up tied for the most wins. He was the mainstay of the Tiger staff, and his key victories kept the Tigers in the thick of a furious pennant bid which fell short on the final day.

"Earl and Pearl" had four home runs and 15 RBI that year, often winning his own games at the plate.

His banner year in 1967 followed a great second-half with the Tigers in 1966. After joining the Tigers early in June, Wilson reeled off nine straight victories at one stretch and finished with a 13-6 record, 18-11 overall.

Previously, Wilson had little to show for his years with the Red Sox – one winning season (12-8 in 1962) and a 2-0 no-hitter against the Los Angeles Angels (also in 1962).

FASTBALL LEAGUE

We thought the playoff between American Mold and Morweld Steel would be a great one and, and as yet, no one has asked for their money back. Morweld won the City title by winning two straight games. But what games they were!

The first game saw pitchers Nate Boss and Bob Klooster battle through six scoreless innings. Boss had allowed only one hit, Klooster only a harmless single in the first inning. Then Morweld Steel's left fielder Barney Smith turned in his first of several "series performances". He smacked a long home run for the only run of the game, and Morweld had drawn first blood, 1-0.
1-0.

The second contest was one of the most thrilling this writer has seen. Here is a blow by blow, inning by inning account.

FIRST INNING-Mold used a hit batsman, a Ken Balch triple, and a single by Don Kowbell for two runs, an error kept the threat going but Morweld got out of trouble with no more scoring. Morweld got their leadoff man on by a Mold misque and Big Bob Klooster tied it up 2-2 with a line shot over the leftfield fence.

SECOND INNING-Mold's Ken Boss coaxed a walk and was sacrificed to second by brother Nate but died there. Morweld jumped into the lead when first game hero Barney Smith hit another homer for a 3-2 lead.

THIRD INNING-Both pitchers retired the three men they faced inorder.

FOURTH INNING-A mild Mold threat saw a walk and error put two on, but no one came close to scoring. Morweld went down in order.

FIFTH INNING-Mold got things stirred up when Cole singled with one out; after two were out Don Kowbell walked and both moved up on a wild pitch. Ken Wojan then laced a drive to left that appeared to be out of the park when that man Smith again, the left field, hurled himself against the fence to snare the drive just before it disappeared over the fence in front of the scoreboard. That catch became the turning point of the game. Morweld didn't threaten in their fifth. of the game. Morweld didn't threaten in their fifth.

SIXTH INNING-Mold threatened again but were denied by Klooster. A error and walk put runners on base but they couldn't get home. Ken Richardson led off with a single for Morweld, and an error put two on, but Boss was equal to the task as he retired the side without any damage.

SEVENTH INNING-Veteran Ken Balch, who has been one of the few batters around able to consistantly solve Klooster's pitching, stroked a one out home run over the center field fence to tie the game 3-3. Don Kowbell followed with a single and so did Ken Wojan. Both moved up on a passed ball. Jim Austin hit what could have been a base hit through the middle but Klooster leaped high to snag the drive for the second out. Ken Boss followed with a hard high hopper which should have definitely been a base hit in practically the same spot. This time Klooster made a near impossible leaping stop and just nipped the runner at first to end the threat. Nate Boss sturck out ths first two men to face him in the Morweld seventh. Then Larry Brock, who hasn't been known for his long ball hitting, sent a long smash over the left field fence for a game-winning, title-cinching home run that brought the largest crowd of the year to its feet and their auto horns. Morweld Steel reigns as 1969 City Champions.

THIS AND THAT...A quick review of the league winners shows the following Morweld won the fastball league, Novaks the Junior League, the Cards captured their fifth straight Peanut league crown. Howard's Oilers captured the Blooper title, Carey's Oil won the first Slow Pitch trophy, the Maroon Sox won both rounds for the Kiwanis Youth championship the Dairy Queens won another Women's league title, and Plum's girls won the Ponytail crown...

Over 190 games were played on the two fields and 487 Charlevoixans participated as players in one of our eight leagues....

Apologies to Kiwanis Youth league Gold Sox, they were second in their league with a 4-1 record...

Let's pay tribute to the adults who volunteered their summer time to help coach teams in our softball program...When you run into them thank them for their unselfish efforts with your youngsters. Her we go; Max Novak, Jack Mol, Eldie Potter, Bill Seese, Neil Soumela, Don Kowbel, Art Drenth, Jim Alger, Duane Taylor, Bob Deyoung, Ike Boss, Jim Pettus, Max Hosmer, Guy Smith, Stan Whitley, Dave Fowler, Dick Erber, Frank Castro, Jim Wilson, Ken Whitley, Ed McNamara, Bob Tollas, Jim Williams, Arnie Loper, Del Terrill, Dave Smith, Mary Johnacheck, Joyce Davenport, Nancy Fowler, Mary Plum, Connie Smith and Georgia Lusk. I hope we haven't missed anyone...This list is the reason that our program is success and is as popular as it is...If God's willing, see you next year...

Confused? Here's the low-down on all those milk products

By NORMA GLEASON

Too much to choose from

For Mary Doe, average American housewife, that may be a rather pleasant problem. But it's perplexing nonetheless.

Among the confusing arrays of products on the supermarket shelf are the milk and cream products and the non-dairy products.

Housewives are puzzled. Is one as good as, or better than, the next? How about calories? Which to buy?

Mary Doe must at times wish she lived back in the old days when every family kept a cow and there were no such bewildering assortments of milk and non-milk foods. Life was simple. You went out and milked old Bessie and you had milk and you had cream, and that was that.

If you're like Mary, clip this article and keep it in your cookbook. Here's the low-down on all those products:

REAL MILK AND REAL CREAM

Regular milk (fluid whole milk) contains both fats and other solids. Milk fat runs around 3.5 percent. Milk solids run around 8 percent. About 150 calories per 8-ounce cup.

Skim milk is fluid whole milk with most of the butterfat removed. Skim milk lacks Vitamin A unless it is fortified. About 85 calories per 8-ounce cup.

Low-fat milk is fluid whole milk with some of the fat removed. The fat content is lower than in whole milk but usually highter than in skim milk. Often the milk solid content is increased.

2 percent milk is much like low-fat milk except that the fat content is standardized at 2 percent. This milk contains more calories than skim milk - count on 138 calories per 8-ounce cup. But 2 percent milk is ordinarily fortified with added solids and thus more nutritious than whole milk, but with fewer calories.

Evaporated canned milk is whole milk with about 60 percent of the water removed. It's cheaper than fresh milk and, when the water is replaced, has the same nutritive value as whole milk. Used straight from the can, undiluted, it contains 345 calories per 8-ounce cup.

Sweetened condensed milk is canned whole milk from which about half the water has been removed and about 44 percent sugar added as a preservative. Count each 8-ounce cup, straight from the can, as 500 calories.

Dry whole milk is whole milk with all water removed. When the water is replaced, it's equivalent to fresh whole milk. Chilling improves the flavor of the reconstituted product.

Nonfat dry milk is skim milk with all the water removed. When reconstituted, about 85 calories per 8-ounce cup.

Filled milk. This is neither real milk nor a milk substitute, but a cross between the two. Filled milk is not legal in all states. Some filled milk uses cocoanut oil to reqlace butterfat. Cocoanut oil is just as high in saturated fats as the butterfat it replaces. Filled milk is actually classified as a "modified milk" product.

Buttermilk is made from skim milk or low-fat milk. It's produced by bacteria culture which converts the milk sugar into lactic acid. About 100 calories per 8-ounce cup.

Yogurt is made from either whole milk or low-fat milk which has been fermented. Flavoring is often added. Most flavored yogurts run high in calories - about 265 calories per 8-ounce cup.

Half-and-half is a mixture of milk and cream. It contains about 10-12 percent fat. About 25 calories per tablespoon.

Cream - ordinary coffee cream contains about 18-20 percent fat. About 32 calories per tablespoon.

Whipping Cream contains 30-36 percent fat. About 52 calories per tablespoon, unwhipped, or per 2 tablespoons whipped.

Pressurized whipped cream is real cream mixed with sugar, stabilizers, flavors and emulsifiers, packed in aerosol cans under pressure. The cream is unwhipped in the can. The whipping takes place when the pressure is released through the nozzle.

Sour cream contains about 25 calories per tablespoon.

NON-DAIRY PRODUCTS

Non-dairy products are made with vegetable fats, water, sugar, flavoring and protein such as sodium caseinate or soybean protein. Non-dairy products can be useful. However, the American Medical Association says many non-dairy products are deficient in essential nutrients and should not be substituted for milk or other important food groups in the diet of infants and children.

On the other hand, many non-dairy products contain polyunsaturates instead of fats. Read the labels for sensible buying.

Non-dairy creamers contain about 27 calories per tablespoon. Imitation sour cream has about 25 calories per tablespoon.

The pressurized toppings, which substitute for whipped cream, are lower in calories than real whipped cream. They run around 10 or 11 calories per whipped tablespoon, about half that of real whipped cream. Cool Whip, in the plastic tub, runs to 16 calories per tablespoon.

Noise: dangerous as pollution

Studies conducted in Detroit and Los Angeles indicate that one of the most dangerous forms of air pollution may be the filling of the air with sounds.

Dr. Paul Cameron, assistant professor of psychology at Wayne State University, and Dr. Donald Robertson, assistant professor of sociology at Long Beach State College, directed surveys by telephone in the two cities and found that men exposed to abnormally loud noises were ill more often than men who were not exposed to such sounds.

The survey included 4,705 Detroit adults and 1,054 Los Angeles adults. Cameron found that in his sampling those men who complained of exposure to excessive sound experienced 64 per cent more illness as those who did not report exposure to high sound levels.

People questioned in the two cities reported the same basic complaints about noise, although Detroiters reported more noise at work and Californians mentioned more noise from traffic and airplanes.

On-the job sounds were estimated to average between 80 and 90 decibles. Sounds in the home were placed at 70 to 80 decibles. Cameron pointed out that association of sound with annoyance in the survey did not seem to be a factor in its effect on health.

"This suggests that the interpretation placed on sound, that is, whether it bothers you or not, is not the primary factor. Rather it seems that too much sound on a regular basis may be injurious to humans whether it annoys them or not. I don't think many scientists would be surprised if it were shown that too much sound can make us ill," said Dr. Cameron.

About half of the adults of both sexes reported exposure to "a great deal" of sound on a regular basis. One out of every four males considered his job noisy, while a third encountered a lot of sound at home.

Only six percent of females reported excessive sound-exposure at work, but over half said their homes were noisy.

Both sexes agreed that the sounds at work were more annoying than those at home. Machines at work and children and music at home drew the most complaints.

Said Cameron, "In a society as wealthy as ours it is nothing short of criminal that we expect workers to endure the massive sounds of manufacture or housewives to live in a sea of sound.

"It would require only a modest expenditure on our part to reduce the sound in factories to half its current level, and even less to design homes with sound-deadening properties."

what's a funny place for a phone?

That depends a lot on your sense of humor. If splashing through the house to answer a telephone leaves you a little cold, then perhaps there is nothing funny about an extension telephone in the bathroom or dressing room.

Extension telephones save steps and let you do your telephoning from where you are.

Call your Michigan Bell Business Office or ask your telephone man. For as little as ninety-five cents a month (plus tax) you can have an extension telephone in any funny old place you'd like.

Library Notes

For the next several weeks, the Library will devote this column to a discussion of our Michigan Collection which is housed in the Ranger Room. The Collection was originally started in the Library when Mr. Earl D. Babst, prominent summer resorter in Charlevoix and member of the Chicago Club, donated important volumes from his own private collection.

Mr. Babst, is affectionately remembered by many Charlevoix residents. In addition to his interest in the Charlevoix Library, he was benefactor of the Michigan Historical Collections of the University of Michigan. A student of history, Mr. Babst demonstrated his affection for the University by becoming a sponsor of the Michigan Historical Collections when the library was created in 1938.

Among the books which were contributed by Mr. Bsbst to the Charlevoix Library and which sre a part of the Michigsn Collection Is s "History of Northern Michigan" in three volumes; a small pamphlet titled "Council Trees of the Ottawas" by Elizabeth Wood of Charlevoix; a "History of Les Cheneaux Islands" by Frank Grover, in 1911; "The Hiawatha Legends" by Henry Schoolcraft (1856); "Conspiracy of Pontiac," by Francis Parkman (1868); "Long Ships Passing" by Walter Havighurst; "The Lake Superior Country" by T. Morris Longstreth (1924); Milo Quaife's "Lake Michigan;" "Charlevoix--Vacation Glimpses" written personally by Mr. Babst (1944); "The Crooked Tree," Indian legends of Northern Michigan by John C. Wright (1915); "The Kingdome of Saint James," a narrative of the Mormons by Milo Quaife; "A Child of the Sea," the delightful little classic about life among the Mormons on Beaver Island written by Elizabeth Whitney Williams; "Holy Old Mackinaw" a natural history of the American Lumberjack, by Stewart Holbrook; "This is Our Michigan" by Willsrd Baird; "A Century of Iron and Men" by Harlan Hatcher; "Handbook fur Travelers"--this contains a valuable description of the northern part of Lower Michigan and Mackinac Island and Sault Ste. Msrie with maps and Illustrations (1898); "Fire On the Wind," a novel of romance snd drama in the Great Lakes Territory by David Garth; "The Massacre of Old Fort Mackinac" which includes an early history of St. Ignace, Mackinaw City and Mackinac Island; "Michigan in Four Centuries" by F. Clever Bald; "Old Arbre Croche and its Indians" by Mary Belle Shurtleff; "Soo Canal!" and "Young Mister Big" by William Ratigan and "The Land of the Crooked Tree" by U.P. Hedrick.

The above list is by no means complete. The collection also includes many eumplete sets of Michigan historical material plus numerous pamphlets and bulletins including This Is Michigan, a sketch of these times and times gone by, published by the Michigan Historical Commission, Lansing, Michigan and Pioneer Days of Charlevoix, an address by Mrs. Albert F. Bridge, delivered at a meeting of the Shakespeare Study Club In Charlevoix, 1923.

Next week, Library Notes will discuss contributions to the Michigan Collection which have been made since Mr. Babst's death in 1967.

Responsibility

Freedom cannot be bestowed - it must be achieved. To get freedom one must shoulder responsibility.

In the world of employment, man's chief endeavors these days seem to be bent toward emancipation from work. Man is looking for leisure and security; he is unionized in his aspirations and collectively bargaining for something - for himself.

Thus a new religion, or belief, has been born as a part of the sixties - the new bonanza ready for popular yote is guaranteed income and political freedom from want and any responsibility.

Many mortals have set as their goal the "rainbow" of idleness, as a cure-all for all the attendant ills of the cosmos. Such desire is doomed to failure because above everything else, it is born of self. Until a man is freed of selfish desire, each part of personal freedom he wishes to achieve becomes only another form of slavery.

The crying need in the world today is for workers, desirous of contributing to, rather than taking away, from the world. The more a man accepts selfishly for himself, the poorer a family and community he builds about him.

To progress is to broaden oneself in an outward mien - a better world is seldom achieved in any other way. -The Courier (Ballarat, Victoria, Australia)

Vote reform

There is rising support for the view that the president should be elected by popular vote instead of through the electoral college. Proponents of this change are not unaware of a practical difficulty in achieving it. However, they realize that in the small states there would be great reluctance to ratify such an amendment.

To put a finer point on it, the legislatures in small states might well be opposed to a change that would reduce their states' political significance. There is a way out, however.

Article V of the Constitution permits Congress, when submitting an amendment to the states, to propose that it be acted on, not by the legislatures, but by special conventions elected for this purpose.

This was done in 1932, when the 21st Amendment repealing prohibition was submitted. Thinking that legislatures would be controlled by the rural sections, which were thought to favor prohibition, Congress required that ratification should be by special conventions chosen only to consider this one issue.

This was done, and the 21st Amendment was ratified in 11 months.

That is something for Congress to take note of as it moves toward proposing direct presidential election by popular vote. If the question is left to the state legislatures, reform may be a long time in coming.

Support postal reform

The United States Post Office is a marvelous institution which has played a vital part in the development of our nation and its economy.

Unfortunately, it suffers from a form of institutional hardening of the arteries. Obviously there must be changes if the system, which still clings to Benjamin Franklin's letter-sorting pigeon holes, is not only to keep pace with postal demands but serve also as a positive instrument of growth.

Congress appears split on a proposal to modernize the system through adoption of legislation which will place the post office in the hands of a corporation to be run by a 12-man board.

Split, too, seem the opinions of those working in the system at the grass roots. Spokesmen for letter carrier unions contend loose language of the proposed bill fails to provide for safe-guards that would prevent the post office from serving all interests in the true tradition of a public utility.

This, we think, is a legitimate concern, not only for the postal employes but for the public and those who would administer post office policy.

Thrust of the proposal, however, according to Postmaster General Winston Blount, is to permit the 12-member board to hold hearings and set postal rates in accordance with the cost of providing service to those who send mail, not to prevent mail from being distributed.

We think the post office legislation would serve everyone. While we urge the necessary safeguards in the language of enabling legislation, we hope that the details will not be too binding so as to perpetuation the kind of restrictive practices imposed by excessive postal regulations.

One of the objects of the new proposal, accordung to Blount, is to place more control for operation of regional postal facilities at a level close to where decisions can be made. To do this, he said, the thick postal book now used to govern national minutiae will have to be junked.

We hope those involved with the system can see the good that can come from the proposed reforms while working to assure that shortcomings can be avoided.

Wildlife Federation Sees losing battle

Despite the growing emphasis on conservation, the U.S. is losing the battle against environmental destruction according to a National Index of Environmental Quality just released by the National Wildlife Federation.

The first annual EQ appears in the August-September National Wildlife Magazine, and cites air pollution as the most serious threat to environmental quality. Automobile exhaust is by far the greatest pollutant, followed by home heating, industry and refuse burning. The 1969 Air Quality Index: Very Bad and getting worse.

The Water Quality Index stands at Bad, and despite State and Federal attempts to legislate the crud from the nation's fouled water, more than 2,000 communities still discharge raw sewage, and industries have influenced many state water quality standards to allow increased pollution.

Despite improved soil sciences and agricultural practices, the Soil Quality Index rates only Fair, and steadily losing ground. The U.S. Soil Conservation Service estimates that wind and water erosion steals more than $1 billion per year from some 180 million acres of cropland. This amounts to 1½ percent of the current value of the land.

Although the Forest Index reading is Fair, the amount of standing timber continues to decline each year. In 1968, more than 600,000 fewer acres were planted or seeded than in 1960. To provide the nation's wood products in the future, foresters face the obvious challenges of developing new management techniques and greater use of hybrid trees, fertilizers and insect controls.

Wildlife is a sensitive barometer of enviropmental quality, and the Wildlife Index is only Fair with a bleack future. Approximately 40 bird and animal species became extinct in the U.S. within the past 150 years, and 89 more are currently on the "Endangered Species List."

Only the healthy condition of most game species keeps the total wildlife picture a cut above disaster. There are more deer in the U.S. today than at any time in history. Small game animals including rabbits, squirrels, pheasants, quail, grouse and dove are thriving. But they, like many waterfowl species, are threatened by the continuing shrinkage of natural habitat and inroads of pollution and pesticide contamination.

Although the Mineral Index is Good, there is urgent need for a new national policy for exploitation of these valuable non-renewable resources. The nation's municipal incinerators alone contain recoverable minerals amounting to an estimated 6 billion tons of iron and 400 million pounds of aluminum, copper, zinc and other nonferrous metals. Surface mining has destroyed more than two million acres of fish and wildlife habitat and more than 80 percent of all land disturbed by surface mining has not been reclaimed by the mining industry.

It is clear the 1969 Index of Environmental Quality for the world's richest, most powerful country is going downhill at a disturbing rate, forecasting a third-rate life for future generations.

Tom Kimball, Federation Executive Director, said "the prospects are extremely disturbing, but not really too surprising. You get just what you pay for, and far less than 1 percent of every tax dollar goes into programs even remotely related to protection and improvement of our environment."

Camp letter

BY HANK HOGAN

I used to think that I was une of the world's worst correspondents, but I've met my match.

The other day I received s little cylindrical container from my 9-year-old daughter who is at camp When I opened it, the cylinder was empty.

I was hesitant about telling her about it because I felt that for once she had settled down and written her father a letter and she might be very disappointed if I never received it.

It now turns out that during rest hour at her camp the children are required to write their parents once a week.

+ + +

Since the counselors do not read the letters, my dsughter satisfied her obligation by merely putting a stamp on an empty container and mailing it to me.

I had mixed emotions about it because on the one hand I had to admire her clever approach to camp regulations. But on the other hand I missed by typical, enlightening letter from camp which says, "Dear Dad, Camp is fun. I have to go now. Love."

I am thinking seriously of preparing, before thesnext camping season, a check list of things children enjoy and do not enjoy at camp and having several of them duplicated. I could give them to the children as a going away present,

+ + +

Then, instead of having to go through the rigors of writing home they can just check of things like "Swimming is fun," "The water is cold" and "I hat oatmeal." I would have a little space for them to tell about broken arms and how much money they need.

Camping is a wonderful experience and in most cases it's the first time a child leaves home and is on his own.

It's good for them, because it forces them to live with other people at very close quarters. They do not have a mother and a father they can go crying to when things don't go right.

+ + +

But if parents really want to know what's going on in camp they can't expect to learn it through the letters of their children because at that age letter writing is just a chore that has to be done before they go swimming or sailing or horseback riding.

As I look back, it's possible that my present aversion to letter writing could have been ingrained in me by the real pros in the business—the kids who had gone to camp for many years and had found out that they could fulfil their obligations by sending home an empty envelope.

Communication is 'crazy'

BY JOHN REDDY

Communication is a crazy thing. The harder you try the crazier it gets. There are the very literate who savor every denotative nuance outlined by priorities in the dictionary. There are those whu prefer colloquial usage of words because the meanings have come to mean as much if not more for themselves than they do for the person at whom the utterance is directed.

And every body at one time or another chooses to get literary while preserving for himself the option of using words in the cunnotative sense-the usage which permits one to apply a meaning drawn from one's own wealth of experience.

+ + +

Fur example, I once described somebody as "very nice." It was the highest compliment possible at the time. The circumstances and the intent of feeling said, so, even if the words themselves did not.

Consequently, the inflection of voice added dimension-perhaps an undecodable dimension-to the phrase that I wanted to mean so much.

But the recipient of the remarks said, "Nice, is that all?"

+ + +

Obviously I had been "communicating" more with myself than to the other person. And that's not very 'nice" to go around talking to oneself in the presence of others.

Uneasy about the experience I promised myself I'd look up the prescribed definitions of "nice."

Well, in Middle English nice means "foolish, wanton " But that's not what I meant. From Old French comes the meaning "simpleminded, stupid " That's not what I meant either. From Latin the definition asserts "not knowing."

Obsolete usage reveals the work "nice" meant "wanton, dissolute, coy, modest, idttident, reticent." Nope

+ + +

Onward in pursuit of a definition, there is the explanation, "showing fastidious, particular, of finical tastes ..satisfying a dainty palate: pleasing delicate tastes...marked by refinement and culture, refined tastes or wise discrimination...showing, marked by or requiring meticulous choice, tactful handling, careful consideration, or precise and scrupulous conduct...requiring, marked by, or capable of delicate discrimination, precision, closely accurate measurement, subtle analysis or minute treatment...pleasant, satisfying...and on."

Synonyms include dainty, fastidous, finical, particular, fussy squeamish, persnickety.

Now that's not what I meant, "don't you know " What I really meant was, "You're nice.

Sex goes up in smoke

Knuckling under to the cancer fighters, the cigaret industry has promised to quit advertising on TV

I truly appreciate the cnncern for my health, but what am I going to do for sex education?

I have been a student of cigaret commercials ever since that msrvelous day, many years ago, when sexy Julie London came uut of the dark and seductively knocked her boyfriend's ash off.

And then there was that guy who would use his cagarets to pick up a beautiful broad in a bar. He had been giving her the eye across the room all night, twitching his eyebrows, wetting his lips and blowing in his own ear. But she wouldn't give him a tumble, until...

He put his pack of smokes on his table, in plain view, and drummed on them with a tattooed fingernail. It was her hrand and he was obivously her kind of man! She knocked down 2 waiters getting to our hero.

Admittedly, these commericals are not the type of sex-smoke education that should interest a married man, especially one whose wife has to reach a silly millimeter longer than his stride. But I was taking notes for my son. I don't want him brain-washed by Smokey the Bear and the American Cancer Society. Cigsrets are dangerous, no lie. But how much should a man rish to captivate a Julie London? I want my boy to be able to make an informed choice. Is it better have have love and got a hacking cough than to not have loved at all?

And besides. Lately the cigaret commercials have been aimed at the married man and his domestic troubles. Surely you've seen that one where the beautiful gal is jogging through the park with her husband close behind. She has an oh-so pained expression and you know she is running away from a breaking marriage. Either that or she has a terrible chafing problem.

Jack catches up with Jill and quickly begins the soft talk. He tells her that a lot of wives have husbands who work nights, and soon they'll go awsy together alone and strighten things out. She doesn't believe him. Then Jack lights up a butt and blows smoke in Jill's face. And she believes, she believes.

"L & M is the cigaret for two together," the announcer says as the music plays louder and Jill lovingly bums a puff from Jack's butt.

I tell you, it's like magic. I no longer smoke cigarets, but the next time the poker party lasts too long, I am going to blow cigar smoke under our bedroom door. My wife will plump my pillow. Marvelous.

How am I going to learn important things like this if there are no more cigaret commercials on TV? I hope I don't have to start watching Doris Day.

Onward and Upward.

ON THE 'FLIP' SIDE

We offer the following little tale to our readers without comment.

Once upon a time there was a Little Red Hen who scratched about and uncovered some grains of wheat. She called her barnyard neighbors and said, "If we work together and plant this wheat, we will have some fine bread to eat. Who will help me plant the wheat?"

"Not I," said the Cow. "Not I," said the Duck. "Not we," said the Goose and Pig. "Then I will," said the Little Red Hen – and she did.

After the wheat started growing, the ground turned dry and there was no rain in sight. "Who will help me water the wheat?" said the Little Red Hen.

"Not I," said the Cow. "Not I," said the Duck. "Not I," said the Pig. "Equal rights," said the Goose. "Then I will," said the Little Red Hen–and she did.

The wheat grew tall and ripened into golden grain. "Who will help me reap the wheat?" asked the Little Red Hen.

"Not I," said the Cow. "Not I," said the Duck. "Out of my classification," said the Pig. "I'd lose my food stamps," said the Goose.

"Then I will," said the Little Red Hen – and she did.

When it came time to grind the flour, "Not I," said the Cow. "I'd lose my unemployment compensation," said the Duck.

When it came time to bake the bread, "That's overtime for me," said the Cow. "I'm a dropout and never learned how," said the Duck. "I'd lose my welfare benefits," said the Pig. "If I'm the only one helping, that's discrimination," said the Goose.

"Then I will," said the Little Red Hen – and she did.

She baked five loaves of fine bread and held them up for her neighbors to see.

"I want some," said the Cow. "I want some," said the Duck. "I want some," said the Pig. "I demand my share, " said the Goose.

"No," said the Little Red Hen. "I can rest for awhile and eat the five loaves myself."

"Excess profits," cried the Cow. "Capitalistic leech!" screamed the Duck. "Company fine," screamed the Goose. "Equal rights," grunted the Pig.

And they hurriedly painted picket signs and marched around the Little Red Hen singing, "We shall overcome." And they did.

For when the owner came to investigate the commotion, he said, "You must not be greedy, Little Red Hen. Look at the oppressed Cow. Look at the disadvantaged Duck. Look at the underprivileged Pig. Look at the less fortunate Goose. You are guilty of making second-class citizens of them!"

"But--but--but I earned the bread," said the Little Red Hen.

"Exactly," the wise owner said. "You should be happy to have this freedom. In other barnyards, you would have to give all five loaves to me. Here you give four loaves to your suffering neighbors."

And they all lived happily ever after. Including the Little Red Hen, who smiled and smiled and clucked, "I am grateful. I am grateful."

But her neighbors wondered why she never baked any more bread.

A good burger is not hard to find

By Nancy Williams

Do you like hamburgers? We mean a ground beef patty on a bun that is big enough to see sideways, tender enough to chew lightly, done so it doesn't moo back at you, and isn't smothered in sauce and special concoctions either.

We've found one of the nicest places in Charlevoix to get one, plus a lovely atmosphere. The restaurant we speak of is the Weathervane Inn. One can spend a most relaxing and enjoyable lunch hour here. We did just that the other day. Looking for a peaceful place where we could have a good hamburger, the Weathervane appeared almost too fancy to have such a simple dish.

From the moment we entered, we were proven wrong on everything ever supposed about it. First off, you don't have to wait hours for a table, just because they serve good food in a pleasant surrounding.

The day we went, we were seated immediately and given a menu. A cheerful waitress came by, filled my water glass and told me what the special plate and soup was for the day.

She informed me that she would return to take my order in a moment. And a moment it was (not an hour or two). The menu offered a lunch-time variety of sandwiches, hot plates, soups and salads, not to mention my hamburger.

My choice was the Weathervane burger, a large milk, and a scoop of vanilla ice cream. Now, the point is, to find out what they think a hamburger is, or what it should be. Settling back for what we thought was a long wait, we took in the surroundings. Mainly resorters filled the room, some casually dressed, some smartly dressed. The room was quietly murmering with conversation, while pleasant dinner music filled the background. It was comfortable inside and made it much easier to enjoy the warm summer day outside. Calm and comfortable inside, the busy and picturesque view outside seemed far away.

In one minute, (to the very second) my cheerful waitress returned with my Weathervane burger. A delicious looking, large hamburger on an equally large sesame bun, surrounded by a generous supply of potato chips, and a cucumber pickle resting on lettuce. Talk about mouth watering! We were also asked our preferences of garnishmenta (just mustard and ketsup for me) and told if anything is not right, please ask for it.

There was, however, a slice of onion on it. We don't usually care for onions but thought we'd give it a try.

First bite...delicious, as was every bite after that. The onion was mild and very delicious, adding just the right flavor. Two bites from finishing my hamburg and we were asked, "Would you like your ice cream now?" Timed just right, I'd say. "Maybe you'd like chocolate sauce, or strawberry, or..." Chocolate was fine with me.

She walked away and came right back with a dish of vanilla ice cream with chocolate sauce and a cherry on top. A genie must be preparing this in the kitchen! To say the least, the service was unbelievable. Everyone there was being served just as quickly and efficiently as us, no matter how many there were in the group. We received our check with a gracious thank you and was amazed to find that it totaled less than $2.

A meal fit for a king and priced for a working girl. Do you like hamburgers or just good food? Scenic surroundings? And to be reasonably charged for a meal? We'd choose the Weathervane, it's the best we've found

No matter how you slice it, to some the very best hamburger is the one cooked over charcoal in the backyard.

Summer fun is over, kids... school opens next Tuesday

It's back to school next Tuesday for pupils in the Charlevoix School District, as the 1969-70 school year begins.

And, for the first time in a decade, the district will open a new school building. If all goes as planned, the new elementary school will open its doors for teachers Monday, followed by kindergarteners through fourth graders the next morning.

The old elementary school is in the process of a face-lifting and will open Tuesday to only fifth and sixth grade classes. When remodeling is completed, seventh and eighth graders will move from portable units at the high school to complete the Middle School.

Pre-school registrations indicate that total enrollment will increase from last year's figures.

According to present estimates, there will be 86 students new to the school system, including 33 from St. Mary's School.

The majority of the new students have been registered at the elementary or middle school level. Only nine new pupils registered in the top four grades.

But, no matter what grade level, the freedom of summer, swimming, loafing, or temporary jobs. . . .all comes to an end in less than one week.

For some, it will mark the beginning of mass education. . .the first teachings outside the home. For others, the final nine months of school before entering the working worlds.

Model rocketry becoming new, fast growing hobby

By Jeanne Mutz

The space age is taking over, even among the younger generation. They not only watch all the action on T.V. but they launch their own rockets in their own back yards.

Model rocketry has become a new and fast growing hobby. Model Rockets are not toys, but flying, miniature counter-parts of space age vehicles. They are constructed of lightweight balsa and paper tubing. Model rockets use and demonstrate principles or orbital launch and space vehicles.

A model rocket is similar in design and flight to space rockets and are a good way for the young people of today to meet the challenge of the space age of tomorrow.

Basic model rockets kits may be purchased for youngsters (or oldsters) build and fly. Most begin with an easy rocket, with simple lines and not too much construction, and then graduate to the more complicated type which require more patience and skill to build and fly.

Model rockets are launched in different ways. The most common is a platform with a long thin rod extending upward. The rocket, which is loaded with a solid propellant engine, is then placed on the rod.

Attached to the engine is a tiny fuse to which two wires from a battery are attached. When the rocketeer presses his launch botton, the rocket soars into space out of sight. After the rocket's powered flight, it coasts upward during a time delay while the engine injection charge is activating. When the engine ejects it then deploys the parachute which carries the rocket safely to earth ready for another flight.

Rockets are available in many sizes. Some are small (about 6 inches high) or others are as much as 43 inches tall. Engine sizes also vary. Some engines are small and may carry the rocket upward so that you never lose sight of it, yet other engines will carry the rocket completely out of sight until the parachute ejects and it returns to earth.

Model rocketry is becoming a popular sport. As a rocketeer builds and flys his rockets he developes and active and inquiring mind which is the pattern for our future.

Blast off. .rocket looks much like parent model at Cape Kennedy. Lift off closely follows ignition.

Fochtman to rep city at meeting

Charlevoix Mayor William Fochtman will represent the city at the Michigan Municipal League's seventy-first annual convention, September 9 through 12 in Grand Rapids. Theme of the meeting will be looking ahead to the seventies.

Over 1,200 city and village officials of Michigan will consider "New Approaches for a New Decade," as they listen to authorities from across the nation.

The convention opens formally Wednesday, September 10, at 9:30 a.m. in the Grand Rapids Civic Center Auditorium, with the keynote address by Richard G. Lugar, mayor of Indianapolis, Indiana. William S. Foster of New York City, editor of The American City, a monthly magazine on municipal management, will speak on "Measuring Municipal Success."

Michigan Governor William G. Milliken will speak at Wednesday's opening luncheon; two concurrent forums will follow.

On Thursday morning, September 11, a series of five simultaneous workshops are scheduled. These sessions will focus on "The Future of Labor Relations in the Public Sector," Innovative Techniques in Community Housing," "Law Enforcement: A Community Responsibility," "Spotlight on Small-City and Village Problems," and legal matters.

The Thursday afternoon annual business meeting will include election of six League trustees and consideration by convention delegates of policy statements and resolutions governing the League's course of action for the coming year. Later that afternoon the Michigan Municipal League full board of trustees will meet and elect the League's president for the coming year.

Friday morning's agenda includes section meetings for mayors, presidents councilmen; attorneys; clerks; engineers and public works officials; finance officers; and managers. The convention concludes with a Friday luncheon at 12:15 p.m. in the Civic Auditorium with Seymour Wolfbein, dean of the School of Business Administration, Temple University, as the speaker.

Heart disease deaths drop in Charlevoix

The percentage of deaths caused by heart disease, stroke ond other Cardiovascular (CVD) diseases in Charlevoix County has dropped sharply during the past five years, Dr. Edward W. Green, president of the Michigan Heart Association, announced today.

In 1964, 61.3 percent of all Charlevoix deaths were from CVD; in 1965, 66.8; 1966, 62.6; 1967, 53; and in 1968, 56.4 percent.

In contrast, the statewide totals were: in 1964, 54.7 percent; 1965, 54.3; 1966, 53.9; 1967, 54.1; ond in 1968, 53.6 percent. The figures for the state approximately match the national ones which show slowly dropping rates and percentages. Dr. Green attributed this to new medical techniques for the control of at least one risk factor, high blood pressure, as well as campaigns to educate the public to avoid risk factors.

The Association, a Michigan United Fund Agency, has been conducting vigorous programs to teach the public to avoid smoking, high fat diets, and lack of exercise.

In 1968, for the first time, the Michigan State Department of Health, source of these figure, determined heart attack deaths. In Charlevoix county, it was 37, 56 percent of all heart deaths and 33.6 percenet of all CVD deaths.

Dr. Green, director of Cardiology, Children's Hospital of Michigan, Detroit, said the Charlevoix percentages are too small to be statistically significant; however, they demonstrate the magnitude of the heart disease problem.

In 1968, Charlevoix 66 heart disease deaths, 34 stroke, 10 miscellaneous CVD, and–for contrast–14 accidental deaths.

Of adjoining counties, Emmet had 56.9 percent CVD deaths; Cheboygan, 56.1; Otsego, 54.2; and Antrim, 59.4 percent.

Old Dixie Highway revived in County

Dr. William Ratigan, local Great Lakes historian, teacher and student counselor in the high school, obligingly posed with his vintage Ford alongside the old Dixie Highway at Barnard corners.

By Bernice Wexstaff

In observance of Charlevoix County Centennial in this year of our Lord, 1969, the Charlevoix County Road Commission is placing replicas of the old Dixie Highway road signs at strategic points to indicate to posterity that our north-south US 31 was at one time an important link in that historic highway.

In comparison to the Old World, Michigan is in its infancy, but already it is often difficult to trace historic events of even a half-century ago. Rapid changes which catapult today's citizenry into a technological future by-pass the struggles of pioneer forebearers and too often their contributions are lost in the process.

However, due to the interest of history buff, Ivan Phillips and fellow members of the road commission, this phase of our historic past will be kept alive, not only as a point of local pride but a monument of some significance to adventuring tourists.

Little more than 100 years ago, pioneers were clearing ox-wagon trails simply to get themselves out of the Michigan forests for it is a known fact that homesteaders of the 1850s brought home food supplies from village stores by "shank's mares" (their own two legs) carrying a sack of flour and a keg of molasses slung across their own shoulders.

As early os 1920, Charlevoix County was fortunate to have in summer residence an energetic good roads advocate in the person of one George H. Van Pelt. A dapper figure in a white linen suit, white Panama hat, white hair and a Van Dyke beard, he bustled about Charlevoix preaching concrete highways three decades ahead of mid-western road officials.

To many he was a nuisance, but eventually his modern ideas were accepted in the north country and the road to and beyond Greensky Hill was the first to be paved with concrete whereby Mr. Van Pelt earned for himself the dubious honor of the nickname "Concrete Van Pelt"!

Mr. Van Pelt, an industrialist from Chicago who made his summer home in Norwood, some 12 miles south nf Charlevoix, knew what he was talking about. He had traveled extensively across the land and had seen the progress made in the East–the first Dixie Highway--Montreal to Miami.

He had seen the possibilities of inter-state travel through the promotion of the north-south highways under the famous Glidden Tours exploration, and he brought his ideas to Charlevoix along with a plan which was finally accepted as the WEST MICHIGAN PIKE promotion: The road which later became a part of the mid-western Dixie Highway from Sault Ste. Marie on the Canadian border to Florida's Miami.

Thus the West Michigan Pike between Mackinaw City and Traverse City became a reality and both Pike and Dixie Highway signs were set up to guide the traveler southward. They were nailed to roadside trees and telephone poles on the west side of the roadway with arrows pointing southward...Apparently it was believed that the traveler could always find his way back home as there were no signs pointing north.

There's no doubt that in the present age of expressways and super highways it is difficult to imagine a country without good roads but it is true that in the memory of living men there was a day when it was possible to simply "run out of road" not only in Michigan but else where.

William F. Meyer of Charlevoix was probably the first localite to drive an automobile to Florida...His passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Pewers who operated a plumbing business in the Crouter building (now the Henry Hogan building between Polly Kay and the Chalet restaurant). Mr. Meyer quite literally ran out of road in Georgia and thereby damaged the exhaust and the oil pan of his deluxe Apperson automobile on protrudant Georgia pine stumps in 1912–little more than a half-century ago.

The Eugene Crandell family, enroute to Traverse City to spend a Sunday with relatives in 1914, bent a front axle on their Tin Lizzie trying to make the top of the rutted, sand hill at Yuba and Papa Crandell had to hammer it out with a couple of rocks. There were few parts replacements in those days and car owners learned to do their own repairing with carpenter tools and hay wire.

The last known Dixie Highway sign in Charlevoix County was on the south edge of Norwood and was hidden from view for many years by the brush growth in summer. However, with the widening of that road at the home site development along the lake shore, the sign disappeared either due to careless workmen who failed to recognize its historic value or some home-site purchaser who purloined the sign because he did koow its value.

But the disappearance of the old sign is no longer important now that the Charlevoix County Road Commission has placed new replicas of the old signs at Bay Shore, Burgess, Norwood Corners and points in between.

Needless to say, the highway has been changed from time to time to eliminate hazardous corners and shorten distances, but there is still a faint marking of the original PIKE-DIXIE HIGHWAY in a curve across the field on the west side of the pavement at Norwood Corners.

Now that US 31 has achieved it rightful place in Charlevoix County history–wagon trail to State road MII–West Michigan Pike aod Dixie Highway to finally Federal Highway, travelers buzzing along the paved road can only imagine days of old when the top speed was 35 miles per hour or possibly old Paul Bunyon and his plodding blue ox, Babe, along Lake Michigan's shores many years before Henry Ford dreamed up his first Tin Lizzie.

Contract talk tempo increases

"The tempo of negotiations in the northern part of the lower peninsula has been greatly increased over the last two weeks in on attempt to complete contract settlements between teachers and boards of education," reported Maurine Wyatt, MEA Field Representative for this area.

"Settlements have been reached in all units except Alpena, Hillman, Boyne Falls, Ellsworth, Elk Rapids, Manton, Suttons Bay, Northport and Kingsley," she added. "Alpena had one negotiating session with a Labor Medication Board mediator and has another session tentatively scheduled for August 30. Northport has scheduled mediation for August 28, with a representative from the Labor Mediation Board," said Mrs. Wyatt.

"Following presentation of the facts by both the teachers and the board of education, the fact finder makes his recommendations based on these facts. While the recommendations are not necessarily binding on either party, it has proven in many cases to have great value in resolving the local impasse." Mrs. Wyatt added that "Fact Finding is only utilized after mediation has been unsuccessful in resolving the contract issues.

"While the teachers at Ellsworth, Manton, and Suttons Bay have made commitments to return to work and contunue to negotiate, no such decision has been made by the other units," according to Mrs. Wyatt. "It is hoped, however, that all public schools in nothern Michigan will have master agreements completed so that school can start on the traditional date," she concluded.

Electronic depth finder helpful to all boaters

Electronic depth sounder can be important navigation aid to boatman. Captain Fred E. Lawton, director of marine safety for Raytheon Company, demonstrates line-of-soundings method to find position in fog. Fathometer depth sounder readings are noted at regular intervals, plotted on course line on tracing paper and then compared with chart of area to confirm boat's position.

An electronic depth sounder that sends an ultrasonic signal beneath a boat to tell the boatman how much water lies under the keel can tell the boatman more than just the depth of water.

The commercial fisherman knows the value of his depth sounder and won't leave port without it. It locates ledges, wrecks, and other obstructions where his expensive nets and trawls might hang up. He can even see where the fish are and at what depth. With experience, he can look at the graph and tell you what kind of fish they are and how many are in a school before he lays his nets.

The pleasure boatman uses his depth sounder in much the same way. He can see the spots where sport fish are apt to be. He can locate the same deep spot or ledge or sunken wreck again.

The electronic depth sounder is the most common piece of electronic gear found aboard pleasure boats of all sizes but many boatmen fail to take full advantage of it. Captain Fred E. Lawton, a veteran master mariner and marine safety director, says pleasure boatmen use their sounders for fish finding and they use them to get an instantaneous check on the depth of water while cruising or navigoting a channel but many boatmen aren't aware of its many uses as a navigational aid when fog or low visibility sets in.

The first navigational requisites for any boat are an up-to-date chart of the cruising area and a compass that can be read with confidence.

Combined with these, the depth sounder can be used to obtain a line of soundings.

Here's how Captain Lawton explains it, "Run a steady course at a known rate of speed. Presumably the visibility is low hence our speed is reduced. Let's say it' five knots. It's a handy rule of thumb that every three minutes your boat advances as many hundreds of yards as its speed in nautical miles per hour. That is, at five knots the boat advances 500 yards every three minutes. At six knots, it travels 600 yards every three minutes.

"Keep accurate track of the time, steady on your base course, and check the speed. Note the time and the reading on the depth sounder. Repeat this at three minute intervals and record the soundings along a line drawn on a piece of tracing paper at intervals representing the dead reckoning advance as measured by the scale of the navigation chart for the area.

"With this line of soundings on the piece of tracing paper, orient the course line so that it parallels that compass point on the chart and move it over the general area where you think you are. Chance are the soundings will fit the pattern of printed soundings on the chart quite closely. If there is a steep gradient or some other distinctive underwater characteristic, your position can be determined quite accurately," according to the Captain.

The electronic navigation specialist reminds boatmen that it may not match the chart exactly since soundings on official chargs represent readings at mean low water. Observed depths will be deeper by the stand of tide at the time.

Another way to use a depth sounder for navigation, Captain Lawton points out, is in combination with a visual or radio bearing. If, for example, you have observed that you are due east of a lighthouse or other landmark but you don't know your distance off, a simultaneous sounding can help pinpoint your location along that line of position.

GULF COAST DISASTER AREA—When vicious Hurricane Camille tore into the Mississippi and Louisiana Gulf Coast, thousands found shelter, food, and clothing in hundreds of Red Cross shelters such as this. Designated the official disaster agency for the nation, the American Red Cross will be providing emergency care and long-term assistance for all those who need it. Red Cross hopes to raise a minimum of $15,000,000 for Gulf hurricane relief. More fortunate Americans can aid Red Cross in this gigantic humanitarian task by sending their contributions, small or large, to the nearest Red Cross chapter.

Red Cross needs help for hurricane victims

Thousands of persons were made homeless by the winds and waves that smashed houses to splinters when Hurricane Camille battered the Gulf Coast from Louisiana to Florida.

Many of the families for whom the night of August 17 was one of horror lack the resources to return to normal living unaided. They have lost everything through a calamity of nature which they were powerless to prevent or sidestep. They must be helped in the rebuilding of their shattered lives and homes.

The American Red Cross is the natural agent for this rebuilding, by virtue of both its experience and its readiness to help. The Red Cross is asking the American people for a minimum of $15,000,000 to provide this assistance.

The people of this community have always heeded generously humanitarian appeals like this. Let us again open our hearts--and our pocketbooks--and make sure that the Red Cross receives the necessary funds to help our distressed neighbors on the Gulf Coast. Send or take your contribution to your nearest Red Cross chapter.

Teachers study math methods

"Sure you have the right answer, Dad, but you didn't get it the right way!" argues Johnny these days as his father tries to help him with his arithmetic.

It's not just the over thirty's but the twenty to theirty's also that are on the wrong side of the generation gap these days as far as the new math is concerned. Consequently some of our otherwise highly qualified teachers feel the need to return to school to learn how to teach the new and more inclusive way to arrive at numerical conclusions.

Fine Charlevoix elementary teachers were enrolled this summer in a Michigan State University workshop in teaching math in the elementary and junior high school, taught at North Central Michigan College.

They were Mrs. Donald (Barbara) Berlage and Mrs. Donald (Carolyn) DeMoar, first grade teachers; Mrs. George (Patricia) Schultz, a new teacher who will be teaching third grade; Barry Anderson, who taught fourth grade last year; and Candit Drury, sixth grade teacher. The class met all morning each day except Saturday and Sunday for two weeks.

Mrs. DeMoar also took a workshop in science education and Anderson, two courses: philosophy of education and principles of guidance and personnel services. This coming year Anderson will be teaching in the middle school.

Drury, who is working toward a master's degree in Elementary Education preceded his math course with two courses at Northwestern Michigan College at Traverse City: special methods of teaching children's literature and couselling: individual analysis.

Payne attends banking school

Frederick J. Payne, Charlevoix County State Bank, Charlevoix, was among 1,345 student bankers from 37 states, Puerto Rico, Argentina, Nigeria, and Central America who have just completed the annual two-week residence session of the Graduate School of Banking at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

The school, sponsored by the Central States Conference consisting of the bankers associations of 16 states, requires attendance for two weeks each year for three years for graduation. A total of about 400 seniors receive their diplomas at the school's 1969 graduation exercises Friday night. The Graduate School of Banking is one of the many schools, short courses, and conferences sponsored annually at the University of Wisconsin as education services for all citizens.

Attendance at the 1969 Graduate School of Banking enabled its students at Wisconsin's University not only to meet a large number of bankers from all over the country, but they also had the opportunity of hearing the school's distinguished lecturers, over 100 experts from all parts of the nation, who are recognized authorities in banking, economics, government, law and industrial, and agricultural and financial problems.

Michigan has a highly diversified skilled labor force, as shown by the fact that skilled labor in Michigan mans 365 different types of industry.

"Please Don't Hurt My Kids"

Dear Driver:

TODAY, MY DAUGHTER, who is six years old, started to school for the first time. Her brother was with her, but he's only nine himself, and he still looks pretty little to me. Their cocker spaniel, whose name is "Scott," sat on the front porch and whined his canine belief in the folly of education as they waved "goodbye" and started off to the halls of learning.

LAST NIGHT WE TALKED ABOUT SCHOOL — my daughter and I. She wondered what the teacher would be like . . . she hoped she could sit beside Mary (the little girl next door). She said her "letters" for me — just to be sure she knew them. Oh, we talked about a lot of things — tremendously vital, unimportant things. Then she tried on her plaid pinafore to show me . . . and then to bed.

SHE LOOKED SO HELPLESS — sound asleep, with "Princess Elizabeth" (that's her doll) cuddled in her right arm. You see, I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut, or her hand gets banged, I can fix it — but when she and Brother start to school, when they walk across the street, then they're in your hands.

THEY'RE NICE KIDS, both of them. They like to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoon. But I can't be with them all the time. I have to work to pay for their clothes and education. So please help me look out for them. Please drive slowly past the schools and intersections — and please remember that children do run from behind parked cars.

PLEASE, DON'T HURT MY KIDS!

—A Proud Daddy

Old car festival will generate excitement

The nineteenth annual Old Car Festival bursts into Greenfield Village in Dearborn, Michigan September 6 and 7--not with the roar of powerful engines, but with the purr of ancient motors; not with streams of firey exhaust, but with clouds of smoke and the noise of backfire. The Festival may not create the same kind of thrills as Sebring or Indianapolis, but it's quite a spectacle all the same, generating an excitement all its own.

From out of the past come 350 proud and polished ancestors of today's automobiles. With their bright paint and brass accessories glistening in the sunlight, they parade through the historic streets of Greenfield Village before competing for awards and prizes. The "younger" models, made from 1917 through 1925 compete on Saturday, September 6, while the real oldsters dating from the beginning through 1916 take part on Sunday.

First, they are judged for authenticity. The expert panel of field Judges swarms all over them, checking engines and accessories and looking at paint and upholstery before awarding ribbons according to the accuracy of their restoration. Blue ribbon winners are eligible for the Grand Championship judging later in the day.

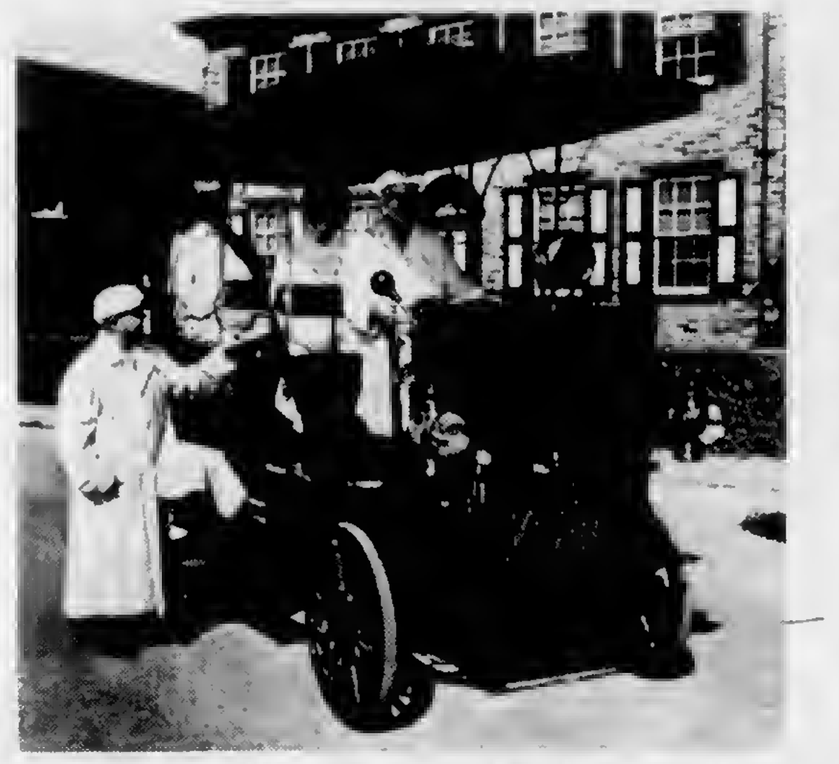
With their ribbons flying, the ancient autos line up three of four abreast on the track for a series of races. The object of the balloon race is to break every balloon on the course by running over them with the narrow tires and still be the first over the finish line. In another race, the last car over the finish line wins--no braking allowed. Other events include cranking contests, potato races and the shoe scrambles. In this last, the driver must go half way down the course, jump out of the car to find his own shoes and put them on before proceeding to the end.

A brightly colored 1929 REO circus caliope will be playing cheerfully throughout all of this activity from its place of honor in the center of the field. As a new acquisition of the Henry Ford Museum transportation collection, it will be displayed there along with three other newly acquired vehicles: a 1911 Harley-Davidson motorcycle, a 1906 Rapid Bus and a 1904 Ford Model F Touring car. In display cases behind the bleachers, spectators will be able to see representative pieces from the world's most comprehensive collection of antique automobile brass lamps, horns, parts and accessories, also recently acquired by the Museum.

On Sunday, the Village and Museum are paying tribute to GMC Truck and Coach Division of General Motors Corporation for its long history in the industry and its contributions to the development of commercial vehicles. The Museum's new 1906 Rapid Bus being displayed at the Festival was a product of the oldest ancestral branch of the company and points up the advances made in the field.

Recognized as the nation's largest antique car event, the Old Car Festival is also respected by many as the finest of its kind. Entrants come from all over the country and from Canada to participate.

The festivities begin each day at noon with the colorful parade from the Village entrance to the Activities Field. Judging and contests are from 12:30 to 5 p.m. The regular Village admission charge includes all the fun and excitement of the Festival.



Greenfield Village in Dearborn, Michigan has recently acquired this rare 1906 Rapid Bus. It is one of the antique automobiles featured in the Old Car Festival to be held at the Village September 6 and 7. More than 300 cars dating from the very beginning through 1925 from all over the country will compete for awards at this year's Festival with parades, contests and races.

I wish to thank each and everyone for the care and kindnesses they gave me while there. Also the many, many cards and messages I received from friends all over this great country we live in. I thank everyone.

Pull-Out File Stores Foods

Pull-out vertical files are grand for spice storage, condiments, packaged mixes and other goods that should be stored at the cooking center.

The files are constructed like drawers and look like drawers turned on their side. They can be mounted on roller guides set top and bottom or along the sides.

Inside, files are shelved, but shelves are lipped to prevent contents from sliding off when the file is in motion. The files can have a back or they can be open, depending on whether or not access is needed from both sides.

Food files can be built into base cabinets or over-counter cupboards and fitted into whatever space is available. The width of each vertical drawer depends on intended contents.

Built of vertical grain fir, pine or hemlock lumber, the food files can be finished to match other cabinetwork or to introduce an accent color.

Stow-Fence Does 2 Jobs

This is the time for garden planning. First order of business should be to organize and relocate garden equipment in an accessible spot: the garden.

Build a tool shed there and you'll not only save time and temper, but you'll also be able to move the car back into the garage.

For many back yards, a superb solution is the storage fence, a structure that looks like a fence but opens up to reveal storage compartments for everything from flower pots to the power mower.

Most zoning ordinances will permit construction of a storage fence on the property line, an ideal location since it's completely accessible but away from main outdoor living areas. And, on the property line, a storage unit also becomes a privacy screen, windbreak and traffic cop.

One storage fence, appropriately named the Stow-It-All, is designed on a three-foot module that adapts to virtually any situation. Construction is geared to the do-it-yourselfer and styling is classic.

Students need school homes

There are many people who still are thinking about and asking to do something useful to work towards a world of peace and understanding. Not everyone is young and free of responsibilities to join the Peace Corps, or do they have the training to work with minority groups in our own country. But there is a way in which many families can still participate in a world wide program towards peace.

Today Youth for Understanding, the teenage exchange program that stresses the family-living experience, needs homes for about 25 high school students from the Philippines for the coming school year. Every one of these young people has been carefully selected to spend a year in the United States, living with a family and attending school. These are excellent students who have been well educated and usually speak English with proficiency.

They are chosen because they have exhibited the ability to adjust well to new circumstances. Their attitude towards the U.S. is splendid, and each of them is at the same time a true representative of his own land. It is not unusual that the Filipino student will know much more about our country, historically and politically, than we know about theirs. These young people are the future leaders of their country.

As one host wrote last year their local newspaper: "We have just returned from the airport where we left Ben, our Philippine son, enroute for Manila. Our tears are dried now, but we still can't speak about him without the flow beginning again...We learned many things from Ben...We learned about his homeland, his customs, how they ate. We even ate 'Fil' food from a recipe his Mother sent us...Yes, our family circle has widened and now reaches to Manila. We wonder if we will ever see Ben again. We know our family will never be the same again because we had one Philippine boy live with us for nine months and he has taken a large part of our hearts with him to his homeland."

What the Youth for Understanding program means is that the Filipino student does not come as a guest; neither does the family offer its home as a "charitable contribution" to the program; rather, it is a mutual opportunity for which the student has applied and paid, while a United States family desires and accepts the responsibility of a new family member for the year. The family also recognizes that this will be a mutual exchange. The student is there to be a part of an American family, a part of the American way of life, and exposed to both the favorable and unfavorable aspects of everyday life here. The family is the student's family and includes him in all the normal activities of their living.

Families who are interested in becoming a host family for one of these Philippine students or who just want to find out more about the complete Youth for Understanding program should write to: Youth for Understanding, 2015 Washtenaw Avenue, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48103; or call: Ann Arbor, area code 313, NO 3-0551.

Pat's Reaction

Summer chores

I firmly believe that children should work around the house. Unfortunately my own children do not share this belief so we have had to come to a working arrangement about work this summer.

Frankly I don't like to do housework either. I'd much rather go sailing or swimming, so in order to keep us all sailing, swimming, clean and tidy last June we set up a chore chart.

Chores consisted of such duties as sweeping off the front porch, mowing the lawn, dumping the trash, cleaning the TV room, cleaning the living room, cleaning the bathroom; in fact, anything that it takes to keep a house clean. The theory was that I would limit myself to laundry and meals and the children would do the rest.

The trouble with this theory was that theories don't always work. This was not always the fault of the individuals, but it happened. Some children went away for one week. Some went for another week. Some had company. Some were lazy. Sometimes the superintendent didn't supervise. In fact, chore charts are easier to make up than to follow up.

For any extra jobs people got paid in hard cash. I realize that child experts teach that children should not get paid for household tasks. The children should work for the sake of the family unit.

These experts have no children for I have found that money motivates. Ask a child to wash the family car on a hot day and he's disinterested and exhausted. Offer to pay a child to wash the car on a hot day and he jumps into his bathing suit and has a ball slopping around in the soapy water and then hosing the car clean. The difference between the two attitudes is one dollar.

I try to be pretty fair at our house and I realize that some members of the family have had poor work attitudes because they simply did not like the tasks assigned. For instance Lee has been our trash collector for many months, but this summer he revolted. Lee asked to be reassigned to TV room detail. Since he spends hours in the TV room he can keep it neat and clean by working piecemeal during commercial breaks. That's really a good system since that's the way that the room gets messy, a little at a time. Lee never has a great horrible task, but he's always picking up.

I have been reassigned to trash detail. I don't like it either. Lee had a point.

Actually our summer work detail program has operated fairly successfully. We've kept a pretty clean house and we've all had fun in the sun.

Cathy has painted the kitchen and it looks magnificent.

Chris has kept up the yard.

Janet has made curtains.

The work program has done another good thing too for it's given the children a positive attitude toward going back to school.

Now they can hardly wait to get out of the door next Tuesday morning and go back to school work leaving the household chores to the household drudge.

That's me, McGee, till next June rolls around.

Chamber Chat

BY WALLY LODER
CHAMBER MANAGER

Charlevoix's crowned queen, Barb Smith (Miss Charlevoix) daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Smith, Boyne City Road, Charlevoix, made a fine showing at the National Coho Pageant down at Honor, Michigan, Thursday, August 28, and believe you me, from what I have heard, both she and Mrs. Smith did a fine good will mission. Barb was one of the top three chosen, and the final result was she was second runner-up. We all hope she is on her way.

I must refer to the 17th Annual Posen Potato Festival, over at Posen, Michigan, in the Rogers City area and advise I now have a complete program which indicates different dates than I referred to last week. This affair commences at 6 p.m. Friday, September 12. At 8 p.m. is the Posen Potato Festival Queen Pageant, selection and crowning of the 1969-70 queen in the Posen High School gym. Saturday, September 13, the program commences at 10 a.m. with 4H fair and exhibits, potato displays and a potato dish contest. 11 a.m. at the Chamber of Commerce hall all day a smorgasbord dinner and so on through the rest of the day and at 9 a.m. is the dance, music by Paul Dropczyk and his Polish band from Detroit.

Sunday, September 14 dinner at the chamber hall, including Polish Kielbasa. There will be tent entertainment, etc. The program is climaxed at dusk with a giant fireworks display and at 8 p.m. will be the queen's ball with the above mentioned Polish band.

I want to call to attention the Chamber of Commerce Color Cruise, a program for your pleasure and a fund raiser primarily for the Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the Beaver Island Boat Company to be held Sunday, October 12, aboard the MS Beaver Islander, which will depart from the boat company's city dock at 1 p.m. Donation will be $3 per person. Like before, gratas will be beverages, snack material, entertainment, plus, we hope very much color and a pleasant boat ride. We hope to have cooperation and the limited capacity on the boat, 200 passengers. In addition to your donations, there will be no further charges.

Good news for you toppers (those a little over average height) I understand there now is "Atomic Tops" up here in Charlevoix. For further information call Mrs. Harold Towsley, 547-4325 or Mrs. Richard Moore, 547-2112. I understand the club meets Tuesday evening at 7:30 at Mrs. Harold Toweley's home on Loeb School Road.

I got from a certain report received this week that Greater Saginaw, Michigan Chamber of Commerce resulted from a real energetic membership drive, they acquired 240 new members whose invested fees totaled over $15,000. How nice. It would be wonderful if we could have a reasonable increase in our small community. Accordingly, I am going to check and see what sort of English they used on the Little white ball.

It appears to me we are going to have to have some sort of drive to stimulate the flow of membership fee checks from those in our register who have not yet made their donation for 1969. Folks, these funds are needed. Thank you.

Schools built for handicapped

When it comes to building new schools--or other public buildings--what's good for the handicapped can be even better for the able-bodies.

Since 1967, all designs for new schools approved by the Michigan Department of Education must allow for use by persons in wheelchairs, with vision deficiencies or with other handicaps.

This means, for example, using ramps instead of stairs, having wide doors and accessible rest room facilities.

The rules apply to all buildings paid for in whole or in part by funds of the state or its political subdivisions--including school districts. The law was pushed through by the Governor's Commission on Employment of the Handicapped, a part of the Education Department.

Why are the facilities for the handicapped good for the able-bodied?

Well, for example, ramps make it easier for maintenance personnel to move machinery and equipment from one level to another. In schools, children are less likely to trip on a ramp than they are on stairs. Such teaching aids as motion picture projectors and the like can be wheeled on carts from one room to another instead of being lugged up and down stairs.

And that's just the start. Public facilities become accessible to all of the citizens of the community when needs of the handicapped are taken into account.

Rules implementing the law requiring public facilities to be accessible to all were written by the State Department of Administration, with help from a wide range of interested parties. Besides ramps, stairs, doors, sanitary facilities and drinking fountains, they cover such things as corridors, light fixtures, room identification, auditoriums and other special rooms, and provisions for enforcement.

Architects, engineers and contractors have generally been good about making new buildings meet the requirements, officials report.

Ironically, a major problem has been getting the word out to people--including the handicapped--that the buildings have been designed with them in mind. A national award for public building architecture that is both excellent and helpful to the handicapped has been instituted.

The first awards went to Boston's new city hall, an office building in Houston and the San Diego stadium.

Designs for public buildings, no matter what agency has approval power, must meet many criteria besides accessibility to the handicapped. But these standards are among the newest--and most important--that prevail, officials say.

Next time you're in a new school, why not look around to see how many elements you can find that were designed with the handicapped in mind?

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS, CHARLEVOIX COUNTY, MICHIGAN

Barney Milstein

Resolution adopted.

RESOLUTION

Moved by Supervisor Tompkins and supported by Supervisor Milstein that the following resolution be adopted:

Honorable Board of Supervisors
Charlevoix, Michigan
Members of the Board:

Your Resolutions committee respectfully requests that the Board pass the following resolution and send copies of this resolution to our Representatives in the United States Congress.

Whereas one of Charlevoix Counties largest industries is the tanning industry and this industry is now being systematically ruined in the following precise manner because our government does not consider it necessary to impose quotas on leather imports.

1. Shoe imports have grown from practically nothing in 1986 to more than 27% of domestic production for the year 1968.

2. Shoe imports are estimated to soar to 35% of domestic production for the year 1969.

3. Sixty-eight percent of baseball gloves used in this country are imported.

4. Thirty-five percent of handbags used in this country are imported.

5. Fifty percent of gloves used in this country are imported.

6. Tanneries in Pennsylvania and here in Michigan are laying off employees due to a 20% curtailment in production due to these imports.

7. Manufactures in the United States are compelled by our government to maintain a minimum scale of wage rates, foreign manufactures are not. Labor costs in the United States are from three to ten times higher than Labor costs abroad. On the one hand our government compells industry to maintain a high cost structure and on the other hand it does nothing to protect the industry against the competition of products made by low cost labor abroad.

8. The United States enforces controlled quotas for most industries but none for the leather industry.

Now therefore, because of these facts and because this industry pays in direct taxes over $18,000.00 to the City of Boyne City and over $40,000.00 to Charlevoix County annually and because this industry has hired in the past on a permanent basis one hundred and fifty people and, most importantly, because the United States Congressman should be representing the interests of the United States and not the interests of foreign countries, we, the Supervisors of Charlevoix County, Michigan respectfully request that our Congressman end this sacrifice of American jobs by imposing import quotas now.

Respectfully submitted,
Harry Tompkins, Barney Milstein.

Motion carried.

COUNTY MAPS

Moved by Supervisor Kassin and supported by Supervisor Taylor that the Chamber of Commerce be furnished with as many County maps as needed for their distribution. Motion carried.

SPECIAL SESSION

It was announced by Chairman Kujawski that the Board hold a Special Session on August 27th 1989 at 1:00 P.M. in the County Building, Charlevoix.

Tiger Tales

Baseball has had its ups and downs for Mickey Lolich, the Tiger southpaw who "thinks upside down."

Mickey had an up, up and away season in 1968. Owner of a 17-9 record during the regular season, he became baseball's shining star during the World Series when he won three games - beating Bob Gibson in the crucial seventh game with only two days rest -- to lead the Tigers to the World Championship.

He's that kind of a guy. Signed out of Lincoln High School in Portland, Ore., after an outstanding prep career, Lolich never had a winning season in the minor leagues where he toiled for four full seasons. Call up to the Tigers in 1963, the lefthander left a 27-44 minor league record behind him and made the grade in his first year with the Bengals.

Mickey has a losing record in his first year with Detroit, but in 1964 he was sensational. On the way to his 18-9 record he had a seven game winning streak, hurled six shutouts and led the club in appearances, complete games and strikeouts.

In 1965 Mickey continued his winnings ways. He was 15-9 with 226 strikeouts, passing the total of 201 attained by Jim Bunning in 1959 and 1960, and he was credited with three saves in relief work.

Expecting big things from the southpaw in 1966, Tiger fans were disappointed. Lolich struggled to a 14-14 year, his ERA hit 4.76 and his strikout total dropped to 173.

But Mickey bounced back in 1967 with brilliance. Entrenched in a disastrous 10-game losing streak for two months, Lolich went on active durty with the Michigan Air National Guard during the riots in Detroit and came back a new man. He promptly snapped out of his streak and started out on a six-game winning string to become the pitching hero of the stretch run. His clutch performances kept the Tigers in the thick of the race as he closed out the season with two shutouts, came in on the last day of the season without any rest in a heroic but vain effort to put the Tigers into a playoff. From July 23rd to the end he compiled a fantastic 1.24 ERA and 9-1 record; overall, Mickey was 14-13 with a 3.04 ERA.

Mickey was two years old when he lost control of a tricycle he was riding and crashed into a motorcycle that toppled over on his left collarbone and shoulder. The family medic prescribed maximum use of the left arm as theraphy, and as a result, Lolich, a natural righthander, developed into a lefthanded hurler.

IN THE OPEN

When the Conservation Department was renamed The Department of Natural Resources, a third era opened in the management of Michigan's outdoor wealth.

In the first era, law enforcement was the sole function of the department, which was dominated by politics. A second era, in the present century, saw the beginning of scientific research. P.A. Lovejoy and the land economic survey brought forth certain truths: that, in general, the cutover lands of the northern counties were not suitable for agriculture; that game and fish could not be stockpiled simply by establishing closed seasons, putting a stop to hunting and fishing; that fish and wildlife required food and shelter; that forest fires destroyed essential habitat.

The third era, under the administration of Director Ralph A. MacMullan, applies the science of ecology to all of the problems associated with Michigan's outdoor wealth. Pollution control is of vital importance not only to fish, but to humans. Realistic management of the deer herd is vital to the economy of northern counties. The indiscriminate use of pesticides is bad business all around, endangering various forms of life, from angleworms to legislators.

At every stage, the management of natural resources runs into obstacles. The first efforts to curtail forest fires was opposed by Michigan's then No. 1 industry -- lumbering -- since logging locomotives were held responsible for fires in the cutover country.

The same kind of opposition has always presented itself. Laws were enacted to protect the last nesting grounds of the passenger pigeon in the northwest section of the Lower Peninsula. But the pigeons represented a quick source of cash income for natives of the region so the laws were ignored and the passenger pigeon was exterminated.

Economic pressures are still encountered. A spokesman for the State Water Resources Commission says that with only $214 million in sight for pollution abatement nothing can be accomplished. Then from Washington comes a statement to the effect that DDT isn't a health menace and the fight against pollution might seem to be right where it was 20 or 30 years ago when heads of industry asked "What does the public want -- fish or payrolls?"

Meanwhile we're told that there has been no change in pesticide residue levels in Lake Michigan since 1965. John Carr of the Bureau of Commerical Fisheries has informed the Michigan Commission of Agriculture that examinations of coho and other species show that no matter when or where coho are tested, whether in the big lake or running up spawning streams, they still carry the same percentages of DDT.

Therefore the war goes on between civilized man and nature. It began with the axe and the plow. Pesticides are now classed as necessary tools for raising food crops. Their use is stoutly defended.

One of the notions that prevailed in the first stage of wildlife management was that if predatory species could be extinguished prey species would increase to a point of enormous abundance. Vast amounts of money were paid out in bounties, on timer wolves, English sparrows, woodchucks, hawks and owls. Coyotes are still bountied in Michigan against the best judgement of all wildlife biologists.

A report from the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests sums up the working of the bounty system as follows:

"The payment of bounties, as an incentive to take wolves and coyotes, is still in vogue in Ontario, although it has never proved to be an effective means of control. Bounties have been paid in Ontario since 1793, but there is no indication that wolves and coyotes are less numerous now than in former years."

Wonderful progress has been made in the past half century, although the process of trail and error continues. Man wars on his environment, and learns slowly and painfully.

It may be that stage four will include programs of public education, starting in grade school, so that in time citizens will be as intelligently concerned with the administration of outdoor wealth as they now are with matters of public health.

Coho Navy nets salmon

The first "boatload catch" of salmon was reported last week. Four fishermen and women made limit catches of the silvery Coho Salmon for a total of 20 fish taken on the one charter fishing boat.

The fishermen, whose total catch weighed more than 270 pounds, were aboard the charter boat "Irish Rover" skippered by Dean Dudley. The "Rover" is operating out of Ludington where salmon are really biting now.

The lucky fishermen happened to be three women and one man on this day. Miss Jiji Hyland and Mrs. Ben Ryland of Houston, Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brown Jr. of Troy, Michigan all wore smiles as they cruised back into Ludington harbor and friends called to them from the docks "Did you catch any?" Those same friends' faces showed amazement when what seemed to be an endless string of Salmon were lined up one the dock in front of them.

Latest information on Salmon fishing can be gained by calling the Coho Navy "hot line"-T-H-E-C-O-H-O (843-2646. Daily fishing and weather information for the Lake Michigan Fishery is available at that number.

New record for church

The Church of God has established a new record in total giving for outreach causes with $2,215,447 reported during 1968-69.

Dr. Paul Tanner, director of the fund-raising Division of World Service, said per capita giving of $15.09 also is a new record, being increased from $10 during the last seven years.

The church has adopted an all-time high budget of $2,275,000 for 1969-70.

"Our $2,215,447 income this past year," Dr. Tanner observed, "is approximately $1,000,000 more than our annual income 10 years ago. Compared with this, the previous million dollar increase required 20 years to accomplish."

Roadblock to progress

One of the most serious threats to both private and commercial construction is a measure now being considered in Congress. It is the so-called situs-picketing bill (H.R. 100), which would virtually "immunize" secondary boycott and picketing activities.

In a statement to a congressional subcommittee, the National Association of Manufacturers said the proposed legislation would intensify "the already excessive power of the construction unions by expanding the impact area of labor disputes, contrary to present labor policy."

A further breach in the barriers against secondary boycotts will add significantly to the imbalance of the bargaining table and can only increase industrial strife and inflationary wage settlements.

In 1968 the median wage increase for the construction industry was approximately three times that in all other industries. The proposed legislation would enable unions to create even more chaos in the construction industry.

Today commercial construction expansion is needed to create more jobs, and private building should be accelerated greatly to provide more homes. Passage of the situs-picketing bill would seriously hamper these worthy objectives.

Big thinkers don't need big cities

The growing disinclination of many executives to take posts in the big cities - preferring the saner pace and style of smaller city living - can be read two ways.

Seen negatively, the trend reflects an understandable aversion to the discord, blight, and general sense of crisis that prevails in most large American cities. It also is a sign that executives have caught on to the fact that a promotion to the home office in the big city, despite a pay boost and all the trappings of prestige, is not always a bargain. As the recent Bureau of Labor Statistics study showed, the cost of living varies so greatly in different parts of the country, and from city to city, that a transferring executive often needs a hefty raise just to break even.

Seen positively, it's gratifying that the big-city mecca concept may be losing its hold. America is a vast land. There is no need for its people to crowd into a few urban centers. With modern communications and computer hookups, there should be even less reason for decision-making executives to congregate in such centers.

This isn't to say that the New York or Chicago or San Francisco business styles won't be dominant for quite a while. But there's also something to be said for their being leavened by the thinking of men from such worthwhile though more remote places like Grand Rapids and Madison, and the small but convenient towns like Charlevoix, which ring of peaceful living.

Questions of the heart

In the face of all that has been said about the danger of heart attacks, many people lean on the comforting notion that it is going to happen to someone else rather than to them.

This reflects a common human attitude. Robert Louis Stevenson alludes to a variant of it in his essay, "Aes Triplex," in which he notes that people may live on the side of a volcano without feeling excessively insecure.

Yet the volcano may erupt; a heart attack may strike. When such things happen, the fellow who thought it couldn't happen to him may find otherwise.

So it is useful to take precautions--to move away from the volcano's slope; to do, or stop doing, things that make heart trouble more likely.

***

THIS BRINGS US to a list of 15 questions drawn up by two British doctors, H. Erick Wright and G. Pincherle, as reported by the Cooperative News Service. The doctors maintain that if you answer yes to three or more of these questions you run the risk of a heart attack.

Do you, they ask:

Work 60 hours a week?

Drive more than 20,000 miles a year?

Take less than three weeks' vacation?

Fail to delegate tasks to others?

Get steamed up?

***

SMOKE 20 cigarets a day?

Take no exercise?

Weigh more than 14 pounds over the limit?

Feel tired and exhausted?

Sleep badly?

Neglect your wife and family?

Plunge straight into meetings and office work after overseas travel?

Take more than four drinks a day?

Have a high cholesterol count and ascending blood pressure?

Have no interest in outside work?

There they are--15 questions. If the two British doctors are right, how they are answered is of great individual importance to each of us.

Viewpoint!

Worship... or festival?

Many denominations whose churches used to be a primary center of town or village social life appear to be resorting to desperate measures to re-recover this sense of community. In London, for instance, the Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral leaped off the pinnacle of his temple and descended by parachute in an attempt to relate to the young people.

In San Francisco's Grace Cathedral four months later, a capacity crowd of 3,000 attended what had been advertised as a "sensorium." The occasion featured a mixture of the cathedral organ and earsplitting electric guitars, punctuated with recorded wolf howls and bird shrieks.

Steriopticon slides illuminated the walls and ceiling of the cathedral with an endless variety of sights, running from dancing flames to a herd of buffalo in the north transept-all of this in the murky gloom of darkened cathedral filled with the aroma of incense and marijuana. When the lights were turned on at the conclusion of this spectacular event, Cathedral Dean Julian Bartlett spied one of the projectionists standing on the high altar smoking a cigar. The dean leaped up and engaged the offender in a brief but strenuous wrestling motch before the crowd at altar-side.

Producers of this startling two-hour phantasmagoria designated it as a form of Christian worship. There were a few on hand, however, who found it more like a witches' sabbath or a Druid nature festival.

Poverty is relative term

Poverty is a relative term. What one person calls poverty, another would consider abundance. U.S. Representative Olin E. Teague of Texas calls attention to some interesting figures. A survey of one of the poorest regions of the U.S., where eight out of ten families live on less than $3,000 a year, showed that 37 percent owned washing machines, 48 percent owned cars and 52 percent had television sets.

Representative Teague points out that a major portion of the so-called poverty-stricken class of America enjoys fruits of affluence which the middle classes of Europe cannot afford-not to mention the rest of the world.

Teague believes: The core of the poverty problem is psychological, not physical. We should be fighting human attitudes that cause poverty. We should replace the ethics of slavery, the brazen demands that somebody do something and the slogans that the government owes it to us with the ethics of self reliance.

Money alone will not teach people that a balanced diet is more important than a shiny new car.

His remarks are well taken. They harken back to the fate of the "poverty-stricken" Indian tribes of long ago who sank into oblivion, not from poverty, but from the misuse of the tools and luxuries of the white man.

Women

BY JOHN REDDY

I was watching Rep. Shirley Chisholm the other night on a talk show. The nation's first Negro congresswoman was delightfully charming in her condemnation of the congressional seniority system and male disregard for the abilities of women.

It gave me a renewed appreciation of the unfairness of male prejudice and of the job a woman like Bette Finegan is trying to do as chairman of the Michigan Women's Commission.

It also reminded me of a wild breakfast conversation I had with my spouse recently.

"Young people have the right idea," she said about the Unisex fad. She was commenting on a recent survey which purported to prove that women's walks are becoming more masculine while men's walks are becoming more feminine.

"They don't care whether a woman's walk is feminine or that a man may seem gentle. It only bothers the older men who seem to have a perverted idea of what being masculine means."

Well, I confess an attack of instant frustration. Was I too old? Or, as I suspect, was I angered at the reflection of my prejudice?

"I suppose your definition of masculinity would include everything that caters to a woman's ego," I said, my defense mechanisms coming on strong.

Without disruption of eye movement dictated by world events in the morning paper, she said wryly, "I don't understand a thing you said."

She added, "It seems to me if a man worries about his masculinity in terms of the class definition of masculinity then he is more concerned with that than identification of his own ego. And Unisex gives people a chance to be identified as individuals without regard to sex."

I wanted to retort with "I don't understand a thing you're saying." But I didn't. I no longer was frustrated because my feeling of intimidation was growing. So I drank up my coffee and headed for the security of a male-dominated (really:) world.

Perhaps the real revolution today is one involving images and fetishes. Maybe that's why the Now Generation is so disturbing to some. It's one thing to challenge the imagery of impersonal institutions. It's quite another to assault dearly cherished personal images--I think?

Slopped-up kid gives hope

President Nixon and my 13-year-old daughter have unknowingly combined to give me hope for a lazy future.

First, Nixon announced his new welfare plan which would guarantee a family of four (that's us) an annual income of $3,920.

Second, daughter Chrissie explained to me why she wasn't going to the Little League game that evening. "I don't want to get all slopped up," she said.

To me, "all slopped up" has always meant getting drunk. But I knew this couldn't be the case with Chrissie. She is a budding WCTU member who spends family vacations counting my drinks and rolling her eyes in disgust as the total mounts.

A few questions cleared things up. Chrissie's problem was that she looked nice. She had on a dress, of all things, her hair was combed out of her mouth, and there were no toes sticking out of her shoes.

"I can't go to the ballgame looking like this," Chrissie said, "and I'm too tired to change into something ragged and dirty."

Thus continues the education of a stupid father.

But gee, I thought, if that kid wants to look lousy, there's no need to buy her new clothes. Also, her little brother has never had any interest in dressing up. Eddie has worn the same Detroit Tiger T-shirt for 93 consecutive days. And now that double-breasted suits and baggy pants are coming back, the next suit I buy will be for my investiture as president-emeritus of the local Senior Citizens club.

If I could somehow convince my wife it is fashionable to be all slopped up, maybe we could get by on $3,920 a year. Of course, we'd have to move into a tent, sell the car, and quit eating so often (once every 2 days should be about right). But a man must be prepared to make sacrifices if he wants to succeed in the dog-eat-man world.

A lot of people can't see much success in doing nothing for $75 a week. In fact, no matter what Barry Goldwater tells you, most of the people on welfare wish to heck they could find a job. But to each his own. Ever since I got my first paper route at the age of 11, my ambition in life has been to retire. I hate to work and love to sit and read. It's that simple.

I probably would have sat down for good by now except I temporarily lost my mind and got married and had kids. This set my retirement back several years, you can wager your bippy on that. I was, in fact, almost reconciled to changing typewriter ribbons until I was 65, just like most folks.

But Nixon's humanitarianism plus slopped up kids have given me the fresh courage needed to lift my goal. Maybe I can yet become the first 44-year-old man in my block to write fan letters to Rita Bell, TV hostess for the morning movie.

If nothing else, I would learn something from loving a little girl who doesn't wear a pretty dress because her dad can't afford to buy her one.

That might teach me a lesson.

Onward and Upward.

ON THE 'FLIP' SIDE

Because of today's record high interest rates...which are beginning to hit most of us on our sensitive pocketbook nerve...we think the following may be of interest to our Flip Side readers.

Why are interest rates so high? Who pushed them up there? What's the prime rate and what has it got to do with your budget?

The answers all have to do with inflation.

Simply put, whenever the supply of money grows faster than the supply of available goods, prices go up. That's what's always happened everywhere. That's what's been happening in this country for the past few years--the money supply has grown faster than we have been able to produce goods and services, despite galloping economic growth.

And the money supply has increased for one reason: Uncle Sam has been spending more money than he takes in and the Federal Reserve, our central bank, in effect printed the money needed to cover the deficit in 1967 and 1968. The result was bound to be the higher prices that we've all been experiencing. What makes the situation worse is that when prices are rising, people borrow more and more money.

Now the Government and the Federal Reserve are both taking action to brake inflation. As you might guess, the way to do this is to stop printing money so fast. Uncle Sam is trying not to spend more than he receives in taxes. At the same time, the Federal Reserve is slowing the growth of our money supply by taking money out of the system, making it extremely difficult for the banks to get money to lend. The banks are caught between the Federal Reserve and their customers.

The fact is, banks are simply intermediaries, getting money from one group of people and lending it to other groups. When a bank has to pay more for the money it gathers, it obviously has to charge more for the money it lends. And lately, the sources that the banks get their money from have been charging higher and higher rates.

What's more, if the banks held their rates below other rates in the market, their supply of credit would be quickly exhausted. These are the reasons why there have been increases in the prime rate--the interest rate that banks charge corporate customers who have the best credit ratings. It is only one of the thermometers that measures the heat in the money market. It reflects the action taken by the Federal Reserve to make money more expensive--the idea being that the more it costs to borrow, the less borrowing will be done. Eventually, business activity will level off and price increases will slow down to a walk. When that happens, interest rates should also come down.

From the Tuscola County Advertiser comes an opinion which starts with the question, "Don't producers count?"

There is no need for studies or investigations to explain why taxpayers are on the edge of revolt. A few paragraphs from an editorial in the Oceanside, California, Blade-Tribune-an editorial that recently was reprinted in the Congressional Record-tell the story. The Tribune's editorial ire was aroused by a proposal of the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to give cash to the needy rather than to provide necessities on the theory that this would "preserve the dignity and freedom of choice," of the poor.

Says the Tribune, "What about the dignity and freedom of the hard-working industrious Americans who are working their fannies off to pay their taxes so the government can give it away? Don't we count anymore in America? Or do you have to be from a broken home or a lazy home or a I-don't give-a-damn home to count?" The taxpayers' revolt is, in reality, a revolt of the producers against the demands of the nonproducers. The smart politican knows which side his bread is buttered on. He should also know who provides the butter.

ONE MAN'S PHILOSOPHY

"I have never faltered or failed to present the cause or plead the case of mine workers of this country..., I have pleaded your case...not in quavering tones of a mendicant asking alms, but in the thundering voice of the captain of a mighty host, demanding the rights to which free men are entitled."

-John L. Lewis

Out of the past

2 years ago

The Charlevoix State Savings Bank began offering 5 percent interest on short-term savings deposits on September 4, first in northern Michigan.

Charlevoix school did not open as usual on September 4. The school board and teachers had not reached an agreement on a contract for wages. Approximately 1,500 students had an extra week of summer vacation. As of that date, the teachers and the board were some $30,000 and $40,000 apart on salaries. Both sides hoped for the fact finder, William Bigham, to support their side. The teachers wanted him to find that there were areas in which the budget could be trimmed to allow for more in salaries. The Board hoped that he would support their claim that the budget could not be tightened any more. At the signing of a two-year contract on Wednesday, September 11, the teachers' salaries were increased in addition to having their hospital insurance paid for. In closing, the fact finder recommended that the teachers and board meet every month.

The Weathervane started court action against Jack Begrow to stop the building of a condominium of six units, next to them on the Pine River Channel. The building by Begrow was to be 1½ stories high, with 20ft. back yards and 6ft. front yards, all within city zoning requirements. The Weathervane then began to object to the building on the ground that pilings to be driven into the shoreline would weaken the foundation of the Weathervane. Acculations went back and forth for several weeks.

Medusa brought forth new air pollution figures as to the amount of dust released by the plant. They had filed figures stating a maximum of 5,600 pounds per-day during maximum operation. The new figures were that 4,600 pounds of dust per-day during peak operation. Both figures were well within Charlevoix Township air quality control requirements.

Tony Kleiber caught a seven pound coho salmon just below the dam in Stover Creek. There were, at the time, scattered reports of catches in Lake Charlevoix. Seen any coho lately?

Charlevoix County notched its fourth traffic fatality of the year last week when Jane Marie Black, 18, of Birmingham, a passenger in the above car, was killed and the driver, Cecelia Frances Orr of Portage, injured. The car, a Sprite borrowed from a friend, Rita Sodt of Ann Arbor, went out of control and off the road and turned over. According to the County Sheriff's Department, the driver threw a cigarette from the car, taking her eyes off the road momentarily, resulting in the accident.

Miss Smith takes 3rd

Miss Barbara Smith, Charlevoix's Venetian Queen, Thursday night was named second runner-up in the third annual National Coho Queen contest, held in Honor, Michigan.

The local girl competed against five other young ladies for the title.

Miss Smith was honored at a banquet prior to the contest, was given a tour of the Honor area, and appeared in the Coho Festival parade Saturday.

Library Notes

New Fall reading on the Library shelves include:

"The Nuptials," a novel by John Haase, the well-known author of "Petulia." The setting is Beverly Hills where opulence knows no limit and excess is an accepted way of life. Amidst the champagne, the pagodas and the kidney-shaped swimming pools, a wedding ceremony is about to take place that will be unrivaled in scale and grandeur since the days of the Casesars. It is hilarious and full of ridiculous escapades.

Two novels by Michel Butor. "Passing Time" and "A Change of Heart". Butor is one of the most prominent authors of France's literary avant-garde. He has been compared to Proust, Gide, and Joyce in technical mastery and innovation. In these two novels--the ones that first brought him to the attention of the American public--deals with both the detective novel and the love story.

"The Age of the Pussyfoot", by Frederick Pohl, deals with a man who has been burned to death, but not permanently, because the medical science of six centuries had learned how to freeze a man at the instant of dying and hold him in a slow, dreamless calm, then bring him back to life with all his mortal wounds healed. Frederick Pohl is a brilliant satirist. His novels of the science fiction include many classics. He is, at present, editor of Galaxy Magazine.

"Many Roads to Moscow" by Leonard Cooper gives the reader a brilliant analysis of the three major invasions which have been launched against Russia in the last two and a half centuries. The book is an epic account of human struggle and military strategy. Such men as Peter the Great, Ney and Murat, and Hitler's commanders, and historic scenes like the defeat at Pultava, the burning of Moscow, and the crossing of the Beresina--are all brought memorably to life in this exciting contribution to comparative military history.

"The Greatest Game of All" by Jack Nicklaus--the longest driver in the world--reveals in this book his exceptional understanding of each phase of the game of golf from the time when he first became interested in the game at the age of ten, until he battles the outstanding stars of the day in big championships.

"The Peabody Influence", by Edwin P. Hoyt, tells how a great New England family helped huild American. Few American families have had more influence on the development of a nation that the Peabody's of Massachusetts. Teachers, architects, writers and politicians, the traditions of the Peabody family have continued to the 20th century. This is the saga of their contributions.

ANCHORS AWAY

MATCH BOAT TO ITS USE

So you are thinking of buying your first boat.

Start by accepting this fact —there is no pat formula for deciding what boat is best for a particular use. An obvious factor is knowing the number of people who will ride in it, as is the water on which it will be used.

A 14-foot runabout which might be used for skiing on a calm inland lake would hardly be best for big, open water areas, reports the Johnson Motors News Bureau.

Because of the tremendous interest in boating, the selection of types is almost endless. Mass production has, in turn, reduced costs to fit the average family budget, and financing a boating rig is as simple as financing an automobile.

In deciding on size, the interior should be large enough to accommodate not only your family but also all the gear you will take along. A shorter, lighter boat usually is easier to trailer behind a car, to launch and to retrieve.

As to hull styles, there is no general agreement. Deep V's, catamaran, rounded lapstrake and cathedral all have their advantages. For this reason, be sure to secure counsel from a qualified marine dealer before buying.

Fiberglass and aluminum lead in sales, but many boatmen still prefer the beauty and craftsmanship of wood hulls.

The power of the outboard engine is somewhat dictated by the size of the boat, but neither over-powering nor underpowering is safe or economical.

In choosing between an outboard and an inboard-outboard, consider the advantages of both. Most popular outboard engines are two-cycle and thus offer higher thrust, lower weight, fewer moving parts, and easier handling.

In addition to the boat itself, a way of transporting it is necessary. Be sure to select a trailer large enough to haul all the extra gear which will be needed. Buy one with standard sized tires and carry a spare. Unless you have a 10-foot aluminum skiff, forget about bumper hitches and have a frame hitch installed.

Some accessories are mandatory, such as fire extinguishers, anchors and buoyant cushions, while others are optional. Your marine dealer can be very helpful here, and also will counsel you on boat handling and rules of the water.

Bagpipe is his bag

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) – A jazz musician whose bag is the bagpipe was a featured performer at the Black Arts Festival at the Pennsylvania State University.

Rufus Harley first wanted to learn to play the bagpipes after watching the Black Watch play at the funeral of President John F. Kennedy.

"I was so touched I knew I wanted to play them," he said.

"First I studied and found out the bagpipes actually began in Africa, in Egypt, a long time before the Scots added some extra pipes and started playing.

"So I'm actually playing something that has identity with my people."

Harley bought his first set of bagpipes from a pawnbroker for $120.

His long time music teacher Dennis Sandoley taught Harley the basic finger positions but he is self-schooled in the finer points.

Docking a big boat can be quite tricky but every boating enthusiast turns his family into a well trained crew. Shown is one of the crew ready to man the ropes.

NEW AIRPORT TO SERVE BOYNE COUNTRY

The first leg of a new, 7,000-foot paved jet airport to service the year-'round resort of Boyne Highlands, Harbor Springs, Michigan is complete, it was recently announced.

"In line with Boyne Country general policy, the new airport is privately financed strictly with Boyne Country capital without government funds or subsidy," said Boyne Country President Everett Kircher. Boyne Country includes the year-'round northwestern Michigan prime resorts of Boyne Mountain, Boyne Highlands, Thunder Mountain, and Walloon Hills, long-recognized as one of Mid-America's major skiing, golf and convention meccas.

Already built is the first phase 4,500-foot long, 150-foot-wide North-South direction, gravel runway adjacent to the Boyne Highlands Inn. Power lines have been removed and the first servicing will be this Fall.

While the Boyne Highlands airport will be officially open next Spring, pilots have already made landings. However, pilots are not advised to use the airport yet, since landing conditions are extremely hazardous.

The total second phase will be complete in 1973, at which time the new airport will be available to any size jet whatever the season.

Work is also underway to pave the 8-year-old, 4600-foot lighted air strip at Boyne Mountain as part of Boyne Country's total expansion and both airports will be open to attract flying conventioneers, skiers, golfers and summer resorters alike.

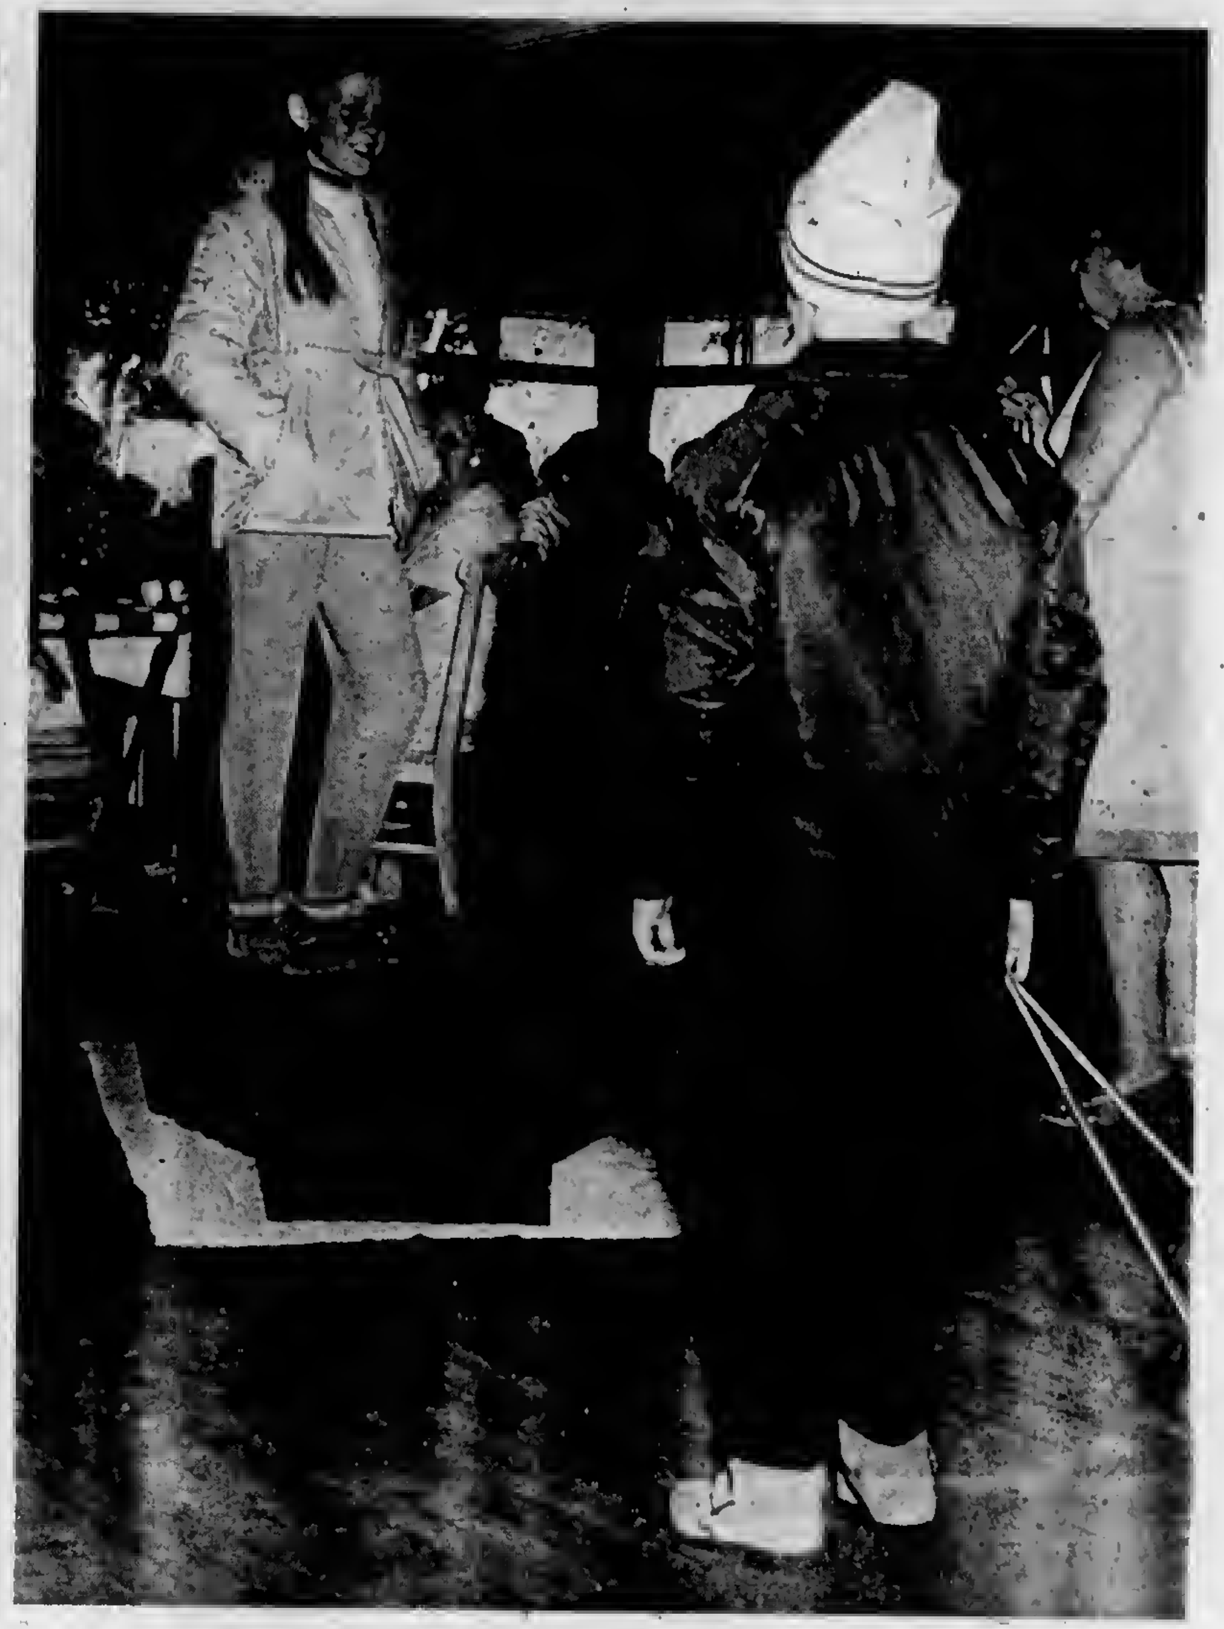
FINAL LUNCHEON - FASHION SHOW AT CONWAY

A dark brown leather coat with a moss green houndstooth slack and jacket outfit was modeled by Betty Jo Murdock from Nawrot Pendleton. The belled slacks and bracelet length sleeves on the sweater, along with the scoop neckline on the jacket added the mod affect of her outfit.



With the skiing season just around the corner, Linda Cunningham and Paul Stroup modeled the appropriate attire from the Circus Shop. Linda models a light blue ski pants and coat ensemble, designed in the familiar fashion for warmth. Paul's outfit is a navy jacket and ski pants, worn with a sky blue ski hat. Both outfits were completed with beige after ski boots.

Again the Arvilla twins were on hand to model fashions from Country Casuals. Their double breasted matching coats of green and blue were worn over different outfits to show the coats versatility. Erin on the dias wore a blue and white check mini shirtwaist, that was accented by a long V-shaped collar. Ellen modeled a blue and gold striped pullover top with a dark green skirt.

At home entertaining for the fall and winter months again seem to be jumpsuits. Gail Stroup models this bright orange jumpsuit and jacket with a blouse that really is a long sleeve night shirt. The jabot tie falling down the front adds color and accent to her outfit, from the Boudoir.

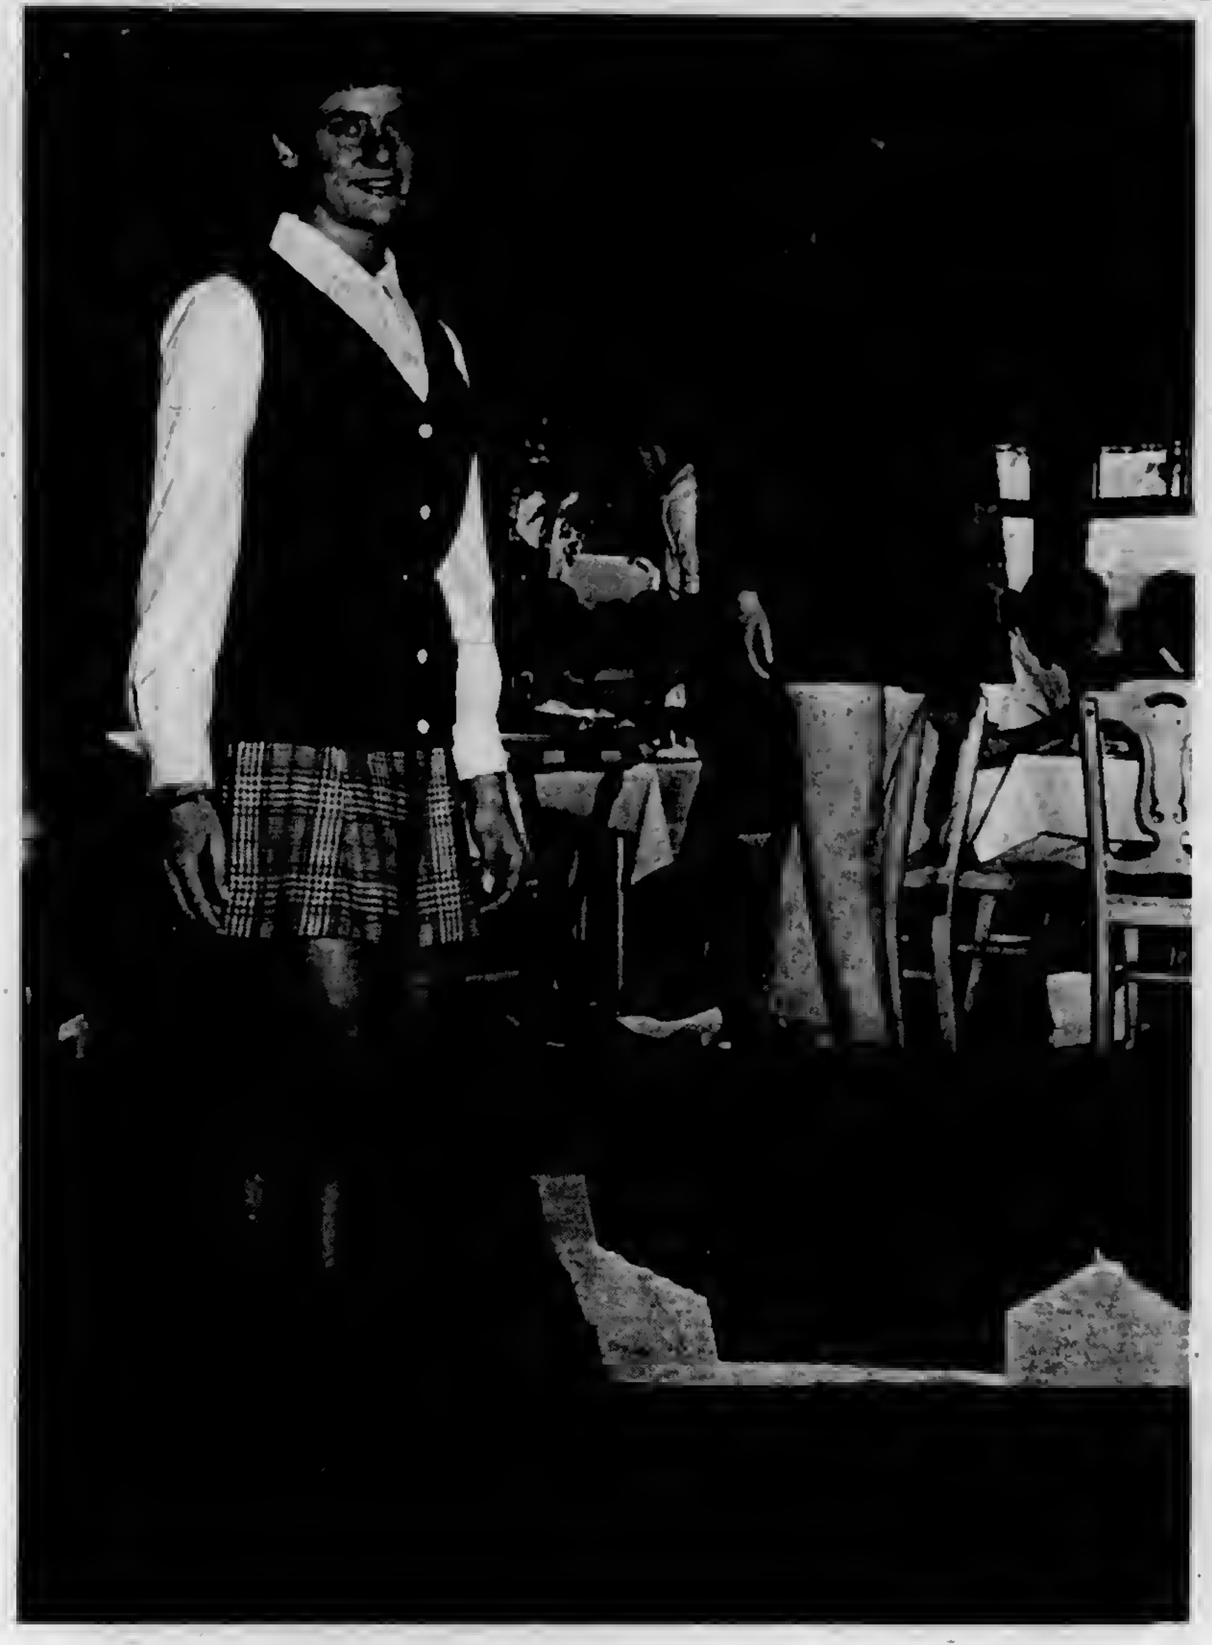
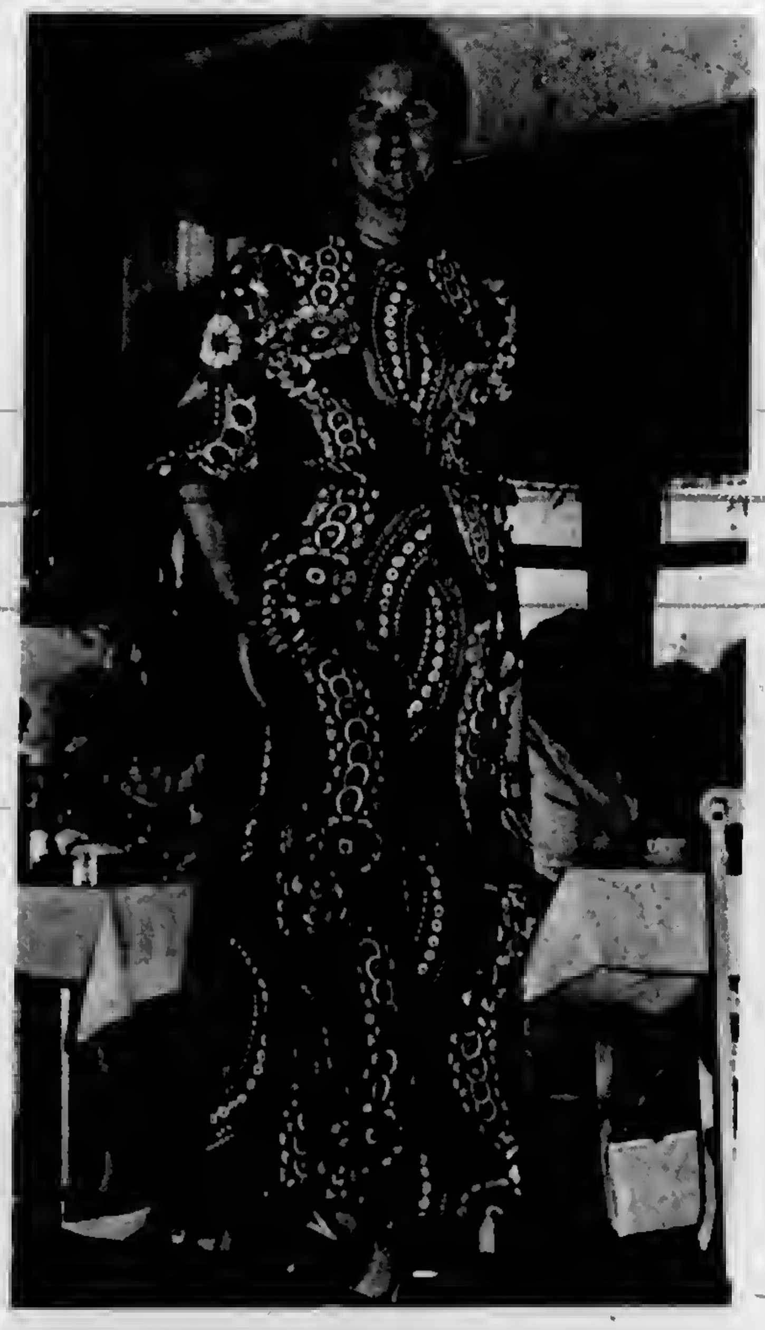
FASHIONS FROM LAST FASHION SHOW AT CONWAY



Two back to school outfits were modeled by Erin and Ellen Arvilla from Country Casuals. Ellen on the dias wore a comfortable pair of light blue slacks topped off by a burnt brown double breasted coat. Her creame and camel beret and varsity scarf complimented the outfit. Erin modeled a flared mini skirt of gold and white plaid. A creame colored blouse with deep lapels and a sleeveless sweater completed her outfit.

Betty Jo Murdock modeled a co-ordinated coat and dress at the last fashion show at this Ole House from Nawrot Pendleton. Added features on the coat were the large round collar and patch pockets. The sleeveless A-line dress of red and grey plaid was accented by a grey scarf.

Becky Conklin modeling for Gocha's wore the new trend in coats; synthetic furs. The coat was completed by a leather belt and trim around the pockets.



A perfect at home hostess gown was modeled by Gail Stroup from the Boudoir. The outfit is fashioned of machine washable cotton. The black and brown paisley design is accented by a turned collar and 3/4 length sleeves.

There are as many kinds of boats as there are boat lovers. Here are three examples. Shortly all small boats will have to be stored for the winter when the lakes freeze.

Eleven new teachers reported to Charlevoix schools Monday. Included are, back row, Miss Janis Peckham, fourth grade; Norman Cook, industrial arts; Howard Hoot, art; William Mitchinski, social studies; Al Shindorf, math; and Mrs. Phyllis Osterman, fifth grade. Bottom row, Mrs. Marjorie Spence, fourth grade; Mrs. Rosalee Donnelly, elementary vocal music; Mrs. Fran Tollas, middle school vocal music; Mrs. Pat Schultz, third grade; and Miss Jeanie Keeney, third grade.

Elementary opens Mon. ...if work is completed

Some Charlevoix School District pupils started school this week, but for others the next few days will be an extended vacation.

At its regular meeting Monday, the School Board decided not to open the new elementary school "a little at a time", but hold off until Monday, in hopes that the entire school will be ready for occupancy.

It was previously announced that first grade students would report to class today, kindergarteners tomorrow, and other elementary students by Monday.

After considerable discussion, it was moved to delay all elementary classes until work is completed. "We hope we'll be able to start Monday," said Superintendent Rex Milligan.

The delay stems from uncompleted cabinetry work in the lavatories. Carpet in hallways must also be installed.

Fifth through twelfth grades reported to school as scheduled yesterday.

High school principal Van Smith and middle school head Raymond Carr announced the need of one additional social studies teacher to carry out the planned program this school year.

Alternatives mentioned were dropping the majority of the physical education program, or Smith and Carr taking classroom assignments in addition to their administrative duties.

"This situation is caused because we are operating in the high school with one and one-half less teachers than last year," Smith stated.

Carr added that his teacher assignments were based on "17 regular teachers, but two of them, in social studies, have to teach physical education under the present schedule."

After noting that money for an additional teacher was not in the budget, Superintendent Milligan stated that four of the new teachers hired this year are first year teachers, leaving extra funds, and when added to monies from the contingency fund, should be sufficient for one more teacher.

Smith explained that the teacher, if hired, would teach two high school courses and three middle school classes.

Board member Jerrald Redeker moved to hire the additional teacher, and the motion was approved unanimously by the body.

Smith also reported on the student handbook which was adopted by the Board last year. With Board approval, regulations in the book will be enforced by the administration. The high school principal noted that sections relating to student dances and club activities were left in the book, even though, due to the reduced millage, there are fewer class sponsors to chaperone dances and activities. "We may be able to get some help from the P.T.A.," Smith said.

Smith also asked that all parents of high school students read the handbook when it is distributed this week, so they will be familiar with what is expected of their children while in school.

Board president Jack Rader heard a grievance from the Charlevoix Education Association concerning failure to post open positions in the system, "so local teachers have opportunity to apply for them."

The complaint centered around a position in the middle school library, and Rader commented that an understanding should be reached between the Board, administration and teachers as to what constitutes a new position or opening.

C.A. Odmark, director of music in the school system, asked that his job as summer band director be included in his contract.

The Board approved the inclusion, as the program took in over $1,000 this year and came within $120 of breaking even.

The Board also directed principals Carr and Glenn Snider to establish rules concerning youngsters leaving the school grounds when classes are in session.

No youngsters attending the elementary school will be allowed to leave school without parental permission to cross Petoskey Avenue.

At the middle school, pupils will not be allowed to eat lunch downtown.

The driveway at the new school was discussed briefly. According to the Board, it may be necssary to widen the drive in specific areas. Board member Dale Boss suggested that gates be installed to close the drive at night.

Boaters plan coho search this Sunday

A coho regatta to locate the big, silvery game fish in Charlevoix waters is being organized by chairman Ralph Hess, assisted by Gordon Neff and Myrl Keller.

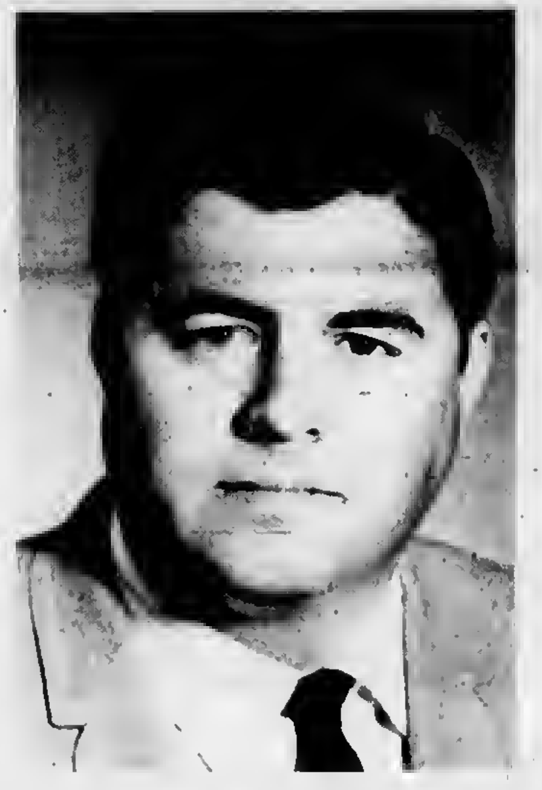
Skippers with boats capable of plying the waters of Lake Michigan are asked to meet at the Charlevoix harbor master's office between 8:30 and 9:30 a.m. Sunday for their assignments.

Hess hopes to have several fleets of from six to eight boats each to cover specified areas of the lake off Charlevoix. At least one boat in each fleet should have a radio aboard to keep in touch with the flagship.

The remainder of the regatta will be notified as soon as one of the boats comes across a school of coho.

Keller, manager of the Great Lakes Fisheries Station, reports that the water temperature off Charlevoix is still a little too warm for coho, but that the situation can change rapidly with a shift in the wind.

Intermediate District names J.W. Marshall



Jim Marshall... from full-time insurance sales to education.

The Intermediate School District for Charlevoix and Emmet Counties has announced the appointment of James W. Marshall as Consultant for Emotionally Disturbed Children. Marshall will be working through the offices of the Department of Special Education for the district.

Prior to coming to Charlevoix in July of 1968 Marshall was principal of Children's Village School, an institution for delinquent, neglected and emotionally disturbed children for Oakland County. Marshall was formerly principal of the Children's Psychiatric Hospital School at the University of Michigan and before that Director of the Reading Clinic at the children's hospital.

He has lectured in universities, for teachers groups and often appropriate interest groups on juvenile delinquency and emotionally disturbed children.

Marshall taught pre-delinquent and emotionally disturbed children at Plymouth High School from 1958 to 1964 after leaving his position as Assistant Superintendent & Counselor of the Brighton Correction Camp for the Michigan Department of Corrections.

Marshall has a B.S. in Education and a Masters Degree in Education-Counseling & Guidance. Since moving to Charlevoix he has been affiliated with the Charlevoix Agency and will still maintain that affiliation, he advises.

Marshall is married; has four children and resides on Elm Street in Charlevoix.

City asks truck bids

Charlevoix City Council last Tuesday night moved to purchase two new trucks for use by the street department.

Put out for bids were a 25,000 gvw dump truck and a three-quarter ton truck.

Council also will ask for bids on a four-door car for police department use.

In other action, the council:

--Agreed to extend sewers 585 feet west on Carpenter street from State street and 175 feet east on Cherry street, from a point 290 feet east of Meech street, where it will connect with the present sewer. Cost of the two extensions will be paid by the property owners.

--Accepted bids for fleet, workmen's

F.W. Cohrs named asst. plant manager

Medusa Portland Cement Company today announced the appointment of Fred W. Cohrs as assistant plant manager at the Charlevoix Plant. He was formerly director of process and quality control in the Cleveland Office. In November, Cohrs will assume the duties of plant manager after the retirement of Henry J. Krebs.

Cohrs joined Medusa in 1968 and for the past year he has had overall responsibility for maintaining quality control of all company products. He has been in the cement industry for 13 years and has held a variety of positions in the United States and Canada.

He was born in Germany and attended schools there, immigrating to Canada in 1956. In 1964 he moved to the United States and became a citizen in August of this year as soon as he completed the five year residency requirement.

He and his wife, Peggy, and their three sons will live in Charlevoix.

Salary increases set at special Board meet

Charlevoix's School Board approved salary increases of approximately eight percent to all non-teaching personnel, including members of the administration, at a special meeting last Tuesday night.

After approving the hikes, the Board announced that in the future all increases would be made on the basis of merit and performance.

The Board also: --approved the hiring of a fourth grade teacher, Miss Janis Peckham of Lake City. She is a graduate of Central Michigan University and has taught one year each at McBain and Lake City. She will take over a fourth grade class formerly taught by Barry Anderson who will now have a fifth grade class.

--Reviewed and accepted the financial report, revealing that the fiscal year had ended with a balance of $13,926 on an accrual basis rather than the anticipated deficit of $20,000.

Assets including cash on hand, accounts receivable from various sources, taxes receivable, inventory and prepaid expenditures totaled $106,662 while liabilities and fund balances amounted to $92,735.98 leaving a balance on hand.

The 1959 debt retirement fund has a total of $77,293.68 on hand; the 1968 debt retirement fund, $87,206.54; the Ironton school debt retirement fund, $13,214.15. These funds are invested with the hope that they will draw enough interest so additional taxes will not have to be levied to retire the bonds as they come due; Building and site fund (land) $3,127.69..revenue from the .75 mill voted to purchase the site of the new K-4 building; Building and site fund (building $671,870.24...monies being used to finance the construction of the K-4 building; School operated public library fund, $14,960.51 which must last through 1969; school lunch program, $77.89.

The possibility of collecting taxes on a half-year basis, so that a taxpayer could pay his taxes in two installments instead of one large one was discussed.

Chief Warrant Officer Frank Risley, right, receives retirement plaque from Lt. Len Garrett, skipper of Coast Guard Cutter Sundew, during ceremonies Friday. Risley retired following 20 years of duty both stateside and in Japan. He will reside permanently in the Charlevoix area.

New Northside elementary school building failed to resound with noise of youngsters when bell rang yesterday. Instead, workmen were putting finishing touches on carpeting and washstands in lavatories. School officials said classes would begin Monday for kindergarten through fourth graders.

4-H girls cut grocery bill

All summer long and well into fall fresh fruits and vegetables from market, garden and orchard are gingerly selected for canning or freezing by 4-H girls working on food preservation projects.

"There are seven in our family," said 4-H'er Linda Sue Stoneking. "We have to cut corners on our grocery bill. We raise a garden every year, and my mother cans or freezes the produce. I have always helped her."

Then three years ago Linda Sue signed up for the 4-H Food Preservation program supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service. She became so proficient that she qualified for a national 4-H scholarship last year which she hopes to use to begin her college education.

Linda Sue is one of more than 110,000 4-H girls engaged in home preservation of foods. Why do young girls spend time, thought and energy to make a batch of jelly, can a few quarts of beans when they are so conveniently available from the nearest grocer?

According to the girls themselves, there are several reasons. Sometimes it's a desire to learn improved methods which can be passed along to mother and to other 4-H members. The convenience of having a store of home preserved foods on hand during the winter months is another factor. For some, exhibiting a sparkling jar of canned cherries at fair time is a great personal triumph, while for others they "just love to can."

Whatever the reason, 4-H girls have distinguished themselves in more ways then one by developing this culinary art. They not only stock the family cupboards and freezers, but often share their products with the less fortunate.

Karen Seppa, another 1968 national scholarship winner, reported that her 4-H Club donated 174 quarts of canned tomatoes to the local rescue mission. "Tomatoes are always welcome," she said, "because stew is served every night."

Kerr Glass has taken a personal interest in the thousands of 4-H'ers who have signed up for food preservation during the past four decades that the Sand Springs, Oklahoma, corporation has sponsored the program. The late Mrs. Ruth Kerr always personally welcomed the state award winners to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

Expense-paid trips to the 4-H Congress are provided for all state champions. Six national scholarships of $600 each are presented to the most outstanding members.

Watch for 'booby traps'

The Bureau of Safety and Regulation cautions Michigan residents against picking up electric "booby traps." Consultants in the Bureau's Safety Education and Training Division point out that defective portable electric tools may be the source of serious electric shock.

As a precaution against shock, the consultants recommend that tools be inspected regularly for defective or broken insulation, improper or poorly made connections to terminals, and broken or faulty plugs. Other danger signals are loose or broken switches and sparking brushes.

If any of these defects are spotted, the tool should be taken out of use until proper repairs are made.

The safety consultants point out that hazards of electric shock can be greatly reduced by using approved double insulated tools equipped with cords having three-prong plugs (third-wire grounding). They also caution against using portable electric tools while standing on damp or wet surfaces, a situation which can produce an accidental grounding.

Proper care and maintenance of tools is not only important as a safety factor, but it also contributes toward long and efficient use.

Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene, on Petoskey Avenue north of the city, is almost finished. Parishioners will move to their new church home as soon as construction is completed.

Plan aids churches

In a file cabinet at the headquarters of a company that makes hosiery and other wearing apparel, is a drawer of folders bearing the names of churches.

"Our prayer is that the new building will be used in such a manner that we will be worthy of your confidence," says one letter from a minister. All the folders contain similar letters.

What are church folders doing in the files of an apparel manufacturer?

They represent one of the most unusual projects in American industry linking a corporation with the churches in communities where its employees live.

Three years ago, Hanes Corporation, of Winston-Salem, N.C. started a program to aid churches in its 13 plant communities, 12 in the U.S. and one in Canada. The company offered to contribute $25 to a new church building for each member who is an employee of the company, and $15 for each employee-member for renovation and additions.

The remarkable thing about this program is that there is only one limitation: no church can participate more than once in a five year period. Requests to the company are made by employees and not by the churches.

How successful has this program been? In three years, Hanes has contributed $36,055 to 306 churches on behalf of 2,164 of its 12,000 employees.

Says Board Chairman Gordon Hanes: "We have no financial limitations on this program. We would be just as happy if the amount we've contributed were three times what it has been."

Library Notes

A shipment of 167 fresh titles have just arrived at the Library from Grand Traverse Area Library Federation. A sampling of the new titles follows:

"In Pirate Waters" by Richard Wheeler is the first new book on West Indies piracy in recent years. It is an account of the little-known Captain David Porter, who spearheaded the U.S. Navy's war against piracy in the years between 1800 and 1825. This is a swashbuckling yarn with a wealth of action and authentic detail. In Pirate Waters fills an important and long-standing gap in the history of the U.S. Navy.

"Queen Christina" by Georgina Masson is an intriguing new book about the enigmatic and paradolcal Christina of Sweden. She was a woman who preferred to be a man and went to scandalous lengths to behave like one. She played a cat-and-mouse game with the chancelleries of Spain, England, France and the Holy See and drove them wild in an effort to interpret her true intentions. It is a highly entertaining book, and there are many photographs.

"Robert Browning and his World" by Maisie Ward has been acclaimed by critics as a revealing and authentic account of Browning's life and poetry up to the time of his wife's death. Now come this second volume which will be equally well received because it sheds new light on the quality of Browning's puzzling involvement with the world about him after Elizabeth died. There is a particularly perceptive analysis of Browning's relationship with his son who, spoiled by Elizabeth, was never able to come to grips with the responsibilities and obligations of a grown man. The author is steeped in the tradition of Browning, because her parents were intimate friends of Browning's great rival, Lord Tennyson.

"The Story of Life" by D.H. Udall is a book which deals briefly and clearly with the essential matters we know about life. The author is a lecturer in biology at the College of Saint Mark and John in London. He is also visiting lecturer in zoology at Sir John Cass College, University of London. His treatment of how both heretidy and environment are basic to the evolution of man, and how man, in turn, has influence on other living things, is intersting and thought-provoking. The book is highly recommended for young scientists.

"Jim. Clark, Portrait of a Great Driver" is a full and well-rounded report of "the best driver of his time". Clark won more World Championship Grand Prix than any other driver, and he was the first European to win the Indianapolis 500 since the First World War. In this book he is recalled by some of the people who knew his best.. There are many photographs, some of them in color.

Locals

Mrs. Jesse Penn has returned home from a visit in Dillon. She was accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. Ida Brown, who plans to visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Beitel have as their guest her brother in-law, George Suffrin of Cortemadera, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. James Marsh and family have returned from a week's vacation trip in the Upper Peninsula.

Mrs. Stanley Harwood and children, Carolyn and Stanley, have returned to Flint after spending two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence F. Rabach. Mr. Harwood came for them and remained for a brief visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pence have as their guests for two weeks her mother, Mrs. Jean Taskey of Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. George Rabson and children, Julie and Chad of Centreville.

Pat's Reaction

Every now and then our family decides to take a swipe at education and culture through travel so last week all eight of us piled into the family station wagon and joyfully set out to view one of the seven wonders of the modern world, Niagara Falls.

I say joyfully, but I have to admit that with a premonition of things to come wise old Daddy put cotton in his ears as he drove off. Education is important, but all that the boys seemed able to talk about was buying firecrackers in Canada. That conversation gets pretty dull after a while for those folks over eighteen.

We drove north through Sault Ste. Marie, then turned east and headed toward Manitoulin Island. That Canadian countryside is so wild that once we saw a black bear crossing the road, and instead of running away the bear was so interested in seeing us that he stopped dead, turned around and took a good long look at us, intruders in his land.

As we drove my husband and I conscientiously tried to interest the children in the fascinating geological history of the area. After all, we were driving through the remains of the oldest mountain range in north America and the jagged outcroppings of bare rock were constant reminders of the violent past of the region, but again all of the violence that the boys wanted was the bang of firecrackers.

We have several avid map readers in our family and when we took the two-hour ferry boat trip from the southern tip of Manitoulin Island to Tobermory, Ontario they went crazy, for there were dozens of unmarked islands. Cleverly the map markers had gotten off the hook by simply stating on the map, Thirty Thousand Islands. Since I guess that nobody cares to count the islands nobody cares to dispute them, so for all we know there may be only twenty thousand islands.

Next we drove on to Toronto.

I firmly believe the old saying that mailmen hike on their holidays for I am married to an architect and so I know what architects do on their holidays; they look at beautiful buildings.

Toronto has an abundance of good architecture the most impressive of which is the new Toronto City Hall. We toured that building with a guide and we looked at it from every angel. No two ways about it, the Toronto City Hall is one of the world's great buildings and it was well worth a special trip to Toronto to see it.

By now the poor deprived Charlevoix waifs traveling with us hadn't been swimming for two days so they guided us straight as an arrow to a motel with a pool. There we all threw education and culture to the winds and had a long leisurely swim. My conscience bothered me that we weren't visiting the historic fort, pioneer village or prime minister's house, but my own sore feet told me that the pool not the fort was the place for us to be.

The next day we reached Niagara Falls, but did everyone race to see it? Not on your life. They all raced for the gift shops and I had to drag them out to walk across the park for their first view of the falls.

"What's so great about that?" asked Cathy disparagingly.

"Well, we're quite a way from it still," I answered defensively. "After all the part nearest to us has been diverted."

Actually where the American falls once fell there was simply bare rock for one of the greatest plumbing jobs in North America is now underway as the Joint Niagara Commission works to stop the constant cutback of the American falls.

We could see the huge piles of rock that had fallen down under the American falls. How they ever plan to move that away I'll never know. The American falls is not combined with the Canadian Horseshoe Falls. We all looked over the edge and watched the tiny boat Maid of the Mist make her way toward the falls.

"I want to take the boat ride," called Beth.

That's something that I've always wanted to do so Dad bought tickets and we all took the hair raising railroad ride down the side of the gorge. The ride was a real thrill for it was,

Chamber Chat

BY WALLY LODER
CHAMBER MANAGER

Make it a date--Sunday, October 12, Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Color Cruise aboard MS Beaver Islander, leaves city dock at 1:00 p.m. The donation is $3 per person and in addition to a delightful trip there will be beverages, snack material and entertainment. You may secure passage cards here at the chamber office or from any of the directors, namely Lyle Miles at Erber Auto; Tom Acton at LexaLite; Gordon Neff at Neff Brothers Quality Foods; Ralph Hess at Hess Furniture; Bruce Bartlett at Bartlett Floor Covering; John Schroeder at Schroeder Drugs; Dave Juilleret at Juilleret's Restaurant; Larry LaGrow at Charlevoix County State Bank; and Tom Hanna at Medusa.

From Frank J. Kelley, Attorney General's office, we have a Consumer Protection letter. If interested, you may review it at our office. However, one of many items, I quote "Fire alarm systems. Another item being pushed again this summer with the usual high pressure. Scare tactics are fire alarm systems. Many of these are over priced and are of questionable value. We urge anyone interested in purchasing a fire alarm to check with his local chamber of commerce or fire department and to proceed with caution."

Having to do with the regular scheduled Board of Directors meeting Tuesday, September 2, sorry to report it was impossible to get a quorum together to conduct this meeting. Accordingly, it was postponed to Tuesday evening, September 9, here at the chamber office.

As usual, Labor Day does it. There was certainly a conspicuous change; and I already noticed Tuesday morning after Labor Day while coming down to the office. Parkside Dining Room had already closed, dock master's office closed, etc. Even so, office contacts began to pick up before the day was out and have been quite steady ever since. Now that things are slackening up a bit in one sense, there are two or three issues that we started a while back and I hope now we can accomplish them, and this accomplishment, of course, depends on membership fees and contributions otherwise, yet due us according to our membership register.

Unfortunately, too many people take too much for granted, especially a chamber of commerce operation. It appears quite a number, and I am not criticizing, do not relize or allow themselves to realize just what the internal problems are. Many are inclined to feel a chamber of commerce is simply an information center. To some degree this is correct. An information center as such are in many locations, as well as a chamber of commerce. Many locations have both, an information center and a chamber of commerce. Your Board of Directors of this chamber have started to re-evaluate procedure, promotion, etc., and to assist them, I have explored many chambers of commerce to learn their facts and figures and have given our boys some pertinent information which should help them bring about some effectiveness. Do not overlook, no matter what they come up with or any of the other Boards of Directors involved with chambers, the end results depend tremendously on local support. This week alone, from two chambers downstate much larger than this chamber and much larger communities have inquired of our programming, operation, etc., as they are in the process of getting other ideas to help them decide what to change and what not to change in their communities so far as the chamber is concerned. So you see folks, whether any of you are satisfied or not with Charlevoix's chamber, overall, there is little or no different, as all of them have about the same thing to contend with that we do, except one thing, and that is quite a number have more dollar support.

A recent U.S. Department of Commerce Domestic Commerce Newsletter indicates in brief the following: "PERSONAL INCOME HIGHER IN METROPOLITAN AREAS. According to the latest estimates by the Commerce Department's Office or Business Economics, per capita income of metropolitan area residents in 1967 was 45 percent higher than that of Americans living in the rest of the country. Approximately 67 percent of the population resides in standard metropolitan statistical areas (SMSA's)."

Our complete reports for Venetian Festival and Waterfront Art Fair are not ready due to the fact I am sure not all bills have been received. However, these figures should be available soon. For the moment, it will surprise you to know that according to voluntary reports by nearly all the exhibitors at the Waterfront Art Fair, those exhibiting who chose to sell some of their items this year grossed over $19,000, whether they were professional persons or otherwise. How's that?

We all must be careful, as has been indicated in the variety of news media, and go all out to prevent fire. According to literature received this week "Fire Hurts" is the 1969 fire prevention slogan.

Bits from a news release from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, titled A Good Trick. "As a family grows older, they own more and owe less and their assets generally increase. The trick is to own more and owe less and still be young enough to enjoy the comfort of financial stability"--Financial Facts.

"Do you know? There are 100 taxes on an egg; 150 taxes on a woman's hat; 151 on a loaf of bread; and 600 on a house?"

"SHOPLIFTING? the LIFT that let's you DOWN. . .with a damaging POLICE RECORD!"

NCM opens with 750

North Central Michigan College will open its eleventh year of operation with about 750 students enrolled, with counseling sessions beginning this week. The official activities will begin with counseling sessions for all returning students on Thursday and Friday, September 11 and 12.

This will continue with an orientation program at 9 a.m. Monday, September 15 in the Junior High School Auditorium for all new students at North Central Michigan College. Official registrations will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, September 16 and 17 with all classes beginning on a full schedule at 8 a.m. Thursday, September 18.

North Central Michigan College, as in the past, will offer an evening program for those students unable to attend classes during the day, and registration for persons taking evening classes only will be held on Thursday, September 11 at 7 p.m. in room 122 on the College campus.

While the College will have about a ten percent increase in enrollment, there are still vacancies in some programs at the College. Anyone interested in enrolling who has not yet made a contact should do so immediately by calling 347-3973.

Sad but true, but it can happen if you have $500.00 in savings in an ordinary bank, and your checking account there, too.

The double ring ceremony took place at St. Marys Church in Charlevoix, September 6, at 3 p.m with approximately 350 guests attending. The wedding ceremony was administred by Monsignor Victor Gollogher of Reed City.

The bride was attended by Arlene and Julie Supernaw, sisters of the bride, Miss Toni King of Vandalia, and Mrs. Gary Clark of Cassopolis. Maid of honor was Miss Nancy Smith of Charlevoix.

Grooms' attendants were Bob Hichter, of Sterling Heights, Ivan Warner, Keigo Heights, Chip Allison and Rich Heeres of Charlevoix, Jim Warner and Bill Supernaw, with Mel Matchett of Cedar Springs as best man.

The bride wore a gown of angleskin peau and reembroidered lace, with an empire bodice, accented with seed pearls, long sleeves of lace with lace panels on each side of an A-line skirt, and a detachable chapel train edged and paneled with lace. Pearls and loce formed a crown which held an imported English illusion veil. The bridesmaids wore melon colored empire waist gowns, carrying a single camillia with green accents.

Barry Pischner sang Ave Marie, Our Father and On This Day, and Mrs. Doyle Warner, the groom's aunt, sang. Frank Oleksy was organist.

A reception was held in the V.F.W. Hall in Charlevoix, at which a buffet dinner was served. Music for dancing was by the Steinsmen. Many assisted including Mrs. Bruce Murray, Mrs. Don O'Brien opening gifts; Miss Sherrell Pearsall and Mrs. Don Smith serving the cake; Miss Joy Jordan and Mrs. Keith Lapp serving punch; Miss Karen Wojan pouring coffee; and Miss Merilyn Edwards tended the guest book.

The couple plans a wedding trip Southern Michigan and then to the Upper Peninsula, where the groom is teaching. Both will be returning to college.

Letter to Editor

New jail

Dear Mr. Griffin:

Inasmuch as we own property in Hayes Township, Charlevoix County, I am interested in the affairs of that County.

I'll try to be as brief as possible, but I do consider the huge sums spent on county jails a waste of the taxpayers' money. Since I live in Emmet County I consider our own beautiful jail a waste of money.

I do realize that supervisors and other county officials must follow certain procedures and perhaps the Department of Corrections receives its guidelines from others above them. Now, who are they who sit behind desks and find ways and means to spend our money? Could it be the legislature?

It is my firm belief that a number of counties in our area could combine to have a county jail and it need not be a brick and tile affair. This jail could be of simple block construction similar to an army barracks, but need not be an architectural monstrocity. After all, those of us who served in the armed forces were not criminals yet we lived in some imserable surroundings, but the transgressors of our laws are REQUIRED to live in expensive structures built with our money.

Let me urge officials of our surrounding counties to have some serious sessions relative to an area jail and use our money more wisely.

It is also time to think about voting our money spenders out of office and the source of these spenders must certainly be Lansing. If only more people would write their praises and objections the taxpayer himself would benefit and his voice would count much more. A continual flow of literature leaves my desk to various individuals with hopes that it will do some good.

It angers me how our money spenders behold with a false sense of pride what they have accomplished with our money. I can devoutly pray: Lord, please give them wisdom for they are without.

Very truly yours,

Helmuth Schulz, Jr.

more like an amusement park ride than a railroad ride.

When we reached the bottom we ran over to board the Maid of the Mist. As we went aboard men handed us long black raincoats. We surely needed them for that little boat took us closer to the falls until we were in such a storm of water that we couldn't even look up. It was just as though all of us were standing in a huge shower bath. I just broke up laughing for the funny thing was that we were all having such fun.

Before we left Niagara Falls we had viewed the falls from every angle. We took the tunnels under the falls and we rode the elevator to view the falls from an observation tower. We really had a good time seeing everything there was to see.

As Chris said, "We really thinned out Dad's wallet, but it was well worth it."

Dad didn't say anything.

Goss, of Charlevoix; four brothers, Shelby and Gerald, of Charlevoix and Thomas and William, both of Saronac.

A Department of Labor survey discloses that handicapped workers compare favorably with their able-bodied co-workers in production, efficiency, safety, and attendance. Their turnover rate in jobs is much lower than that of able-bodied workers. Ability counts.

Ruppe Reports

A constituent query . . .

I have been receiving much unsolicited pornographic material through the mails. What can be done about stopping this influx?

The number of complaints to the Post Office Department about pornographic literature has nearly doubled since 1964. I have, consequently, become quite concerned about this problem. Many of our voters find this material particularly offensive, because it is sent directly to the home — where it easily reaches the hands of children.

If you receive any unsolicited pornographic mail, I strongly urge that you send it immediately to your Postmaster. You may then opply with the Postmaster General for a court-enforceable order, which will prohibit that sender from making any further moilings to you or your children.

President Nixon has asked Congress to tighten mail restrictions on pornography. First, he has asked that it be made a federal crime to use the mails to deliver pornographic materials to anyone under eighteen years of age. Secondly, he has suggested that commercial exploitotion of prurient interest in sex through mail advertising be prohibited. Finally, he has proposed that mailers be required to respect the expressed wishes of those citizens who object to sex-oriented mail in their homes. I strongly support the President's stand on this issue.

I am currently studying several pornography mail bills that have been introduced in the House. The Post Office and Civil Service Committee, of which I am a former member, will hold subcommittee hearings on this issue this month. I am hopeful that a concerned Congress will bring about strict legislation against unsolicited pornographic mail, before the end of the current session.

IN THE OPEN

By Lee Smits

The wind is often out of the north these days and the calendar tells us that the 1969 harvesting of small game will be legal, beginning next month. Now is the open season for predictions, estimates, forecasts.

Guess work is minimized. Scientific surveys have been conducted to provide accurate information on hunting prospects, by counties, states, provinces and on a national scale. Water levels are normal on the northwestern prairies, promising a fair supply of waterfowl. In Michigan reports on deer, grouse, pheasant, woodcock are encouraging.

What is undoubtedly the most important factor in the success of any hunting or fishing expedition is "local knowledge." Dedicated grouse hunters locate broods in early summer, and by October they know just where the birds are at any hour of the day.

To illustrate the value of local knowledge, I recall a grouse hunt with the late Harold Titus of Traverse City. We had hunted together year after year, and Titus knew the grouse cover for a radius of 50 miles around Traverse City. When he stopped the car and let out the dogs for a swing it was a safe bet that we would find birds. But on one of our last times together we drew blanks. Our combined bag for a long day of tramping the woods might be two birds, one bird, or none.

On the evening of our final day a caller arrived, a plumber who made a full-time study of grouse. He brought us two bag limits and explained that he had located the birds on the cutover pine plains where they were feeding on wild cherries. This hunter had enjoyed excellent sport, simply because he was armed with local, timely knowledge.

+ + +

One fall I was a guest in a deer hunting camp at the headwaters of the Hurricane in the Upper Peninsula. We were supposed to be hunting grouse, but they were mighty scarce. I put in the time exploring the area. One night heavy rain made tracking conditions perfect on old logging roads. I told my host that the area had mighty few deer, a statement he refused to accept.

Back of camp was a steep bluff, the ancient shore line of Lake Superior. I climbed up the hill one afternoon and came into an expansive stand of beech forest. It was a beech nut year and the ground was plentifully scattered with nuts. As I came out upon the plateau I flushed two grouse. Missed with both barrels.

Then I began to see deer, feasting on beech nuts. Sharing the bounty were grouse and grey squirrels. The deer were incredibly plentiful. Just standing still and looking, I would see half a dozen deer, including some outstanding bucks. Walk a hundred yards, stand and look — more deer. They were not unduly alarmed, seeming to sense that I intended no harm.

Rayders open Friday night

The Charlevoix Red Rayders will host Alpena Catholic Central in the first contest of the 69 football season. The game is scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday at Kipke Field.

For the past few weeks coaches Don Carey and Bruce Morgan have been seaching for replacements on the line and making other adjustments in the backfield in preparation for the first engagement.

Last season the Rayders beat Alpena C.C. in what appeared to be an easy victory. But ask any Rayder who played in the game and the response would be somewhat different.

WHAT'S COOKING?

GOOD FOOD must satisfy hearty appetites of Americans on the go. On an afternoon picnic or longer camping trip, most of the fun centers around tasty food which can be prepared quickly and easily. Outdoor cooking is convenient and fast with portable, lightweight stoves operating on liquefied petroleum gas.

No matter how simple the menu, meals cooked outdoors always taste better than those prepared at home, and it's amazing how many food items can be cooked on a two-burner stove.

One-pot meals, combining meat and vegetables, are quite simple and they provide a variety of hot, nourishing foods. After beef or some other meat has simmered to tenderness, potatoes, carrots and onions may be added. When all ingredients are cooked, they may be served as four separate dishes.

A double boiler is a handy utensil to take along on an outing or camping trip. While the LP-gas burner is boiling water in the lower pan to cook a potato or an ear of corn, rolls may be warming in the upper pan. Or the upper pan could be heating cooked meat in gravy, soup, baked beans or other foods.

School reform

GOV. MILLIKEN has climbed to the top of the high diving tower and promised that he will plunge in on educational reform. And what's more, he has even permitted the ladder to be taken away to make it impossible for him to renege.

So Michigan has substantial reason to expect the governor and his Commission on Education Reform to come up with solid recommendations by the end of this month. The governor has pledged to "stake my political career on a push for reform." If he were to try to take his way through with half-measures the governor would have discredited himself.

As a general commitment the governor's posture now is pleasing. All of us are in favor of reform. But it is when the specific plans are laid before us that one man's reform becomes another man's outrage. The governor will propose changes and call them reforms; it will be up to the rest of us to decide whether they really are.

Even before the governor has spelled out his package opposition has begun to build up in the Legislature. Before he gets final action he will have to pass some tests:

Does the package really reorganize Michigan's school financing to get us away from our present heavy reliance on the property tax? School officials now find themselves wondering whether they can convince citizens to approve even mere millage renewals.

Does the reform include a new recognition of the special problems and sepcial obligations of urban schools?

Will the changes make for a more efficient use of state funds for education? The governor will find himself hard put to show that any form of parochaid is really a more efficient means of supporting education than an expansion of the public school, despite claims made by its proponents. Many of the Detroit area's private schools are too small to be efficient educational institutions. The state would be better off absorbing the students into the public schools.

Can the administration of education be better organized? Some burdens may need to be shifted from local shool boards to the state. The state board may need to be reconstituted to eliminate some of the carping partisanship. The growing unionization of the teaching force calls for changes in state law.

What can be done, both by consolidation and decentralization, to get school systems closer to an optimum size?

When the governor starts taking stands on these issues and on providing more money for the support of education, he will find it hard to keep his promises about reform. That's when the temptation to resort to glittering generalities will become overpowering.

But the political climate is, as the governor says, "right for making bold changes in Michigan education." If the seedlings being set out now don't take root, a better time may not present itself.

Draft as recruiter

Some of the difficulty in manning a volunteer army, which is the eventual goal of American leadership, is revealed in the recent experience of army recruiting. For the first time in many years, the recruiters failed to meet their quota in the fiscal year that ended June 30.

In each of the last eight months of the year, volunteers fell short of expectations. For the year, only 188,000 men were recruited, as compared to the 197,000 sought. In other recent years, recruiters have regularly exceeded the quota by 8,000 or 9,000.

One fundamental reason appears obvious: With President Nixon pledged to the concept of a volunteer army when the war in Viet Nam is over, and with the first steps of withdrawal of United States forces from Viet Nam, young men no longer see a draft call as inevitable, an attitude that apparently caused many thousands to enlist.

Speaking of the President's pledge last fall that he would strive to establish a volunteer army, the chief of staff of army recruting, Col. Donald L. Roberts, said: "Immediately when that announcement was made, our recruting went into a nose dive."

Ironically, the failure in recruiting has been the direct cause of larger draft calls than would have been the case had volunteer quotas been met.

The inescapable conclusion is that currently the threat of the draft is a major impetus to recruitment. When it becomes feasible to abandon the draft, a radical change must take place in army personnel policies, including pay and training, to provide the inducements necessary to maintain a first-class ground defense force.

Here's Hollywood

Reproduced below are a series of actual press releases from Universal Studios in Hollywood that have been arranged in chronological order by Catholic Press Features and tell a story all their own.

No further comment is needed.

HOLLYWOOD, May 1968 — "A fictional version of the dramatic story of Sister Mary Olivia Gibson's world renowned work with speech handicapped children will be vividly brought to the screen in Technicolor by Universal Pictures under the title, 'A Change of Habit,' " said a movie company press release.

"Joe Connelly will produce the picture, which will recount the heartbreak, struggle and eventual stunning success achieved by Sister Mary Olivia, head of the speech clinic at Maria Regina College in Syracuse. Through the adaptation of theatrical techniques Sister Mary Olivia has performed miracles in aiding children with speech problems."

HOLLYWOOD, January, 1969 — "Elvis Presley has been signed to star in Universal City Studios' unique drama, 'Change of Habit' it has been announced by Jennings Lang, senior vice president.

"Mary Tyler Moore also stars in the high-budgeted Technicolor picture to be produced by Joe Connelly starting early in March."

HOLLYWOOD, October, 1968 — "Mary Tyler Moore, Co-star of 'The Dick Van Dyke Show', has been set to star in Universal City Studios' 'A Change of Habit,' a fictional version of the dramatic story of Sister Mary Olivia Gibson's world renowned work with speech-handicapped children, it has been announced by Jenning Lang, senior vice president.

"Richard Morris has written the screenplay which recounts the heartbreak, struggle and eventual stunning success achieved by Sister Mary Olivia, head of the speech clinic at Maria Regina College in Syracuse.

"The role of Sister Mary Olivia will be the most dramatic ever undertaken by Miss Moore."

HOLLYWOOD, February, 1969 — "I was lucky enough to meet Sister Mary Olivia, who inspired the story for 'Change of Habit,' on her recent trip to Universal Studios," wrote Hollywood syndicated columnist Dorothy Manners.

"Sister Mary heads the Speech Therapy clinic at Maria Regina Junior College in Syracuse, New York. Her meetings here are with producer Joe Connelly and Richard Morris about her work, dealing particularly with children.

"She is a charming woman and outspoken."

HOLLYWOOD, March 1969 — "Joe Connelly saw (an how!) Barbara McNair in 'If He Hollers,' wants her as one of the three nuns in Universal's 'Change of Habit,' starring Elvis Presley and Mary Tyler Moore," reported "Daily Variety" columnist Army Archerd.

"Elvis plays a medic in the pic, getting a hefty rewrite changing his character to the main role."

HOLLYWOOD, April, 1969 — "Four new songs will be written for Presley to sing in the unusual story about a young doctor who forms a strong affectionate friendship with a nun," reported a Universal press release. "Richard Morris has written the screenplay."

NEW YORK, May 1969 — A reading of the final script here reveals that "A Change of Habit" is about three nuns who are given permission to wear civilian clothes and work in an inner city slum.

One of the nuns (Mary Tyler Moore) has some experience working with speech — handicapped children and assists a young doctor (Presley) in his health clinic.

At fadeout, she is still deciding whether to remain a nun or leave to marry the doctor.

NEW YORK, June 1969 — "Sister Mary Olivia is no longer connected with this movie," said a Universal Pictures press agent.

Vacation report

(Ed. note: The following story is by Bob Myers of the Lapeer County Press. It concerns his recent vacation in Northern Michigan.)

My favorite part of Michigan is the northwest corner - the Charlevoix, Traverse City, Harbor Springs area. Here are some tips, if you're looking for vacation spots.

Campers should try South Manitou Island, in Lake Michigan 15 miles off Leland. There are no state parks or commercial campgrounds there, but if you want to rough it and have elbow room, it's for you. There is good fishing on an island lake on the 3-mile-square island, beautiful beaches and unspoiled sand dunes. There is one tiny store with a few necessities, a restaurant, a few dozen scattered cottages, and 2 year-round residents - Mr. and Mrs. Ed Riker.

There's a ferry leaving Leland at 8:15 each day. If you write in advance, Mrs. Riker will meet you at the ferry, haul your camping gear in her station wagon, and help you find a campsite. (Her address is South Manitou Island, Leland, Mich).

If you're a boater, head due west from Leland. There's a small dock and anchorage in a bay, but it's unprotected in southeast blows. There are rarely more than 3 or 4 boats there. The island is much prettier than the bigger and better known Beaver Island.

My vote for the most attractive inn in northern Michigan goes to Falling Waters Lodge at Leland. It's built alongside the old dam on the short river leading from Lake Leelanau to Lake Michigan, and overlooks the dam, the fish docks, the new state harbor and Lake Michigan.

On the other side of the dam, the same people (Mr. and Mrs. Hollinger) have built Fisherman's Cove, a strikingly beautiful restaurant. If you eat there, order their whitefish. If you like smoked fish, the commercial fisherman have fine smoked chub.

If you want to stay at the lodge, phone for reservations and try to get one of their loft rooms. They will close In October. We went there last year the first weekend in October and saw some fine color.

Best restaurant in northern Michigan is Gray Gables, on Belvedere St. in Charlevoix. It's in an old Victorian mansion and closes Labor Day. The service is quick, the menu varied, and food more reasonable and better than most anything in Detroit.

Most interesting bar is the Tween Deck, a basement bar under the Topside Lounge in the center of Charlevoix. The furnishings are all made from oak planks salvaged from sunken sailing ships.

My public restroom award again goes to Charlevoix. It's spacious, immaculate and in a beautiful and tidy park on the edge of the harbor. A lot of towns have monuments, museums, and scenic attractions but you'll travel far to find a decent public restroom. Hail Charlevoix - the city with the pretty can!

My clothespin-to-the-nose award goes to Leland. A new public restroom was built there last year as part of the new harbor and boat-launching ramp. Some $25,000 was spent on the restroom and sewage facilities but it's a mess. I visited Leland several times over the course of my sailing vacation. I found the restroom always dirty. Outside, there were garbage cans for the boaters. The cans were usually overflowing. When the collector did empty the cans, he didn't pick up the spillage lying on the ground.

The harbor at Leland, however, is a triumph of design. The engineers have finally learned how to design harbors and docks for pleasure boats. Congratulations to the Department of Natural Resources and its chief engineer, Ray Lawrence.

Justice or demagogy

A Negro judge in Philadelphia has joined the growing number of influential and sensible black citizens who reject the tactics of militants and their demands for "reparations" from white churches.

Common Pleas Court Judge Robert N.C. Nix Jr. extended an injunction directed against black militants who had seized a Methodist church in order to convert it into a day camp and had demanded money from the white congregation.

"Former injustices to Negroes will not be blotted out by the indiscriminate giving of money, services, and sympathies," he said, adding that it is "unfortunate that elements of the white community have dispensed funds as a result of a barrage of threats and intimidation by those concerned only with their own interests."

It takes some courage for a moderate Negro to speak out publicly against his more militant brethren, just as it has taken courage for moderate whites in the south to speak out against those who are more intolerant. But the courage will pay off in the end. Racial harmony in the south ultimately depends not on militant blacks or outsiders but on moderates among the whites. Similarly, the most effective efforts in the black community will come from moderate blacks.

The dream man of the modern girl, according to the Wayne County Press of Fairfield, Ill., is one who is tall, dark and has-some.

If it Fitz

I don't look it, do I?

I had barely reached my new station in life when someone whacked me over the ego with it.

There was this young doll in our office, see? she was here to sell the advertising manager on holding a cooking school. He took one look and reached for his apron. I took one look and quickly requested an introduction so I might find out why my pineapple upside down cake is falling right side up.

"Ah yes," the ad manager said to the doll." I'd like you to meet our editoor, Jim Fitzgerald." And, hardly breaking syllables, he turned to me and asked, "How's the new granddaughter, Jim?"

Oh, that dirty bum. That dirty, rotten, no-good bum.

I mumbled that the granddaugbter was fine, thanks, all the time sucking in my gut and tightening my chins, waiting expectantly for the doll to say my goodness, you don't look old enough to be a grandfather.

This was a week ago and she hasn't said it yet. I guess I'll exhale.

Everyone asks me how it feels to be a grandfather. I always make some lame crack about it being ok, except I feel a little strange sleeping with a grandmother. This is a real kneeslapper and folks think ho-ho, the big clown doesn't know any better, he's happy about being branded an old man overnight. Not so.

It was just the other day I was worrying about getting called back into the army. I'd read the war news and then check the bus schedules to Canada. But they don't draft grandfathers, do they? I might better worry about beating my wife to the mailman on the day the Social Security check arrives.

Seriously, folks, I am finding it a traumatic experience to become a grandfather while I am barely over 40, with 2 kids still in grade school and a swinging mother who tells people I am her little brother. What's bugging me, I guess, is that I remember my paternal grandparents.

Grandpa was old, with pure white hair and a bushy moustache and a 1928 Dodge you had to crank. Grandma was also old and she always had flour on her face. She used to feed me sugared orange slices which were a lot better than the horehound candy Grandpa slipped me. Grandma made great pancakes and stewed rhubarb and she'd let me listen to funny records by the 2 Black Crows on the phonograph that had to be cranked more than the Dodge.

My grandparents, who died before I was 10, were the kind Norman Rockwell used to put on Saturday Evening Post covers, usually coming out of church. Kindly but crochety, feeble but determined, please pass the buttermilk. As played by Walter Brennan and Jonathan Winters in drag.

All these years, whenever anyone said Grandpa and Grandma, I envisioned The Old Couple, in bed by 9 and up at 5 with the snow shoveled off the walks before breakfast. The good, straight people.

But now I'm a grandpa and I'm worried about some doll thinking I look it. It's no wonder I'm uncomfortable. I feel like Dean Martin being inducted into the WCTU.

Grandpas should be dignified and wise and well behaved, with all the old fashioned virtues.

OK. I'll start practicing. It may be a while yet before I quit looking at the dolls.

But the next 1928 Dodge I see, I'll crank it.

ON THE 'FLIP' SIDE

Monday my wife will send our young daughter off to first grade...and, I wonder how her new teacher will hold up under the strain of some 30 six-year-olds.

If they are all like my little one, she may be walving the white flag and wondering why she didn't major in home economies, engineering or basket weaving.

Our home for the past couple of weeks has been something of a prep school. And herein lies the beginning of my problem.

It seems my daughter knows all about school. "I know!!", she tells me. "I've been to kindergarten. School's easy. You sing and play and paint."

What about that hard stuff, like counting and learning the alphabet, we ask.

"I don't like numbers," she tells us over breakfast.

By this time, we're getting a little upset. We don't really want her to be a genius, but we have always hoped she would progress to the point where she can make her 2's, 7's and 9's frontward....and maybe even someday add and subtract.

"You'll be singing and swinging with Kindergarten again this year, Young Lady, if you decide you don't like numbers," we shout as she skips out the door to make mudpies with the McDaniels youngsters across the street.

My wife thinks she'll straighten out after a few days of school, but we have our doubts....'cause she sure like that painting and singing.

Summer activity came to a screeching halt with Labor Day, and the beaches are much more enjoyable for a loner like us who enjoys quiet at the water's edge.

The beach stretching along Bells Bay has to be the most tranquil in the area, in season or out.

Lake Michigan beach below Mt. McSauba, being used like a dump, was the concern of two area women and the City Council. The deplorable condition of the beaches was definitely a problem, but where to begin was the question.

Return home from funeral

The Picards and their passenger were enroute to Winona, Minn., 30 miles west of LaCrosse when Dr. Picard attempted to pass two cars on a curve and rammed head-on into the approaching trailer-truck.

Dr. Picard, 72, was an ear, nose and throat specialist in Chicago where he was a member of the staff of Illinois General Hospital.

The rose garden that is worthy of the Garden Club plaque is Mrs. Howard Griffen's. Her roses are named, tagged, and dated and all very neat, a joy to see.

We are sorry that our Garden Plaque was taken from the Joseph Etienne garden last week. Anyone knowing the whereabout of the plaque, please return to, or call, Mrs. James Taylor, garden club member.

It is given to gardeners in summer who have put extra effort in their gardening to make Charlevoix more beautiful.

Accident occurred at Bay Shore at 5:23 p.m. Putnam was taken to Little Traverse Hospital, Petoskey, and was released after treatment. County Sheriff's office is investigating.

6 countians are arrested; 1 charged with rape

Six Charlevoix County men and women were arrested and charged last week with contributing to the delinquency of a minor female child, by the County Sheriff's Department.

One of them was also charged with statutory rape.

The arrests stem from an incident which took place in Hayes Township beginning the night of September 8 and continuing into the early morning hours of September 9.

Five of the six were arraigned in County Court Monday. They are: Michael Joseph Moore, 21, of Charlevoix, charged with statutory rape and contributing to the delinquency of a minor female child.

Moore demanded examination on both counts and was bound over for trial in October. He was released on $100 bond.

Edward L. Holm, 22, Charlevoix, charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor female child. He was released on $100 bond for trial in October.

Julius Lloyd Toth, 27, Charlevoix, contributing to the delinquency of a minor female child; released on $100 bond for later trial.

Oscar Bradford Ward, 27, Charlevoix, contributing to the delinquency of a minor female child; released on $100 bond for later trial.

Susan Carson, 18, East Jordan, contributing to the delinquency of a minor female child; released on $100 bond for later trial.

According to Magistrate John Connelly, all stood mute in court Monday.

According to reports, all but Toth have lived in the county for some time. Toth reportedly recently moved into the county, but would not give the court his prior address.

A sixth person has been arrested and charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor female child, but his name will not be published until he appears in court next week.

County Sheriff Philo Sumner said yesterday he "did not want to release complete information concerning the incident until after the trial", so not to prejudice the case.

Sumner did say, however, that the arrests were made in Hayes Township, early September 9, and involved runaway girls from Traverse City.

The Courier learned that four girls were involved, two of them 13 years old, and two of them 14 years of age.

According to officials, all six charged in the case will be brought to trial early in October.

Student handbook is issued to CHS pupils

By Jeanne Mutz

Charlevoix High School students received the student handbook for the 1969-70 school year last week. The handbook is designed to acquaint students, teachers and parents with information about Charlevoix High School.

Parents of high school students are urged to read the handbook thoroughly in order to become familiar with its contents.

In an address to students on opening day, CHS principal Vane H. Smith said that the handbook had been published to inform the student body of the spirit, ideals and traditions which have made C.H.S. a worthy institution; to give some conception of administrative policies necessary for the welfare of all; to serve as a guide to all students so that they may form wholesome cooperative attitudes toward the school and its activities.

"It is our sincere wish that this book will be read conscientiously by all students and their parents. We, as teachers stand ready to help and counsel you at all times," said Smith.

Included in this year's handbook is a new policy whereby students must carry five classes regardless of the number of credits they have to date. Previously students had to carry at least four classes.

Other policies and procedures the handbook contains are: visitors are not permitted unless a special permit is obtained from the principal's office. Children under the 7th grade may not visit the high school. And, parents have a standing invitation to visit the high school at any time.

During lunch, students may leave the school grounds if desired--except by car or cycle. If students remain in school, they must be either in the study hall, library, or in the gym.

School bus transportation will be provided for band trips, athletics, or any other school activity which has been approved by the Principal. Students who participate in these activities will go on the bus and return on the bus unless special permission is granted by the Principal.

Students are required to report any change of address, name or telephone number in the Principal's office. This is so the records can be kept up to date and accurate.

If moving away, be sure to return all books, school and library, to the teacher, the office, or the library. A checkout form is to be picked up at the Principal's office.

All students who plan on driving a car or other motor vehicle to school must register it in the Principal's office and display a parking permit on the vehicle.

If a student drives a car to school, that car

Union vote for workers

City hourly workers will vote in Charlevoix early next month to decide whether or not they want a union.

October 7 was set as the date of the election at Monday night's City Council meeting. Mayor William Fochtman was directed to sign an agreement for the election as prepared by the State Department of Labor and the Communications Workers of America.

In other business, Council: approved the request of Dr. H.O. Messmore, who sought extension of the city water main to cottages he owns. He is to pay all costs.

Ralph McRae appeared to request a zoning change on four lots in the Lindsey Park addition. He wants to area rezoned to R-2 so a multiple dwelling can be built which would contain six two story units. The lots are on Petoskey-ave. between Prospect and Meech -sts.

In other matters:

--A 1953 tanker truck was sold to Hal Forbrig, the highest bidder, for $213. There were three bidders.

--The commission invested $104,000 in savings certificates at the rate of six and one-quarter percent interest.

--The purchase of voting machines was discussed to some length.

--And bills totaling $52,218.13 were approved for payment.

Coho regatta fails to spot any salmon

"The water is still just too warm," said Myrl Keller of the DNR's Research Station in Charlevoix, explaining why the first coho regatta Sunday was unsuccessful.

The regatta was comprised of some 35 boats, all searching for the salmon in Lake Michigan.

Keller said one small steelhead and a few lakers were taken by boaters he talked with. Fishermen were trolling in different areas with different lures and at different depths.

Teacher 'summers' in Colorado mountains

Charlevoix public school science departments should be enriched by the summer work of two teachers who packed up their families and headed west.

The Bruce Morgan family found that Given and the boys, Scott, Mark, and Thad, ranging in age from seven to two, learned almost as much as their high school biology and earth science teacher father. Because the living quarters at the University of Oklahoma's Geology Camp north of Canon, Colorado, were deemed too rough for women and children, the men who took the earth science course offered there couldn't have their families living with them.

Some of the wives and children taught the powers a thing or two about who was able to "rough it."

Since housing in town was impossible to find because a Western movie was being filmed there at the time, Given and the boys pitched a tent in a camp grounds a half hour's drive south of the geology camp in the beautiful Colordao mountains and spent eight wonderful weeks learning about mountain life. Given's tent neighbor, also a hardy young woman with five children, shared transportation facilities with the Morgans, and the two women packed the eight children in a station wagon every afternoon and took off for mountain adventures.

All the children learned to swim and ride horseback as well as clinch mountains and domesticate black widow spiders and scorpions. The boys brought one of each home as pets, but Given has decreed that the black widow must be sacrificed.

While his family enjoyed the rigors of mountain camping, Morgan lived in a cabin and studied with teachers from all over the country, taking an eight week earth science course which included studies in geology, astronomy and metereology. Much of the work being in the field, Morgan also learned something about the beauty and peril of mountain life, suffering a couple of bad falls which resulted in some minor injuries. They all found the average temperature of 96 degrees not at all objectionable because of the low humidity.

Morgan has a Master's degree in biology, but is continuing his education to enrich his teaching.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane Bolduc and daughters Kim and Molly spent eight weeks in Logan, Utah, while Bolduc studied under a National Science Foundation grant at Utah State University and the girls were enrolled in a pre-school program for dependents. Bolduc, 7th grade science teacher studied advanced mathematics, advanced zoology, and advanced physics. All three courses applied on his master's degree in biology, toward which he is working.

County State Bank increases capital stock

At the regular stockholders meeting of the Charlevoix County State Bank, held on September 9 it was voted to increase the capital stock of the bank by 20 percent, through a stock dividend, bringing the total capital of the bank to $300,000.

At the same time it was voted to increase the surplus account by $50,000, bringing it to a total of $300,000, for a total capital and surplus of $600,000. This increase in the capital and surplus of the Charlevoix County State Bank enables it to keep in step with the rapid growth of bank assets which now total in excess of $11,200,000. Bank officials said that larger loans could now be handled by the Charlevoix County State Bank, and local businessmen would no longer be forced to leave the community for large construction projects and industrial expansion.

"We feel that this action will better enable us to serve the people of Charlevoix and surrounding areas," said a bank spokesman.

John Lachman, left, chairman of the Industrial Division, with Clem Wagner and Howard Horton of Medusa Portland Cement Co. who will be soliciting the company's employees for Community Chest. The Industrial, Commercial and Professional Divisions of the Charlevoix Community Chest began their drives this week. Lachman reports that solicitation of Hoskins Manufacturing Company has been completed with a total of $1,007 collected. The Special Gifts Division, comprised of summer residents, has received a total of $4,095 to date with more contributions coming in. This Division's goal is $4,740. Workers in the Residential and Outlying Areas Divisions will start making their calls September 22. A special plea is being made this year for generous contributions as Charlevoix has a goal of $17,914.

Chamber Chat

A scare probably to some degree to many people is the DDT, especially in Lake Michigan fish. Now instead of so much emphasis on DDT in fish in the last few weeks, I have noticed emphasis on preparing these fish for eating, a simple matter eliminating possible on an extreme large percentage of any part of the fish commonly known effected by DDT. I notice today in the Sport Fishing Institute Bulletin from Washington, D. C., there is quite an interesting article, and if interested, stop by and read it over. They also publish a cross section of an adult coho and it indicates how possibly effected DDT portions can be easily cut away when you are cleaning the fish.

Great numbers of people are out after coho from along the coast of Michigan and if all goes reasonably normal it is expected we will have our share in this area. Marine News, September 5, has some interesting articles and also one on "Proper Cooking, a Key to Making fish safe."

I had questions about the City of Charlevoix Street Parade Float setting out in the open in bad weather. For your information, it has one vinyl covering overall over which is a light weight canvas. Up to now, there appears to be no damage. After making a number of contacts for a winter storage place, again our friend, Lt. D. Luedke, Commander of the Charlevoix Group, U.S. Coast Guard, recently has given us permission to again store this float down at the Coast Guard garage at the foot of Palmer Street.

The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce regular meeting scheduled the first Tuesday of each month, this month had to be postponed to the following Tuesday, September 9. Directors answering roll call were L. Miles, G. Neff, B. Bartlett, J. Schroeder, L. LaGrow, and R. Hess. Slightly tardy was T. Acton. Absent were D. Juilleret and T. Hanna.

Minutes of the last regular meeting, August 5, were approved as is.

Secretary's report indicated according to the register here that there is slightly less than $2,000 yet due from the variety of contributors who paid in 1968 and not yet in 1969. Between this office and a new committee to be organized, it is hoped to be able to work out ways and means to get in this needed approximate $2,000 and more if possible.

It was reported that for August, total cash receipts were $1,540.47 and total miscellaneous disbursements were $1,231.85. It was also indicated balances of monies owed. The receipts in the form of entry fees from the Waterfront Art Fair showed $1,220. To date, bills for the fair total $448.89. According to reports from the exhibitors at the fair, the gross sales were $19,000.83. The first annual Lakeside Hobbycraft Show, our records show $57 received, representing entry fees, and expenses paid to date are $104.32. Receipts having to do with the Venetian Festival showed $150 donation for booth space and assistance from the city of Charlevoix for fireworks of $375. To date, expenses total $1,233.10.

Lyle Miles appointed Tom Acton, Gordon Neff and Wally Loder to head up all the arrangements for the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Color Cruise aboard MS Beaver Islander, 1 p.m., Sunday, October 12.

There was general discussion on several items to be handled at future meetings, Tom Acton motioned to adjourn the meeting, seconded by John Schroeder, meeting adjourned at 9:05 p.m., minutes taken by yours truly.

From time to time I have mentioned complaints and otherwise, of course, not all of them, just occasion to let you folks know we do hear from our visitors one way or the other. This week I received a complaint from a party living in Des Plaines, Illinois, who indicated that for several Labor Day weekends he would take a trip around Lake Michigan, aiming to spend Saturday and evening at Charlevoix. This party referred to a breakfast Sunday morning before departure at one of our restaurants during which time he ordered his thermos to be filled with coffee. For this, the restaurant charged over $1 extra, which disturbed him and he questioned the cashier when paying the full check. It seems he did not receive a very pleasant answer for this question, and in his letter, he said "so therefore, I shall not return to Charlevoix."

Probably some of you last week Saturday evening watched the Miss American pageant on television. After things got underway, Marie and I early picked Miss Ohio or Miss Michigan, and to me, as far as I was concerned, both these gals, as they spoke and appeared, seemed to be themselves. The published questions and answers by Miss American (Miss Michigan), commenting on student militancy and the fact there have been no protests at her school, Miss Eldred said, "There is a right time and a right place to do everything." Then she added: "There should be authority. As soon as we do away with authority, we're going to have trouble". Having to do with the moon landing and urging continued space exploration, Miss America said: "I don't think there's a need to stop advancing. The U.S. is a great country and we want to keep it that way." Miss Eldred told the reporter "Don't call me beautiful. I'm really only averagly good looking. Beauty is within and is much more than a pretty face. Being pretty is God given. I don't think beauty contests are necessarily designed to pick the most gorgeous girl in the whole state. Judges look for someone believable--someone who is wholesome and who has a sense of values." How nice.

Last but not least, we are thankful to have one successful much needed fund raiser and are trying to establish a second, and that is the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Color Cruise. We have wonderful cooperation with the Beaver Island Boat Company. We will try again this year and this cruise is scheduled for Sunday, October 12, leaving the City Dock at 1 p.m. Donation is $3 per person. There will be free eats, entertainment, and beverages. I observed before that the boat crew went out of their way to make it pleasant and comfortable and James Gallagher certainly does all within his power to cooperate. It is suggested because of the limited capacity for passage you make your donation early and receive your passage tickets, first come, first served basis. In the past there has been a friendly lot aboard, however, just not enough.

As I have said before, we have our problems here as do quite a number of other chambers. Accordingly, I hope some of you have heard over the air or otherwise, that the widely known and very successful National Trout Festival, a gayla affair at Kalkaska for 1970 is hanging on a string, and at this moment, I feel it is a pretty thin string, so to speak. This position is brought about by the lack of the variety of necessary support, including dollars, also. How unfortunate!

DECLARATION OF NECESSITY

Section 2. It is hereby determined to be necessary and advisable for the Authority to acquire, construct, and develop the project as provided and specified in the contract.

ESTIMATED COST. PERIOD OF USEFULNESS

Section 3. The total estimated cost of the projects, including the payment of the incidental expenses specified in Section 4 hereof, which estimated cost is Five Hundred Thousand ($500,000.00) Dollars, is hereby approved and confirmed, and the estimated period of usefulness of the projects is determined to be not less than forty (40) years.

ISSUANCE OF REVENUE BONDS

Section 4. For the purpose of paying the cost of acquiring, constructing, and developing the project, including the payment of engineers' fees, legal and financial and other expenses incidental to the financing, there be borrowed on the credit of the net revenues of the project, consisting of the first annual rental and fixed annual rentals, the sum of Five Hundred Thousand ($500,000.00) Dollars, and that in evidence thereof there be issued the negotiable revenue bonds of the Authority in the principal amount of Five Hundred Thousand ($500,000.00) Dollars, which bonds are sometimes referred to in this Ordinance as the "bonds."

BOND TERMS

Section 5. Said bonds shall be designated BUILDING AUTHORITY OF THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX COUNTY JAIL REVENUE BONDS and shall be payable solely out of the first annual and fixed annual rentals to be paid by the County to the Authority pursuant to the provisions of the contract, and shall be coupon bonds consisting of one hundred (100) bonds of the denomination of $5,000.00 each, dated as of November 1, 1969, numbered consecutively in direct order of maturity from 1 upwards, and payable serially as follows:

$10,000.00 July 1st of each of the years from 1970 to 1976;
$15,000.00 July 1st of each of the years from 1977 to 1982;
$20,000.00 July 1st of each of the years from 1983 to 1987;
$25,000.00 July 1st of each of the years 1988, 1989 and 1990;
$30,000.00 July 1st of each of the years from 1991 to 1995;

Bonds maturing in the years 1970 to 1983, inclusive, shall not be subject to redemption prior to maturity.
Bonds maturing in the years 1984 to 1996, inclusive, shall be subject to redemption prior to maturity, at the option of the Authority in inverse numerical order on any interest payment date on or after July 1, 1983, at par and accrued interest to the date fixed for redemption, plus a premium on each bond as follows:

$30.00 if called for redemption on or after July 1, 1983, but prior to July 1, 1986;
$20.00 if called for redemption on or after July 1, 1986, but prior to July 1, 1989;
$10.00 if called for redemption on or after July 1, 1989, but prior to maturity.

Thirty days notice of the call of any bonds for redemption shall be given by publication in a paper circulated in the State of Michigan, which carries, as part of its regular service, notices of sale of municipal bonds. Bonds so called for redemption shall not bear interest after the date fixed for redemption, whether presented for redemption or not, provided funds are on hand with the paying agent to redeem said bonds.
Said bonds shall bear interest at a rate or rates not exceeding six per cent (6%) per annum, payable on JULY 1, 1970, and semi-annually thereafter on JANUARY 1st and JULY 1st of each year, both principal and interest to be payable in lawful money of the United States of America at a bank or trust company qualified to act as paying agent, to be designated by the manager of the account purchasing the bonds, who may also designate a co-paying agent having like qualifications.

EXECUTION OF BONDS

Section 6. The Chairman and Secretary of the Commission are hereby authorized and directed to execute said bonds when issued and sold for and on behalf of the Authority, and affix the seal of the Authority thereto, and the Chairman of the Commission is hereby authorized and directed to execute the interest coupons to be attached to said bonds by causing his facsimile signature to be affixed thereto. Upon the execution of said bonds and the attached coupons, the same shall be delivered to the Treasurer of the Commission or such other officer as shall be designated by the Commission, who is hereby authorized and directed to deliver said bonds and attached coupons to the purchaser thereof as hereafter determined by the Commission, upon receipt of the purchase price therefor.

SECURITY FOR BONDS. LIEN.

Section 7. The bonds are issued in anticipation of the payment of the fixed annual rentals which are contractual obligations of the County pursuant to the contract. Said bonds and the attached coupons shall not be a general obligation or indebtedness of the Authority, but shall be payable solely from the fixed annual rentals received by the Authority pursuant to the contract. To secure such payment, all of such fixed annual rentals are hereby pledged solely and only for the payment of the bonds, and a statutory first lien is established against such rentals for such purpose.

REMEDIES

Section 8. The holder or holders of said bonds or coupons representing in the aggregate not less than twenty per cent (20%) of the entire issue then outstanding may, either at law or in equity, by suit, action, mandamus or other proceedings, enforce and compel performance of all duties of the Authority, or its officers including the collection of fixed annual rentals, the proper segregation and application thereof as required by this Ordinance, and all other duties required to be performed by the Authority pursuant to the contract and this Ordinance.
If there be any default in the payment of the principal of or interest upon any of said bonds, any court having jurisdiction in any proper action may appoint a receiver to administer and operate said project on behalf of the Authority, and under the direction of said court, and by and with the approval of said court, to perform all of the duties of the Authority and its officers more particularly set forth in the contract, this Ordinance and in Act 31, Public Acts of Michigan, 1948 (First Extra Session), as amended, and in Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended.

OPERATION OF PROJECT

Section 9. Pursuant to the terms of the contract the operation, maintenance and management of the project shall be the obligation of the County, said contract constituting and being a "net lease."

OPERATING YEAR

Section 10. The project shall be operated on the basis of a fiscal year commencing January 1st of each year and ending on December 31st of each year.

RATES

Section 11. The fixed annual rentals provided by the contract are hereby established and fixed as the rates to be charged to the County for the use of the project. Such fixed annual rentals are estimated to be sufficient to provide for the payment of the interest upon and the principal of all the bonds as and when the same become due and payable and the creation of a debt service reserve therefor. Such fixed annual rentals shall not be reduced until such time as all bonds and the interest thereon are paid in full, or sufficient funds for their payment in full have been accumulated. Such fixed annual rentals shall be increased by the Authority, as provided in the contract, if necessary to meet its obligations on the bonds.

FUNDS

Section 12. The fixed annual rentals paid to the Authority shall be deposited, as received into a separate depositary account to be kept with CHARLEVOIX COUNTY STATE BANK, CHARLEVOIX, Michigan, to be designated BUILDING AUTHORITY OF THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX COUNTY JAIL REVENUE BONDS RECEIVING FUND (hereinafter referred to as the "Receiving Fund"). The moneys from time to time in the Receiving Fund shall be transferred periodically to the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund in the manner herein provided.
There shall be established and maintained a separate depositary account designated COUNTY JAIL REVENUE BONDS, BOND AND INTEREST REDEMPTION FUND, the moneys on deposit therein to be used solely and only for the purpose of paying the principal of and interest on the bonds hereby authorized. The moneys in said Bond and Interest Redemption Fund shall be kept on hand with the bank or trust company where the principal of and interest on the bonds herein authorized are currently payable.
There shall be set aside into said Fund from moneys in the Receiving Fund on or prior to December 15, 1969, and on or prior to December 15th of each year thereafter sums sufficient to pay the interest on the bonds due the next succeeding January 1st, and on or prior to June 15, 1970, and on or prior to June 15th of each year thereafter sums sufficient to pay the principal of and interest on the bonds due the next succeeding July 1st.
Any moneys remaining in the Receiving Fund on July 1st of each year after meeting the above current requirements for the preceding year shall be paid into the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund and held in said fund and allocated on the books and records of the Authority as a Debt Service Reserve Account which allocations to said Debt Service Reserve Account need not exceed the sum of $40,000.00. The moneys in said Debt Service Reserve Account shall be used solely for the payment of the principal of and interest on said bonds as to which there would otherwise be default. Moneys in said Debt Service Reserve Account shall finally be applied in payment of the principal of and interest on the bonds last maturing. If at any time moneys allocated in said Debt Service Reserve Account are used for the payment of principal of and interest on the bonds, the amount so used shall be replaced from the first fixed annual rentals thereafter received which are not required to pay current principal and interest on the bonds as the same become due. Any moneys paid into the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund over and above those moneys required for current principal and interest and for the establishment and maintenance of the Debt Service Reserve Account may be used to call bonds for redemption prior to maturity. Provided, however, that whenever surplus funds over and above the reserve fund amount to $5,000.00 or more, such funds shall be used to call bonds for redemption on the next call date.

DETERMINATION OF AUTHORITY, REVENUE BOND ACT

Section 13. It is the intent and purpose of the Authority pursuant to the provisions of Act 31, Public Acts of Michigan, 1948 (First Extra Session), as amended, to authorize and issue the bonds subject to the provisions of Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended, or such of the provisions of that Act as can be applied to the type of issue here involved. The contract provides that operation, maintenance and administration of the project is the total obligation of the County, as lessee, and thus the fixed annual rentals provided in the lease are net to the Authority and pledged solely for debt retirement represented by this bond issue. Thus no Authority operation and maintenance fund is established, as there would be no revenues allocable thereto. The Authority, therefore, determines that the plans and procedures herein followed comply with all substantive provisions of Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended, in that operation and maintenance of the project is fully contracted for, and maximum security for the bonds is provided by a pledge of all of the fixed annual rentals established in the contract.

PROCEEDS OF BOND SALE

Section 14. The proceeds of sale of the bonds herein authorized shall be deposited in an account with CHARLEVOIX COUNTY STATE BANK, CHARLEVOIX, Michigan, designated COUNTY JAIL CONSTRUCTION FUND, except that the premium and accrued interest received on delivery of the bonds shall be deposited into the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund and used to pay interest due on the bonds on said date. Said moneys in said County Jail Construction Fund shall be used solely and only to pay costs of the project and any legal, financing or other expenses incident thereto on authorization of the Commission of the Authority in accordance with the provisions of the contract: Provided, however, that any unexpended balance of the proceeds of the sale of the bonds remaining after the completion of the project, may to the extent of fifteen per cent (15%) of the amount of the issue, be used for additions, improvements, enlargements and/or extensions of the project, or for additions, improvements, enlargements and/or extensions for the completing of other projects of the AUTHORITY which are leased to the COUNTY, provided, that such use be approved by the Municipal Finance Commission, and any remaining balance shall be paid immediately into the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund and credited to the Debt Service Reserve Account. If any moneys remain in said fund after payment of all of such costs, such moneys shall be deposited into the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund and credited to the Debt Service Reserve Account.

INVESTMENT OF FUNDS

Section 15. Moneys in the funds and accounts established by this Ordinance may be invested by the Authority in bonds, notes, bills and certificates of the United States of America, subject to the provisions of Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended. In the event such investments are made, the securities representing the same shall be kept on deposit with the depositary or depositaries of the fund or funds from which such investments are made, and such securities and the income therefrom shall become a part of such funds.

COVENANTS OF AUTHORITY

Section 18. The Authority covenants and agrees with the successive holders of the bonds and coupons that so long as any of the bonds remain outstanding and unpaid as to either principal or interest --

(a) The Authority will punctually perform all of its obligations and duties under this Ordinance and the contract herein set forth, and will collect, segregate and apply the rentals and payments in the manner required under this Ordinance and the contract.
(b) The Authority will maintain and keep proper books of record and account relating to the operation of the project and the rentals and payments received therefrom pursuant to the contract. Not later than three (3) months after the close of each operating year, the Commission will cause to be prepared a statement, in reasonable detail, sworn to by its chief accounting officer, showing the cash receipts and disbursements during such operating year, the assets and liabilities of the project at the beginning and close of the operating year, and such other information as may be necessary to enable any taxpayer or any holder or owner of the bonds, or anyone acting in their behalf, to be fully informed as to all matters pertaining to the financial operation of the project during such year. A certified copy of said statement shall be filed with the County Clerk of the County and the Municipal Finance Commission, and a copy shall also be sent to the manager or managers of the account purchasing the bonds. The Commission shall also cause an annual audit of such books of record and account for the preceding operating year to be made by a recognized independent certified public accountant, and shall mail such audit to the manager of the syndicate or account purchasing the bonds. At the option of the Authority the aforesaid audit may be submitted in place of the aforesaid report required above.
(c) The Authority will not sell or otherwise dispose of the project until all of the bonds have been paid in full, both as to principal and interest, and will not do or suffer to be done any act which would affect the project in such a way as to impair or affect unfavorably the security of the bonds.

ADDITIONAL BONDS

Section 17. Nothing contained in this Ordinance shall be construed to prevent the Authority from issuing revenue bonds to finance the construction of additions to the present project or any new buildings or projects within the scope of its corporate powers, but said bonds shall be payable out of, and have a first lien on, the net revenues or annual rentals for space in such new project, and shall in no way have any lien on or be payable out of any of the rentals pledged to the payment of the bonds of this authorized issue or any additional bonds issued to complete the project in accordance with the authorization provided in the contract. The Authority shall also have power to issue additional bonds to complete the project but only as authorized in the contract.

CONTRACT WITH BONDHOLDERS

Section 18. The provisions of this Ordinance, together with the contract herein set forth, shall constitute a contract between the Authority and the holder or holders of the bonds from time to time, and after the issuance of any of such bonds, no change, variation or alteration of the provisions of this Ordinance, or the contract, may be which would lessen the security for the bonds. The provisions of this Ordinance and the contract shall be enforceable by appropriate proceedings taken by such holder or holders, either at law or in equity.

BOND AND COUPON FORM

Section 19. Said bonds and coupons shall be in substantially the following form:

Library Notes

Some of the new thought-provoking and controversial books which are new on the Library shelves include the timely book by Howard Zimm "SNCC, The New Abolitionists." The book is not a "history" of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee in any formal sense. What the author attempts to do is catch a glimpse of SNCC people in action and suggest the quality of their contribution to American civilization. As an advisor to SNCC members, he has talked extensively with them. He tells of their backgrounds, their motives for joining and their hopes of achievement.

"Civil Rights and Civil Liberties" is a provocstive examination of the current struggle for freedom of expression, equality and justice. This is a paperback with good print and many photographs. The book discusses such questions as: Is protest of the war in Vietnam unpatriotic? Do schools have the right to regulate hair styles and clothing? Can black citizens register in a hotel in any state?

"Paid Servant" by E. R. Braithwaite is a poignant and heartbreaking account of a four-year-old child named Roddy and the author's efforts to find a suitable home for the Negro child. Mr. Braithwaite is the author of To Sir, With Love. He was born in British Guiana and currently serves as the Guysna Ambassador to the United Nations.

Pedestrians, drivers

...please, 'play it safely'

BY BERNICE WEXSTAFF

In autumn when school begins for the nation's youngsters, automobile drivers are warned by radio, television and the press to "look our for the kids"!

Most sane drivers do, not only in autumn but the year 'round as well. However, there are always with us (like the poor), the drunk driver and the drugged driver, both self-infected carriers of misery and death.

Because of the un-sober drivers it appears the day has arrived to reeducate pedestrians, that they may conduct themselves circumspectly in order to foil the dazed and the crazed.

Statistics show that as many as 10,000 pedestrians have been killed in motor vehicle accidents in any 12-month period in our nation...To bring the meaning home to our own North Country imagine the three Charlevoix County cities of Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan (with possible Petoskey thrown in for good measure) wiped out.

Not all accidents are the fault of drivers. Pedestrians have been at fault in some cases by taking an attitude of aggression such as children jumping outward from behind a parked car as though challenging a driver to "hit me if you dare".

Pedestrains who gripe about discourteous, thoughtless drivers should recognize that there are just as many rude people on foot as on wheels.

But whether a pedestrians is right or wrong be should consider bis chances of survival when he pits a hundred-odd pounds of flesh and blood against 3,000 pounds of speeding steel!

Automobiles have definite limitations...It is not always possible to halt an automobile quickly enough to avert disaster. In busy city traffic, a driver has few alternatives if he can't stop his car in time. He can't drive off the road to avoid an accident as he could on a rural road.

National Safety Council statistics reveal that nearly half of all pedestrian accidents occur because people try to cross streets in the middle of the block. However, obeying the regulations of crossing in the line marking walkways doesn't absolve the pedestrain from hazard. He must be particularly alert for turning cars.

At night, chances of becoming a pedestrian fatality increase by about 25 percent, according to the National Safety Council. Twilight and dawn are worse as the motorist's vision is seriously limited: There isn't quite light enough for him to see—but it isn't dark enough for his headlights to be effective. Pedestrians should always wear light clothing when lighting is bad, and it is well to give yourself an extra margin of space for safety in rain, fog, snow and ice when the motorist is most seriously handicapped.

The National Safety Council's first commandment is ALWAYS walk on the road's left side facing traffic so that you can see cars approaching!

A few simple rules, combined with common sense can keep both young and old alive—a census, rather than a fatality statistic!

National Safety Council test for Pedestrians.

1. Do you dash across the street in the middle of the block or pop out from behind parked cars—or do you cross only at crosswalks?

2. Do you run on the red light or jump the light on a caution signal, or do you cross only when the traffic light facing you is green?

3. Do you walk on a "Wait" or "Don't Walk" light, or do you wait for the "Walk" light?

4. Do you gamble with oncoming cars on your chances of getting across the street, or do you cross when you are sure you have plenty of time to reach the other side?

5. Do you cross intersections diagonally instead of at right angles to the curb?

6. Do you cross where pedestrians are prohibited, or do you use pedestrian overhead crossings and tunnels whenever possible?

7. Do you step out into traffic or cross in front of vehicles, or do you always get out a car, bus or truck on the curb side?

8. Do you step off a curb behind a car that's backing into place, or do you bear in mind that cars move backward?

9. Do you assume you're safe because you have the right-of-way, or do you look in all directions each time you step off the curb?

If you regularly choose any of the riskier alternatives, you are greatly increasing your chances of becoming a traffic accident statistic!

Pat's Reaction

School lunch

By PAT BEGROW

Each September some of the women's magazines and the newspapers come out with big features giving hot tips on packing cold lunches.

Now when my first wee one started to school ~~I took~~ all of this very seriously and went to great pains to pack a lot of variety into each lunch bag, but sometimes it didn't always work out so well.

For instance one day Cathy's kindergarten class packed sack lunches and visited the Detroit zoo. This was a big outing and Cathy left the house in gay spirits with her lunch bag in her hand. I was sure that she would have a wonderful time on this her first class outing.

When she returned home that day I hit her with a barrage of questions. How was her trip?

What did she enjoy?

Did she want to go again?

Her trip was fine. She liked the reptile house the most. She wanted to go again except for one thing. She was the only person in the calsa who had a different lunch. It had marred her day.

"What," I aksed, "did the rest of the children have for lunch?" I envisioned olive, chopped liver, corned beef.

Everyone else in the class brought a peanut butter sandwich, and only Cathy brought bologna. Naturally no girl wants to be that different, especially at five years old.

Of course if I followed the advice of the food editors I could offer sandwiches made with a choice of three different kinds of bread and five different fillings, but chances are that most of the gang would still choose good old reliable P & J. With that you can't go wrong and you surely won't be labeled an odd ball.

I could always tuck in a little plastic bag filled with lettuce to moisten those peanut butter sandwiches, but my gang would most likely carefully tuck those lettuce bags into the waste basket.

And how about fruit? Juicy oranges, firm bananas, plums and grapes would be a nice addition to any lunch, but what do I pass out but hard apples and green pears exclusively. When I suggest anything else my gang cringes.

"Mom, don't pack me any oranges this year," says Lee. "Remember how I got in trouble last year squirting oranges in the lunch room?"

"Don't pack me any grapes," says Chris. "They take too long to eat and I want to get out and play football."

"Mommy, I don't want any bananas because they get squashed on the school bus," pipes Beth.

So you see in spite of what the food experts warn about children's appetites getting into the duld rums because of dull lunches that's what they want so, "what's a mother to do?"

Sometimes I do sprice things up with peanuts, licorice, candy bars or space sticks.

Space sticks are the newest fad at our house. Thanks to Pillsbury Company developing new food for the astronauts Charlevoix school children do have a new taste treat in their lunches. Space food sticks taste sort of like tootsie rolls, but they are actually a well balanced nutritious food. They're sort of a grimmick, but they're a gimmick that I like.

Now if the milk processors would make the little milk cartons an inch taller I could just throw in another gimmuck, a package of tasty Gorilla milk which is a powder similar to instant breakfast. It seems to me that Gorilla milk would be particularly appropriate for the lunch room crowd for so many of them monkey around anyhow.

Scout camp growth 'tremendous' in '69

The board of directors of the Crooked Tree Girl Scout Council met in Oleson Lodge at Girl Scout Camp Sakakawea to review the tremendous growth in troop camping in 1969. . .794 girls have camped on the site this year to date, and several troops will be using the council administered camp in September. . .250 of these girls attended the staffed sessions with waterfront, and counselors; while 544 camped witb their volunteer troop leaders.

The "Project '69" week, with staff, was attended by 44 girls, who are not Scouts, on camperships provided by Zonta Club, of Traverse City. These girls had a water carnival, special crafts and camp fire activities, with a clinic provided through the volunteer help of Dr. and Mrs. John Young and Mrs. Robert Hamilton, for state required physical examinations.

Nine weeks of Day Camping was provided by the council in various towns for 998 girls. Mrs. Judith Mann of Charlevoix was Day Camp director for 81 Charlevoix girls at Charlevoix Girl Scout Camp, and had a highly successful season.

The council's staff services to adults and girls are supported by your community chest contributions.

Ruppe Reports

At a county fair during the August recess, a young constituent asked:

I am a High School Senior, and am interested in attending a service academy. How do I apply for a nomination?

My office is now accepting applications for nomination to the United States Service Academies for the classes which will begin in 1970. If you are a resident of the 11th District of Michigan, please write to me at my Washington office, 509 Cannon House Office Building. The closing date for submitting an application for the classes entering in 1970 is September 29, 1969.

In selecting nominees for the Academies, I use the competitive method, based on the results of an examination conducted by the United States Civil Serice Commission. The Academy then conducts its own examination of my nominees, and makes the final appointments.

This year, the 11th District of Michigan will have vacancies at the United States Air Force, Merchant Marine, and Military Academies. If you are interested in attending the Naval Academy in 1970, you should contact either Senator Robert P. Griffin, or Senator Philip A. Hart at the Senate Office Building in Washington.

The United States Coast Guard Academy does not utilize the Congressional nomination system. If you are interested in applying for admission to that service academy, you should write directly to The Director of Admissions, United States Coast Guard Academy, New London, Connecticut, 06320.

Notice to Michigan Bell Telephone Company Customers

Michigan Bell Telephone Company has applied to the Michigan Public Service Commission for authority to revise its tariff regulations with respect to customer-provided equipment interconnected with Telephone Company facilities. The proposed tariff does not list or describe specific equipment which may be connected to company lines but it does set forth certain definitive requirements.

With an anticipated increase in the amount of customer-provided equipment connected to Telephone Company facilities and in order not to burden the general rate payer, Michigan Bell proposes to apply a Maintenance of Service Charge. This charge, of $15.00 per service call, would apply for visits by the Telephone Company to the customer's premises where a service difficulty or trouble report results from customer-provided equipment connected to Telephone Company facilities. The $15.00 Maintenance of Service Charge would not provide for repair of customer-provided equipment or apparatus.

The Commission has scheduled a public hearing on this matter to be held October 13, 1969, at 9:30 a.m. E.S.T. in the Seven Story Office Building, 5th floor, 525 W. Ottawa, Lansing, Michigan. Anyone interested may attend the hearing.

Also, any interested person may contact the manager of the local business office for further information.

Schools 'go' in North

With the exception of the Hillman Public Schools, all public schools in Region 14 and 15 are in session, with teachers and students present.

"While nine schools located within these regions have not completed negotiations for Master Agreements, eight of the schools' teachers voted to return to the classroom and continue to negotiate," according to Maurine Wyatt, MEA Field Representative for this area. "Hillman teachers voted unanimously to go to work Wednesday, September 3, if the Board of Education would agree to binding arbitration in the grievance procedure. This the Board was unwilling to do, and the teachers felt they had no choice but to strike," said Mrs. Wyatt. "Fact finding is scheduled in Hillman for September 6, but the offer from the Hillman Education Association to the Board of Education could put teachers and students in the classroom anytime the Board would agree to this provision," she added.

"Elk Rapids and Suttons Bay have mediation scheduled within the next two weeks, and Manton teachers are awaiting the findings and recommendations of the Fact Finder, following the hearing on August 28," Mrs. Wyatt reported.

"Kingsley, Northport and Ellsworth are taking a brief recess from negotiations, and Alpena and Boyne Falls have requested Fact Finding," she said.

"Some of the issues still in dispute among the nine units include salary schedule, binding arbitration, agency shop and class size," Mrs. Wyatt concluded.

Swinging sounds of sneezes, coughs

Folk, rock and frug. Watusi and waltz. But is there music in sneezes and coughs?

Somebody thinks so. This spring at a choral concert of modern American music, held at the Whitney Museum in New York City, one of the specialties on the program was "Sneezes and Cough." No lyrics to this number. Just "achoos" and a staccato series of hacking sound in the throat.

The music, so-called, got a laugh from the audience. But the song says something about modern American life.

The sounds are familiar, for one thing. More familiar than the sound of silence, a delicious state celebrated in song by Simon and Garfunkel.

More than 16 million Americans have asthma or hay fever--or both. Millions more have other allergies punctuated by sniffles and wheezes. More than 4 million have chronic bronchitis with an almost ever-present cough. Then there's the cigarette hack. Chronic coughs-and the jagged rhythmic sounds produced by the cold viruses-are all around us.

Sneezes and coughs, except in song, are nothing to laugh about. Respiratory infections are the major cause of time lost from school and work in America. People consult doctors for acute respiratory disease more often than for any other group of acute ailments.

And sneezes and coughs spread plenty of germs, including the TB germ.

This kind of music nobody wants to hear--in real life. And your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association is doing everything it can to help rub out the sound of respiratory disease. Check with them for more information to keep down the din.

Membership drive for Grandvue Aux.

Thursday, October 9, has been designated as the date for the start of the membership drive for the Grandvue Medical Facility Auxiliary.

Mrs. Louis Manglos, of Boyne City, as membership chairman, will set up the drive, which will be open to all women in Charlevoix county.

This decision was made at the regular meeting of the Auxiliary held Thursday at the Facility with 35 members present.

At the same time it was decided to establish a Memorial Fund where anyone may contribute in memory of a loved one. Funds from this source will be used for a scholarship fund for someone entering the fields of nursing of physical therapy.

Mrs. George Plumm of Charlevoix is historian and has started a complete scrapbook which was displayed at the meeting.

Mrs. W.G. Boswell and Mrs. T.E. Malpass of East Jordan were named to attend the regular meeting of the Northwestern Michigan Council of Hospitals and Auxiliaries at Gaylord on October 1.

At the close of the business meeting the members present mended clothing for the patients and linens for the hospital.

The next meeting is scheduled for October 9.
